AEF INVADES AFRICA

5,188 JAPS DIE IN SOLOMONS IN 3 MONTH FIGHT

Army Gains East of Air Field.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—American soldiers, marines, air and naval forces have killed at least 5,188 Japanese in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands since the invasion began three months ago today.

The total of Japanese dead was announced by the navy in a communique which also reported that 369 enemy planes had been destroyed in the South Pacific during October. Including these, the total of Jap planes destroyed since the beginning of the Solomons campaign as reported in navy communiques stands at 529.

An earlier communique announced that army troops had made an eastward advance on Guadalcanal in what appeared to be a drive to slash off the eastern arm of a Jap pincer movement against the American held airfield. This account also disclosed that light Japanese attacks on the American western flank Thursday night [Guadalcanal time] had been repulsed, and that United States aircraft were continuously bombing and strafing Jap troop concentrations and supply centers.

27 Bombers Attack Yanks.

The Japanese renewed air attacks on American positions Thursday, when 27 bombers and fighters came over but caused no damage. It was the first air attack there since Oct. 29.

The navy statement summarizing Japanese killed gave a breakdown of the total which reflected clearly the periods of most intense action in the hard fought campaign for control of the strategic jumping off place in the South Pacific.

During the latest period of intensive operations which began Oct. 22 and continued thru the 27th, a total of 2,000 Japanese were killed. In severe fighting the night of Sept. 13-14, when the enemy made a major effort to take the air field, 500 Japanese were killed.

1,000 Killed in Occupation.

On the morning of Aug. 21, after the Japs had put ashore a force of 700 troops near the mouth of Tenaru river to strike at the airfield from the east, 670 Japanese were killed. The 30 not killed were captured.

Of the remaining 2,018 in the total of 5,188 dead, 1,000 were killed during American occupation of positions on the islands of Tulagi, Gavutu, Makambo, and Tanambogo Aug. 7 and 8.

The rest, 1,018, were killed in various actions including aerial strafing, naval bombardment of enemy held areas, and minor skirmishes, snipings, and small scale engagements.

The estimates not included would cover, for instance, the enemy troops killed in the northern Solomons by aerial bombardment.

The navy said that the figure 5,188 was arrived at by "an actual count of enemy killed in actions ashore, and does not include estimates of those killed in enemy controled areas where no count could be made."

Drive 4 Miles Inland.

The American advance to the eastward across the Malimbiu river made against light resistance, placed United States forces not more than four miles inland and roughly parallel to the north coast of the island, where the Japs have established around Koli point a beachhead from which to strike at the American east flank.

Today's communique gave a better indication than usual of the geographical extent of the battleground. The American line runs, it now appears, between Point Cruz on the west and Koli on the east—about 12½ miles.

From these two points the line shifts roughly in a semi-circle to protect the strategic air field from attack from the jungle to the south, southwest, and southeast.

Spain and Portugal Given U. S.-British Guarantees

LONDON, Nov. 8 [Sunday].—The United States and British ambassadors in Madrid and Lisbon have given guarantees to the Spanish and Portuguese governments that the integrity of their territories in Africa will be respected, it was reported here early today. Such guarantees affect Spanish Riff and Portuguese West Africa.

MacArthur Circles New Guinea Japs

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Nov. 8 (Sunday)—(AP).—American combat troops are in action near Buna, vital Jap base on the north New Guinea coast, Gen Douglas MacArthur disclosed today. Buna is the base from which the enemy loosed in midsummer a drive over tortuous mountain trails, which got within 32 miles of Port Moresby before it began backtracking late in September.

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR.

MacArthur reportetd that the allies, whose ground forces have been pushing the Japs back across the Owen Stanley mountains, now control all of Papua except the Buna-Gona beach area on the north New Guinea coast as a result of the secret American movement.

Transported by Air.

"American ground troops in force, transported by air from Australia during the last month, have penetrated central and northern Papua to the vicinity of Buna," a communique stated.

Simultaneously, Gen. MacArthur disclosed that the allies have occupied Good Enough Island to the northeast of New Guinea, of Collingwood bay, in an obvious flanking movement.

Another surprising development was a thrust around the eastern end of New Guinea from Milne bay where Jap troops landed in July only to be pinned against the sea and slain or forced to their ships.

Aussies Fight at Oivi.

"Units from Milne bay," the communique said, "have now completed clearing remnants of hostile forces from the islands to the north and have occupied adjacent strategic points."

While this disclosure was being made, Australian ground forces still were meeting fierce resistance at Oivi where the retreating Japs are making a stand. Today's communique said the Australians maintained constant pressure and were resorting to their hitherto successful tactics of local encircling movements in efforts to dislodge the defenders.

The Jap units at Oivi are those retrating after their summer drive against Port Moresby. Oivi is 55 miles south of Buna, and the communique indicated the enemy there had been flanked by the American troops and now faces Yanks to the north and Aussies to the south.

War's Biggest Convoy Takes Yanks to Africa

LONDON, Nov. 8 [Sunday]—(AP).—Possibly the greatest invasion armada assembled in Europe since the start of the war undertook the invasion of French North Africa today in the first large scale European action in which the United States has participated.

A force of 24 warships, transports and freighters, followed by the great battleship Rodney and a heavy air escort, were reported by the German news agency DNB to have left Gibraltar Thursday night.

A possibility that four aircraft carriers accompanied the attack fleet was seen in axis reports. German broadcasts said the Furious, the Argus and another unidentified "flattop" had been observed in the harbor at Gibraltar, and a later Vichy report said four carriers were seen there.

In addition to the vessels which set out eastward into the Mediterranean, DNB said, at least 100 other ships waited at Gibraltar.

40 Merchant Ships.

Among the 125 originally there, the German reports said, were six cruisers, one auxiliary cruiser, 26 to 28 destroyers, four submarines and one monitor. To transport men, equipment and supplies there were two transports, one of them large, and possibly 40 merchantment and 12 tankers. The remainder of the vessels were not identified.

Later, Rome said, another big convoy of troops and supplies entered the Mediterranean under escort of seven destroyers and numerous speed boats and was reinforced at Gibraltar by two cruisers and an aircraft carrier.

The landings electrified London, which had been filled with rumors that something "awfully big" was brewing for this week-end.

The foreign office announced that "his majesty's government subscribe in full to the policies and ideals of President Roosevelt's statement" announcing the arrival of American troops in French Africa.

"Fighting French" sources expressed keen gratification at the announcement. One official said: "We welcome the allied move to liberate French territory and particularly any move to liberate the real fighting France."

British Hail Landing.

An official British statement said:

"In a broadcast to Frenchmen the President of the United States has announced the arrival of American forces in French North Africa.

"He has explained that their purpose is to free French territory from the threat of occupation by the axis, and that the united nations are doing all they can to insure a sound future as well as the restoration of the ideals, liberties, and democracy of all those who have lived under the tricolor.

"He has issued an appeal to all Frenchmen to help toward the execution of this great purpose and to hasten the day of peace.

Supported by RAF.

"His majesty's government subscribe in full to the policy and ideals of the President's statement.

"The United States' action was undertaken with the full support and collaboration of his majesty's government, and the operations of the United States forces are being supported by units of the royal navy and the RAF.

"His majesty's government have but one desire in relation to France, and that is to hasten the day when Frenchmen everywhere will join together to restore the independence and greatness of France.

"The operation initiated by the united nations in North Africa marks a step forward toward that day."

LEADER OF INVASION GETS FIRST TASTE OF FIRE IN AFRICAN COUP

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—The North African invasion served as a baptism of fire for 52 year old Lieut. Gen. Dwight David Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the allied force.

Eisenhower's military career of more than a quarter century included service in the World war, but his duty kept him in this country as a trainer of tank and other troops.

In recent years, the American commander in Europe saw service in the Philippines as the right hand of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but returned to this country before the Japanese invasion of the islands.

Deemed among the most brilliant of army strategists, he was designated commanding general of the European theater on June 25, with headquarters at London, after four months as chief of the army general staff's war plans division.

Eisenhower was graduated from the military academy and commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in 1915. His star rose when he became an aide to MacArthur, then chief of staff, in 1935.

British Tanks Smash 2d Axis Stand.

Yanks Bag 45 Planes

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP).—American flyers have shot down 45 enemy planes against a loss of 6 of their own in the middle east from Oct. 1 to Nov. 5, Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's headquarters announced tonight. In addition, the announcement said, the Yanks have seriously damaged an uncalculated number of tons of enemy shipping and knocked out a number of tanks and other motor vehicles. Only yesterday they destroyed a large tanker at Bengazi and hit a medium merchant vessel at Tobruk. Fighter and medium bombers were continuing to harass withdrawing axis forces west of Matruh.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP).—Approximately 100,000 men of Marshal Erwin Rommel's axis army of 140,000 were reported captured or pinned down in pockets far behind the swiftly moving African front today as the British 8th army swept on toward the Libyan border after smashing the German armored force in its second attempted stand.

Disregarding the thousands of foot soldiers left in the dusty backwash of the battlefront, Lieut. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery's British and American tanks tore into the disorganized flanks of their main prize—the battered remnants of the German armored divisions—west of Matruh in an effort to eliminate them entirely. They already had caught up with this fleeing force once and sent it into headlong, harassed retreat a second time.

General Spurs Pursuit.

Montgomery spurred his men on to swifter pursuit of the enemy with the admonition that the "battle just won is only the beginning of our task." The British object apparently was to harry Rommel's men constantly so they could not rest or regroup their shattered forces.

Montgomery's observation was contained in the following order of the day to the 8th army:

"I feel sure that the battle we have just won is only the beginning of our task. There is much to be done yet, and it will call for supreme effort and great hardship on the part of every officer and man.

"Forward then to our task of removing the Germans from north Africa. The Germans began this trouble, and they must take the consequences. They asked for it, and now they will get it. Let no officer or man relax, let us drive ahead westward, destroying the enemy wherever he is met."

20,000 Prisoners Counted.

Today's communique announced that the counted prisoners now totaled well over 20,000, and unofficial reports said six Italian divisions [an additional 80,000 men] were as good as under lock and key, for they had been abandoned without transport, food, or water in the hasty Rommel flight at positions near the Al Alamein line, 104 miles east of Matruh. Yanks Pour Ashore from Huge Armada

BY WES GALLAGHER.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Nov. 8 (Sunday)—AP.—American soldiers, marines, and sailors from one of the greatest naval armadas ever put into a single military operation swarmed ashore today on the Vichy controled North Africa shore before dawn, striking to break Hitler's hold on the Mediterranean.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. (Ike) Eisenhower, supreme commander of the huge forces involved in the operation, worked thruout the night directing the first great American blow at the axis.

Included in the forces were crack combat troops, Rangers (air borne units), and the cream of America's air men.

Largest Ever Attempted.

British naval and air force units supported the American landing forces, who were preceded by a snowstorm of leaflets and a radio barrage promising the French that the United States had no intention of seizing French possessions and only sought to prevent axis infiltration.

It undoubtedly was the longest overwater military operation ever attempted, with hundreds of ships in great convoys coming thousands of miles under the protection of British and American sea and air might. I came on one of these convoys.

Fighting-fit American soldiers and airmen, who did not know their destination until a few hours before scrambling into assault barges, crowded the ships to the very funnels and guarded the aircraft carriers, racing cruisers, and destroyers.

Sail Thru Storms for Days.

Our big convoy arrived at its destination with the split second timing of a subway train, despite storms for many days at sea and danger from planes and submarines.

The entire operation was carried out with the delicate synchronization of an expensive watch, justifying the months of careful planning by Lieut. Gen. Eisenhower and his British-American supreme command.

AIR TRANSPORT TO GET TRIBUNES IN PACIFIC AREAS

The Army Air Transport command has requested THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to supply it with six copies daily to be dropped off at points where American troops are stationed in the Pacific, as an aid to maintaining good morale.

THE TRIBUNE received the request together with papers in 13 other cities, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Detroit, Cleveland, Kansas City, St. Louis, Miami, New Orleans, Denver, San Francisco, and Seattle.

THE TRIBUNE complied immediately with the request of the Army Air Transport command. The transport command is responsible for the delivery of essential supplies to far flung bases in the Pacific, serving as a swift supplement to the slower sea transport.

Capture Irks 2 Officers 'Just Looking' at War

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP).—Two high ranking Italian officers captured in the Egyptian desert fumed and fretted today because, they explained to their British captors, they were sent to the front as observers of British methods and not as combatants. "This is an outrage," one of them complained. "We were not fighting; we were just looking."

Eisenhower's Order

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—The war department tonight gave out the following proclamation by Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower which was broadcast in French to the poeple of North Africa:

"Here is a communication of the American Gen. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the forces now disembarking in French North Africa. This is one of the general staff officers who speaks to you. This communication of the highest importance is addressed to the French armies on the land, sea, and air in North Africa:

"Frenchmen of North Africa, the forces which I have the honor of commanding come to you as friends to make war against your enemies.

Count on Friendship.

"This is a military operation directed against the Italian-German military forces in North Africa. Our only objective is to defeat the enemy and to free France. I need not tell you that we have no designs either on North Africa or on any part of the French empire. We count on your friendship and we ask your aid.

"I have given formal orders that no offensive action shall be undertaken against you on condition that for your part you take the same attitude.

"To avoid any possible misunderstanding, make the following signals:

"By day, fly the French Tricolor and the American flag, one above the other.

"I repeat, by day, fly the French Tricolor and the American flag, one above the other, or two [I repeat two] Tricolors, one above the other.

"By night turn on a searchlight and direct it vertically toward the sky.

"I repeat, by night turn on a searchlight and direct it vertically toward the sky.

Gives Orders to French.

"Moreover, for reasons of military security, we are obliged to give you the following orders. Any refusal to follow them will be interpreted as a proof of hostile intention on your part. Here are the orders:

"To all naval and merchant marine units: First, stay where you are.

LIEUT. GEN. EISENHOWER.

"To coast guard units: Withdraw from the neighborhood of your cannon and your stations.

"General orders: In general, you must obey all orders given to you by my officers.

"We come, I repeat, as friends, not as enemies. We shall not be the first to fire. Follow exactly the orders which I have just given you. Thus, you will avoid any possibility of a conflict which could only be useful to our enemies. We summon you as comrades to the common fight against the invaders of France. The war has entered the phase of liberation."

Sends Message from F. D. R.

Gen. Eisenhower also broadcast to "all the people in Morocco and in North Africa," a message in behalf of President Roosevelt.

"Help us and the day of a world of peace will be established," the President's message said.

"Vive La France!" Cries F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., Nov 7 (AP).—The text of the address broadcast by President Roosevelt, in French, to the French people, follows:

"My friends, who suffer day and night, under the crushing yoke of the Nazis, I speak to you as one who was with your army and navy in France in 1918.

"I have held all my life the deepest friendship for the French people—for the entire French people. I retain and cherish the friendship of hundreds of French people in France and outside of France.

"I know your farms, your villages, and your cities. I know your soldiers, professors, and workmen. I know what a precious heritage of the French people are your homes, your culture, and the principles of democracy in France. I salute again and reiterate my faith in liberty, equality, and fraternity. No two nations exist which are more united by historic and mutually friendly ties than the people of France and the United States.

"We Repulse Cruel Invaders."

"Americans, with the assistance of the united nations, are striving for their own safe future as well as the restoration of the ideals, the liberties, and the democracy of all those who have lived under the Tricolor.

"We come among you to repulse the cruel invaders who would remove forever your rights of self-government, your rights to religious freedom, and your rights to live your own lives in peace and security.

"We come among you solely to defeat and rout your enemies. Have faith in our words. We do not want to cause you any harm.

"Vive La France Eternelle!"

"We assure you that once the menace of Germany and Italy is removed from you, we shall quit your territory at once.

"I am appealing to your realism, to your self-interest and national ideas.

"Do not obstruct, I beg of you, this great purpose.

"Help us where you are able, my friends, and we shall see again the glorious day when liberty and peace shall reign again on earth.

It's News to Vichy

LONDON, Nov. 8 [Sunday]—(AP).—While the British and American stations were broadcasting announcements of the American landings in North Africa, the Vichy [French] radio early today was still giving its usual news program. BBC interrupted all broadcasts to report the landings and continued with translations of the official communique in various languages.

ROMMEL DROPS FROM NAZI NEWS ON AFRICAN WAR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—The Office of War Information said today that the German propaganda ministry, which has heretofore given Field Marshal Erwin Rommel "an unprecedented buildup," has been omitting his name from broadcasts to the German people about developments in Africa. OWI interpreted this as "apparently an effort to disassociate Rommel's name from a German defeat."

In shortwave radio to the rest of the world, OWI reported that Rommel's name is still being used in an attempt to make the world believe that he "is capable of pulling a new rabbit out of his magic hat at any time."

LAND IN FRENCH COLONIES; OPEN SECOND FRONT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Powerful American expeditionary forces are landing on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts of the French colonies in Africa in the first big-scale offensive of the war under the Star-Spangled Banner.

An electrifying announcement of the action, obviously aimed at winning complete domination of the dark continent and reopening the Mediterranean sea for the united nations in conjunction with the victorious British drive westward from Egypt, was made in an announcement tonight by President Roosevelt and a simultaneous communique from the war department.

The White House statement said the purpose of the move was two-fold:

1. To forestall an axis invasion there which "would constitute a direct threat to America across the comparatively narrow sea from western Africa."

Called Second Front.

2. To provide "an effective second front assistance to our heroic allies in Russia."

Thus the axis had an emphatic answer to its attempts to "fish for information" by broadcasting accounts of heavy allied troop convoys escorted by warships mustering at the Rock of Gibraltar in recent days.

The troops apparently were some of those which have been concentrated in the British Isles for some time, itching for action as they went thru battle training. They were commanded by Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief in the European theater, whose headquarters had been in Britain.

Asks French to Help.

Eisenhower broadcast a message to the people of French North Africa on behalf of the President, assuring them that "we come among you solely to destroy your enemies and not to harm you," and issued a proclamation instructing them how to coöperate.

To signify coöperation, the general directed that they fly the French tri-color and the American flag, one above the other, or two tri-colors by day and shine a searchlight vertically into the sky by night. He also directed French naval and aviation units to remain idle.

Eisenhower's message indicated that the troops were pouring ashore in Morocco, which has both Atlantic and Mediterranean shores, and the remainder of French North Africa, which comprises Algeria and Tunisia on the Mediterranean.

[The principal port in Morocco is Casablanca and that of Algeria is Oran.]

Army and Navy Included.

Landings also presumably were being made in the French west African colonies, including Senegal, whose capital of Dakar lies only 1,870 miles across the South Atlantic from the bulge of Brazil.

The announcement gave no de-

AFRICA INVASION SEEN AS PRELUDE TO DRIVE ON ITALY

Aimed to Control All of Mediterranean.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—The landing of American forces in French colonies on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts of Africa was seen tonight as the prelude to invasion of Europe.

The operations were widely interpreted as part of a campaign to secure control of the Mediterranean. Once this historic sea falls into allied hands, invasion of Italy is considered a certainty.

Allied drives could be launched on Berlin thru southern France or thru Greece. Observers here believed that all three actions might be launched simultaneously.

It was expected here that news of the American landings would cause much concern in Italy, which has already been gravely worried over the British rout of axis forces in Egypt.

May Weaken Italy.

One Washington theory was that popular reaction against the war might force Italy to weaken in her war efforts and her support of the Nazis and to become an easy allied avenue toward Berlin.

Control of the Mediterranean is also vital to the allied cause, observers said, because it will remove the threat of Nazi domination of Spain and Turkey. The threat of German invasion of Spain has been ever present since the fall of France.

The Spanish régime owes a debt to the Nazis for Germany's support of Franco in the Spanish revolution. However, the war weary Spaniards have shown no disposition to repay the debt by sending men.

Allies Wooing Turkey.

Should Spain be induced to cooperate with the allies, the advantage would be great. Such coöperation would facilitate the campaign of liberation of France and the beginning of a march toward Berlin thru that unhappy country.

On the eastern Mediterranean, Turkey has long been wooed by both the axis and the united nations. If the allies could control the Mediterranean, Turkey's coldness toward the axis might be stiffened into allied cooperation, Washington observers declared, and this might prove of considerable value in the launching of a Balkan drive toward Berlin.

TIDE HAS TURNED, BRITAIN'S LABOR MINISTER FEELS

HULL, England, Nov. 7 (AP).—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin today expressed his belief that the tide of war has turned and declared that the triumph in North Africa has vindicated the British army.

"Our bonds have been strengthened by the adversity we both have had to face," he said. "I think we feel our turn is coming."

Bevin's was the third statement of British empire leaders in recent days to express belief that the victory in North Africa might be a turning point of the war. Both Sir Stafford Cripps and Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa hailed it as such and hinted at impending new allied offensives.

FRANCE TOLD: U. S. INVASION 1ST STEP IN LIBERATION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Following is the text of a joint American-British declaration broadcast to the people of metropolitan France and dropped as a leaflet from planes tonight as United States forces were invading French colonies in north Africa:

"The landing of the American Expeditionary Force in French North Africa is the first step towards the liberation of France. The object of the present operation is to destroy the German and Italian forces in north Africa.

"Our forces arrive in French North Africa as friends. The day when the German and Italian threat shall no longer weigh on French territories, they will leave.

"The sovereignty of France on French territories remains unaffected.

"We enter, today, into the offensive phase of the war of liberation. This is the beginning.

"Gen. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Force, is appealing to the active cooperation of the French in North Africa. Nevertheless, the moment has not yet come to appeal to the French nation as a whole. For the moment, we ask the French population in France itself to remain on the alert.

"The hour of national uprising has not sounded. We have already promised you that we will warn you when this hour shall have come.

"Today that moment is closer.

"We will keep our promise."

70 from Torpedoed Ship Under Care in Canada

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 6 (AP).—More than 70 survivors from an allied merchantman torpedoed in the North Atlantic have arrived here and are being cared for at a Navy league hotel. Crew and passengers from the vessel were first landed at another eastern port after being picked up by a Canadian warship.

BYSTANDER SHOT IN GUN DUEL OF BANDITS, VICTIMS

Gregory Stephenson, 35 years old, 3111 Congress street, a street car conductor, was shot in the right leg yesterday when he was caught in the cross fire between two bandits and two intended victims at Madison street and Kedzie avenue.

The intended victims were Charles Monda, 31, of 2811 Washington boulevard, part owner of the California Inn, 128 North California avenue, and Joseph Stockinger, 43, of 113 North Francisco, his bartender. They had withdrawn $2,800 to cash pay roll checks from the Merchants National bank, 3158 Madison street, and were getting into their car when the robbers menaced them with guns.

Monda ran back toward the bank with the money, the bandits firing at him. Stockinger fired at them. Stephenson stepped into the line of fire and went down, supposedly from a bandit bullet. The robbers fled empty handed. Stephenson was taken to the Robert Burns hospital.

communique said these forces were being "mopped up." Among them were the Italian Bologna, Trieste, Trento, Brescia, and Folgore divisions.

The communique, giving no new estimate of destroyed axis tanks, said a total of 350 had been captured. This apparently left only a few score tanks at the disposal of Rommel, who previously was reported to have lost 339 machines, captured and destroyed.

Four hundred guns and "many thousands of vehicles" also were in the British booty, but correspondents at the front regarded even these figures as very conservative. They said 300 guns had been captured in the El Daba area alone.

British Use 10 Divisions.

The British were reported to have thrown 10 divisions into the fiercely waged battle and among them were three tank divisions.

After pursuing the axis tank elements 104 miles to Matruh, the British chances of utterly destroying them before they reach the Libyan border seemed good, for Rommel still had more than half the distance to go. And even then he would not be safe.

They had overtaken him at Fuka, 62 miles west of El Alamein, and there the German marshal had turned on his pursuers.

"Remnants of the Panzer [armored] army attempted to hold our advance on the Fuka escarpment but, after vigorous attacks by our armored forces, were driven farther west," said the British communique.

Airmen Batter Tanks.

Then the allied air forces took up the pursuit, caught the fleeing tank force west of Matruh and battered it without letup. Flying low to give maximum effect to bomb, aerial cannon and machine gun, the allied airmen watched enemy tanks split open from explosions. Burning, wrecked hulks were left scattered along the coastal road which had become a defile of death for the axis army that Rommel had hoped to lead to the waters of the Nile.

American fighters and medium bombers participated in this attack, as well as sweeps to the west against transport in the bottleneck at Halfaya pass and Sollum, and at Buqbuq and Bardia.

In the air, the Germans and Italians remained impotent. "No enemy air activity was reported" was the succinct statement of the British communique.

A strong four motored force from Britain pounded the Italian embarkation port of Genoa, where axis broadcasts admitted major damage had been done.

Occupy Nazi Airfields.

The air forces were moving fast to occupy German advance landing fields. In some cases the RAF was ready within a few hours after taking over a field to operate its own planes.

At the El Daba airfield, one of Rommel's major advance air bases, the RAF found 100 planes destroyed or damaged on the ground. Some Messerschmitt 109s were repairable and, in one case, mechanics had the motors running soon after they arrived.

Camps and airfields in the battle area were littered with abandoned equipment and personal belongings, showing the haste in which the Germans left.

When advance parties arrived at one airdrome yesterday they found may German and Italian troops still wandering around.

Maneuvering in Order, Nazis Say.

BERLIN, Nov. 7 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The main body of the German and Italian tank army in North Africa is maneuvering "according to plan and in complete order," the Berlin radio said tonight. It quoted informed quarters here.

Some units, it was said, have "reached new positions and are receiving reënforcements."

The British 8th army, it was reported, "had to desist from any large scale initiative because of the defensive moves of Marshal Erwin Rommel."

The axis air forces, it was stated, carried out effective raids on British supply columns on the coastal road between Fuka and El Alamein.

In authoritative quarters British reports that large quantities of German materials had been seized were pronounced "nonsense." Such material as might have been abandoned "had value only as scrap metal," it was said.

Concede Allied Superiority.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Germans, coming up on the radio with an alibi for their North African debacle, declared today the British had thrown their greatest air armada of the war into the Egyptian battle and grudgingly conceded allied superiority there in men and guns as well as in planes.

Then, going into the question of man power and equipment, the Nazi propagandists manufactured a statement which they attributed to the British, that 1,000,000 allied troops were taking part in the campaign. The Germans are the first to suggest such a figure.

Heavy Fighting Breaks Out in Hupeh, Chinese Report

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 7 (AP).—Heavy fighting at two points in Hupeh province against Japanese who were repulsed Thursday and have attacked again with reënforcements was reported today in a Chinese communique.

HEAVY AMERICAN BOMBERS SMASH AT NAZI SUB BASE

Hit Brest; RAF Attack on Italy Indicated.

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP).—United States heavy bombers smashed at the big German submarine base at Brest, France, in a daylight attack today and reports from France and Switzerland indicated the royal air force had its big bombers out tonight for a new attack on northern Italy.

The raid on Brest was made by Flying Fortresses and Liberators [Consolidated B-24s] accompanied by RAF fighters. A communique said bombs were seen striking the target—the docks and submarine pens—but no details were given.

All the bombers returned safely, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. One German fighter was shot down and one allied fighter was reported missing.

Alarms in Switzerland.

The last raid on Brest was made by the RAF last Feb. 11, the night before the German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, and Prinz Eugen dashed thru the channel.

The submarine pens which were attacked were built by the Germans to protect their U-boats at the base. They have heavy concrete roofs under which the submarines take cover.

Indications of the second successive night attack on northern Italy were seen in reports of air raid alarms and anti-aircraft fire in western Switzerland and the fact that French radio stations at Toulouse, Lyons, and Vichy went off the air.

The sirens sounded in Berne, Geneva, and several other Swiss localities, along the route the RAF flies over the Alps.

Blast Freight Trains.

Meanwhile, the air ministry news service disclosed that RAF fighters and fighter-bombers had been busy during the day with a series of low-level sweeps over Belgium and occupied France.

Seventeen freight engines were damaged or destroyed by cannon and machine gun fire, the announcement said.

Hurricane bombers dropped explosives on hangars at a Belgian coastal airdrome and hit an anti-aircraft tower. Whirlwinds bombed a rail line south of Valognes, in the Cherbourg peninsula. Other targets for the fighters were German army trucks, electricity generators, pylons, and gun posts near Cap d'Antifer, north of Le Havre.

On Friday night Britain's heaviest bombers dropped tons of high explosives on the northern Italian supply port of Genoa. The "concentrated and effective" attack was said to have doubled the destruction caused in two previous raids on Genoa last month.

Fires visible for 120 miles were seen as the pilots climbed over the snow-capped Alps in nasty weather on the return leg of their 1,500 mile excursion.

AFRICA WAR TOUGH; AXIS TROOPS GIVE UP, BUT FIND NO TAKERS

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 7 (AP).—The movement of events in the Egyptian battle are so rapid that some German and Italian soldiers are having difficulty finding anybody who has time to take them prisoner.

One large party of Germans overtaken at an advance air base asked RAF men to take them prisoners, but were told they were too busy.

"Run off and get captured by somebody with more time to spare," an RAF officer said.

A GLIMPSE OF 2 COUNTRIES THAT AEF IS INVADING

Casablanca, Oran Good Ports for Attack.

Military strategists last night assumed that the American invasion of French Morocco and Algeria was being made thru at least two ports which are good sites for an attack—Casablanca, in French Morocco, on the Atlantic coast, and Oran, Algeria, on the Mediterranean.

Oran is within easy striking distance of Gibraltar, where, according to reports from Spain and Germany, allied troops have been massing for days.

French Morocco consists mainly of an arable strip along Africa's northwestern coast, behind which is a deep depression gutted by ravines and rivers. Behind this depression lies the Atlas mountain range, which slopes southward toward the Sahara desert.

Few Europeans in Country

The population of the country is predominately Berber, the tribesmen who joined the Arabs and Egyptians to invade Spain during the Moorish empire. Only a few thousand of the 6,200,000 inhabitants of the French "protectorate" are Europeans, altho the population increased greatly after France took over the area in 1912.

The country is chiefly agricultural. Its nomadic people grow wheat, barley, and corn in its several river valleys, while others produce important crops from olive, fig, nut, and date palm trees. Some stock, mainly sheep, goats, and camels, are raised in the more arable regions.

Good Mineral Deposits.

Excellent deposits of phosphate have been discovered and exploited by the French government. There also are some iron mines which produce a fine ore, while manganese, molybdenum, lead, zinc, copper, and tin deposits also are worked. Attempts have been made to bore for petroleum, but these have not been very successful.

About 4,000 miles of excellent motor roads link the ports with major cities in the interior.

The narrow-gauge railroads built by the French during the First World war have been extended and most of them widened to standard gauge, until now there are numerous adjuncts, mainly for military purposes, to the regular rail lines from Tangier to Fez, from Casablanca to Fez, and from Casablanca to Marrakesh.

Railway to Tunisia.

It is one of these railroads which makes Casablanca particularly adapted to use as an invasion beachhead, for this line links Casablanca with Tunis, Sfax, and Gabes, in Tunisia, permitting movement of troops and supplies on a submarine-proof, 1,200 mile haul from the Atlantic to those jumping places for an attack on the rear of the axis army in Libya.

Altho Casablanca it not a natural seaport, the French have built two breakwaters enclosing a harbor of about 350 acres. It also boasts wharves and modern unloading facilities capable of handling large amounts of cargo. However, it may be presumed that these landing facilities are well protected by coastal artillery, air fields, and other defenses. Also, the new 35,000 ton French battleship Jean Bart is in Casablanca harbor, presumably immobilized but adaptable for use as a floating fortress.

Defended by Native Army.

From a defensive standpoint, Morocco can be said to possess an army, but it is mainly of native troops whom the French always have mistrusted. Many of the units are armed with obsolete weapons because their French masters feared to give them good ones. The French and French colonial units, including the famous Foreign Legion, usually have included large native levies.

The natives themselves have fought the French, the Spanish, and each other for so many years that a sultan's army no longer can be said to exist.

Morocco Really a Monarchy.

Technically, Morocco is an absolute monarchy with all civil and religious authority vested in the sultan, Sidi Mohammed, but under the protectorate arranged by the French in 1912 actual government is carried on by the French resident general, Gen. Auguste Nogues, who is also the French military commander.

The United States long has had a hand in the maintenance of peace in Morocco. It sent representatives to the Algeciras conference in 1906 which by its Moroccan resolution smoothed over the colonial rivalries of Germany, France, and other European powers.

It was against the Barbary pirates of Morocco and Tripoli that the United States sent naval squadrons in 1801-'02-'04-'15. The United States was the first to check the power of these pirates and to refuse their demands for tribute.

Algeria Like a Part of France.

Algeria is more than a colony of France. In some respects it is a part of France itself. Before the collapse of France, Algeria sent deputies and senators to the Paris parliament.

It has a population of about 7,000,000, its citizens being a mixture of many peoples, notably Berber and Arab. The Algerians live on the land. Less than 6 per cent of them are congregated in cities.

The capital and chief seaport, Algiers, has a spacious and well fortified harbor. The citadel, now used as a barracks for French soldiers, dates back to 1516. Algiers' population is about 250,000.

HUGE U. S. FORCE INVADES FRENCH AFRICA COLONIES

'Second Front' Commanded by Eisenhower.

tails of the composition of the troops and their equipment, for military reasons, but the war department communique said they were made up of army, navy, and air force units. The President's statement said they would, "in the immediate future, be reëforced by a considerable number of divisions of the British army."

Asks French to Help.

There was no doubt the expeditions were made in heavy force with tanks, artillery, and all the accoutrements of modern warfare. The offensive far surpassed in weight the American invasion of the Solomon Islands in the South Pacific undertaken just three months ago.

Announcement of the landings was timed to coincide with the actual debarkation of the troops on their destinations at 8 p. m. Chicago time [3 a. m. Sunday, West African time], and was made only after a reassuring message from Mr. Roosevelt's own lips had been broadcast to the French people, asking for their aid to rout their own enemies.

White House Secretary Stephen Early called newspaper men to a special press conference to make the announcement in the name of President Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt's announcement follows:

"In order to forestall an invasion of Africa by Germany and Italy, which if successful, would constitute a direct threat to America across the comparatively narrow sea from western Africa, a powerful American force equipped with adequate weapons of modern warfare and under American command is today landing on the Mediterranean and Atlantic coasts of the French colonies in Africa.

"The landing of this American army is being assisted by the British navy and air forces and it will, in the immediate future, be reënforced by a considerable number of divisions of the British army.

"This combined allied force, under American command, in conjunction with the British campaign in Egypt, is designed to prevent an occupation by the axis armies of any part of northern or western Africa, and to deny the aggressor nations a starting point from which to launch an attack against the Atlantic coast of the Americas.

"Provides a Second Front."

"In addition, it provides an effective second front assistance to our heroic allies in Russia.

"The French government and the French people have been informed of the purpose of this expedition, and have been assured that the allies seek no territory and have no intention of interfering with the friendly French authorities in Africa.

"The government of France and the people of France and the French possessions have been requested to coöperate with and assist the American expedition in its effort to repel the German and Italian international criminals and by so doing to liberate France and the French empire from the axis yoke.

"This expedition will develop into a major effort by the allied nations, and there is every expectation that it will be successful in repelling the planned German and Italian invasion of Africa and prove the first historic step to the liberation and restoration of France."

Eisenhower in Command.

The war department issued the following communique:

"North Africa: United States army, navy, and air forces started landing operations during the hours of darkness tonight at numerous points on the shores of North Africa. The operation was made necessary by the increasing axis menace to this territory. Steps have been taken to give the French people by radio and leaflet early information of the landings. These combined operations of the United States forces were supported by units of the royal navy and royal air force.

11 Months from Pearl Harbor.

The announcement came exactly 11 months after the Japanese made their attack on Pearl Harbor and plunged the United States into the world maelstrom. It also came as the British eighth army was battering the combined Nazi-Italian armies in Egypt.

More than a score of newspaper men assembled in Secretary Early's office to receive the news. Word that some kind of major war development was about to break spread thruout the city early this evening, but there was no definite word that an official announcement was coming until about an hour before it was released.

Early locked the door to his office after the newspapers men had entered, and permitted no one to leave until the exact stroke of 9 p. m., eastern time.

He had only a few minutes to read hurriedly from the announcement, and 9 o'clock came before he had an opportunity to finish.

Powerful American Force Landed on Coasts of French Colonies in Africa

Horizontally ruled area marks French colonies in northern Africa. The White House announced last night that American troops had been put ashore in French African colonies to forestall an invasion of them by the axis.

150,000 TROOPS BELIEVED BASED IN FRENCH AFRICA

LONDON, Nov. 8 [Sunday].—Some of France's crack colonial troops and at least two divisions of the Foreign Legion—about 150,000 men in all—are stationed in North Africa under the command of Gen. Alphonse Juin. Defense of the colonies, too, is aided by the rugged terrain and strong permanent fortifications.

Juin was taken prisoner by the Germans in 1940, but was freed. He took over the North African command when Gen. Maxime Weygand was dismissed in June, 1941. Under his command are Algerians, Spahis, Moroccans, Senegalese, and Zouaves.

"Fighting French" sources said the army has a splendid system of communications despite the terrain. An allied officer said the coastal plain is crossed by a hard-surfaced highway from Agadir, on the west coast, to Algiers and Tunis on the Mediterranean. A railway follows the same route.

KICKS OPEN A HATCH, FALLS NEARLY OUT OF BOMBER IN DOGFIGHT

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Pilot Officer Paul Desroches, 23 years old, of Montreal, Que., today told how he fell thru an open hatch in the bottom of a Wellington bomber during a daylight raid on northwest Germany recently and dangled by his armpits for several seconds before being pulled to safety by another member of the crew.

The Canadian airman said he kicked the escape hatch open accidentally as his bomber was beating off an attack by three enemy fighters. In the excitement he slipped thru.

After his rescue, Desroches helped to put out a fire which had broken out in the plane. Altho the bomber was badly shot up, his only injury was a split fingernail, knicked by an enemy bullet.

Sofia Has Air Raid Alarm for 2d Consecutive Night

BERLIN, Nov. 7 [From German broadcasts]—(AP)—Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, had an air raid alarm for the second consecutive night last night. No enemy planes were sighted over the city.

PRIVATE TO GET $190 A MONTH FOR WIFE, CHILDREN

The clerk at Camp Grant reception center, arranging pay allotments for recruits, blinked yesterday when Pvt. Wilfred B. Fortier, 38 years old, 4510 Normal avenue, answered the usual question on number of dependents by saying, "Eleven children and my wife."

Pvt. Fortier then produced evidence that he had 11 children between the ages of 3 and 17.

Fortier, a tile layer who could not find enough work, had asked his draft board to classify him 1-A. Clerks at the reception center stated that Fortier will receive $12 a month for the first child, $10 a month for each additional child, $28 a month for his wife, and $50 a month as the regular pay for a private in the army—a total of $190 a month.

WAREHOUSES AND SHIP BOMBED IN SURPRISE U. S. RAID ON RANGOON

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 7 (AP).—United States bombers attacked the Kemmendine docks and shipping at Japanese occupied Rangoon yesterday from a high altitude and scored hits on warehouses and a small ship in the harbor, a communique of the United States air forces announced today.

Many heavy bombs were dropped and the enemy apparently was taken completely by surprise, the communique reported. The Japanese anti-aircraft fire was described as weak and there was no attempt at interception.

All the United States planes returned to their bases.

ARMY TO READY MEN FOR BATTLE IN 35 WEEKS

Third Army Maneuver Headquarters, Louisiana, Nov. 7 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commander of the army ground forces, today announced a far reaching intensification of combat training operations that will ready divisions for battle in 35 weeks, a sharp cut from present operations.

Gen. McNair, here for concluding phases of the 3d army's maneuvers, said the stepped up program was made possible by the greatly increased flow of equipment, more and better officers, increased cadre personnel, and greater experience in training.

He said the United States already has available sufficient troops for second front operations.

PRESS IN LONDON KEPT SECRET OF AFRICA INVASION

Writers Couldn't Even Tell Home Offices.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 8. — For weeks American newspapermen have been custodians of one of the war's biggest secrets.

It was not an easy secret to keep, because thru all that time they had to improvise excuses for the absence of large numbers of the members of the London staffs to conceal the fact that they had gone with the American expeditionary forces which today invaded Africa.

Most of the London offices of the American newspapers have been operating with greatly depleted staffs, and their bureau chiefs have been unable to explain to their home offices why the London coverage had deteriorated so markedly during the last fortnight or so.

The first inkling that something was afoot came in September when army officers approached members of the executive committee of the Association of American Correspondents in London in an attempt to work out a formula for coverage of offensive operations in which United States troops were involved.

Writers Accept Conditions.

They wanted a commitment from every bureau chief in London that accredited war correspondents accept an assignment from the army without right of refusal, and without right to ask how long a period of absence from London was involved.

This obvious departure from the British war office system for Commando raids was foreshadowing something on a larger scale. Without knowing what was afoot, the American correspondents accepted the conditions, agreeing to accept orders like good soldiers, ask no questions and spill no secrets, no matter how long they were kept guessing.

And so it happened that one day nearly three weeks ago the heads of bureaus were summoned to the office of Brig. Gen. Robert McClure and were told without explanation what was expected of them. Thirteen men were drafted from the London bureaus of the American press associations and one each from the many American newspapers, magazines and radio chains.

Disappear from London.

This large group had to disappear from London life as unobtrusively as possible, and obviously it was necessary to provide excuses for their absence among their colleagues.

In recent days Gen. Eisenhower also dropped out from London life. That was cleverly covered up by a report that he had been called back to Washington for consultation.

A long time ago he said in an off the record talk that anybody who thought the United States army came here to hibernate was crazy. They came to fight, he declared, promising that in a short time they would prove that by deeds, not words.

Short staffed as it left every newspaper office in London, it was forbidden to go into details with the home office in requesting reënforcements.

Few Minutes to Pack.

The selected correspondents notified their bureau chiefs that they were going on an expedition only a few minutes before their departure, allowing them just time to pack. Then their blanket rolls and suit cases were sent separately to a rendezvous, and the correspondents themselves slipped out of their residences or hotels in uniform.

The covering up of their absence by their own offices in order to avoid gossip was another problem. In one office it was solved this way: Every one was given to understand that one correspondent had been transferred to United States headquarters in Northern Ireland, and that another had gone to cover maneuvers in the north.

FRANK FOLSOM, NAVY AID, WILL BE FETED BY STATE STREET SENIORS

Frank M. Folsom.

State street again salutes the navy. This time it's Frank M. Folsom, assistant chief of procurement of the United States navy, who will be guest of honor and speaker at the 10th annual meeting and dinner of the Association of State Street Seniors, to be held in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House, Friday evening, Nov. 20.

Before taking up his present duties, Folsom was executive vice president of Goldblatt Brothers. His success was such that he was called to Washington. Maurice Goldblatt, president of Goldblatt Brothers, in behalf of his brothers and the corporation, loaned Folsom to the navy.

Folsom has just returned from a 26,000 mile flight in 25 days thru the vital islands of the south Pacific.

Folsom was born in Sprague, Wash., in 1894, and graduated as an LLD from the University of San Francisco. Since that time he has been associated with several of the largest firms in America as a merchandising expert.

SCHARNHORST AND GNEISENAU ON MOVE, REPORT

[By Wireless to The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 7.—The German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst passed thru the Kiel canal on Nov. 4 and 5, on their way to the Baltic sea, where they apparently are going to protect German shipping against attacks by Russian submarines and the expected increase in Russian aircraft activity, according to a Swedish seaman who arrived yesterday from Kiel.

The seaman, who claimed to have seen both battleships in the canal, added that the German battle cruiser Prinz Eugen still was in Kiel; that the damage suffered when she dashed thru the English channel was repaired, and that she was expected to sail at any moment.

According to this seaman—who during the course of last month visited Kiel, Emden, and Bremen—the damage done by the royal air force raid to the port installations was rather negligible, but damage to civilian property was enormous.

VETERAN TELLS HOW YANKS GOT 44 JAP PLANES

Torpedo Flight Wiped Out, Coast Guardsman Says.

A story of an attack on American supply and transport ships by 44 Japanese torpedo planes, none of which survived, was told yesterday by Marcus Olson, chief motor machinists' mate, United States coast guard, who saw service in the Solomons area in August and September.

Olson, whose home is in Milwaukee, escaped injury in the torpedo plane attack, and his ship came thru all right, but in a later engagement with Jap naval vessels Olson received shrapnel wounds, and the ship on which he was stationed, the transport Gregory, was shelled and sunk.

"They sounded general quarters at 1 a. m., and by 1:10 our ship was sunk." Olson said of this battle. "They picked us out with a bright searchlight and started shelling. I was on a machine gun. They got me in the first 5 minutes."

Two Japs Picked Up.

In the earlier torpedo plane attack Olson said two Jap airmen whose plane had been cut in half with an 8 inch deck gun shell were picked up.

"A pharmacist's mate treated their burns and tried to get them to eat," he said. "They refused food until we had eaten some. Then they were all smiles and ate like wolves. They wanted to know where we got that big anti-aircraft gun."

"The Japanese are tough," Olson says, "because they fear capture. They won't surrender. It is going to take some fighting—but they won't get Guadalcanal back."

"The coast guard was landing the marines then [at the time of the torpedo plane attack] and they are still doing it," Olson said of his branch of the service. "Most people may not know that we are there. They call us the shellbacks down there."

In Service 16 Years.

Olson has been in the coast guard 16 years, mainly on the Great Lakes. He is a widower. His two children live with his father, Alfred Olson, at 1106 South 32d street, Milwaukee. He is visiting friends here where he formerly was stationed.

Sergt. John Smulka of the marines, who was wounded in a bombing raid on Guadalcanal, also was in Chicago yesterday. He shares Olson's opinion on the ability of the Americans to stay in the Solomons.

"The marines are doing all right over there," he said. "I don't think we will ever lose Guadalcanal. The Japs are game enough fighters, but they are no good. They kill themselves when we hit them."

Both Smulka and Olson expressed eagerness to get back into the Pacific fighting.

SWEDEN SPEAKS FOR FREE NORWAY AND FREE FINLAND

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 7.—A free Finland and an equally free Norway are indispensable for the survival of Sweden as a free state in an independent North of Europe, Foreign Minister Christian E. Guenther told both houses of parliament today.

Opposed to Nazi Terrorism.

He added that public opinion is reacting violently against the German terror in Norway and that the Swedish government deplores reprisals against prisoners of war and hopes that Reichmarshal Hermann Goering's promise that "the German people will not starve" will not lead to the starvation of the peoples of occupied countries.

The foreign minister reiterated forcefully that Sweden intends to remain neutral, but that she will oppose by all means at her disposal any attempt to drag her into the war "no matter whether the battlefield be near or far from us." The declaration obviously was intended to discourage those still trying to force Sweden into the "anti-bolshevik crusade" on the side of Finland and Germany.

Rejects Reds' Criticism.

The foreign minister said that Russian criticism of Sweden's lack of neutrality regarding Finland or Germany, and reproaches that the Swedish press is not neutral as far as Norway is concerned, are completely unjustified.

Sweden is vitally interested in the maintenance of a free Finland, and Swedish opinion "follows with grief developments in Norway and it is not an exaggeration to say she is deeply shaken by measures which are contrary to normal ideas of right and justice, even when the occupying power attributes them to the hard realities of war," he explained.

'FORTRESS' CREW BLASTS JAP SHIP TO SAVE MARINES

Wins Medals for Raid That Halted Enemy Attack.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AN ADVANCED PACIFIC AIR BASE, Oct. 9 [Delayed].—Rear Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, air commander of the South Pacific, today awarded distinguished flying crosses to a pilot and bombardier whose Flying Fortress attacked and severely damaged a Japanese cruiser as it was shelling the marines on Guadalcanal.

Those honored were Maj. James V. Edmundson, 27 years old, of Santa Monica, Cal., the pilot, and 2d Lieut. Albert Neil Thom, 23, of Noblesville, Ind., bombardier. The copilot was Lieut. Willis E. Jacobs, 24, of 265 Washington boulevard, Oak Park.

The bombing took place Aug. 19 after a hurry up call from Guadalcanal that a Jap cruiser was shelling the marine's shore positions. Of the planes at the airfield, Maj. Edmundson's was most nearly ready to take off. Altho it had only half a bomb load, the giant fortress roared away without waiting to put on the rest.

Japs Make Strong Defense.

The fortress crew found the Jap cruiser between Guadalcanal and Tulagi and prepared to make a run on it. They came in at about 5,000 feet.

"The Japs threw everything they had at us," said Lieut. Thom, "but we weren't hit. We droped a stick of bombs and one of them hit the ship. We got out of range and began circling. We could see black smoke, brown smoke, and smoke of every other color.

Lieut. Jacobs said a marine corps major later told him that marines formed a cheering section on the Guadalcanal beach and shouted wildly as the cruiser, which had shelled them for hours, was bombed.

Strafed Cruiser Earlier.

Jacobs said the plane has not been named, altho the crew had thought of christening it "Delilah" some time ago when the crew was growing beards. He has a name picked out for his own ship tho when he get one: "Blitzing Betsie."

Lieut. Thom said the crew had strafed a cruiser a few days before, swooping down to about 200 feet to rake it with machine gun fire. He added:

"We didn't do much damage, but it was a lot of fun. We could see the tracers bouncing off the deck."

Hails Coöperation of Flyers.

Adm. Fitch awarded the medals to Edmundson and Thom "for extra accomplishment and heroic action in combat with the enemy." He said it was symbolic of the coöperation between the army and navy air forces. He said:

"If we continue this way, we're going to win. If we haven't this coöperation, we stand to lose."

He experienced a little trouble pinning Lieut. Thom's medal on and added:

2 Nazi Planes Dodge Allied Flyer, Crash Into Channel

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Two Focke-Wulf 190s, dodging to escape the guns of a "Fighting French" flyer in a Spitfire, collided and fell into the English channel today, the air ministry announced. The German planes, it was believed, were heading for the English southwest coast. They were detected by a French pilot who was on a practice flight. He attacked the enemy machines. Swerving sharply, one machine hit the tail of the other and both crashed.

Nazis to Extend Labor Draft to Youth of Netherlands

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Aneta, the Netherlands Indies news agency, today said Reichscommissar Schmidt had announced that forced labor in German occupied Holland would be extended on Jan. 1 to include "one-fourth of all Netherlands youth." Schmidt made the statement before the Dutch Nazi labor organization at Nijmegen, Aneta said.

Ferry Command Control Officer Killed in Crash

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 7 (AP).—The death of Col. Jack Zimmerman, 37 years old, control officer of the United States ferry command, in a plane crash in the Gulf of St. Lawrence last Monday, was disclosed today. Zimmerman's parents live at nearby Mimico. Zimmerman, former TWA chief pilot, was credited with having piloted planes more than 2,000,000 miles, flown the Atlantic 116 times.

GEN. C. V. HAYNES HEADS U. S. AIR COMMAND IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 7 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Caleb V. Haynes of the United States air forces arrived in India today from China to take command of the American air force.

A native North Carolinian, Haynes served the last four months as first commander of the United States bomber command in China. There he led many bombing sorties against the Japanese. The new command represents a bigger assignment for Haynes, who was made a brigadier general last September.

GERMANS CLAIM DESTRUCTION OF FIVE ALLIED SHIPS

BERLIN, Nov. 7 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command reported today that U-boats in recent operations sank five allied ships, including the 10,909 ton Zaandam, Holland-America Line passenger and freight ship, which was said to have been torpedoed off the American east coast.

[There was no confirmation of this enemy claim from any source.]

The other ships were listed as the Ford Motor company freighter East India, 8,159 tons; the British Elmsdale, 4,920 tons, and William Clark, 6,800 tons, and the Brazilian Porto Alegre, 5,187 tons.

JAPS CLAIM 21 ALLIED SUBS SUNK TO TWO OF THEIR OWN SINCE JULY

TOKIO, Nov. 7 [from Japanese broadcasts] — (AP). — Imperial headquarters said today that Japanese naval forces sank 21 allied submarines in the three months from July to October while losing two of their own undersea craft.

Acknowledging the loss of 29 Japanese merchant vessels totaling 122,500 tons in the same period, the communique reported 34 allied merchant vessels aggregating 252,400 tons had been sent to the bottom by the imperial navy.

C. P. A. EXAMINATION
....NEW CLASS PLAN

Thoroughly tested over 7 years, this new plan embodies strikingly different and efficient methods. The quizzer method (so effective in preparation for the bar examinations), an optional laboratory period of 3 hours each Saturday afternoon for practice in answering problems under examination room conditions, an intensive review of accounting, continuous coaching by successful C. P. A.'s, thorough study of A. I. A. examination problems, and consultation at any time with an experienced C. P. A.—these are some of the facilities and services.

Evidence of our success in coaching for the examinations is seen in the fact that over 10% of the C. P. A.'s in the U. S. are LaSalle members. Furthermore, if you fail in passing the examination, we will continue coaching you without further cost until you do pass.

These loop evening classes begin the week of Nov. 22 and continue for 25 weeks. Classes meet once a week—one on Tuesday, one on Thursday and one on Friday—at 6:30 P. M. The cost is moderate and convenient payment terms can be arranged.

Where WILL YOU BE After the War?

Maybe you are 45 or 55 years old now. A few years more, plus demobilization of the young men, add up to what for you? Are you heading for the scrap heap or a steadily increasing, good income at a pleasant job?

If you are not now employed in a war plant, present a good appearance, have a clean record and want to work, enlist as a K-T salesman to help sell posters, calendars, mechanics' aprons and caps, and other items, designed in cooperation with government departments to further the war effort. No car needed.

This is vital work. It is interesting and remunerative and you build a following which nobody can take away from you. We have been in business over 60 years making posters, calendars, aprons, caps, leather items, etc. We have a high rating and more than 25% of our large force has been with us over 25 years. We have tens of thousands of regular customers. We also have outstanding items for retail merchants to sell and we expect to continue expanding our business.

You can help the war effort and civilian morale today, and yet dig in for the aftermath, by writing or wiring the Kemper-Thomas Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, Now.

NOTICE: Inventions and ideas wanted. Kemper-Thomas wants to buy special patents or ideas. Will consider distribution and purchase of usable products if made from non-essential materials.

RUSSIANS CHECK ALL NAZI DRIVES ON ANNIVERSARY

Hold at Stalingrad and on Caucasus Front.

MOSCOW, Nov. 8 [Sunday]—(AP).—The Red army held its ground on all fronts Saturday, the 25th anniversary of the Russian revolution, and killed more than 1,800 Germans in Stalingrad, the central Caucasus, and the western front, the soviet midnight communique indicated today.

The Germans continued to attack fiercely on the Nalchick plains at the foot of the 18,000 foot Caucasus mountains, where the Russians threw two armored trains into the battle yesterday, but failed to gain, the communique said.

In Stalingrad, as the city began its 76th day of siege, the Germans also threw their tanks and infantry against a Russian stronghold in several attacks, but the Red army repulsed all the attacks and killed about 700 Germans. The Russians also were able to consolidate their positions in other parts of the city.

Blast 66 Nazi Tanks.

Four German blockhouses were destroyed in one factory area and another three were blown up northwest of Stalingrad.

The main battleground, however, continued to be in the central Caucasus, where the Germans were using large numbers of tanks and planes southeast of Nalchik in an effort to push thru to Ordzhonikidze, key to the Georgian military highway which leads over the lofty mountain range.

The communique said the Russians disabled 66 German tanks in that area alone during the day. Sixty trucks were destroyed and 400 enemy troops killed.

More Activity on Moscow Front.

Activity appeared to be increasing on the western front, in the Moscow area, where the Germans have reported large Russian forces were concentrated. The communique mentioned artillery and mortar duels in this sector and said the soviets killed about 700 Germans on Saturday.

The communique said that fighting in the Black sea area, northeast of Tuapse, was only of local importance, but reported the Germans were bringing in fresh reserves to make up for their recent "tremendous losses."

Earlier reports of the Nalchik plains battle told of the surprise move of the Russians in throwing two armored trains into the engagement.

Trains Knock Out Tanks.

A communique said:

"Two soviet armored trains, in a six hour battle, knocked out 10 German tanks and armored cars, brought down a German plane and dispersed about two companies of infantry."

The Germans likewise were reported stalled in the Mozdok region, where their penetration into the Caucasus has been deepest.

Two fortified positions were captured and a company of Nazi infantry was destroyed in the north Stalingrad factory district, dispatches said. In the southern part of the city, the communique said, nine blockhouses were destroyed.

HINT NEW RED DRIVE.

The Germans again hinted yesterday that the Russians were massing for a winter offensive northwest of Moscow in the area of the sources of the Dvina and Volga rivers. German planes were said to have attacked troop concentrations and movements there.

The Berlin communique said German infantry ousted the Russians from a western Caucasus height. In the Nalchik area an armored train and 30 tanks were declared destroyed "in defense against enemy counterattacks east of Alagir." The Stalingrad fighting was described at local.

HUNDREDS ASK ABOUT NEW PARK JOBS FOR WOMEN

Hundreds of inquiries about new jobs for women in the Chicago park district were received yesterday by park district officials. Almost 100 jobs formerly restricted to men, including fireman, gardener, storekeeper, life guard, and animal keeper have been opened to women.

Applicants should apply in person as soon as possible at the employment office in the park district administration building, 425 East 14th boulevard, in Burnham park, at the north end of Soldiers' field, officials said yesterday.

According to R. J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, women accepted for these jobs will be paid the same as men and pension, vacation, and other benefit privileges will be the same.

REDS ON HOLIDAY TO CELEBRATE REVOLT BIRTHDAY

Banners Fly; Music Echoes Thru Moscow.

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP).—With Red banners emblazoning the city and music from loud speakers echoing thru streets and parks, Moscow today devoted itself to a one day celebration of the 25 anniversary of the Communist revolution.

The Russians wore their best clothes and were in holiday mood, unmindful that Sunday—which ordinarily is a day of rest—must be a day of work to compensate for today.

Russians Appear Confident.

People one talked to seemed to have received an enormous lift from Premier Josef Stalin's speech yesterday and his strong tone of confidence that the Germans would be defeated.

Foreigners from the United States and Britain, who have observed an increasing coldness because of the lack of a second front, also felt better because of Stalin's friendly tone toward Russia's allies and his assertion that a second front in Europe would be opened "sooner or later.".

No Parole—There's a Reason.

Newspapers splashed their front pages with pictures of Stalin making his address last night.

It definitely was a holiday, but there was no parade in the Red square, which disappointed many.

It was easy to guess why. The tanks which the soviets used to rumble thru the immense square are rumbling thru Stalingrad and hundreds of other places along the 2,000 mile front. The planes that swooped over the crowds now are dog fighting at the front.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Helen Zawacki, 30 years old, was injured fatally yesterday when she fell from a third floor window of her home at 1425 South California avenue. She died in Mount Sinai hospital, where she was employed.

Russian Flags in London Honor Soviets' Birthday

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]*

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Russian flag was hoisted over many buildings in London today in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the soviet revolution. This afternoon British and allied forces participated in a huge demonstration attended by Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador. Marching side by side with the troops was Lieut. Ludmilla Pavlichenko, Red army girl sniper.

ARMISTICE DAY WILL BE SCRAP HARVESTING DAY

2,000 Trucks Will Make Collections Here.

Armistice day will be scrap harvest day for Illinois. With 500,000 tons of vital waste metals already shipped to steel mills and other war consumers, Illinois will give the fall drive a final push to reach the goal of two months' winter reserves of scrap iron and steel at the mills by Dec. 1.

More than 2,000 trucks donated by private operators and government units will tour the streets Nov. 11 until late at night collecting scrap heaped at curbstones and at salvage depots. The American Legion, Boy Scouts, and other patriotic organizations will be mobilized for the "over the top" drive.

Look for Real Cleanup.

"This is going to be a real clean up," William L. McFetridge, Chicago metropolitan area salvage director, and Nathaniel Leverone, Illinois salvage director, asserted. "We want to know on the night of Nov. 11 that every available piece of metal which can help win the war has been picked up and eventually will be shipped to some war factory or mill."

Householders, janitors, salvage wardens, Boy Scouts, and others active in the scrap harvest program are asked to follow these rules:

1. Bring out every piece of metal you can't use and heap it at the curbstone early Wednesday morning. Don't put tin cans in this pile. Tin cans should be washed, opened at both ends, flattened and turned over to the garbage collector for detinning.

2. If possible remove wood, fabric, and other foreign materials from the metal.

Graniteware Not Wanted.

3. Do not put granite covered or enamel covered kitchenware in the scrap heap because they contaminate the charge used in steel mill furnaces.

4. If possible, dismantle unnecessary iron fences, gates, iron work, and ornaments and scrap them.

5. For this special harvest, don't include rubber, paper, or other waste materials. Sell them as usual to the junkman or give them to your favorite charity which has a scrap collection service.

Salvage officials asserted that the ability of Chicago area steel mills to continue operating above 100 per cent of rate capacity depends primarily on whether the Illinois scrap drive succeeds in accumulating an adequate stockpile for the winter months.

SILENT TRIBUTE WILL MARK 24TH ARMISTICE DAY

A minute of silence will be observed at State and Madison streets at 11 a. m. Wednesday as the 24th—and first wartime—anniversary of Armistice day is marked. The ceremony will be conducted by Marine post, Mandel Brothers post, and Carson Pirie Scott post of the American Legion; the Allied World War Veterans' council and others.

Preceding the customary salute to the dead of the first World war, a company of military police will parade in Michigan avenue from the Goodman theater.

In the evening, the Cook county council of the Legion will hold its annual commemorative services in conjunction with Medinah temple at the temple at 14 East Ohio street. Col. Paul G. Armstrong, state head of the draft, will speak.

'Quit Speeding,' Rockford Sheriff and Police Warned

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 7 [Special].—Byron Easton, chairman of the Winnebago county rationing board, warned the sheriff's office today to curb the speed of its squad cars. He said a similar warning will be issued to the police department. He said tires and gasoline will be refused law enforcement cars unless they observe the 35 mile per hour limit except in cases of real emergency.

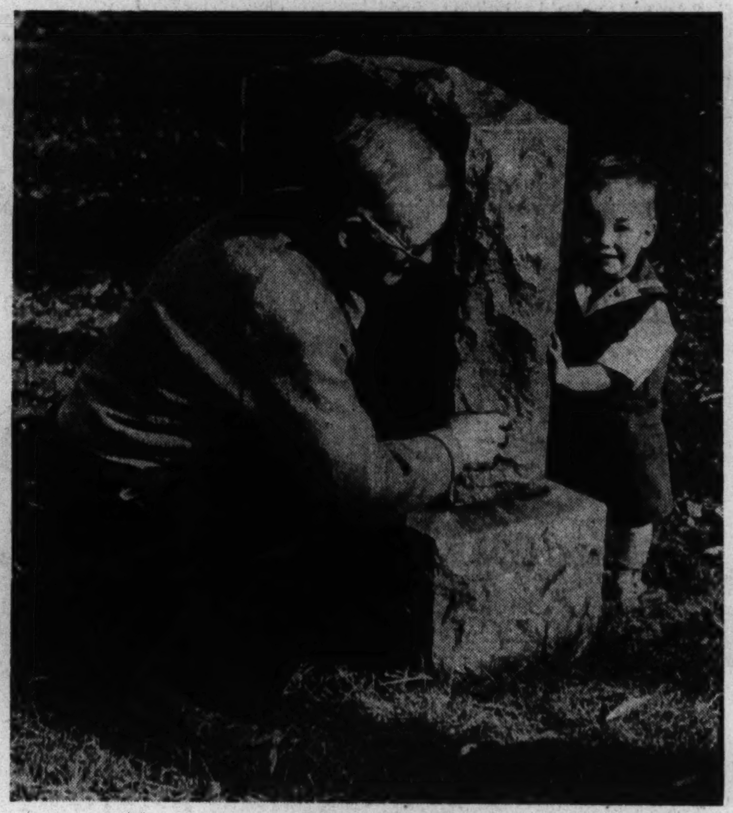
One Night in a Graveyard—Asleep



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ernest Fink and his grandson play peek-a-boo around a tombstone in St. Mary's cemetery, where the youngster passed Friday night, sound asleep.

Found Unharmed

Twenty month old Ernest Fink III. was none the worse yesterday for his three hour snooze, snuggled against a tombstone in St. Mary's cemetery Friday night, but the odds are 100 to 1 he wouldn't repeat the performance a few years hence.

But the traditional scariness of a graveyard at night meant nothing to the toddler Friday night, when he trotted off into the darkness while his grandfather, Ernest Sr., a groundskeeper at the cemetery, unlocked the gates to let the baby's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jr., drive out to attend a wake.

The three searched thru the darkened grounds for the child, then called Evergreen Park police, but no trace of Ernest III. was found. Finally a floodlight truck of the Chicago fire department was called, and its powerful beam cut thru the shadows to reveal the tot sound asleep upon a grave.

GLENN C. BAINUM A CAPTAIN; TO BE MUSIC DIRECTOR

Prof. Glenn C. Bainum, director of the band at Northwestern university for many years, has been commissioned a captain in the army and is now in training at a special service school at Fort Meade, Md., it was announced yesterday. After training he will become a music supervisor in one of the service commands.

Prof. Bainum was a lieutenant in World War I. He was last stationed at Fort Meade, where he is now resuming his army career.

Dr. Alpheus W. Smith, professor of English at Northwestern, was recently commissioned a major in the coast artillery. He has been a member of the university faculty since 1927.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER TOURIST HOTELS IN MIAMI BEACH

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP).—An expansion of the army air forces technical training command, which will make barracks out of virtually all of the 334 tourist hotels in Miami Beach and Surfside, was announced today by military authorities.

The army said civilian life in Miami Beach would be permitted to continue in all phases that do not conflict with needs of the military.

Private homes and many apartment houses will continue in the hands of their owners, and municipal bus transportation and other services will be permitted to go on without interruption.

DEC. 5 DEADLINE SET FOR MAILING YULE PACKAGES

Curtailment of railroad service will necessitate advanced mailing dates if Christmas packages are to reach their destinations on time, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen pointed out yesterday as he reminded the public that Dec. 5 has been set as a deadline for all Christmas mail. Surplus railroad cars usually pressed into service for the Yule rush are not available this year, he said. In addition, many of the postal employés are new, having replaced men called to the armed services. Under these circumstances the postoffice asks all Christmas parcels be mailed before Dec. 5.

CONVOY BATTLES SUB PACK 3 DAYS; ONE VESSEL LOST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—A thunderous duel with depth charges, gunfire and torpedoes raged for three days in September in the North Atlantic between a united nations convoy and a pack of submarines, the navy disclosed today.

The navy announced the loss of a Panamanian merchant vessel, but did not disclose whether others of the convoy were lost or whether any of the attacking submarines were sunk.

At Northfield, N. J., one of 40 survivors who were landed at an allied port, told what happened after the ship was abandoned. Robert Vetter, a 20 year old junior officer, said he and two fellow officers, one of them the captain, were in a lifeboat which barely cleared the sinking ship.

A submarine surfaced and ordered the officers aboard. The enemy commander took the captain prisoner, ordered the other men back into the lifeboat, "and then, as a gesture of meanness, he rammed our lifeboat and demolished it, way out there hundreds of miles from land," Vetter said.

Those in the lifeboat reached rafts which were floating nearby and were picked up after seven days during which they lived on a few malted milk tablets and a half keg of water.

TRUCE TO REOPEN WAR FACTORIES TIED UP BY ALIEN

One Day Walkout Shuts 15 Detroit Plants.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 7 [Special].—A strike which in a single day forced the shutdown of 15 Detroit factories engaged in war production and threatened to spread thru the midwest industrial area was called off tonight after the War Labor board intervention.

Matthew Smith.

Ending of the strike left the public and orthodox union circles shocked by the sudden display of power by a new force in American unionism which asserts the right to strike regardless of the war and condemns both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations for "selling out the right to strike without getting anything in return."

Strike Led by Alien.

The strong man behind this new union philosophy is Matthew Smith, 49 year old Manchester born subject of the British empire, who has described himself as a pacifist and has told of "suffering" for his beliefs during the World war.

Smith is president of the new Confederated Unions of America and is the $6,000 a year secretary of the Mechanics' Educational Society of America, which has a large membership among tool and die workers and in other mechanical crafts.

The strike, which was described by State Mediator Edward M. Owen as "entirely unnecessary," was an outgrowth of a dispute between Smith's MESA and the United Automobile Workers [CIO], which flared several days ago in the Briggs Aircraft division plant. Five MESA maintenance workers were said to have been ushered from the plant by UAW men, and 8 other MESA men were reported to have quit the same day for fear of similar treatment.

Spreads Like Prairie Fire.

The walkout at the Briggs plant got under way yesterday and by noon today had spread like a prairie fire thru several key plants whose uninterrupted production of tools and machine parts is essential to maintenance of war production thruout the Detroit area. It was estimated 9,200 workers were idle.

Under the WLB truce, Smith agreed that all striking members of MESA in the Detroit area will go back to work Monday, and that no effort will be made to extend the strike to other cities. Lewis M. Gill, acting regional chief of WLB, said matters in dispute will be brought before a 5 man panel of the board soon in Washington, D. C.

The eight men who quit their jobs at the Briggs plant will not return to work pending a hearing, but their status will be one of the issues to be decided, Gill said.

Calls Strike "Holiday."

"This was a labor holiday to force rapid action and we got it," Smith said after the truce had been announced. "Previously the eight men at Briggs were permanently fired. We couldn't even get a WLB hearing. Now we have a hearing arranged and I am fully confident those men will be reinstated with back pay."

Gill interrupted Smith at this point to caution listeners against interpreting his presence as giving assent to what Smith was saying. The conference was interrupted frequently by Gill's long distance calls to R. J. Thomas, UAW president, in Boston, Mass. Thomas blamed Smith for "punishing his own membership by calling strikes in plants with MESA contracts because UAW workers would not join his dual union."

Smith showed anger when he was told an army officer had said he was an alien calling a strike in a country which wasn't his.

"I'm not a citizen," Smith flared. "Is there any law against that? Don't forget England is in this war, too. I'm a British subject with five nephews in Egypt and two of them reported missing." He referred to his alien status as "old stuff."

Assailed in Union Paper.

The prominence given Smith by the day's developments led to a scramble to discover who he is and how much power he exerts among American workers in war factories. The September issue of the International Teamster, monthly publication of the Teamsters' union [AFL], contained a denunciation of Smith's insistence on a wartime right to strike.

The labor magazine described him as "a man named Matthew Smith, who is leading a movement for a third federation of labor," and comments that such an organization would harass leaders of the CIO and AFL and confuse members of both organizations.

"Smith says that organized labor should have refused to surrender the right to strike without sitting down like Shylock to bargain for its pound of flesh while the blood of Americans flowed like rivers on the battle lines," the magazine said.

Charges "Sell Out."

The magazine quoted Smith as saying: "The AFL and the CIO sold out the right to strike without getting anything in return. They failed to take advantage of the labor shortage."

Smith said here tonight he "never was and never will be" a pacifist, but according to the Associated Press a 1934 interview attributed to him the remark he was a "pacifist in every sense of the word" and had been during the World war.

ATOP BALE OF STRAW, MRS. ROOSEVELT SEES WOMEN AT FARM WORK

ARDEN FOREST, England, Nov. 7 (AP).—Seated on a bale of straw aboard a tractor-trailer, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt toured a training farm of the woman's land army today to see how Britain's women are helping feed the nation.

Riding with her were the earl of Dudley, Midland regional commissioner; Lady Denman, head of the WLA, and Maj. E. C. McMilland of Bristow, Okla., United State liasison officer.

Thru dewy grass and sticky mud Mrs. Roosevelt went from a 12th century house thru the stable and barnyards, watching young women threshing, making thatch, cutting silage, sorting potatoes, hedging ditches, and learning to milk.

DEMANDS GREEN OUST INCISO AS AUTO UNION CHIEF

Police Labor Head Lists Ex-Convict's Record.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

A sharp indictment of the Chicago local of the United Automobile Workers union and a demand for the ouster of Angelo Inciso, its exconvict business manager, were sent yesterday to President William Green of the American Federation of Labor by Lieut. George Barnes, head of the Chicago police labor detail.

Angelo Inciso.

In the letter Lieut. Barnes outlined the history of five wildcat strikes in plants which are doing 100 per cent war work. The letter also gives Inciso's complete criminal record, dating back 12 years.

Summarize Five Cases.

"I want to go on record that this office is opposed, as I know the AFL is opposed, to any man of this caliber representing any labor organization," Lieut. Barnes wrote Green.

Names, addresses, and short summaries of the trouble in the five plants by the auto workers under Inciso and Anthony Doria, international representative of the union, were given in the letter as follows:

"Armstrong Brothers Tool and Die company, 357 North Francisco avenue.—On Feb. 2 the union called 500 of the employés out on strike. The men returned to work Feb. 10, when the dispute was certified to the War Labor board for settlement.

"Delta Star Electric company, 2435 Fulton street.—On Sept. 24, the union called some 500 employés out on strike. The men returned Oct. 6 when the case was certified to the WLB. Angelo Inciso was arrested after his police record had been published. When he appeared in court, his attorney, Joseph Jacobs informed the court and myself that Inciso was thru as an organizer and was going to find himself a job. However he remained as business manager of the union.

"Majonnier Brothers company, 4601 Ohio street.—On May 27 the union called a strike of 550 employés. This sitdown was terminated when this writer got the committee and the management together and they came to an agreement without any help from the union officials. Neither Doria nor Inciso participated in this meeting nor did they help in getting the strike settled.

"John Woods Manufacturing company, 4435 South Western avenue—On Oct. 12, 185 of the employés had a slow-down and sitdown strike and on Oct. 26, this writer went out to try to settle the trouble. Anthony Doria refused in any way to help settle it, saying he had to go out of town and was too busy, altho this place is doing a vital war job.

Two Are Fined $200.

"The men came to an agreement to do a full day's work, if I should arrange a meeting with John Cofer, federal conciliator, and the company officials. This I did, as soon as Doria came back to town. All the men went back to work, but in two departments 45 men continued a slow-down.

"On Oct. 28, I arrested Dacey Sanders, vice president of local 786, and Solomon Brown, a steward in the galvanizing department, the department affected by the slow-down. On Oct. 30 Sanders and Brown were arraigned and the court fined them $200 and continued the case until Jan. 15. Judge Oscar Caplan told these men and their lawyer that this is war and strikes and slow-downs will not be tolerated. He said if these men returned to work and there were no more strikes or slow-downs he would discharge them on Jan. 15, but if there was more trouble, he would send them, or any one else responsible, to jail.

"From Oct. 12 to 31 Anthony Doria and Inciso made no effort of any kind to remedy the situation described above.

"In contrast to your other AFL unions in Chicago," the letter finished, "is the record of this one. Usually when a labor dispute develops in a company, the AFL officials immediately get in the picture and settle the dispute by using the proper remedies and common sense, so that our war efforts may continue."

Inciso, known also as Sam Ingiso, John Zanzaro, and Angelo Gucipo, was sent to jail for 30 days in May of 1930 for stealing auto tires. That fall he got a year's probation for auto theft. He was sentenced again in 1933 by federal court to 15 months in the federal reformatory for transporting liquor and released in May of 1934. He was arrested the following August for violation of parole, but found not guilty.

In April of 1936 he was sentenced twice for larceny in a shoplifting case in Indiana. Altho there is a record of his reformatory number, there is no record of how much of the 1 to 10 years and the 1 to 5 years sentences he served.

RECORD REVEALS MOUNTING GAINS FOR REPUBLICANS

Democrats Begin Decline Four Years Ago.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Vote trends in Illinois in the last 12 years show the rise and decline of the Democrats and the New Deal, and in the opposite direction a decline followed by an upsurge for the Republicans since 1938. Where 12 years ago the state began its swing to the Democrats, last Tuesday followed 1940 in registering a swing back toward the Republicans.

The Democratic tide started to rise in 1930, when old rockribbed Illinois went Democratic in an election in which dominant factors were the wet and dry issue and the depression.

James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, was elected senator by a plurality of 744,747. It was an uprising, in largest measure against the 18th amendment, and the accompanying era of gangsters, bootleggers, moonshiners, hijackers, and racketeers.

Two years later the wet and dry issue and the depression were main factors in the Presidential contest. The nation-wide controversy over prohibition formed the predominant issue before the national conventions of both parties in the Chicago stadium. The Republicans straddled. The Democrats came out point blank for repeal of the 18th amendment.

How Two Parties Fared.

How the swing upward for the Democrats ran for a period in Illinois and then struck the downgrade, while the Republicans hit the upgrade, may be seen from the following pluralities for heads of the tickets in the last seven elections and the percentage of the total state vote cast on his particular office given the winning candidate:

	Plurality.	% of total state vote.
1930—Senator—James Hamilton Lewis, D.	744,747	67.6
1932—President — Franklin D. Roosevelt, D.	449,548	56.8
Governor—Henry Horner, D.	566,287	58.6
Democrats elected their state ticket.
1934—[Off year]
State treas.—J. Stelle, D.	271,336	54.9
1936—President—Roosevelt, D.	712,606	59.2
Senator—Lewis, D.	597,717	58.1
Governor—Horner, D.	385,176	55.1
1938—[Off year]
Senator—Scott W. Lucas, D.	95,588	51.5
1940—
President—Roosevelt, D.	95,694	51.1
Senator—Wayland Brooks, R.	20,827	50.3
Governor—Dwight Green, R.	256,965	53.0
1942—Senator—Brooks, R.	203,000	53.1

The same trend is seen in the election of members of the house of representatives in congress. Democrats won 6 of Illinois' 27 seats in the Hoover election in 1928. Six years later, at their peak, the Democrats had 21 of the 27 seats. Last Tuesday they won 7 of 26 seats, Illinois having lost 1 seat in the apportionment.

Record on Congress.

Representatives in Congress.	D.	R.
1928	6	21
1930	13	14
1932	19	8
1934	21	6
1936	21	6
1938	17	10
1940	11	16
1942	7	19

Last Tuesday the Republicans made a clean sweep of the 15 congressional districts downstate and even carried the 20th district, home of the late Speaker Henry Rainey.

The peak for President Roosevelt and the New Deal came in 1936, his second election. In 1940, running for the third term, he had a plurality of less than 100,000 out of more than 4,000,000 votes cast.

Upsurge Begins in 1938.

The upsurge toward the Republican party really began in 1938. It swept Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for senator, up to the boundaries of Chicago 159,689 votes ahead of Lucas [D.]. Chicago, home of the Democratic machine, gave Lucas a plurality of 255,277, which gave him the state by 95,588.

In 1940 the Republican tides continued. President Roosevelt lost downstate Illinois and suburban Cook county, but received votes enough in Chicago to overcome the trends outside the city, and to give him the state by 95,694. The Republicans elected their state ticket with one exception.

G. O. P. TO SEEK 7 COOK COUNTY CONGRESS SEATS

Nov. 3 Gains Stir Hope of Sweep in 1944.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans, having swept downstate in the congressional elections Tuesday, shifted their attention to 1944 yesterday and drew a bead on Cook county, where the Democrats' remaining holdings of 7 seats are now concentrated.

The G. O. P. won three districts downstate this year—the 20th,. 22d, and 23d—as well as the 3d district in Chicago. The party now has 18 of the state's 25 district seats. The only Illinois congressman at large in the next congress is also a Republican. There is a possibility that a recount in the 7th district in Chicago will give the G. O. P. another district seat.

Analysis Boosts Ambitions.

Soaring G. O. P. ambitions were boosted yesterday by an analysis of the unofficial returns for districts 1 to 10, which embrace all of Cook and Lake counties. The study showed that for the first time in several years more Republican than Democratic votes were cast for congressmen in these 10 districts last Tuesday. The G. O. P. candidates garnered 858,536 ballots to only 840,049 for the Democratic nominees.

Two years ago the total vote for the 10 districts was 1,081,606 for the Democrats and 990,293 for the Republicans.

In the most recent off year election the score was even more one sidedly in favor of the Democrats, who gave their candidates 906,721 votes, while the G. O. P. nominees received only 727,777.

Pluralities Reflect Gains.

The improvement in Republican fortunes as reflected by the new election figures is best shown by a comparison of the party pluralities in the 10 districts.

The table below shows these party pluralities on the basis of Tuesday's unofficial returns [from which a few precincts are missing], and the percentage of Republican gain or loss they represent as compared with the two previous elections:

*G. O. P. losses

G. O. P. leaders declared that they will concentrate their 1944 fire in the 1st, 2d, and 7th districts, which they said are almost certain to fall in line two years hence, judging from recent trends.

Chicago Negroes to Hold $100 Plate Bond Dinner

Chicago Negroes will participate in a bond dinner, at a cost of a $100 bond purchase for each plate, Armistice night in the Du Sable lounge, Cottage Grove avenue and Oakwood boulevard. Heading the list of guests at the dinner as announced by the treasury department is Stanley Johnston, Chicago Tribune war correspondent who wrote the story of the Coral sea battle. Others who will boost the sale of bonds are Duke Ellington, orchestra leader, and Sophie Tucker, stage personality.

COMPLETE FLOP CROWNS 5 MONTH PURGE CAMPAIGN

All Senators, 22 House Members Re-elected.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—The five month smear campaign by the Union for Democratic Action, a Communist front organization, and other left wing groups to "purge" 29 members of congress ended in an utter flop, an analysis of Tuesday's election showed today.

The UDA purge list included 3 senators and 26 representatives who were noninterventionists before Pearl Harbor or who have been consistent and outspoken foes of communism. The list was concocted last May and released by the UDA thru a supplement of the leftist New Republic magazine. The 29 purge targets were termed obstructionists and the voters were urged to turn them out of office.

New Deal Behind Drive.

A continuous smear campaign against the 29 congressmen was carried on by the Communist fronters with the backing of the New Deal administration thru its political mouthpiece, Charles Michelson, who urged the defeat of all noninterventionist senators and representatives.

In the face of this smearing, all three senators and all except four of the 26 congressmen were reëlected, the voters giving the Republicans a gain of 9 seats in the senate and 42 in the house.

The smear first flopped in the primaries where only three congressmen on the purge list fell by the wayside.

In Tuesday's election only one of the original 29 marked for political liquidation was defeated. He was Rep. Leland Ford [R., Cal.], who was beaten by Lieut. Will Rogers Jr.

Brooks One of Targets.

In Illinois, the UDA had three on its purge list and all were reëlected. Sen. Wayland Brooks [R.], who was the target of especially vicious attacks by the UDA and other left-wingers, won by 200,000 votes. Rep. Stephen A. Day [R., Ill.] was reëlected by 75,000 votes, and the third, Rep. Everett Dirksen [R.], was also reelected.

The two other senators whom the smear effort failed to unseat were Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] and W. Lee O'Daniel [D., Tex.]

Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], who was placed at the top of the UDA purge list, was reëlected by more than 4,000 votes.

Hoffman, Shafer Victorious.

Two Michigan congressmen placed high on the purge list by the UDA because they tried to keep this country out of war were also given a vote of confidence by the electorate. They were Clare E. Hoffman and Paul Shafer, Republicans.

Other congressmen who were reelected on the strength of their records and in repudiation of the UDA blacklisting attempt were: Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], Martin Dies [D., Tex.], William P. Lambertson [R., Kas.], Harold Knutson [R., Minn.], Eugene E. Cox [D., Ga.], William B. Barry [D., N. Y.], Frank Keefe [R., Wis.], Dewey Short [R., Mo.], Joshua L. Johns [R., Wis.], John Rankin [D., Miss.], Karl Mundt [R., S. D.], James Van Zandt [R., Pa.], Joseph Starnes [D., Ala.], Thomas Winter [R., Kas.], J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], James F. O'Connor [D., Mont.], and Frederick Smith [R., O.].

The three representatives who lost out in the primaries were Charles Faddis [D., Pa.], Martin Sweeney [D., O.], and Harry Coffee [D., Neb.].

THE WOMEN LOOK THEIR PRETTIEST AT FIRST OPERA

Army and Navy Uniforms Contribute Glamor.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

If last night's opera opening seemed a little less glittering, a trifle less glamorous, slightly under the colorful average of the last few years, put it down to the presence of war. There was some glamor and some color, of course, at the Civic Opera house last night, for the tradition of opening night splendor is not easily broken. Since the first opera performance in Chicago 53 years ago men and women have been dressing in their most gala attire to hear the world's finest singers in magnificent settings.

Any member of last night's audience who also had been present at the opera opening in November, 1917, during World War I, must have made an interesting comparison. Then, as now, the war made its impression felt in two ways: There were many army and navy officers present and many women were unescorted. Last night, however, there was not the busy knitting of scarves, sweaters, and socks thruout the audience as there was in all theaters during those war months of 1917 and 1918. Perhaps the rôles women are playing in today's war effort have made constant knitting seem a smaller part at best.

It's Good Looking Audience.

Last night's audience apparently left knitting, cares, and worries at home and came forth in its most cheerful mood. The women took seriously the advice of periodicals and newspapers to keep up morale by looking their prettiest—whether in street clothes enlivened by orchid corsages and well groomed hair, as many were, or in the most formal of evening gowns. And what is handsomer than a man in uniform?

The drama of the crowds pushing thru the lobby to their seats was heightened by the arrival of chic and lovely Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed. Several cameramen spied her simultaneously and the rush was on. Closing in on all sides, they forced the retreating Mrs. Goodspeed into a little knot of onlookers, which caused her to lose the stunning paradise fox fur about her shoulders. She retrieved it gracefully and sped on into the theater. Mrs. Goodspeed's dinner dress was a long sleeved one of black. The bodice was heavily trimmed with black bugle beads, and there was a bit of fringe falling from epaulettes at the shoulders.

An Eye Catching Costume.

An eye catching costume that caused much craning of necks was worn by Mrs. John Orndorff, who came prepared for the "Lakme" that was canceled. She swept all before her in a Hindu costume, very bare midriff. The skirt was of dark blue net, banded in slender strips of gold. The separate top was of magenta embroidered in gold sequins. A double veil of magenta and blue studded with more of the gold sequins fell from her head, gold stardust glittered in her eyelashes and eyebrows, and over it all was a gold brocaded full length evening coat lined in green. A corsage of red roses pinned to the bodice, more of the roses cascading down one side of the skirt, and a gold Hindu necklace completed the picture.

Definitely new, definitely Chicago 1942 was the street length gold dinner dress worn by Mrs. George Warner, hostess in one box. The dress gleamed and shone beneath a silver fox jacket. On Mrs. Warner's head was a little toque of matching gold cloth trimmed with dubonnet feathers, and dubonnet orchids, shoes, and gloves lent further color to the ensemble.

Opera Members Add Glamor.

A good share of glamor was contributed by members of the opera company who heard last night's performance as spectators instead of as participants. Miss Mona Bradford, contralto, arrived in a striking bouffant gown of champagne satin, exactly matched in shade by a brief fox jacket, trailing in one hand a tangerine chiffon scarf.

Also in the glamor division was Miss Joan Monroe's babushka of white angora and bright green wool encrusted with sequin flowers. It came straight from the St. Luke's fashion show, in which Miss Monroe modeled last week. She wore it with a wide-skirted gown of harlequin checks in green and black, with a quaint black taffeta basque. She heard the opera with her brother, Jack, and her parents, the Walter D. Monroes. Mrs. Monroe's black and blue crêpe gown had beaded silver leaves across the neckline.

Jean Tennant in Ermine Wrap.

An attractive young foursome was composed of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clarke, Miss Jean Tennant, and Ensign A. Scott Petersen. Mrs. Clarke had green orchids in her dark hair to match her pale green gown of sculptored crêpe. Miss Tennant's ermine wrap was a stunning one, with a fitted waistline and bell sleeves. She pinned purple orchids to her black gown.

Miss Priscilla Korrady, squired by her fiancé, Robert Blackburn, wore orchids and a gray squirrel coat over a bouffant skirt of black and French blue taffeta panels. Also in their party were Miss Janice Cave and Richard Blackburn. Miss Merikay Howard, arriving with West Hooker, was in pale lavender moiré and a handsome mink coat. Her mother, Mrs. Eugene Howard, who had arrived earlier with Mr. Howard, chose cedar-colored tulle sprinkled with gold sequins. Over her head was a drifting scarf of cedar tulle appliqued with gray velvet poufs. "I purchased the scarf at Worth's 17 years ago," she confided, but the striking headdress certainly didn't look its age.

Reminders of War in Lobby.

Reminders of the war were prevalent among the crowd that gathered in the lobby during the intermission. Capt. Philip Danley, on crutches from an army airplane accident, leaned against a post as he chatted with Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Herbst, Miss Dolores Howerton, Miss Ruth Herbst, and Robert Herbst. Mrs. Herbst wore a beige crêpe gown with heavy fringe reminiscent of the last war. The navy, too, was represented by its quotas of ensigns and lieutenant commanders. Capt. Richard Whitehead arrived in a foursome which included Mrs. Whitehead, in classic black crêpe and orchids, and the Abner J. Stilwells. Mrs. Stilwell's putty crêpe dinner gown had an intricately draped tulip skirt.

Blonde Miss Phyllis Thompson had a wreath of rosebuds across her head to match the blossoms which caught up her pink satin and tulle skirt. All in white was Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr., whose brocade skirt billowed beneath a brief fur jacket.

Black Velvet is Popular.

"I have never seen so many black velvet gowns," wrote a fashion editor in THE TRIBUNE of the winter season of 1917-'18, and black velvet held its own last night. Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr. wore a handsome gown of black velvet and a short jacket of blue fox. Miss Edna Kellogg appeared in another, trimmed with brown sequins, and a wrap of sable. Mrs. Ernest R. Graham chose black velvet, too, both for her gown and evening coat. Miss Joanne Harrison came to the opera with an ensign on either arm, Clarence G. Frame and Edward Kryder, handsome in their navy blue great coats, with white mufflers at their throats. Miss Harrison's frock was of beige net with gold sequins, and her jacket was of kolinsky.

Among the many other opera lovers were Mrs. Welch Dickinson and Mrs. William E. Vogelback, who sold war bonds and stamps from a Drama league table; Robert Hall McCormick, president of the board of governors of the Chicago Opera company; his sister, Miss Elizabeth Day McCormick; the James G. McMillans and their box guests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, the William E. Raglands [Edith Mason], and Mrs. Jean Weis; Mrs. Ralph T. Winston and her niece, Miss Mary Winston Dowling; Mrs. Edward A. Leight and Miss Carol Fox; the Walter Dill Scotts, the Charles S. Davises, and Mrs. Otho Ball. All joined in the singing of the national anthem that started the performance.

W-G-N GIVES OPERA 'LA BOHEME' ON AIR THEATER PROGRAM

Listeners of the Chicago Theater of the Air last night heard a presentation of grand opera when Puccini's "La Boheme" was broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The leading rôles of Mimi and Rudolph were sung by Marion Claire and Eugene Conley. Virginia Haskins, youthful Chicago Opera star, took the part of Musette and Bruce Foote that of Marcel.

Musical setting for the presentation was provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Henry Weber as conductor. Ensemble coach was Robert Trendler and the producer was Kenneth MacGregor. No dramatic cast was employed, as is the custom in the presentation of operettas. Marvin Mueller was the narrator.

PLAN LOCAL UNIT OF PHILIPPINES CAMPAIGN VETS

Members of the Philippine Veterans National association of the Chicago area met last night in the Morrison hotel to plan formation of a Cook county chapter of the association.

George S. Geis of Chicago, national historian and former past national commander of the association, presided at last night's gathering. He said there are 2,000 veterans of the Philippine campaign in the Chicago area.

The association is formed of men who served during the Philippine insurrection and the Chinese relief expedition from 1898 to 1902. Surviving veterans of the campaign participated in the capture of Manila and in 2,811 separate skirmishes. Eighty regiments took part in the conflict, including many volunteer organizations.

Geis said that officers for the Cook county organization will be elected, and a banquet will be held soon.

U. S. JUDGE STAYS DEATH SENTENCE IN TREASON CASE

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 7 (AP).—Judge Xen Hicks of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today stayed indefinitely the hanging of Max Stephan of Detroit, convicted of treason. The court is considering Stephan's appeal from the death sentence.

Stephan was convicted of giving aid to a German flyer who escaped from a Canadian prison camp. Counsel for Stephan, who was scheduled to be hanged Friday, contended he was indicted merely for acts of kindness toward the German, Hans Peter Krug, on the latter's birthday.

They also argued that as a Nazi, Krug had no conception of the meaning of an oath and should have been barred from testifying as the government's chief witness after he appeared in uniform and gave the Nazi salute at Stephan's trial.

58 Autos Rationed in City with 1,273 Tires, 24 Bikes

Fifty-eight automobiles were rationed by local rationing boards within the city during the week ended Friday, it was announced yesterday by Michael F. Mulcahy, rationing director for the metropolitan area.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL.

Mrs. Madeline Scott, 43 years old, suffered an arm fracture and back injuries yesterday in a fall from a window of her second floor apartment at 4715 Sheridan road.

DIVORCE DECREE FOLLOWS HIDING OF BABY'S DEATH

A divorce was granted yesterday in Lake county Circuit court to Mrs. Linda H. Clayton, 34 years old, 806 14th street, North Chicago, from Joseph P. Clayton, 36, of Waukegan.

Clayton figured last July in the conviction of Betty Jane Sheehan, 24, for the concealing of the death of her infant, found in the Des Plaines river west of Waukegan, weighted down with stones. Miss Sheehan is now serving a 90 day jail sentence. Clayton was charged with accessory to the crime, but the charge was dropped.

Miss Sheehan's name did not appear in the divorce case, altho it was charged that Clayton had been living with another woman from last January to July. Mrs. Clayton was given custody of two children and $15 a week support money.

20 4-H WORKERS NAMED ILLINOIS CLUB DELEGATES

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 7 [Special].—Ten girls and 10 boys have been named Illinois delegates to the national 4-H club congress in Chicago, 4-H club officials of the extension service of the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois announced today.

They were selected for outstanding achievement in wartime 4-H club programs. The 20 are:

Elizabeth Grimes, Ursa; Margaret Weber, Paris; Martha Elizabeth Carlisle, Carthage; Louis Bergren, Biggsville; Margaret Webb, Mount Vernon; Edgar Gabel, Yorkville; Perry A. Clauss, Strawn; Wayne Bates, Carlinville; Shirley Ann Bardelmeier, Edwardsville; Hiel Hicks, Blandinsville; Margaret Louise McArthy, Carlock; Harold Toepke, Bloomington; Henry Kaiser, Greenview; Lois Jane Bland, Bethany; Miriam Holmes, Lindenwood; Billy Murray, Tamaroa; Virginia Bertelsman and Wayne Meng, both of Belleville; Wayne Canterbury, Cantrall, and Mary Phelps, Plainfield.

The congress will be held Nov. 29 to Dec. 2.

VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR MARKS HIS 101ST BIRTHDAY

Lansing Mayor Supports Gas Ration Delay Plan

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 7 [Special].—Mayor Sam Street Hughes indicated today he would ask the city council and the local defense council, of which he is chairman, to support the Detroit council's request for a 90 day postponement of gasoline rationing combined with strict enforcement of the 35 mile an hour speed limit. Hughes said a tentative survey here indicated rationing would disrupt the war production program of local industrial plants and that a deferment of the order would permit a comprehensive study of transportation needs in this area.

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

It would be difficult for me to stir up any qualms of regret that the Chicago Opera had to fall back on "Aida" when Lily Pons was forced to postpone her appearance in "Lakmé." "Aida" remains the most royal of operas, the one most generously fitted to display singers, orchestra, chorus, and ballet. Even, if you care about such things, the one with the most luxuriously spaced intermissions for the parades, excursions, and visitations that are inextricably, and beguilingly, a part of opera.

The opera management had a slightly dazed look last night—things were going so smoothly after the storm of last minute substitution. One of the finest casts available in the opera world today had clustered suddenly on the big stage, and it sang to Carlo Peroni's dependable beat more smoothly than you might have believed, knowing that the single rehearsal was held yesterday when Zinka Milanov, the Aida, had not even come to town.

Brilliant and Luxurious Aida.

But Mme. Milanov was there last night, luxuriously there. A plump and beautiful Jugo-Slav, her Aida lies somewhere between Rethberg's and the late Muzio's, which is to say it is both brilliant and luxurious. It isn't the dark, exciting Aida we had in Raisa, but of all the dramatic sopranos available today, it is the one best suited to the demands of a score that has no patience with a little voice, no indulgence for one without ample range.

Mme. Milanov's soprano is clear and brilliant, with sweeping range, a lustrous mezza voce and a pianissimo that can spin the Nile scene into something magical. Her voice is richer than when we heard it two seasons ago, so that the big aria of the first scene, "Ritorna vincitor," had a climactic gleam new to her work as Chicago knows it. Her stage presence, like Rethberg's, makes up in serene dignity what it lacks in theater.

Martinelli a Chicago Regular.

Giovanni Martinelli was almost the only Chicago regular in the cast. Anna Kaskas was singing her first Amneris here, Lawrence Tibbett his first Amonasro, and Alexander Kipnis his first Chicago High Priest in 14 seasons.

The veteran tenor, who also is artistic director of the company, was in remarkable voice. The climax of "Celeste Aida" was as clear and pure are in the unforgotten days when he was an idol at Ravinia. Of all the dramatic tenors singing today, he has the finest style for Verdi, with the long clean line, the reinforced tone, curving quality of climax.

Miss Kaskas, subbing for Kerstin Thorborg, who was unable to arrive, was an extremely attractive king's daughter, black of wig and opulent of voice. She declined to be either a tragedy queen or the equivalent of a candidate's daughter out for votes. Her Amneris was utterly sure of herself, vocally and dramatically.

Tibbett Original as Amonasro.

Any one who knows Lawrence Tibbett's work could have called the turn on his savage chieftain in advance. He scorned the ugly tights of the cautious Amonasro, and wore his own darkened skin wrapped in leopard spots. He moved with catlike quickness that had jungle conviction, and he sang in that shadowy baritone which has few rivals for beauty of tone.

Mr. Kipnis' patriarch was velvet of voice, commanding of presence. The bass-baritone range helped in the temple scene. Mark Love's musicianship kept the king of Egypt on the beat, which is no easy job. Frida Savini sang the offstage priestess well, and Mr. Cavadore brought the bad news from Egypt.

Chorus and Ballet Good.

The chorus sang well and the ballet danced with spirit. Mr. Wymetal had done some compromising with the scenery, resorting to the old triumph scene, but moving the temple scene around according to his fancy. Having the temple fire at the front of the stage is effective in grouping, but the choral voices lose some of their balanced richness when they are a solid mass rather than divided on either side of the big stage.

However, there was little to quibble about in a performance hastily put together, but surprisingly smooth at the edges.

MARTIN TO QUIT AS CHAIRMAN OF G.O.P. COMMITTEE

Asks Congress Have Voice in Conduct of War.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7—Asserting that the people have served notice on the administration to get down to the business of winning the war, Rep. Joseph W. Martin [R., Mass.] house minority leader, returned to the capital today urging creation of a joint house and senate committee on the conduct of the war "to get the facts for congress."

Congress, he declared bluntly, can be trusted with the truth of war developments as well as administration burocrats, altho the actual conduct of the war will, of course, continue to be run by the army and navy.

Martin also disclosed that he has called a meeting of the Republican national committee in St. Louis, Mo., on Dec. 7 when he will resign a national chairman, a post he has held since the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie for President in 1940. He explained at a press conference that he wants to be free to devote his full time to his duties in congress.

Successors Suggested.

He named a number of possible successors to the Republican chairmanship, including Werner Schroeder, national committeeman from Illinois. Other members of the national committee whom he said might succeed him were: Harrison Spangler, Iowa; Kenneth Bradley, Connecticut; Ralph Gates, Indiana; Clarence Buddington Kelland, Arizona, and Barak Mattingly, Missouri.

The stocky, little New Englander emphasized that he will not consider any requests to remain as chairman until the 1944 Presidential campaign, even if the committee should attempt to make such a call upon his services.

Party "On the Go" Everywhere.

"I must give my time and effort to looking after things in the house," he said. "The party has been revitalized and is on the go everywhere. It is a good time to get out of the chairmanship."

He discussed briefly the proposal for a joint congressional committee on the war and declared that members of the G. O. P. "will give our best to the winning of the war and will do so without regard to politics."

Martin also commented briefly on Mr. Roosevelt's assertion yesterday that he has consulted in the past with Republican leaders about the conduct of the war.

"I don't know with whom the President has talked," Martin said. "I am only the official leader of the Republicans in the house. I can only recall that I went to the White House the night of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, when the declaration of war was discussed, and on one other occasion when Prime Minister Churchill was in this country. I do not remember being called there for other discussions."

Not Consulted About War.

In reply to a direct question as to whether he had been consulted on "the conduct of the war," Mr. Martin replied, "No."

Known as a hard working congressman and respected for his astute judgment in times of stress on the floor or in sideroom conferences, Martin's reëlection as minority leader when the new congress is convened is regarded as a foregone conclusion. Had the G. O. P. gained numerical control of the house, he would in all probability have been the next speaker, a job which is generally considered as second only to the Presidency in our own government.

He will have on his side of the chamber at least 208 Republican representatives, 10 short of a majority. On the other side will be 223 Democrats, including many southern Conservatives who may line up with the G. O. P. especially on domestic issues, making Martin the majority leader on the floor in fact if not in name.

When he was elected minority leader in 1939, the Republican membership was 169 and during the last two years it has been 166.

SCHROEDER NOT CANDIDATE.

Werner W. Schroeder, Republican national committeeman for Illinois, indicated in Chicago yesterday that he is not a candidate for the post that Chairman Martin said he will vacate.

"All the talk," he said, "has been just that—just talk. I haven't taken part in any serious discussion and I don't believe there are any active candidates for the chairmanship."

Gifts to Community Fund Reach Total of $2,306,678

Contributions to the 12th annual Chicago Community Fund campaign reached $2,306,678 yesterday as a large number of corporate gifts were received, Charles Y. HITS 'RUT'; LATER FINDS AN INJURED CHILD ON BUMPER Autoist Goes 1½ Miles Unaware of Mishap.

Two year old Larry Hogg, 3023 Walnut street, was in a serious condition in Walther Memorial hospital last night after a perilous mile and a half ride on the front bumper of an automobile that had struck him.

The car's driver, John Krenzel, 35 years old, of 3602 Waveland avenue, was unaware that he had struck the child, he told police.

Thought He Hit Hole.

Krenzel said he thought he had hit a hole in the street in front of 445 Sacramento avenue, and had continued driving until he reached the home of his brother-in-law, August Caponi, at 3242 Augusta boulevard. He said he saw the unconscious child for the first time when he pulled up in front of Caponi's home, and immediately notified west park police. Meanwhile the child's parents had notified Warren avenue police that their son was missing.

Physicians at the hospital said the child had suffered a fractured skull and possible brain concussion.

Engineer Dies of Injuries.

Edward Wenzlaff, 46 years old, 10327 Union avenue, an engineer, died early yesterday in South Chicago hospital of injuries suffered Friday night when he was hit by an automobile at Torrence avenue and 104th street. The driver was John Tinsley, 28, of 8714 Jeffery avenue, a chauffeur.

Mrs. Augusta Johnson, 80, of 200 Walnut street, Batavia, died in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, of injuries suffered Oct. 25 when a car in which she was riding struck a truck in Aurora and overturned.

Earl W. Groff, 449 Kinsbury street, Aurora, was notified that his half brother, Pvt. Fred L. James, 32, was killed in an automobile accident Friday night at Perrin field, Denison, Texas.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Willis C. Herron, 35, of 15816 Homan avenue, Markham, a village trustee of Markham and an oil company representative, who was killed by an automobile in the suburb Friday.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 579 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 440 died in Chicago where 17,057 were injured during the same period.

TRIBUNE OFFERS BLANKS FOR GAS RATIONING BOOKS

Application cards for basic "A" gasoline ration books are available to the public at Chicago Tribune public services in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. The blanks were received yesterday and may be had by any gas book applicant.

Michael F. Mulcahy, area rationing director, said yesterday that motorists need not apply for books at the schools Nov. 12, 13, and 14, in person if they have their forms filled out and signed. Any one who presents the completed forms, signed by the car owner, and the auto registration card will be given the basic "A" book and sticker, Mulcahy said.

Stress was placed on the need for all motorists to have turned in their tires in excess of the allowable five, before a ration book can be had. Motorists should also have available the serial numbers of their five tires.

STASSEN URGES VICTORY AT WAR AS G. O. P. GOAL

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 7 (AP).—Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota tonight reminded his fellow Republicans in a nation-wide broadcast over NBC that "it is tremendously more important that the war be won decisively and speedily than it is that our Republican party win in 1944."

The Minnesota governor, elected to his third term last Tuesday, is chairman of the National Council of State Governments. He pointed to gains made by Republicans in Tuesday's election and then admonished party members not to boast of their gains but to join with others in unrelenting prosecution of the war.

He said he believed the people should receive a more frank and full report of the facts of the war and that "the only way to have a free people fight a total war with effectiveness is to keep them thoroly informed."

Cragin Station Captain Is Reinstated by Allman

Capt. Albert Mikes of the Cragin station, was reinstated yesterday by Commissioner Allman after a suspension dating from Oct. 20. He was ordered off duty after slot machines had been found in his district. Neither Commissioner Allman nor the captain would comment on the reinstatement.

FRENCH 'DARROW' SPEAKS TODAY TO JEWISH PARLEY

Henri Thorez, lawyer and former member of the French parliament, will speak at 10 a. m. today before delegates to the annual conference of the Jewish labor committee in the Morrison hotel. Thorez, known as the Clarence Darrow of France, defended Herschel Grynszpan, the Jewish youth who shot and killed Ernest von Rath, a member of the German embassy, in Paris Nov. 7, 1938, precipitating a wave of anti-Jewish violence in Germany. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison. Thorez, now living in America, is associated with De Gaulle movement. ment.

ORT FEDERATION SPURS DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS

The Chicago council of the American Ort federation is holding its annual drive for members, and has named Sol Fisher as chairman of the campaign. The drive will end with dinner on Dec. 20. More than 1,000 reservations already have been made. The Ort federation, which takes its name from its aim to organize rehabilitation thru training, is designed to assist Jews in war industries and other war and reconstruction efforts in Europe and North and South America.

Steinway

—the long-term investment that pays daily returns

The consideration of the shrewd buyer is not given so much to price as to value received. He looks beyond the first cost into the question of upkeep, permanence, performance and pride of ownership. His thrift is tempered with imagination. When such a shopper wishes to buy a piano, he turns quite naturally to the Steinway. For the lifetime of perfect service given by this great instrument convinces him that true economy lies in the best and finest things.

HOME LIFE AFTER THE WAR.

THE TRIBUNE's service flag now contains 316 stars. Girls are filling many of the jobs which have been temporarily vacated. In the October number of our house organ there are two pages of pictures showing young women working at jobs formerly filled by men.

A reading of the want ads these days will impress one with the extent that job opportunities for women have expanded. Women are wanted now to drive cars, operate elevators, conduct investigations for credit, and mark up the quotations in stock brokerage offices. They are sought as chemists, examiners, power machine operators, and bank tellers. Many a man has found his grandpa working as a messenger boy these days, and now grandma may join him at work. One of the telegraph companies is employing superannuated women. There are opportunities for girls to learn the optical business to work on assembly lines, and to act as helpers for highly skilled mechanics.

All these are in addition to women's ordinary peacetime occupations. No wonder they are finding new kinds of work. A graduate of the University of Chicago applied for a job as a stenographer in a defense plant, but was persuaded to work in the factory as an inspector. Now she is earning more per week by just being alert than she used to get per month punching typewriter keys.

The War Production board says that four-fifths of all the jobs can be performed by women. From Labor day, 1941, to Labor day, 1942, the government reports that 2 million women went to work who were not previously employed. Man Power Commissioner McNutt says that a woman's place in wartime is not in the home. He wants 5 million more women to look for jobs. His objective is one housewife out of every four in industry by the end of 1943.

What is going to happen after the war? Most employers expect to give the jobs back to the service men when peace comes. But what about the young women who have been doing the work better than acceptably? The vast agricultural production of the United States after 1918 showed that there had been an exaggeration of the difficulty of keeping the boys down on the farm after they had seen Paree. It may be that they are needlessly worried who believe it will be impossible to get the girls home at the range. Nevertheless, it seems inevitable that the increased employment of women in industry will have a deleterious effect upon what we have known as family life, both during the war and after. This is a problem to which sociologists may give their attention, with greater profit to the country than will be derived from a good many of the researches in which they are engaged.

A DANGEROUS ATTEMPT AT CENSORSHIP.

Widespread alarm has been occasioned in the educational film industry by an order of the War Production board freezing film for educational motion pictures. The WPB limits the use of film in this field to "essential scientific purposes and research." The crux of the matter is in the interpretation of what is essential, and in the determination of that the government exercises a censorship at the source.

Any one seeking permission to make an educational film is required to state not only how much film he needs but the title of the film, the distribution channel, and numerous other facts to prove essentiality. "It is preferable," according to an interpretation of the order, "to send the script of the film."

The script or description of the projected film is submitted to Lowell Mellett for approval or rejection. Mr. Mellett at present is chief of the bureau of motion pictures of the Office of War Information. When he was head of the Office of Government Reports he was regarded as one of the most enthusiastic proponents of censorship, tho he denied it. There is no evidence that his zealotry has since abated.

Film News, a trade publication in the field of documentary and educational motion pictures, says of this order, "The freeze order differs from all other WPB orders governing the use of raw materials in that it does not state the amount of material to which an educational film producer is limited, but demands foreknowledge of what the film is to contain as a condition for obtaining any film stock. If allowed to stand it sets principle and precedent for total abolition of freedom of press, radio, and movies. The same ruling if applied to the press would amount to a WPB request to see a newspaper or magazine's copy before the allocation of newsprint."

The WPB has attempted to allay fear that this order represents another of the many attempts of the New Deal to bring the media of free communication and expression under control of the burocracy. In response to a request of the American Civil Liberties union that it express itself on the question of censorship, it has stated that no examination will be made of the merits of the educational purpose of any film. It added that its policy was to withhold approval of any films "of strictly advertising or sales promotion nature which are not connected with the war effort."

The Civil Liberties union seems too easily satisfied by this explanation. It states that it has "always drawn the line sharply between the exercise of democratic rights for information and education and the exercise of these rights for commercial ends," thereby identifying itself with the government on the validity of a limited censorship. The WPB concedes that the order forecloses the use of film for commercial advertising purposes.

This veiled attack upon one kind of film must be considered in context with the various New Deal assaults upon the media that convey information or express opinion. Educational films are most closely akin to the press. They may inform the public, they may attempt to form opinion, or, if they are essentially of an advertising nature, they correspond to the advertising columns of a newspaper. The freedom of the press is a right which belongs not only to editors. It is everybody's right, business man's as well as theologian's.

Within a short space of time the New Deal has attacked the free press by bringing suit against the Associated Press, it has subjected the press to censorship, it has curbed newsprint, and thru the President it has denied that the press is qualified to discuss such matters of national interest as military decisions. The limitation placed on educational films clearly is within the general pattern to bring all modes of free expression under control. The newspaper can be controled or destroyed by withholding newsprint, and a similar result can be achieved by withholding film.

It is to be hoped that congress has regained its independence and courage sufficiently to examine into the motives behind these related attacks. In any event they must be resisted.

FIGHTING INDIAN STYLE.

The recent announcement that the army is seeking more civilian specialists as instructors is welcome news, but the policy should be extended. The army has never been well trained in forest or jungle fighting. Both infantry and marines were at a disadvantage fighting the Japs in Luzon and in the Solomons. They can be better prepared for their tasks if the services draw upon civilians whose experience qualifies them as instructors.

There are, for example, thousands of woodsmen in many states who can thread their way thru the woods as easily as the average man walks down State street. There are many others whose business has familiarized them with the conditions under which we must do a great deal of fighting in the Pacific. Many of them have spent years as plantation managers or in other vocations which have made them as familiar with jungle conditions as were the Jap colonists who have served as instructors and guides for the Japanese army.

Our army did not make use of American woodsmen in the last war to train units for the special kind of Indian fighting that was required in such operations as that in the Argonne forest. The 77th division was composed largely of New York City boys. The division was thrown into the Argonne forest in the last weeks of the war, but had received no particular training for its job, and its advances were made at a rate generally slower than that of divisions along the remainder of the front. The woods were not cleared until the German units in the Argonne had been outflanked by the 1st division and forced to retire. Meanwhile, the American troops in the Argonne suffered unnecessarily heavy losses and thru unfamiliarity became involved in such complications as that resulting when Maj. Whittlesey's "lost battalion" was cut off from the main body.

Our military leaders have not demonstrated much ability to profit from past experience. The woodsmen, naturalists, former residents of jungle countries, and others who could train our soldiers for the kind of campaigns that will have to be undertaken against the Japs have not been put to proper use. There are thousands of such men already in the army whose services are not being employed to advantage, altho they could both train their fellow soldiers and provide cadres around which special combat units could be built.

The British at Narvik were unable to fight successfully against Alpine troops, and in Malaya and Burma they were no match for trained Jap jungle fighters. There is no necessity for us to undergo defeats by mistakenly sending city soldiers into jungles without careful preparation. All we have to do is call upon the men whose experience equips them to train our units properly. With instruction our men will not be at a disadvantage as soon as they leave the open for the brush, and what can be done to train troops for operations in the woods can also be done for fighting thru swamps and over mountains.

THE VOTERS AND THE AP.

The Associated Press has reprinted in facsimile some hundreds of editorial utterances regarding the government's anti-trust suit directed against the AP. Newspapers from Alabama and Washington, from Maine, Nebraska, California, and all the other states have denounced the prosecution. With the fewest exceptions, the editors recognize that the motive which prompted the suit was the desire of the administration to revenge itself upon the newspapers of this country which had refused to do its bidding.

We don't know how much influence the bringing of the suit and the widespread condemnation of it may have had upon the election this week, but the effect must have been considerable. It can safely be said that nothing which this administration has undertaken has so plainly exposed its dictatorial purpose or has more clearly demonstrated its vindictiveness. The answer was given at the polls.

Editorial of the Day

THAT WORD "COMPLACENCY."

[Grand Rapids Herald.]

Unless public officials, army and navy officers, and all others quit declaring that the American people are "complacent" and criticizing us for our "complacency" in this war emergency, somebody some day is going to rise up on his hind legs, get mad, and tell these critics something about the attitude of the American people and point out just who are the "complacent" ones.

It is true that the American people are not wasting much lung power in this war, are not doing a whole lot of flag waving or parading, but the fact remains that what they are doing is far more substantial and a far greater aid to the war effort than all the ballyhooing they might be doing.

The fact is that the American people are buying bonds in greater quantities than ever before in our history. They are digging up more scrap, more old rubber, more keys, more hard cash in taxes, and are uncomplainingly enduring more hardships and making more sacrifices, many of which are without warrant, than any nation perhaps ever before has done.

True, we are eating better and are clothed better and all of that than some other peoples, but it is because we have things to eat and to wear and we are willingly sharing our good fortune in this respect with the peoples who have less.

Latest to charge "complacency" on the part of the American people is Lieut. Gen. Somervell, who just the other day said: "We've lost all our rubber. We've lost ships by the hundreds, men by the thousands. We've lost the freedom of the seas. We've lost everything except a smug sense of complacency. And that's one thing we've got to lose and lose fast or else we'll lose our independence."

The American people are not responsible for the losses Gen. Somervell enumerates. It was the complacency on the part of the army, the navy, the government in general which is responsible for these losses. They failed to be awake at Pearl Harbor, failed to stop the flow of scrap metal and oil to Japan, failed to prepare for war in the air, bungled the whole production program, failed to lay in a stock of rubber, and failed until within a week or so to make preparation for the manufacture of synthetic rubber.

It is the government, not the people, which has failed to make labor work and to keep upon the farms enough men to produce foods.

It is the government, the army, and the navy which keep feeding us with news of glorious victories won two months ago and then later tell us the truth, that, in fact, we took a licking in that battle.

It was lack of vision on the part of the army, the navy, and the government in failing properly to garrison and equip and man the Philippines.

It was the complacency of the army and the navy which resulted in their underrating the Jap war strength and ability to fight.

It is not the American people who are to be charged with "complacency." We're doing our part in every way we are asked, and with a very shaky leadership.

It's the army, the navy, and the government which stands to be criticized for bungling as well as for "complacency."

The United States of America: Democracy or Republic?

BY CHAUNCEY McCORMICK.

Never before in the history of America has an election campaign so clearly emphasized the fundamental conflict between republicanism and democracy. They are as diametrically opposed as freedom and tyranny.

The recent campaign has most strikingly reilluminated the reasons why our founding fathers created the republic of the United States instead of a democracy. They knew only too well the sad history of those Greek democracies, every one of which ended under the heel of a tyrant. They were students of the classics and of ancient history, and were completely conscious of the fact that the very word "democracy" is composed of two Greek words—"cratos" meaning power and "demos" meaning the populace or the mob, and that these words connote the power of the majority over the minority—the enslavement of every minority by the majority. They also knew that other Greek word, "demagogue," compounded to describe those wily men who become bosses of the "demos," or the mob. These Greek demagogues were the leaders who destroyed the liberties of the people and wrecked the glory that was Greece.

George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, and their colleagues brought forth the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights, and the whole American republican system to assure every one of our original 13 colonies that each could join the proposed confederation of the United States without putting their necks into the certain and cruel noose which had strangled every theretofore known democracy. They swore by their lives that their system of republican government would spare us the horrors of democracy.

Now, what was this system so filled with hope and comfort and assurance? Let us examine its origin. The word "republic" comes from two Latin words, "res" meaning "something, a thing" and "publicus" meaning "belonging to all the people." In other words, our republican government was to belong to all the people—to the minority as well as to the majority, to the simplest citizen as well as to the chief demagogue or leader.

Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Payne, in particular, elaborated the privileges to be enjoyed by humble and forgotten men under republicanism, impossible in a democracy. They persuaded the American people that republicanism assured freedom where democracy had always produced coercion, and so this nation was founded.

Years later Abraham Lincoln showed he had caught their vision of republicanism when he declared that the President of the United States was the servant of the people, and spoke so solemnly "of the people, for the people, and by the people."

Specifically, republicanism was a pledge that there was never to be government by one party only. It meant that the party of the people in minority could always in due proportion have their senators and their representatives or congressmen in Washington, free at all times to represent them in opposition to the majority. It meant that these elected representatives of the minority could always speak and plead and debate and vote in opposition to any leader. It warned the people against the old practice of "follow the leader" in government. It meant that America could remain great and free so long as the people's representatives continued honestly to represent those who elected them and refused to stoop to the servility of following a leader. It meant that no man in the congress, either in the senate or in the house of representatives, need ever be merely a rubber stamp, and by implication it meant that every such rubber stamp in congress was a saboteur of republicanism and a traitor to the American system of freedom.

And yet in this last campaign as never before, Republican candidates have been smeared and damned merely because they had refused to follow the instructions and the leadership of the party they were elected to oppose. Brave soldiers who had risked their lives in defense of America had their very patriotism questioned because they refused to betray the principles of American republicanism and because they refused to forsake the right of minorities to be heard in government.

The so-called Coördinating Committee for Democratic Action spent vast sums of money to dishonor Republicans in every state in the Union because they refused to vote as the Roosevelt régime instructed. The question of whether these elected representatives were bound by campaign pledges to keep faith with their electorate was contemptuously brushed aside as of no importance; honor and faithfulness were treated as naught as compared to the importance of following Roosevelt's leadership. His will was put above the will of the people. This was the truly great issue in the last campaign. The people did not fully comprehend it, but were beginning to grasp it more and more by election day.

After the French revolution, which beheaded King Louis XVI., France created her first republic based upon our American Constitution. This promised well until one of her elected leaders persuaded the people to vote, first as he requested and then as he dictated. Before long that man was crowned as the Emperor Napoleon I., and that republic was at an end.

After the last World war Germany set up the Weimar republic. At first it seemed to work but before long one man intimidated the Germans into believing that he was the one best qualified to tell them how to vote as their leader—"fuehrer" is the German word for leader—and so Germany got Hitler and the world got hell.

No republic can live in which its representatives in congress vote for a leader instead of for the people. This is why the present administration has tried to purge men like Sen. Brooks and so many other devotees of the principles of representative government in both the Democratic and Republican parties. They howl "democracy" the while they knife in the back the only power ever known in history strong enough to keep men free in spite of democracy.

* * *

The great men and the fine men of the old Democratic party have been just as faithful to republican principles as have been the members of the Republican party. It is only the New Deal or Rooseveltian Democratic party which has tried and is trying to destroy our American republicanism. So true is this today that [with the exception of certain men such as Democratic Sen. Byrd of Virginia, Democratic Sen. Tydings of Maryland, and Democratic Sen. George of Georgia] democracy versus republicanism, and tyranny versus freedom, and dictatorship versus representative government have become the major principles at issue between the Rooseveltian Democratic party and the Republican party.

Let us never forget that George Washington and Thomas Jefferson founded a republic and not a democracy; and that Abraham Lincoln fought for and preserved a union of states which formed a republic and not a democracy; and let us all join in the great fight to keep the republic of the United States.

FEEDING THE INVALID.

RECOVERY from illness today is far more rapid than it was a generation ago. The reason is that we have learned how to keep up the patient's strength.

Why is this essential? Altho rest in bed will raise resistance, this alone may not be enough. Fever, if present, means that metabolism is increased. This tells us that the tissues are being consumed at a high rate of speed. Because breathing and the beating of the heart are accelerated, more energy is required and the storage depots within the body are undergoing rapid exhaustion.

Food, then, becomes an important anchor to windward. If we would prevent prostration, more than the daily standard requirement must be given. Furthermore, it must be easily assimilated. One caution, however, should be observed. We cannot push nutriment beyond the point at which it will be absorbed.

If the sufferer is vomiting, rejecting every mouthful that is swallowed, forcing edibles will make a bad matter worse. Here the injection of salt solution beneath the skin or glucose directly into a vein may quiet the digestive tract so that it will be able to function. Additional calories may then be provided [chiefly fats and carbohydrates]—a teaspoonful at first, later an ounce or two every hour. Extra feedings are supplied as circumstances permit. When a flat refusal is encountered, with complete loss of appetite, vitamin B may be relied upon to remedy the situation.

As soon as possible, proteins should be included in the diet. Thick soups, made with lean minced beef, rice, butter, and cream will help to restore the fighting forces. The emaciated invalid is engaged in an uphill battle and nutriments constitute the sinews of war. The higher the temperature the greater the need. Many a case of pneumonia will demand 50 per cent more nourishment than normal. What is accomplished? The convalescent period is cut short.

No harm will result from catering to the likes and dislikes of the victim. Occasionally a freak request, if met, will serve as a stimulus. I recall the case of a 12 year old lad who experienced a severe attack of scarlet fever. For the most part, food proved unattractive. Nothing seemed to tempt him. Finally, in desperation, he was asked, "Well, what will you eat?" His reply was "smoked herring."

It was ascertained later that he had never tasted this article but had seen boxes of the shiny brown fish displayed in a New England country store. His notion was timely. He not only relished the dish but consumed everything on his tray. Perhaps the tangy salt was just what he required.

We are likely to forget that vital organs will be injured if the body is allowed to waste away. Such structures as the liver and the heart may be damaged severely. Then it is that well prepared and tasty dishes become medicines of great power. Five or six small meals accomplish more as a rule than the regulation three. In fact, there may come a time when a few ounces, administered every hour, will mark the turning point to health.

Nearly a century ago, one of the world's greatest physicians, recognizing this principle, ordered that his epitaph should consist of but three words, "He fed fevers."

HAIR AND VIGOR.

Mrs. L. M. writes: I have been told that it is not wise to allow a child's hair to grow too long, as it will weaken her. Is this true?

REPLY.

Not at all. Remember that Samson lost his strength when he was shorn.

LAZY LIVER.

REPLY.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 11, part 2.

1. The word "margin" should make an American think primarily of Fifth avenue Pennsylvania avenue Fleet street Wall street.
2. Most of our hospitals have been built by which of these agencies:
   Churches County governments State governments City governments.
3. "By their fruits ye shall know them" is a statement made by

DR. WIRT'S WARNING.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—In this morning's TRIBUNE the question is asked by a man in Wisconsin: "Are the politicians creating an emergency, a so-called labor shortage, housing shortage, shortage of gasoline . . . in order to ration and regiment everything and everybody?"

The creation of these shortages was planned in the first days of the New Deal and are the successors of the killing of pigs, plowing under of crops and other practices foreign to American life. Most persons have forgotten Dr. William A. Wirt, Gary educator, who was so rudely treated by the majority committee of the house of representatives in March, 1934, in their investigation of his statement of New Deal planning. May I quote from the statement and from the report of the minority committee some of his remarks:

"The braintrusters insist that the America of Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln must first be destroyed and then on the ruins they will reconstruct an America after their own pattern.

"I was told that they believed that by thwarting our then evident recovery they would be able to prolong the country's destitution until they had demonstrated to the American people that the government must operate industry and commerce. I was told that, of course, commercial banks could not make long-time capital loans and that they would be able to destroy, by propaganda, the other institutions that had been making our capital loans. Then we can push Uncle Sam into the position where he must make these capital loans. And, of course, when Uncle Sam becomes our financier he must also follow his money with control and management.

"They were sure that they could depend upon the psychology of empty stomachs, and they would keep them empty. The masses would soon agree that anything should be done rather than nothing. Any escape from present miseries would be welcomed even tho it should turn out to be another misery. They were sure that the leaders of industry and labor could be kept quiet by the hope of getting their own share of the government doles in the form of loans and contracts for material and labor, provided they were subservient.

"Dr. Wirt specifically said that Gen. Westervelt, a former official in the agriculture department, had told him [Wirt] that Frederick Howe had made the following statement to him [Westervelt]:

"'Is there any way by which we can stop feeding them? We are going too slowly. If we could stop feeding them, we would make greater headway toward what we are trying to accomplish.'

"There is only one interpretation," says the minority report, "which can be placed upon this statement of Mr. Howe to Gen. Westervelt and that is, so long as the government feeds the hungry it will be impossible to accomplish a violent overthrow of the government. It is an axiom of the revolutionist that the people must be made hungry in order to goad them into a violent overthrow of established order."

These quotations are taken from report No. 1439, house calendar No. 244, 73d congress, second session, supplied by the superintendent of documents in Washington. The majority report deletes a portion of Dr. Wirt's statement and the full report of the investigation is not obtainable, being under lock and key in the library of congress.

YANKS ENJOY THE TRIBUNE.

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 29.—I have read that our boys who are abroad in the service of our country place reading matter first on the list of what they most desire from the folks back home.

As to what that reading matter should be I am offering a hint thru quotation from my grandson's letter from overseas:

Sept. 3.—"That was so thoughtful of you to send me a subscription to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. You were right in thinking I would like it even tho the war communiques and other news were a bit behind time. Several of the papers have arrived already and I've enjoyed them so much, as have a lot of the other men. There are several from Chicago and vicinity, and so when we have finished a paper in our hut I pass it on. We get daily reports on the war, but they do not include the color and full details of a newspaper writeup and all of us are interested in sports. I imagine that section is enjoyed as much as any part of the paper."

PUT THE BOOKIES TO WORK.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—A popular cry during this war is "shortage of labor." Why doesn't our police force do something about the bookies that are running full blast in Chicago? The men employed in handbooks certainly could be useful in speeding up production of war material instead of aiding bookmakers in taking away hard earned money easily. Mayor Kelly would earn respect from Chicagoans if he honestly made an effort to stop illegal betting.

WIDENING STATE STREET.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 27.—I have a copy before me of the Chicago Commercial Express of Thursday, June 18, 1868, having an article "Widening State Street," quoted from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE: "The common council have ordered the board of public works to prepare an ordinance for the widening of State street which, if it becomes a law, will be the greatest special street improvement yet made in Chicago. It will involve not only a widening of the street, but its repairing.

"At present State street is traveled only by those who are compelled to do so, and it will require this improvement to make it the great business thorofare of the south division. In five years more the south division will probably contain over 150,000 population, nine-tenths of them residing south of the present limits of the 1st ward. For the great bulk of these people State street should be the most convenient thorofare, and this it can never be without some improvement in the class of its buildings and the width of its carriage way.

"The addition of 30 feet to the latter will adapt it to all kinds of business and render the transit of all kinds of vehicles safe and that business of the first class, wholesale and retail, will extend its whole length, we have no doubt."

TIME TO FEED THE ANIMALS.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—I see where certain zoos want to dispose of a number of animals because of the meat shortage. What an injustice to the faithful animal who has paced his cage vainly seeking a way out. Why not give him his freedom? Send the bears to the Yellowstone country where so many other bears are happy. However, "food shortage" can hardly be termed an excuse for their disposition, if we could see all the food that goes into the garbage cans from hotel dining rooms and hospital trays—enough to feed all the animals in every zoo in this country, I venture to say. "Save all scrap food for our animals" should be the slogan.

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

HUSBAND'S ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am my husband's second wife. We were married five years ago. No will has been made that I know of. My husband has four children, three of age and one a minor.

1. His first wife is named beneficiary in his insurance policies. In case of his death to whom would the insurance go?

2. My husband owns a house which is being paid for out of a private loan. The last payment will be made this year. Last April he drew up an agreement with a party. This party is to pay $40 per month to my husband. When he has paid $3,000 on the property he is to get the deed and take a first mortgage for the balance. In the event of my husband's death who would receive the payments?

3. Could I use this money for the child's support?

4. Could the three older children claim it? R. E.

1. You do not tell us whether she has died, or is divorced. If she is still living, the wording of the policy would control. If she has died, it seems probable that the policy is so worded that the money would be payable to his estate which would mean to his present wife and all of his children.

2. His heirs.

3. Yes, as to your share. As to the child's share, you might have to obtain a court order.

4. They would be entitled to shares.

TRAFFIC VIOLATION.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to know what Section 27/55 of the traffic violation is for the City of Chicago as used by the Chicago police department. J. C.

"Sec. 27-55: The operator of a vehicle shall not overtake and pass upon the left any street car proceeding in the same direction, whether actually in motion or temporarily at rest. This provision shall not apply on one-way streets, or on streets where the tracks are so located as to prevent compliance with the rule.

It shall be unlawful for the operator of any vehicle to fail to stop said vehicle not less than 10 feet to the rear of the nearest open doorway of any street car that has stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers, or for said operator to proceed again until all persons have boarded said street car or have reached a place of safety. This provision shall not apply to passing upon the left of any street car on a one-way street, or upon such streets where the tracks are so located to prevent compliance with the rule.

Provided, however, that where a safety zone has been established, or at any intersection where traffic is directed by a police officer an operator need not stop, but may proceed at a rate of speed consistent with the safety of pedestrians."

MINOR'S PROPERTY.

Chicago, Oct. 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—I am a widowed mother of five children, all minors. About three years ago my uncle passed away and left a small sum of money to my children.

1. Does a mother appointed guardian by the court have to pay for and post a bond?

2. Can the executor place this money in the bank for the children and let the mother draw it without a court order or added expense?

3. The lawyer for the estate says that the law requires the mother to pay court costs and bond expense, also that she must have a court order each time she wishes to draw money for the children.

4. The judge told the lawyer he did not have to put the mother thru this added expense.

5. The lawyer tells me the judge does not understand the case. C. H.

1. Yes.

2. Yes, with court approval.

3. Correct, if they have the guardianship.

4. He has the facts. Presumably he is right.

5. The lawyer ought to be able to point out the precise reasons for his disagreement with the judge.

M'KELLAR SIFTS ELECTION 'FLOP' IN GALLUP POLL

May Seek Legislation to Oversee Straw Votes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] today was studying the preëlection poll conducted by Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, in connection with his affirmed conviction that straw votes should be placed under strict federal supervision. The Gallup poll prediction that there would be almost no change in congressional party alignment was proved to be deep in error by the election.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar

In 1936 Sen. McKellar called for a senate investigation into the Literary Digest's 1936 Presidential poll, which gave Alfred M. Landon, Republican candidate, 32 states with a total of 370 electoral votes, 104 more than is required for election. Actually Landon carried only two states—Maine and Vermont.

Voters Wronged, He Says.

At the time Sen. McKellar characterized the Literary Digest poll as "a great wrong to American voters." He added that any newspaper or magazine, conducting a poll, should have a federal supervisory body of such character and ability as to insure the utmost fairness and honesty of the poll. He advocated federal legislation which would require that no newspaper or magazine could publish the returns of any preëlection poll until its fairness and correctness are passed upon by a bipartisan or multipartisan board.

Gallup Explanation Hit.

Sen. McKellar said he had not given any recent consideration to revival of this legislation, but said that he was going to look into the Gallup poll. He said he had not lost his interest in seeking to make straw votes as accurate as possible.

Dr. Gallup has never revealed the machinery of his forecasting other than to say his workers scattered about the country are trained measurers of public opinion and trends. Several times critics of his poll have challenged those who have quoted it to produce a ballot or any one who has been canvassed by Gallup's institute.

FINISH CANVASS OF VOTES; G. O. P. CONTESTS LOOM

Question 2 Senatorial District Tallies.

The official canvass of returns from last Tuesday's election was completed by the board of election commissioners yesterday. John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board, said tabulation of the vote totals in the 3,979 precincts in Chicago and nine country towns would be continued today and probably completed tomorrow. The official proclamation will be issued before the end of the week, he said.

A check of tally sheets from the precincts of the 13th senatorial district, in which opposing candidates were separated by a narrow margin, concluded the canvass. Ragnar G. Nelson, Republican candidate for state representative, said the canvass raised his margin over Democrat Adam S. Mioduski from 74 to 350 votes.

Tyrrell Cites Errors.

The completion of the canvass in the 1st and 29th districts, where Democratic candidates were indicated winners on the basis of small margins, convinced John F. Tyrrell, attorney for the Republican county central committee, that contests should be ordered.

"There were many errors in the count in all senatorial districts because straight votes were not totaled and entered separately on the tally sheets," Tyrrell said. "In many instances these votes were entered as split votes or halves."

Lawrence E. Dowd, Democrat, had a lead in the unofficial returns over Hobart E. Neff in the 1st district. Watchers reported that the tally sheet of the 22d precinct of the 1st ward in this district was not returned by the judges.

Moreland Still Plans Contest.

Former Ald. James C. Moreland, Republican candidate for representative in congress from the 7th district, said the canvass of the 954 precincts of the district in the city did not alter his plans to contest the indicated election of Rep. Leonard W. Schuetz, Democrat.

Moreland said he suspected that some o fthe figures on the precinct tally sheets may have been changed, since they did not agree with those supplied by precinct captains.

Daniel A. Carey, chief clerk of the county election board which has jurisdiction over 559 precincts outside the city and nine towns controled by the board of election commissioners, announced that the canvass of these voting districts would begin tomorrow.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

TRUCKS WOULD INCREASE SPEED —AND HAZARDS

BY HAL FOUST.

Trucking associations thruout the country are petitioning Joseph B. Eastman, federal director of Defense Transportation, to lift the 35 mile an hour speed limit for the highway haulers. Their argument is that a more rapid movement of freight over the roads is necessary for efficiency in armament production.

Passenger car owners, limited with trucks to 35 miles an hour maximum as a tire conservation measure, have several grounds for protests against permitting the big carriers to travel faster. The main argument against the proposal is that it would increase hazards.

Might Be Greater Risk.

In peacetimes, slower moving trucks on rural roads were a peril to faster passenger car drivers. Under a modification of wartime regulations, as advocated by the truckers, the big vans would be overtaking and passing family automobiles. Such a conflict in speeds might be an even greater risk because the heavier vehicles are not as easy as the passenger cars to maneuver.

Safety engineers long have recognized that for a minimum risk common users of a roadway should travel at uniform speeds. Limited experience with minimum as well as maximum speed limits, in the Holland tunnel under the Hudson river and on several long bridges in various parts of the country, has borne out this theory. With no overtaking and passing, accidents have been few.

The nation-wide 35 mile an hour speed limit, invoked by proclamation from Washington, D. C., for voluntary compliance, reduces the range of velocity of the various highway users, the range between the fastest and the slowest travelers. Voluntary coöperation can further narrow this range. Surely 35 miles an hour is not too fast on the open road even for those most anxious to conserve fuel and tires.

A Law in Several States.

The 35 mile an hour maximum has been enacted into law in several states. Gov. Dwight Green has announced that he will recommend its enactment by the Illinois legislature which convenes in January.

So the prospects are for less accidents due to speed variations during the gas rationed driving for the rest of the war. The only threat against these prospects is the advocacy of the truckers for exemptions for themselves. And, opposed to this petition, is a further argument—in addition to the safety considerations—that there is commercial passenger travel as important to the war effort and to civilian economy as the freight movement—and there isn't enough rubber in the country for all important motor operations to be given special speed limits higher than the maximum for less important motor operations.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Motorists are warned by the Chicago Safety council to take precautions against exposure to carbon monoxide gas discharged from the exhausts of motor vehicles as winter sets in. The council says it is important that motors be kept properly adjusted with respect to combustion and that exhaust lines be kept tight in order that gas may not escape into passenger car or truck. Avoid being in a closed garage when an automobile engine is idling or in a parked car, with windows closed, while engine is running, the council warns.

Carbon monoxide gas is colorless, odorless, and tasteless. A small amount of the gas inhaled over a period of time will impair driving reaction and control of the vehicle. Symptoms indicating the presence of the gas are dizziness, headaches, nausea, weakness, smarting of the eyes, palpitation of the heart, drowsiness or complete collapse. Persons suffering from poisoning by the gas should be placed in the fresh air at once and a physician called.

ALCOHOL AS AUTO FUEL BEFORE WAR ENDS IS FORESEEN

BY HAL FOUST.

Charcoal as fuel for trucks and buses, and alcohol as fuel for passenger automobiles, are foreseen for common usage before the war is ended, and possibly for general use after the war. A senate committee recently investigated petroleum production, consumption, and reserves and reported a threat of a shortage.

Germans and other Europeans have used charcoal as a fuel for internal combustion engines for more than a decade. Wood also has been used. The engineering is familiar in America. Here, however, we lack facilities and materials for quantity production of the equipment. These are to be developed.

In America the use of charcoal as a motor fuel is expected to be limited to those heavy vehicles with fixed routes. The equipment is too bulky for convenience on smaller vehicles. The fuel is too bulky, and probably will continue to be too rare for all gasoline stations to supply it. Hence the limitation to vehicles on fixed routes where private or public charcoal bins might be maintained.

Metal Box for Burner.

The type of charcoal burner being tested in America, one of several types in use in Europe for years, is contained in a metal box, two or three feet cubed, which may be attached beside the hood on the side away from the driver. The device sprays water over burning charcoal and the dry steam impregnated with carbon monoxide is blown and sucked into the cylinders of a conventional engine. The efficiency of the engine is below normal, but it's cheaper than burning gasoline and it conserves the nation's petroleum supplies.

Alcohol also has been in common use for many years in Europe, where petroleum has been much more expensive than in America. Mixed with gasoline, it's a high test fuel. Race drivers at the Indianapolis speedway have used it for years.

American farmers for many years have sought by legislation to bring about a compulsory mixture of gasoline with alcohol made from surplus grains. Petroleum interests opposed the move because it would shrink their market. Motorists also opposed it because alcohol made from grain is more costly than gasoline.

Sources Almost Limitless.

With the reported threat of a petroleum shortage, costs are not a dominating consideration in the question of whether alcohol should be mixed with gasoline for automobiles. Furthermore, the available sources for alcohol production are almost limitless while the available material for gasoline is daily shrinking. For nature to produce a gallon of petroleum requires millions of years, but nature produces vegetable material for alcohol production every growing season.

Molasses and grains are today's main sources for alcohol production. The reported sugar shortage is an argument against expanding the fermentation and distillation of molasses. With a scarcity in farm labor and with a large portion of the world's population hungry, there are objections to the conversion of grains into alcohol. However, the distillation of wood now wasted in America's lumbering operations is a process with almost limitless supplies of raw material for alcohol.

Pulp Mill Waste Is Source.

Another unexploited source for alcohol, and for synthetic rubber made from alcohol, consists of the waste at American paper pulp mills. The Ontario Paper company, a subsidiary of THE TRIBUNE, has perfected this process and, as a contribution to the war effort, has made its developments available to the entire paper pulp industry in the United States and Canada.

With the present, and very likely temporary, surplus of wheat in America, the farm bloc has discouraged the use of the forests rather than the grain fields for alcohol production. The petroleum corporations, which are making synthetic rubber as well as motor fuel, likewise have not encouraged development of this new source for tire materials and for a rival motor fuel. But both of these established producers face a growing threat of shortages.

The development of the forests and the paper pulp mills as producers of motor fuel and rubber is likely to be slow. Critical materials are needed for distilleries. At present even pilot plants are lacking as a guide in the technique for future extensive expansions, probably in a couple of years.

Pilot Plants Advocated.

The establishment of such pilot plants, in the main forest growing areas of the United States and Canada, is receiving earnest advocacy before the War Production board and before other American and Canadian agencies. While the general technique is known from years of commercial operations in Europe, experience is lacking in adaptations to American conditions, including American forests.

With pilot plants in operation, the western continent would be educated for the expansion that proponents believe will become an urgent necessity in a few years. The expansion will probably begin with an easement in today's shortages of construction materials as the building of new war plants nears completion in another year.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

RECKLESS CAR HIKERS.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Recently, while driving south on La Salle street, I was preceded by a car bearing the license number ——. The driver of the car was a colored boy who was obviously an employé of some garage or parking lot and was endeavoring to deliver it to the owner. I observed him for two blocks, driving like a madman, slamming on brakes, and squeezing in between two cars in traffic with only about three or four inches at most on either side of him, while going at a high rate of speed.

Driving like this should be stopped under the present conditions. This wild maneuvering not only endangered pedestrians but also endangered other motorists, inasmuch as our cars and tires cannot be replaced, and parts are also practically unobtainable, it was my thought that Voice of Traffic might be willing to consider promoting a campaign to curb such tactics. What is to be gained by preserving our cars and tires, if careless employés bang them up?

Wouldn't it be possible to get the judges to administer more severe sentences where a careless employé is delivering a car that doesn't belong to him? Perhaps a writeup in your column might arouse public interest to the extent where these attendants will be compelled to handle our cars with more skill and care.

Inasmuch as this car was also bearing a membership sticker of the Illinois Automobile club, I have written a similar letter to them in hopes that they might notify the owner of this car as to the manner in which it was driven on this particular day.

The writer, who frequently finds it necessary to park his car, has had some expensive experiences along this line and would appreciate any interest the Voice of Traffic might take in this respect.

KNOX ACCUSED OF 'KNUCKLING DOWN' TO REDS

Disclose New Charges of Favoring Left Wingers.

Fred M. Howe.

New York, Nov. 7 [Special].—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was today accused of "knuckling down" to communist pressure in reinstating "conspicuous left wingers" among merchant marine radio operators previously barred from American ships as "subversive" by naval trial boards.

The accusation came from Fred M. Howe, general secretary-treasurer of the marine division of the Radio Officers' union [AFL], in a new flareup of the controversy between Knox and the union over alleged navy favoritism of the rival American Communications association [CIO].

Howe made public a letter received by him from Knox Oct. 12 and a reply by him under date of Oct. 23. Knox's letter contained a bitter denunciation of Howe for giving to the press the text of a telegram previously sent Knox complaining of CIO favoritism in reinstatements.

Claims Law Nullified.

In his new letter, Howe says that Knox's reinstatements have nullified the so-called public law No. 351, passed shortly after Pearl Harbor, which permits the navy to remove any radio officer from any merchant vessel without a public trial or without stating any reasons.

"The Radio Officers' union supported the passage of public law 351 with the understanding and belief that the law would not be abused," Howe said. "Ours was the only union which gave it support. It was passed by an alert and angry congress to permit the navy to keep Communists, Nazis, and Fascists off the ships.

"By reinstating these men, you have truly nullified the law," Howe charged. "It no longer has any meaning. Communist agitators and Moscow agents now know they are safe. They know they will not be removed. They have gone to almost the highest authority in the land and won a great battle. Your office has been beaten. Congress has been defied."

Howe said that 47 members of the ACA were removed by the navy as subversive, and the removals upheld by trial boards. Subsequently, at the intercession of the ACA, "10 of their most conspicuous left wingers" were reinstated by Knox's office, he said.

Howe said the reinstatements were granted with such haste that among those reinstated was a radio operator who had been reported missing with his ship several months before.

As now administered, public law 351 permits discrimination against all radio operators who lack support of the communist element in ACA, Howe asserted.

Army Provisions for Kin Are Described in Booklet

A booklet designed to acquaint members of the army with the provisions for security and protection of dependents has been published by the war department. The book, titled "Personal Affairs of Military Personnel and Their Dependents," is available to all members of the army and may be obtained by dependents and others by writing the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C. The booklet sells for 10 cents a copy.

NEED OF DOCTORS STUDIED BY MAN POWER LEADERS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Medical chiefs of the war man power commission and the armed forces agreed today to work more closely together in deciding how many doctors the army and navy will need and how many can safely be withdrawn from civilian practice.

Five doctors comprising the directing board of the procurement and assignment service met with Surgeons Gen. James Magee of the army, Ross T. McIntire of the navy, and Thomas Parran of the public health service. War Man Power Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey also attended the closed meeting.

Details of the discussion were not disclosed, except that those present agreed to work more closely together and to meet once a month. Their next meeting was set for Dec. 5.

Dr. Frank H. Lahey is chairman of the directing board. The other members are Dr. Harvey Stone, Dr. James Paullin, Dr. C. Willard Camalier, and Dr. Harold Diehl.

Vaughan's Rainbow Garden of Giant Tulips
35 Bulbs for $2
Prepaid 600 miles
Seven each of five named varieties separately bagged and labeled, embracing these colors: RED, PINK, ORANGE, YELLOW, LAVENDER
These are the tall, giant American tulips you saw in Vaughan's tulip garden at the National Flower and Garden Show last spring. Plant them now to make sure that next spring your garden presents a scene of beauty. National leaders urge that garden beauty be maintained for its effect upon morale. You can plant spring bulbs in confidence that nothing is thereby taken from the war effort.
25 Daffodils, prepaid, $1.50
Daffodils are the first major flowers to bloom in spring. They last for years and usually multiply. A purchase of bulbs should pay in bloom for a lifetime. All types are in this mixture.

DON'T LET WINTER CATCH YOUR CAR UNPREPARED!

LET OUR TRAINED MECHANICS MAKE ALL THE ADJUSTMENTS SO NECESSARY TO Keep 'em Rolling!

THIS YEAR, more than ever before, it is vital that you prepare your car in advance for the cold winter days ahead. If you want that car to last, if you want it to give reliable, economical service in all your necessary war-time driving this winter—get set now! This is no year for half-way measures. So, come to us for a complete car winterizing program. We have the modern equipment, the trained manpower, the authorized parts, the approved factory methods, to meet all your winter needs at one stop—and to do the job right. You can save wear on your car, save wear and tear on yourself on those hard-starting, sub-zero mornings—if you'll act now. Remember, it's not necessary to own an Oldsmobile to take advantage of Oldsmobile's special winterizing program. This service, like all our other car-care services, is available to owners of all makes!

WITHOUT ALL THIS COLD WEATHER PROTECTION, YOU MAY LOSE YOUR WAR-TIME TRANSPORTATION!

Change to Winter-Grade Lubricants. Your car requires a different grade of lubricant during the winter months. We have exact factory specifications as to what type to use and where to use it—including many often-neglected spots.

Give Engine Special Winter Tune-Up. A tune-up is particularly important now to avoid waste of precious gasoline. At certain points—such as the carburetor and automatic choke—adjustments should be made to insure easy starting and reliable performance during the winter.

Install Anti-Freeze. Your whole cooling system should be checked and put in order for the winter when you install anti-freeze. This includes flushing out radiator, tightening all connections, and replacing parts if necessary.

Check Battery and Electrical System. Fewer miles of driving this winter make it important that the battery and generator on your car be kept in tip-top shape. Let us check the complete electrical system—including battery, generator, voltage regulator, cables and wiring—to make sure that your car won't fail when you need it most.

Check Heater, De-Froster and Windshield Wiper. Heaters and de-frosters that have stood idle all summer should be cleaned and lubricated. Windshield wipers should be made ready for their heavy job in snowy weather.

Adjust Brakes. Brakes should be equalized so as to reduce the danger of skids on icy pavements—and adjusted to permit maximum brake lining life and tire mileage, winter and summer alike.

Apply Protective Coating over Chromium and Paint. Snow and frost are tough on the finish of your car, and certain chemicals often applied to icy roads tend to corrode bright metal. Let us give you "appearance protection" for the winter months.

Join the Scrap Drive!
America's war effort is seriously threatened by an acute scrap shortage. You can help in this emergency by searching your basement, your attic, your backyard—everywhere—for old metal, rubber or other salvable material. Get in the scrap—today!

FIND GUN USED TO KILL WIFE IN HIKER MYSTERY

Mate Admits It's Similar to One He Owns.

William Puckett.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7 [Special].—Mrs. Ella Mae Puckett, Chicago matrimonial agency bride who was mysteriously murdered 10 miles northwest of here yesterday, was killed with an old fashioned .38 caliber revolver found near the scene of the shooting today.

This was disclosed tonight by Capt. Sam Flack of the Lafayette police after ballistic tests had been made at the state police laboratory in Indianapolis.

The gun thus became a major clew in the investigation, in which Mrs. Puckett's husband of eight months, William Puckett, is being held for a hearing Monday on a technical charge of murder.

Husband Has Similar Gun.

Puckett, a painting contractor, 63 years old, who spent most of his life in Lafayette, says he had no gun at the time of the shooting. He owns a .38 caliber revolver, he says, which is now in the Puckett home at 7840 Kenwood avenue, Chicago.

Puckett drove up to the office of Dr. G. H. Tubbs here yesterday with his wife in his car. She had been killed by a bullet fired into her head.

He said his wife, 67 years old, had been killed by a hitch-hiker. Puckett's story was this:

He and his wife were on their way to visit his son, Keith Puckett, a Lafayette grocery manager, when they picked up the hitch-hiker yesterday afternoon about a mile northwest of Montmorenci, which is nine miles northwest of Lafayette.

Wife Resists Bandit.

The hitch-hiker, a man about 20 years old and hatless, was riding in the back seat when he drew a gun and ordered Puckett to drive thru Montmorenci and take a lonely road. On this road, the hitch-hiker compelled Puckett to halt and demanded Mrs. Puckett's purse. She refused to surrender it and the hitch-hiker shot her.

He then forced Puckett out and took his wallet, but let it slip to the ground. When the hitch-hiker stooped to pick it up, Puckett sent him sprawling with a kick, jumped into the car, and raced to Lafayette.

Puckett voluntarily took a lie detector test at the state police headquarters in Indianapolis. The report is being awaited by Lieut. Edward Farley of the Lafayette police and Detectives Ernest Richardson and Herman Freed of the state police, who are investigating.

Mail Order Romance.

Puckett said that he met Mrs. Puckett, then Mrs. Ella Mae Landquist, thru the Standard Correspondence club, a matrimonial agency at Grayslake, Ill. They were married in March and Puckett left Lafayette to live in her home in Chicago.

Lieut. Farley said Puckett had no satisfactory explanation of why he tore several pages from a small black notebook and threw them down the drain after he was locked up in the Tippecanoe county jail. When the book was taken from Puckett it had the name of a woman on a page that had not been destroyed.

Puckett, a widower, since 1940, has three sons and two daughters.

ADMITS SLAYING WIFE; PLANNED 'PERFECT CRIME'

Ionia, Mich., Nov. 7 [Special].—Confession that he killed his wife Thursday night by striking her with an iron bar as she slept, today put an end to an 18 months' plan by Ernest Russell, 35 year old defense worker, to commit a "perfect crime."

Russell made his confession to Sheriff Leslie Murphy after insisting for two days that his wife injured herself fatally by falling downstairs. The sheriff said Russell insists he killed his wife in order to relieve her of an incurable physical and mental illness. This explanation is rejected by authorities on a statement by Dr. R. R. Whitten, family physician, that the wife, Margaret, 32, an expectant mother, was in good health.

The sheriff said no reasonable motive for the crime has been discovered. Two small daughters, asleep when the slaying was committed, were unharmed. Russell was held without bail when arraigned in Justice court today on a murder charge and will get a hearing Tuesday in Circuit court.

DID YOU PLACE YOUR FALSE TEETH IN A GLASS LAST NIGHT?

Thousands do and wonder why their dentures remain dull and stained — why they suffer with offending denture breath. They fail to realize that water alone is not a cleansing agent —but now, there's a great formula perfected by a dentist, called Stera-Kleen that thoroughly cleans false teeth without harmful brushing! Simply put a little Stera-Kleen Powder in a glass of water — soak your teeth — now they sparkle, are really clean and look like the day your dentist said, "Don't they look natural?" Try Stera-Kleen — lasts long — costs only 30¢. At druggists.

'Mum's' the Word at Garfield Park

Cornelia Katherine Collins of 6445 Raven street, helps out a photographer at the Garfield park conservatory Chrysanthemum show.

Exhibits in Two Parks

Thousands of chrysanthemums displayed yesterday at both the Garfield park conservatory, Lake street at Central Park avenue, and Lincoln park conservatory, Stockton drive at Fullerton avenue, as the park district opened its annual autumn show of the flowers. More than 1,400 attended. The show will continue thru Nov. 29.

The exhibition at Garfield park has been arranged into a series of formal rectangular flower beds, lined with banks of bronze, white, and canary yellow chrysanthemums, leading to a waterfall, rock garden, and pool at the west end of Horticultural hall.

The Lincoln park exhibit has a spirit of informality in its plan, which includes a waterfall winding thru a garden of chrysanthemums to a pool in one hall and a fountain in the other.

ALLMAN TO SEE IF POLICE AIDED SEX CASE PAY ROLLER

Commissioner James P. Allman yesterday began his own investigation to see if he can find out why John P. Brosnan, city hall pay roller recently revealed as a sex offender, twice escaped punishment, altho convicted. Municipal court authorities were conducting a similar probe.

Brosnan was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of an 11 year old girl in March, 1934, and sentenced to a year. Municipal court records showed many stays, but no appeal, altho an appeal was taken, according to the state's attorney's office, and the sentence was affirmed by the Supreme court. In 1938 the late Chief Justice John Sonsteby ordered Brosnan's arrest and jailing. All the record shows is that Brosnan was "not found."

In September of 1941 Brosnan was convicted of indecent exposure and said he had no previous record. Judge Oscar Caplan said, the police confirmed this. Last Wednesday, when the facts were learned, Judge Caplan jailed Brosnan and he is now serving the 1934 sentence and the judge is waiting to see him again when he gets out.

SENTENCE CREDIT UNION OFFICIAL IN $47,845 SHORTAGE

Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Criminal court yesterday denied motions for a new trial and probation for Harry W. Burmeister, 46 years old, 734 Vine street, Park Ridge, and sentenced him to prison for 1 to 10 years on a charge of embezzlement. The court, however, allowed a 60 day stay for appeal. Burmeister was convicted of embezzling $47,845 from the Associated Credit union of the Commonwealth Edison company. He was treasurer of the union. He denied the charge, saying the alleged shortage was merely to a bookkeeping error.

200,000 MARRIED MEN FACE DRAFT CALL NEXT MONTH

Delay on Teen Age Law Is Held Reason.

An official of the Illinois selective service system, who asked that his name not be used, said last night that induction of men who have been deferred because of collateral dependents "possibly may start this month in Illinois."

"It is impossible to say when induction of married men will be necessary," the state selective service office said, "but we are almost at the bottom of the 1-A barrel. Undoubtedly the state director will have to begin ordering from boards which have a supply of reclassified men who formerly were deferred because of collateral dependencies, some possibly this month."

Sen. Chan Gurney.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Congressional delay in enacting the teen-age draft bill will cause the induction of 200,000 married men into the armed forces in December who otherwise might not have been called until late next spring, if at all, legislators said today.

It was said this was an over-all figure for the country as a whole and that the effect will vary with each locality, depending on the supply of unmarried men available to each board.

May Be Ready Jan. 1.

Sen. Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the senate affairs military committee, said that even if the teen-age measure is passed next week and signed immediately by President Roosevelt, actual induction of 18 and 19-year-old men probably would not start until about Jan. 1.

Confirming this estimate, Sen. Chan Gurney [R., S. D.] attributed the result to delay caused by congressional controversy over a senate amendment requiring a year's military training after induction before 18 and 19 year old selectees could be sent into combat abroad.

The war department has objected to this restriction and has bent every effort to convince house members they ought to vote to eliminate it. The matter will come to a test in the house Monday.

30 Days for "Processing."

Selective service officials said it would take from 30 to 40 days after the bill becomes law to "process" the 18 and 19 year old selectees and begin to get them into the army.

Those who have become 18 since the last registration may be asked to register soon, and there has been talk of installing an automatic system under which each youth would be required to report to his local draft board for registration within five days after his 18th birthday.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, recently told congressional committees that in order to increase the army to 7½ million by the end of 1943 it would be necessary to call approximately 200,000 selectees a month beginning in December.

He estimated that 800,000 or 900,000 men 18 and 19 would be available for these calls, counting out those in that age class already enlisted and those likely to be rejected as unfit.

3,000 Become 18 Daily.

Hershey said that with approximately 3,000 youths reaching the age of 18 daily about 1 million 200 thousand not now registered would be available during 1943.

He said approximately 3 million 200 thousand men would have to be inducted before the end of 1943 to bring the army up to 7½ million.

There was some doubt among legislators, however, that the army ever would be increased to 7½ million.

They said that if developments arose which made it unnecessary to muster that many the 200,000 married men to be inducted in December might otherwise not have been called at all.

PRESIDENT BATISTA OF CUBA SIGNS DEATH SENTENCE OF NAZI SPY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 7.—President Fulgencio Batista tonight signed the death sentence of Heinz August Kunning, a German spy arrested here several weeks ago by members of Cuba's federal bureau of counter espionage. Kunning is to die sometime next week before a firing squad, probably in the Cabanas military fortress across Havana harbor.

Kunning was found guilty and sentenced to death by the first court of emergency of Havana. The Supreme court approved the sentence. Kunning admitted being a German army officer in charge of Nazi espionage in Cuba; of owning and operating a radio set installed in his home here, by which he informed German submarine commanders in the Caribbean and in the Atlantic as to the movements of Cuban and American ships in these waters; the dates of sailings; the cargoes carried; the destinations of vessels, and the routes they would follow at sea.

Kunning also admitted that the $70,000 deposited in a local bank, at his disposal, was sent him from Berlin, thru banks in Barcelona and Madrid, Spain. Kunning admitted that he received mail code messages from other German agents in Mexico, Chile, and Argentina—all related to allied navigation matters.

A COLD IS NASTY, DOCTORS AGREE; DIFFER ON CAUSE

One Says Body Heat; Another, Virus.

Doctors attending the American Academy of Pediatrics convention yesterday agreed that the common cold is an unpleasant thing—but beyond that, their agreement ended.

The discussion started with Dr. Archibald L. Hoyne, head of the Municipal Contagious hospital and professor of pediatrics at the University of Chicago, talking on "The Common Cold."

"I dislike talking about colds almost as much as I dislike having one," Dr. Hoyne said. He explained that little is known of the disease and that "upper respiratory infections [colds] often seem to include anything from a teardrop in the eye to appendicitis."

Outlines His Theories.

And from there, Dr. Hoyne departed from regular medical paths and outlined his theories on the common cold.

"Chilling of the body or a portion of the body is usually responsible for the cold," he said.

"What follows depends on the presence or absence of streptococci, pneumococci, or other pathogens [anything that stimulates disease].

"In a household, one member of a family after another may develop a cold," he continued. "But there must be some other factor than the mere presence of these organisms to explain 'catching cold.'

Body Temperature Change.

"Actually, the cause is a sudden change of body temperature."

In support of his claim that people do not "catch cold" from each other, Dr. Hoyne cited the patients in a contagious disease hospital.

"The common cold is probably the rarest type of infection that is encountered in infectious disease hospitals where the patients are guarded from sudden changes in temperature," he said.

The opposition viewpoint on Dr. Hoyne's theories was expressed later by Dr. Thomas A. Galloway, of the Northwestern University medical school.

"Most doctors and medical scientists are agreed that common colds are caused by a virus," Dr. Galloway said. "They are spread by contact between the sick and the well.

"The most common way of spreading a cold is a sneeze or a cough," he said. "The disease laden droplets of saliva can be blown 30 feet by a healthy cough or sneeze. Some of the droplets dry and ride for several days on minute particles of dust. Those who breathe that dust may catch cold—depending on their resistance.

THIRTEEN ARRESTZD IN TWO RAIDS.

Police yesterday raided an alleged handbook in a cigar store at 29 South Dearborn street, dispersed seven patrons, and arrested Samuel Iacullo, 40 years old. Friday night police arrested six women and six men in an alleged poker game at 6801 Parnell avenue. They are to appear in State street court tomorrow.

WCTU ROCKS BOAT OVER CHAMPAGNE FOR CHRISTENING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—An elaborate program for the launching of the Will Rogers, a new Liberty ship, with five Oklahoma school children as guests of honor, precipitated a minor crisis on the home front, it was learned today.

Mrs. Will Rogers.

The ship is scheduled to go down the ways tomorrow at Baltimore, Md., after christening by Mrs. Betty Rogers, widow of the famed humorist.

The trouble began several weeks ago when the War Production board happened to mention that champagne would be used in the ceremony.

It's an Old Sailor's Custom.

Altho in keeping with the traditions of the men who go down to the sea in ships, this part of the ceremony is frowned upon by the Women's Christian Temperance union, and the WCTU so informed the nation's war leaders, lodging a protest against use of intoxicants in the presence of children.

Protests against the use of "spirits" before children also were received from other quarters, and demands were made to bar the children or to substitute water for champagne. Wags suggested that pop or root beer might not be objectionable to the WCTU, were it not for the scarcity of soft drinks as a result of sugar rationing.

Meanwhile the WPB had issued christening invitations to the children who had been chosen in recognition of accomplishments of their schools in the metal salvage campaign. It was announced they would form an honor guard for Mrs. Rogers and would represent Oklahoma school children, who named the ship in the memory of the state's favorite son.

The Honor Guests Arrive.

The children arrived in the capital today, smiling and dressed in their Sunday best. They were entertained at luncheon by Oklahoma members of congress.

About the same time a WPB official took time off from the battle against the axis to announce that all protests over the ceremony had been rejected. The Will Rogers will be launched on schedule, said Ray Haun, superintendent of the WPB general salvage section. It will be christened with champagne and the children will be there to cheer it on.

U. S. PLAN WOULD SILENCE STATES' VOICE ON LAWS

Propose Governor Be Made Dictator.

The still-sovereign states were asked yesterday to pave a short cut for the suspension or changing—at federal request—of any state laws deemed to be "interfering with the war effort." State legislatures would surrender power by giving governors blanket authority to comply with the federal requests.

This proposal was the most drastic in the program offered to representatives of 15 states by the Council of State Governments. Washington officials were thickly in attendance at the meeting called in the Palmer House to discuss state war legislation for 1943.

"Dynamite," Says Benson.

"It's dynamite," said Arnold P. Benson of Batavia, president pro tem of the Illinois senate. "I think the Illinois legislature will be inclined to guard its rights very jealously, altho we want to do everything possible for victory."

"It sounds like more of the same—meaning the same kind of thing that's been attempted by the New Deal to wreck our system of checks and balances," said Sen. Denis J. Collins of De Kalb.

Several other states were heard from.

Doubts Temporary Character.

"I'm one of those old fashioned persons who still believe the United States is made up of 48 states," said Attorney General Gail Ireland of Colorado, chairman of the national commission on interstate coöperation.

The remaining states represented were Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Wyoming.

Heading the list of other bills prepared by the council was a state emergency war powers act empowering governors to take extraordinary action in times of crises. One section of this drastic measure was at once humorously dubbed "lend-lease."

Could Seize Property.

A governor could take possession of various private property whenever he deems it necessary "for the better prosecution of the war," and whenever in his opinion and that of the state council of defense the "consequence of an actual or imminent attack makes such action necessary," or whenever requested by the army, navy, or other branch of the armed forces.

He could take automobiles, airplanes, ships, or any other means of conveyance; cattle, food, clothing, fuel, and medical supplies, and do with them as he saw fit. He could "sell or distribute gratuitously to or among any or all of the inhabitants of the state" the appropriated property, for which the owner would receive "just compensation."

Prostitution received considerable attention, with the states being urged to overhaul their laws dealing with the subject.

"The problem has become intensely serious," said John W. Andrews, head of the section on state and local relations of the department of justice. "I got a pretty appalling picture from the army, navy, and FBI,

"The women are not those you would expect—they are wives of overseas soldiers, girls around town, and divorced women.

"The federal Office of Defense, Health, and Welfare services now has an eight point program of repression. Yes, not control, but repression. Segregated districts are not successful; hundreds become infected between inspections.

"And it is not a program to collect prostitutes and run them into the next county or state. It involves the rehabilitation of the women, and the improvement of recreational facilities for both men and women. Policemen on beats must become sufficiently wise and educated to help.

"The partnership between federal and state governments must work. At the grass roots we must bring about a change in public attitude, and that is being developed now."

OPEN 96 HOMES IN BROADVIEW FOR INSPECTION

Half of Units to be Rented and Balance Sold.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Broadview estates, a $578,000 privately owned and financed war housing project in Broadview, containing 96 homes, will be opened to the public today for inspection. Forty-two units are completed and 24 are nearing completion. The remaining 30 are well under way and are scheduled for completion within two months, it was said. Half of the 96 homes are to be rented and the balance sold to war workers.

In order to accomplish a speedy building program, Edward C. Mahoney, president of the Modern Construction corporation, which sponsored and erected the development, refused to sell or rent any of the houses or even show them to the public until today.

"This enabled the workmen to go ahead at top speed without any interruption from visitors, or prospective purchasers and renters," Mahoney said. "As a result, this objective of providing war housing in an emergency area swiftly and smoothly has been accomplished."

Break Ground in August.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., which handled all the financing, announced June 21 that priorities for 96 houses had been issued to Mahoney and applications for mortgages under the national housing act were being sent to the Federal Housing administration. All the mortgage applications were processed and financing details completed by Aug. 10. On that date ground was broken, construction started, and sidewalks laid.

The 48 houses for sale comprise 20 homes of 4½ rooms to be sold for $5,800 each; 15 five room homes, and 13 six room units to be sold for $6,000 each, Mahoney said. The 4½ and 5 room homes have two bedrooms each and the 6 room homes have three bedrooms.

"It is planned to sell all houses with a $600 down payment and $40 monthly payments which will include interest and reduction of principal, taxes, and insurance," Mahoney said. "The 4½ room houses are financed with $5,200 mortgages and the 5 and 6 room houses with $5,400 mortgages. The total financing in the development is $510,600.

"The remaining 48 homes are to be rented: the 4½s at $48 a month, and the 5 and 6 room homes at $50. They are identical in construction with the houses built for sale."

Broadview estates is within walking distance of the big Amertorp corporation plant. Within a four mile radius are Buick, Aluminum Company of America, Electro-Motive corporation, Borg-Warner, Jefferson Electric, Chicago Rivet and Machine, and other big war plants.

SELLS $750,000 APARTMENTS IN LAST 90 DAYS

The Targ-Lynn Building corporation yesterday bought the six story Royal Plaza apartment hotel, 6137 Kenwood avenue, from the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for the Royal Neighbors of America, for $175,000, of which $36,000 was cash. The building contains 74 furnished apartments and occupies a lot 50 by 175 feet. Ben Beron, of the Dearborn Realty company, was broker.

He reports that within the last 90 days he has sold three furnished apartment buildings for a total of $750,000. The other two, recently reported, were the Stonehenge apartments, 6319 Kenwood avenue, $350,000, and the Washington-Pine apartment hotel, 5501 West Washington, $225,000.

NAVAL STATION TO BE INSPECTED BY ARCHITECTS

Members of the Illinois Society of Architects and the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects will make a joint tour of Great Lakes Naval Training station Tuesday afternoon under the direction of Capt. Ralph D. Spalding, chief public works officer of the 9th naval district, and other officers. The tour will be made in navy buses leaving just inside and north of the main gate at 2:45 p. m. Architects not driving are urged to leave the loop on the 1 p. m. North Shore electric train. Dinner will be at 6:30 o'clock at the officers' club.

Open for Inspection Today

The picture shows homes on the east side of 13th avenue, between 13th and 14th streets. Today, for the first time, the public will be permitted to inspect the homes—half of which are for rent and the balance for sale.

WHC Reports Changes in New War Workers' Home Program

With offers of homes said to be suitable for conversion into small suites for war workers pouring into the offices of the new War Housing center, 120 South La Salle street, at a constantly increasing rate, Waldemar Weichbrodt, director, yesterday announced several changes in the government program which he said will benefit the property owner.

The principal revision in the WHC program is extension of leases to a definite seven year period, with an option for three additional years, provided the extension does not carry the lease more than two years after the end of the war.

When originally announced by the National Housing agency the conversion program provided that the War Housing center would examine all offers of properties and forward suitable ones to the Home Owners Loan corporation for final approval.

Lease Basis Changed Twice.

If accepted, HOLC would lease them from the owners during the war with the understanding the properties be returned one year after the war ends.

This was changed recently to a year to year lease by HOLC, renewable 30 days before the end of each year for a total of not to exceed seven years, or two years after the end of the war, whichever period is longer.

The newest change, to a straight seven year lease, announced yesterday, said Weichbrodt, stabilizes the contract between property owner and the government, and should prove popular with the citizen who leases his property to Uncle Sam.

Regular Rental Assured.

Another major revision in the conversion program announced by Weichbrodt concerns rental terms. HOLC will pay the property owner a rental based on the structure after remodeling. This change, he said, should bring an increase in rent received from HOLC, he said.

"The property owner will get his rent regularly from the government no matter whether all of the remodeled apartments are occupied or not," said Weichbrodt.

More than 1,100 offers of properties which owners consider suitable for conversion into smaller units for war workers have been received so far by WHC. Applications have been sent to them, and so far 48 of those returned by property owners have been forwarded to HOLC for approval.

3 Syndicates Buy Buildings Outside State

Three Chicago syndicates yesterday purchased five hotels and furnished apartment buildings in Minneapolis and Kansas City, thru Bisno & Bisno of Chicago, at a total price reported to be more than a half million dollars.

The Minnesotan Hotel corporation, of which Earl Feinberg is president, and which is owned by Chicagoans, bought the five story, fireproof Minnesotan hotel in Minneapolis for $180,000, of which $25,000 was cash. The building contains a 209 room commercial hotel and 7 shops.

Chicagoans Purchase Flats.

Another group of Chicagoans, headed by Solomon E. Harrison, bought two Kansas City, Mo., properties. The nine story fireproof Commodore hotel was purchased from Harry C. Bohn of St. Louis for a reported $252,000, of which $125,000 was cash. The building contains 16 hotel rooms and 100 small furnished apartments.

The other purchase by the Harrison syndicate was the Avon apartments, Kansas City, containing 80 furnished suites, purchased for $95,000, of which $15,000 was cash.

Purchases Missouri Flats.

The third Chicago syndicate bought the 60 room Belleview hotel, Kansas City, Mo., for $9,000, and the George apartments, Kansas City, containing 25 furnished suites, for $8,750.

J. A. Bisno reported that the Chicago group which bought the Minnesotan hotel purchased the Georgian court apartments, Kansas City, a year ago for $200,000, of which $20,000 was cash.

He added that the Harrison syndicate of Chicagoans a few weeks ago invested half a million dollars in these six Kansas City apartment and commercial hotels: El Monterey East and El Monterey West, each containing 39 furnished apartments; Alcazar hotel, commercial, 102 rooms; Biarritz apartments, 105 furnished suites; Raywood apartments, 75 furnished suites; Barcelona apartments, 50 furnished suites.

When the lights of the world go on again

This year, most of us at Timken will have Thanksgiving dinner "at the plant"—out of lunch boxes or at restaurants. And, to the last man of us, we'll be thankful for the opportunity to serve our country by building vital war products that must flow in an uninterrupted stream from the great Timken plants to the battlefronts of the world.

We are thankful, too, that during peacetime so many homes were equipped with oil-saving Timken Wall-Flame Oil Burners. Fuel annually saved in thousands of Timken heated homes relieves transportation facilities of a tremendous load. Timken's big savings on fuel make it easier for Timken owners to maintain healthful temperatures despite rationing.

When Victory is won, home life will mean more to our happiness than ever before. New thousands will buy Timken Oil Heating products because of their economy record during these trying times.

Right now, Timken is doing everything possible to keep your Timken Oil Burner operating efficiently. Timken Dealers are on the job, too, helping out by servicing other makes of burners when they can do so. If you have oil heat, call in the nearest Timken Dealer. Arrange now for regular inspection and adjustment of your burner!

ROTC STUDENTS, UNITS TO GET 803 TRIBUNE AWARDS

Schools in 8 States Will Compete for Honors.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Eight hundred three gold plated, silver and bronze medals, awarded twice annually by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to outstanding young men and the various branches of Reserve Officers Training corps in eight midwestern states, will be presented in 83 institutions during this school year.

This is a record number of awards to be given, a program which has been followed by THE TRIBUNE and its editor and publisher, Col. Robert R. McCormick, since 1935. The medals go to senior and junior R. O. T. C. students, to military academies, and to schools possessing what are called 55C military units. A 55C school is one teaching military training with some government aid. The list also includes naval R. O. T. C. units.

Includes 28 City Schools.

Four hundred seventy of these medals will go to 27 Chicago public high schools and one Catholic school. The states covered are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan.

The awards are augmented by other services to the ROTC by THE TRIBUNE. Each winter the nation's ROTC students are saluted by a Washington Birthday radio program heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting network, at which 600 of the medal winners are guests in the W-G-N audience studio. THE TRIBUNE sponsors, with the Chicago Board of Education, an annual spring parade of the 28 Chicago ROTC high schools on Michigan avenue, and presents at that time two sets of colors, national and school, to the two schools winning first and second ratings in the army inspection.

Typical of the comments made by scores of commandants in regards the value placed upon these medal awards, is a statement received by THE TRIBUNE from Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand of the 6th service command, located in Chicago. He said:

"In the past these awards have aided in stimulating a high standard of excellence among the thousands of young men training in these groups."

Here is the list of institutions, in addition to the 28 Chicago high schools, which will receive THE TRIBUNE medals:

NAVAL OFFICERS CLASS TO AVENGE ATTACK OF DEC. 7

Capt. E. S. Root.

Capt. E. S. Root, director of naval officers procurement in the midwest, yesterday announced an intensive drive for a class of "Pearl Harbor Anniversary" midshipmen who will go into training about Jan. 1.

The special class of navy officers condidates is expected to be filled by Dec. 7, anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, and will be trained at naval reserve midshipmen's schools prior to entering the navy as ensigns.

Capt. Root discussed the organization of the Pearl Harbor Anniversary classes with a number of leaders from the midwest last night at a dinner at the Union League club.

The navy also announced an especial need for officer personnel for navy construction battalions, men who have had supervisory experience in construction. Such applicants are receiving special consideration at the Chicago office of naval officer procurement, Capt. Root said. Ranks range from warrant officer upward.

The number of army aviation cadets enlisted since Sept. 1, 1941, increased to 12,508 yesterday with the addition of 50 cadets. Among those sworn in was Donal K. Ross, 18 years old, 2533 Central park, Evanston, son of Norman Ross, radio announcer, Olympic swimmer, and World War I. pilot.

Illinois Will Advertise War Bonds on State Trucks

All state trucks will carry posters urging the purchase of war bonds under an order announced yesterday. The state is first in the nation to use this type of war bond advertising. Upwards of 2,000 state trucks and other vehicles will be placarded with the posters, one on each side panel and one on the end gate. The posters will be changed monthly.

240 Barrington Residents Give Blood to Red Cross

Two hundred forty residents of the Barrington community gave blood yesterday to the Red Cross blood bank. The blood donor unit was set up in St. Anne's school in the suburb and Barrington citizens thronged the headquarters to give blood for America's service men.

[ADVERTISMENT]
Kidneys May Need Help to Clean Out Excess Acids
If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.
Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.
Help Kidneys Remove Acids
Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.
Sixteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.
Guaranteed Trial Offer
Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.
AUTHOR'S NOTE: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

ARMY GIVES AIR FORCE SPONSORS ANOTHER CHORE

It's to Recruit Youths for 13 Other Branches.

Another chore has been handed to the Air Force Sponsors of Chicago. Since its inception last July the organization has been telling the story of army aviation cadet training to Chicago men from 18 to 27 years old, the age group most needed by the army air corps. Now Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, chief of the 6th Service command, asks use of its methods to assist the army in recruiting 18 and 19 year old youths for the 13 other branches.

While much of the actual contact work among Chicago's young men will be left to members of the American Legion, whose services were solicited last week by Gen. Aurand, and to the officers and enlisted men stationed at the information center, 333 North Michigan avenue, the Air Force Sponsors will conduct an intensive advertising and publicity campaign in support.

The Air Force Sponsors are volunteers. The members are advertising executives and business and professional men and women.

Campaign Funds Contributed.

Funds for organization of the campaign have been contributed by hundreds of firms and individuals and considerable contributions have been made by civic organiaztions.

To reach the young men of Chicago the organization has used newspaper radio, magazine, and outdoor advertising, even to inducing transportation companies to paint street cars and buses with messages telling the need for young men in the air force.

Whenever possible, prospective candidates for the air force have been sent to officers of the examining board with personal letters of introduction. The Sponsors feel that intensified morale can be built for the air force when candidates are made to realize that enlistment in this branch is a privilege enjoyed by few men.

Seek to Maintain Interest.

Hundreds of youths who have been accepted for the air force have not been called to start their pilot training and an important part of the Sponsors' work is to keep them in touch with the service and maintain their interest while waiting for the purpose entertainment and explanatory talks are used.

The campaign to enlist 18 and 19 year old youths for other branches of the service is just beginning, but plans are in the making to push this program with equal vigor. Boys will be told that if they enlist now they may choose the branch of the service in which they desire to serve and that their chances for commissions are limited only by their abilities.

DRAFTSMEN

We manufacture and assemble light electrical products now vital to victory, but which from every indication will be in even greater demand after the war. However . . . YOU DON'T NEED ELECTRICAL EXPERIENCE if you can qualify on other points.

TELL US YOUR STORY

If you're not now employed at your highest skill in war industry, write a letter today giving us the customary personal data and an outline of your experience.

Here at I R C you'll find congenial people and excellent working conditions. Write today, but please DO NOT telephone or call in person.

OPA MEAT QUOTA CUTS PORTLAND TO ½ LB. A WEEK

Big Population Increase Ignored by Officials.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 7 [Special].—Shipyard and other workers in this war-swollen industrial area will be on a per capita quota of one-half pound of meat a week for the rest of the year unless OPA slaughtering quotas are relaxed, Gov. Charles A. Sprague said today in a wire to Civilian Defense Director James M. Landis in Washington, D. C.

The governor's wire was the only development today in a controversy which flared yesterday when it became known the OPA, which has fixed the Portland quota of beef at 20 per cent under normal and pork at 25 per cent below normal, has ordered that an existing seven day fresh meat supply be stretched over the next seven weeks.

Ignore 150,000 Increase.

Federal officials are said to be standing pat on the OPA decision which the Oregon governor says ignores an influx of 150,000 war workers and their families into the Portland-Vancouver area.

Gov. Sprague told Landis that adoption of his suggestion that the state adopt a 2½ pound a week per capita rationing program is impossible because the slaughtering quotas will allow only about one half a pound a week. He urged a removal of slaughtering quotas with an understanding that a voluntary 2½ pound a week program be put into effect.

Packers May Close Down.

The governor said he has sent a similar telegram to Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture.

R. L. Clark, secretary of the live stock exchange, said that existing OPA quotas will force a half dozen slaughtering firms, which employ hundreds of men, to shut down Nov. 13 until the first of the year. These concerns will have a difficult time reopening after Jan. 1 because of the labor shortage, he said.

FATHER AND SON BURNED.

Walter Brandon, 31 years old, was seriously burned yesterday when a couch in his home at 3035 Jackson boulevard caught fire. His father, Bert, 73, was burned trying to save him. Both were taken to County hospital.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

H. R. J. writes: "My brother and I expect to enter the armed forces within the next few days. We have jointly been responsible for the support of our parents. Should we both file for allotments when we enter service? If we do, how much will we have to contribute and how much will our parents receive?"

ANSWER: It is permissible, but not necessarily advisable for both you and your brother to file for allotments for your parents. After you enter the service, $22 a month will be deducted from the pay of each of you, or a total of $44 a month, whereas the most that your parents may receive is $50 a month. If only one files for allotments, your parents will still receive $47 a month, with only $22 being contributed by one son, and the other son may voluntarily send home any amount he wishes. At present there is no arrangement for prorating the deductions from the pay checks of yourself and your brother, so each of you would have to put in the $22. In addition to the financial angle there is the complication of administrative procedures in handling two sets of applications. This frequently results in the dependent or dependents not receiving anything until the applications and affidavits have been checked and double checked.

E. N. asks: "Can a skilled soldier or one who has had previous service apply for officer training? Is it always necessary for such men to take the entire period of basic military training?"

ANSWER: As a reward for outstanding leadership and initiative shown during maneuvers and unusual conditions, a general officer may appoint an enlisted man or a draftee to an officer candidate school without requiring him to appear before an examining board or to have completed the entire period of his basic training. Such appointments are limited to 10 per cent of the quota alloted to the command for the school in question. Persons particularly well qualified are urged to apply thru the volunteer officer candidate training available to 3-A registrants. Application may be made thru the registrant's local draft board. We have an explanatory article we will send to 3-A registrants who are interested.

MIDWEST FISCAL BUDGET FOR OPA TO TOP 14 MILLION

80 Per Cent Projected for Pay Rolls.

Administration of price control and rationing programs in seven midwestern states from regional headquarters in Chicago will cost a budgeted $14,258,090, including a pay roll of $11,059,770 for 7,260 employés, in the fiscal year ending next June 30, John G. Weigel, regional administrator for the Office of Price Administration, asserted yesterday in a report covering 11 months' work of the OPA.

The Chicago region, with a population of 19 millions, includes Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, and Minnesota. Weigel said that the Chicago office was the first established last December by OPA and its growth since Pearl Harbor reflects the expansion of the OPA organization and the trends of civilian economy.

Per Capita Cost 90 Cents.

Emphasizing the vast task which OPA assumed in stabilizing prices and rents and distributing scarce commodities equitably, Weigel noted that the cost of the program to the average American is 90 cents this year.

"The 90 cents is the insurance premium which the taxpayers are expecting to pay this current fiscal year to support their Office of Price Administration, the most important government agency they have created to protect them from demoralization of skyrocketing prices and inflationary rents.

"Eleven months after Pearl Harbor, it is already evident that the OPA, charged with price control, rent control and rationing, will probably have a greater influence upon our lives for the duration, and upon the kind of a country to which our boys return, than any other federal agency."

He asserted that OPA in the midwest region deals with 274,000 retailers, almost 40,000 wholesalers, 97,000 service establishments, and more than 28,000 manufacturing establishments. Defense rental offices already established serve 8,830,000 persons and control the rents of 1,500,000 dwelling units and an estimated 150,000 commercial establishments. Eventually all rented units will come under OPA control, he said.

To administer these programs, the OPA has established 847 local war price and rationing boards in the seven state region, Weigel said. The boards comprise 5,000 volunteer members, soon to be increased to 10,000 to handle new rationing programs, 3,600 paid filing clerks, stenographers, and chief clerks, and 1,500 volunteer clerical aids.

The rent offices in the region have 770 paid employés, of whom 450 work on a part time basis, he said.

Rules 252 Commodities.

Indicating the expansion of OPA's activities, Weigel said that before Pearl Harbor it had issued 45 schedules affecting prices mainly of metals and chemicals important to war production. The OPA now controls the prices of 252 commodities as well as rents and administers the rationing of tires, automobiles, typewriters, bicycles, sugar, industrial rubber footwear, fuel oil, gasoline, and coffee.

Weigel said the price control program saves the taxpayers 6 billion dollars by holding down the prices of raw materials for munitions. He noted that copper is held to a basic price of 12 cents a pound against 26 to 32 cents a pound in the last war. Sugar prices in Chicago have been stabilized at 7 to 8 cents a pound, compared with 25 cents in the last war.

PRIVATE FLYERS SCOUR MARKETS FOR LIGHT SHIPS

Civilian Demand Spurred by Gas Rationing.

BY FRANK STURDY.

Airplanes of virtually every single engined type commonly used by civilians are in great demand, with buyers literally competing in the used plane market for certain of the scarcer ships, it was learned yesterday in a survey of Chicagoland airports.

Pressure for late model planes has been growing steadily for a year as the government has extended the civilian pilot training program. Since the announcement of gasoline rationing, many civilians have turned to the light airplane as a means of personal transportation. Civilian airplanes consume very little rubber; their tires last for hundreds of hours of flying which translate into hundreds of thousands of miles in terms of travel.

Use Lower Grade Fuel.

The engines in these planes do not require the 100 actane gasoline demanded by the much larger power plants in military aircraft. Consequently, there has been no limitation on use of aviation gasoline of the lower grades. The gasoline producers have had no difficulty in filling the needs of the private flyers, which are identical with those of the civilian pilot training program operators. The standard grades are 73 and 80 octane.

Very few airplanes of the cabin type, able to carry four or five passengers at speeds upward of 125 miles an hour and with engines over 200 horsepower, remain in the hands of indivduals. The government has requisitioned most of them, either for personnel transport or training, and those the army did not want mostly have been bought by the CPT operators.

All Larger Types Taken.

There probably is no airplane of the multi-engine type privately owned now. Immediately after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the government took all the Lockheed, Douglas, Grumman, and other large types for patrol army or cargo use.

Manufacturers of the lighter types of aircraft are producing almost solely for army or navy use. Their plants either have been converted for the manufacture of components for big combat types, or their own light ships are being produced for use by the armed forces in reconnaissance or liaison duties.

Carl Clifford, assistant superintendent of the civilian pilot training program for the 3d [midwest] district of the Civil Aeronautics administration, said yesterday the CAA has lowered requirements for equipment and type of aircraft used in the CPT programs, as the flying schools found it impossible to get enough ships.

Plane Age Limit Lowered.

Until recently, the CAA required planes of 1935 or later on cross-country, long distance training flights, and in the secondary programs in which students are taught acrobatics. Now, Clifford said, older airplanes are being accepted, the emphasis being placed upon condition and airworthiness, not age.

Next in scarcity to the open, two-place, tandem-seated planes used for secondary instruction are the cabin types required for cross-country flying. Until recently, CPT schools were required to use ships of over 240 horsepower for this work. Now, they are permitted to give the students part of their instruction in the 240 horsepower planes, the remainder in planes of horsepower as low as 125. Secondary horsepower requirements have been reduced to 120.

Less Crowded Market.

The average citizen looking for some means of transportation now that his gasoline is being rationed and trains, buses, and commercial air transports are crowded, will find a slightly less crowded market in the lightest airplane class: the Piper Cubs, Aeroncas, Luscombes, Taylorcrafts, Culvers, and others in this category, all with engines of 65 to 80 horsepower.

This field is also a hunting ground for the CPT operators, but because of the much greater number of light planes produced before the war stopped output for civilian use, the market is not so depleted.

Any of these light but well constructed ships, in which tens of thousands of combat pilots now flying the army's combat equipment got their first training, will carry two passengers about 20 miles on each gallon of gasoline consumed.

KIWANIS COUNCIL HEARS TALK ON NEEDS OF YOUTH

Problems of youth during the war were discussed yesterday at the closing session of the four day meeting of the International Council of Kiwanis in the Medinah club.

"Breaking up of homes and economic conditions caused by the war are creating grave problems for our youth," said J. N. Emerson, Pullman, Wash., chairman of the committee on boys' and girls' work of Kiwanis International. "Children are the victims these days when the father and the mother are both employed. They need supervision in the nursery, playground and the home. It is imperative no wthat boys and girls receive the education and training which will enable them to meet unforseen problems with which they will be confronted after the war."

Emerson is one of 100 officers of the service organization planning youth activities for 2,200 Kiwanis clubs thruout the United States and Canada.

F. D. R. to Speak Nov. 11 at Arlington Cemetery

ELGIN FLYER DIES IN BRITISH RAID, GERMANS REPORT

Western Springs Pilot Is Killed in Texas.

Lieut. Grant Eichar.

An Elgin flyer, member of an Eagle squadron in the British air forces, was killed the day before his unit was transferred to American command, his parents were notified yesterday. He is Lieut. Grant E. Eichar, whose mother, Mrs. Lucy Eichar, lives at 279 Douglas avenue in the suburb.

Final definite word of his death came from Germany thru the International Red Cross. Death came to young Eichar in a raid on Dusseldorf July 31. He is survived also by his widow, and a son, 6 years old, by a previous marriage.

Dies in Texas Crash.

Lieut. Robert L. Jones of 809 Burlington avenue, Western Springs, was killed yesterday in an air crash at Victoria, Tex. His wife, who was with him in Texas, was bringing the body back last night for funeral services Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Congregational church of Downers Grove. He was 24 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn C. Jones, and was an honor graduate of the University of Chicago. He was commissioned in October.

Word came to Mrs. Celia Pennington, 71 South Chestnut street, Aurora, yesterday that her son, Lieut. Willis Pennington, is missing on a ferrying mission in Alaska. He was last reported about 70 miles southeast of Northway and aerial search parties were sent out. Lieut. Pennington is 27 and was a former Aurora football star. He won his wings last January. A brother also is in the armed services.

Captain Dies on Visit Home.

While on leave from the army air forces, Capt. Don C. Laflin, 46, died yesterday in his home, 2970 Sheridan road. He had been a municipal engineer until last spring when he joined the air forces as an administrative officer.

He recently completed officers' training at Miami Beach, Fla., and expected to leave Tuesday for Maxwell field, Alabama. He was a veteran officer of the first World war and decorated twice. His widow survives. Services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at 2701 North Clark street.

OPA AID WARNS PRICE VIOLATORS MAY FACE COURT

Warning that "drastic court action" may result if OPA regulations are not adhered to, John C. Weigel, regional administrator of the Office of Price Administration, yesterday announced he had mailed 790 warning notices to retailers in the seven state areas, including 286 violators in Chicago.

Weigel said the violations charged mostly were against three provisions of the general maximum price regulation, involving listing, displaying, and registration of ceiling prices.

"Sending these warnng notices may be a prelude to more drastic court action," Weigel said. "The notices warn their recipients that if they continue to violate any of the regulations, OPA may institute court proceedings to suspend the automatic licenses to do business granted them by the general maximum price regulation."

ILLINOISAN WINS DFC.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 7 (AP).—Pilot Officer J. H. Stickell of Gilson, Ill., a member of the royal Canadian air force, was awarded the distinguished flying cross, RCAF headquarters announced today.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ted Curran, Iowa half back, picks up 5 yards in first quarter against Wisconsin in yesterday's game in Iowa City. A battling Hawkeye team, at fever pitch for homecoming, upset the Badgers with a touchdown in the second quarter on a short pass, Tom Farmer to Bill Burkett. Wisconsin missed its opportunity to score in the same quarter when the Badgers were held on the 1 yard line as the half ended. Iowa outplayed Wisconsin in the second half, and the game ended with the Hawkeyes cautiously playing out their string.

HAWKEYES HALT BADGER STARS, JUMP INTO TIE FOR BIG 9 LEAD

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 7.—Iowa's iron men fought again this gray afternoon over the scarred turf of the Hawkeye stadium and Wisconsin, previously undefeated leader of the Western conference, fell before their furious assault, 6 to 0.

While a homecoming throng of 32,000 roared thunderous encouragement, the Hawkeyes struck in the second period for their score. Then, these iron men turned back the Badgers' counterthrust at their 1 yard line as time ran out for the half, and came back to outfight their rivals thruout the last 30 minutes.

Hail Iron Men.

Tonight, as the loyal sons and daughters of Iowa paraded the streets of this college town in joyous celebration, they toasted the iron men of 1942 who now share the Big Nine leadership with Ohio State and Illinois.

They sang the praises of those men who this afternoon recalled memories of the team of 1939 that lifted Iowa's fortunes from the slough of defeat. Tonight, these thousands told how Nile Kinnick and Erwin Prasse beat Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Notre Dame. Then, they cheered again for Tom Farmer and Bill Burkett, who completed Iowa's victory pass today, and they lauded the impregnable defense of all their men who held Wisconsin scoreless for the first time this year.

Iowa's fiercely charging line and clean tackling backs shackled Pat Harder and Elroy Hirsch. They matched each ground attack save during the Badgers' belated rally after the Hawkeye touchdown. And most important, they dominated the second half.

Farmer Is Headliner.

In the second half, Iowa yielded only 4 first downs, checked Wisconsin's only threat at Iowa's 32 yard line, and fought clear out of their own mistakes that ran up five fumbles, three of which were recovered by the Badgers.

Except for Wisconsin's second period surge, in which the Badgers put together five of their first downs, Iowa's was the better team. For the Hawkeyes, this was a supreme effort.

The headlines belong to Duke Curran, whose returns nullified Wisconsin's kicking; to Chuck Uknes, to Jim Youel, and above all to Tom Farmer. Farmer threw the winning pass. But before and after this decisive play he ran the Iowa team as only a senior

Indiana Smites Minnesota in 7 to 0 Upset

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 7.—Indiana's Hoosiers, buffeted all over the lot by the football fates in this season of 1942, this afternoon came into their own by rising up and smiting Minnesota's favored Gophers, 7 to 0, before a Dad's day crowd of 32,000. And not even the most loyal of the Gopher paters would deny that the kids from Bloomington deserved this, their second victory in 14 games against Minnesota, and their first over the Gophers since 1920.

It was Indiana's first conference triumph in three games and Minnesota's second defeat in four league starts. It was the first time the Gophers had been shut out on their home grounds since Harry Newman and Michigan beat them, 3 to 0, in 1932.

Minnesota, expected to overpower the undermanned Hoosier eleven, found out quite early that the visitors not only were going to be obdurate on defense, but that they also aimed to make a point or two. This premonition that Indiana was going to be tough gained strength as the afternoon went on, right up to the clos-

ILLINOIS' ENGEL STEALS BALL AND RACES TO SCORE

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Northwestern's Wildcats continue to serve as attendants at the Big Nine's back door. They tried to toss off the hapless job yesterday before 35,000 in Dyche stadium but a tricky, tireless Illinois team refused to accept the resignation. The Illini's refusal was a 14 to 7 spanking which not only marked the Wildcats' fifth conference trimming without a victory but hoisted the Orange and Blue house flag alongside those of Ohio State and Iowa for a three side claim to top honors.

The Illini, with a bevy of free wheeling backs and a line that kept the Wildcats in a cage during most of the battle, took the whip at the outset and continued to crack it to the very finish. They gave the luckless Northwestern battlers a touchdown jolt in the second period, shortly after being stymied on the 1 yard line. They gave their foes another wallop in the third quarter when End Elmer Engel casually burglarized a statue of liberty pose and scooted 48 yards to the Purple goal. And all the Wildcats could do thereafter was to pass madly, an effort that eventually netted them their points.

N. U. Running Game Futile.

The Wildcats didn't develop their fondness for the air simply because they had seen the Illini grab their first six points in that fashion. They had no choice in the matter. Their running game was so futile that they harvested only 44 yards and besides they were 14 points in arrears at one stage. So they passed and passed some more. The ailing Otto Graham made no fewer than 22 desperation pitches, 11 of them complete. His understudy, Don Buffmire, completed three out of a half dozen. But a lot of these were midfield hookups, Illinois usually displaying interception genius before the pressure became too great.

The Illini passed sparingly but effectively and that wasn't the limit of their skill. They outrushed the Wildcats by a huge margin, the latter finding the greatest trouble makers in Tony Butkovich and Art Dufelmeier. Butkovich pushed himself around for a total of 71 yards in 19 attempts and Dufelmeier for 25 yards in nine tries. And Dufelmeier also did a little pitching. Three of his five tosses found receivers for a net ad-

Harvard Is Routed, 35-7, by Michigan

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 7.—Harvard made a touchdown against Michigan this afternoon but this accomplishment, surprising as it was, failed to mark the game as an intersectional upset inasmuch as the Wolverines previously had scored 28 points and later scored seven more for an eventual 35 to 7 victory.

The victory was the fourth straight for Michigan in a series which began 61 years ago. The series now is even, Harvard having shut out Michigan in 1881, 1883, 1895, and 1914 while the Wolverines were victors in 1929, 1930, and 1940 as well as today. This afternoon's appearance of the Harvards in Ann Arbor was their second in history. When the Crimson was here in 1929 the game attracted 85,042. There were 25,534 on hand today. The fall off of 59,508 probably can be attributed to current transportation difficulties, don't you think?

White Scores Twice.

NOTRE DAME COMES TO LIFE IN LAST HALF TO BEAT ARMY, 13 TO 0

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 7.—Notre Dame today defeated Army, 13 to 0, in the 29th game of football's oldest continuous intersectional rivalry, and the only reason the score wasn't larger was that the Irish didn't know their own strength.

It was apparent to the capacity crowd of 76,000 that Notre Dame was the superior team before the first quarter was half finished. But it wasn't until the third period that the Fighting Irish punched over their first touchdown. Their final score came in the last 10 seconds of the game.

Notre Dame's line was outcharging the Cadets all the way. Its power backs, notably Corwin Clatt, Gerry Cowhig, and Richard Creevy, and its speed boys, Russell Ashbaugh and Bob Livingstone, were making yardage almost at will. But the Irish obviously were determined to build up Angelo Bertelli's forward passing record, and whenever they got a parade under way they invariably nullified their gains with aerials that went nowhere against Army's alert secondary.

Cadet Attack Throttled.

While Notre Dame was dissipating its advantages on the ground by an overhead game that was ineffective, Army, whose running attack was smothered by the aggressive Irish line before plays had a chance to develop, persisted thruout the first half in trying to find a soft spot in its opponent's forward wall. As a consequence, the Cadets didn't make a first down in the first two quarters and never managed to get the ball into Notre Dame territory. It wasn't until the final quarter when Henry Mazur completed a couple of forward passes that West Point threatened the Irish goal.

Statistics of the game support the criticism that both teams played to the other's strength instead of to its weakness. Notre Dame made 14 first downs to Army's 3. It rolled up 250 yards by rushing for an average gain of almost 5 yards. The Cadets were able to make only 68 yards from scrimmage for an average of 2 yards per try.

3 Army Passes Click.

Army, impotent at straight football, threw only 8 forward passes, 3 of which were completed. Notre Dame, whose running game was clicking better than at any time this season, took time out to toss 17 passes, only 4 of which connected for the unimpressive total of 21 yards.

This was Notre Dame's 21st victory in its 29 games with its old foe from up the Hudson. Army has won only five times, and three of their engagements resulted in a tie score. The Cadets haven't even scored on the Irish since their 19 to 7 defeat in 1938, and you have to go back to 1931 to find the last Army triumph in their famous series. Thus three classes of Cadets have moved in and out of West Point without experiencing the thrill of victory over Notre Dame.

The scoreless tie that prevailed until the middle of the third quarter was broken after Ashbaugh recovered an Army fumble by Ralph Hill on West Point's 35 yard line. For the first time during the game the

Sportsman's Charity Week Hits New High

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The local horse racing season ended yesterday with the climax of the week at Sportsman's Park under the sponsorship of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. The 17,000 spectators who jammed the track to capacity poured $579,194 thru the mutuels to bring the handle for the six days to $2,267,429. This made it by far the biggest final week in the history of Chicago racing.

All proceeds of the meeting, including the track's share of the betting pool, gate admissions, income from concessions, sale of programs and other sources will be turned over to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., for disbursement among local welfare organizations.

Proceeds to Charity.

The United, Catholic, and Jewish charities will be recompensed to the amount which they normally received from the All-Star football game, proceeds of which were turned over to war relief this year. The revenue of the week of racing will far exceed this sum. The surplus will be distributed among other Chicago charities thru the Community fund.

The final tabulation of the proceeds will be released after an audit is completed. It is assured that the fund available for charity will be well in excess of $100,000. The size of the return was augmented by the fact that the track cut its operating expenses from approximately $25,000 per day to about $15,000 per day. All fixed overhead charges such as interest on investment, depreciation, general maintenance and insurance, usually prorated into the expenses of each racing day, were not levied against the proceeds of the charity meeting.

Record Mutuel Handle.

The $2,267,429 which was handled during the week surpassed by $777,433 the $1,489,996 which went thru the mutuels in the final week of 1941.

Track officials, horsemen, jockeys, and employés contributed to the success of the charity week. John L. Keeshin, William Johnston, Charles Bidwill, J. E. Donovan, and other officers worked without salary and provided the organization for the meeting. Horsemen and jockeys accepted reductions in their normal returns so as to reduce the expense because every dollar of profit will be turned over to charity.

The main event of the day resulted in a victory for Jamerica, the 9 to 5 second choice in the betting.

BEARS, PACKERS AND CARDS PLAY ON ROAD TODAY

Champions Seek 7th in Row in Brooklyn.

Games Today

Chicago Bears vs. Brooklyn Dodgers in Brooklyn.

Chicago Cardinals vs. Washington Redskins in Washington.

Pittsburgh Steelers vs. Detroit Lions in Detroit.

Professional football's three middle-western elevens are far from home today on eastern gridirons. As far as two are concerned, it's just an interlude until a week from today when the league's most explosive game of the season will be played.

This afternoon's setup has the Chicago Bears going after their seventh straight in Ebbets field against the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Green Bay Packers bearing down for their sixth in a row against the Cleveland Rams in the Ohio metropolis, and the chastened Chicago Cardinals meeting the Washington Redskins, leaders of the eastern division. The Cards have been thwarted these past two Sundays in getting their fourth triumph, which would better their 1941 victory production.

Bears Should Win.

There could be a slip in each of these games, but if everything runs to form the Bears will have their seventh straight and the Packers their sixth straight when they clash a week from today in Wrigley field. This is the one the Packers have been anticipating since Sept. 27 when they were cruelly treated by the Bears in Green Bay.

It will make for the same situation which developed in November last year. The Packers came to Chicago with a lone defeat, inflicted by the Bears in the league opener for each. The Packers won, 16 to 14, and carried the western section race into a playoff, which the Bears won decisively.

The Bears are afraid they'll catch Brooklyn on the rebound today. Cleveland knocked over the Dodgers last week and just about eliminated them from the eastern race. The champions could deal the knockout blow, but they haven't been so foxy in their last three games. Even so, they come up to this afternoon's assignment with 12 straight National league victories going back to Nov. 22, 1941. This ties them with the Packers for most consecutive triumphs. In addition to these 12, the Bears have picked up 7 exhibition and all-star decisions.

More Records in Sight.

There's even more of a record tinge to Green Bay's battle against Cleveland. Last week the Packers set five league records and tied two. Others are tottering today and need only a nudge here and there from the two Packer marvels—Cecil Isbell and Don Hutson.

If Hutson catches a touchdown pass he surpasses his 1941 record of 10. If Isbell throws two touchdown passes he ties the league's all-time record of 51 established by another Packer, Arnie Herber, over nine seasons. This is Cecil's fifth. One touchdown pass from the former Purdue star's arm will smash his record of 15 in one campaign, established last year. If Hutson scores 14 points he will crack his league scoring record of 95, his 1941 total.

Cleveland Turf Poor.

The turf in Cleveland's Municipal stadium may prove to be more of a problem for the high scoring Packer machine than the Rams' defense. The sod, laid after the close of the baseball season, has not taken hold. Players have been skidding on it all season and it's all the tougher if the field is wet.

There's little left in this season for the Cardinals now except to enjoy the thrill of knocking over a contender. The Cards, who feared they were weak on replacements when the campaign started, have found this out definitly after injury to several key linemen. They have lost three of their last four games. The fact that Washington had trouble with Philadelphia last week and that the Cardinals always seem to have more success in the east makes for a possible upset decision over the Redskins. Washington has won six and lost one in the league, and has a four game winning streak.

ELMHURST TAKES 52 TO 0 BEATING BY HEIDELBERG

Tiffin, O., Nov. 7 [Special].—Heidelberg romped over Elmhurst, 52 to 0, this afternoon. The visitors never seriously threatened and three of Heidelberg's touchdowns were tallied by freshmen.

Heidelberg opened the scoring with two spectacular runs. Half Back Arthur Hossler raced 59 yards for the first touchdown and End Ed Heglaw went 64 for the second. Full Back Don Combs drove thru center from the 1 yard line in the third. Wolfe made a 21 yard run around end for another down.

The lineup:

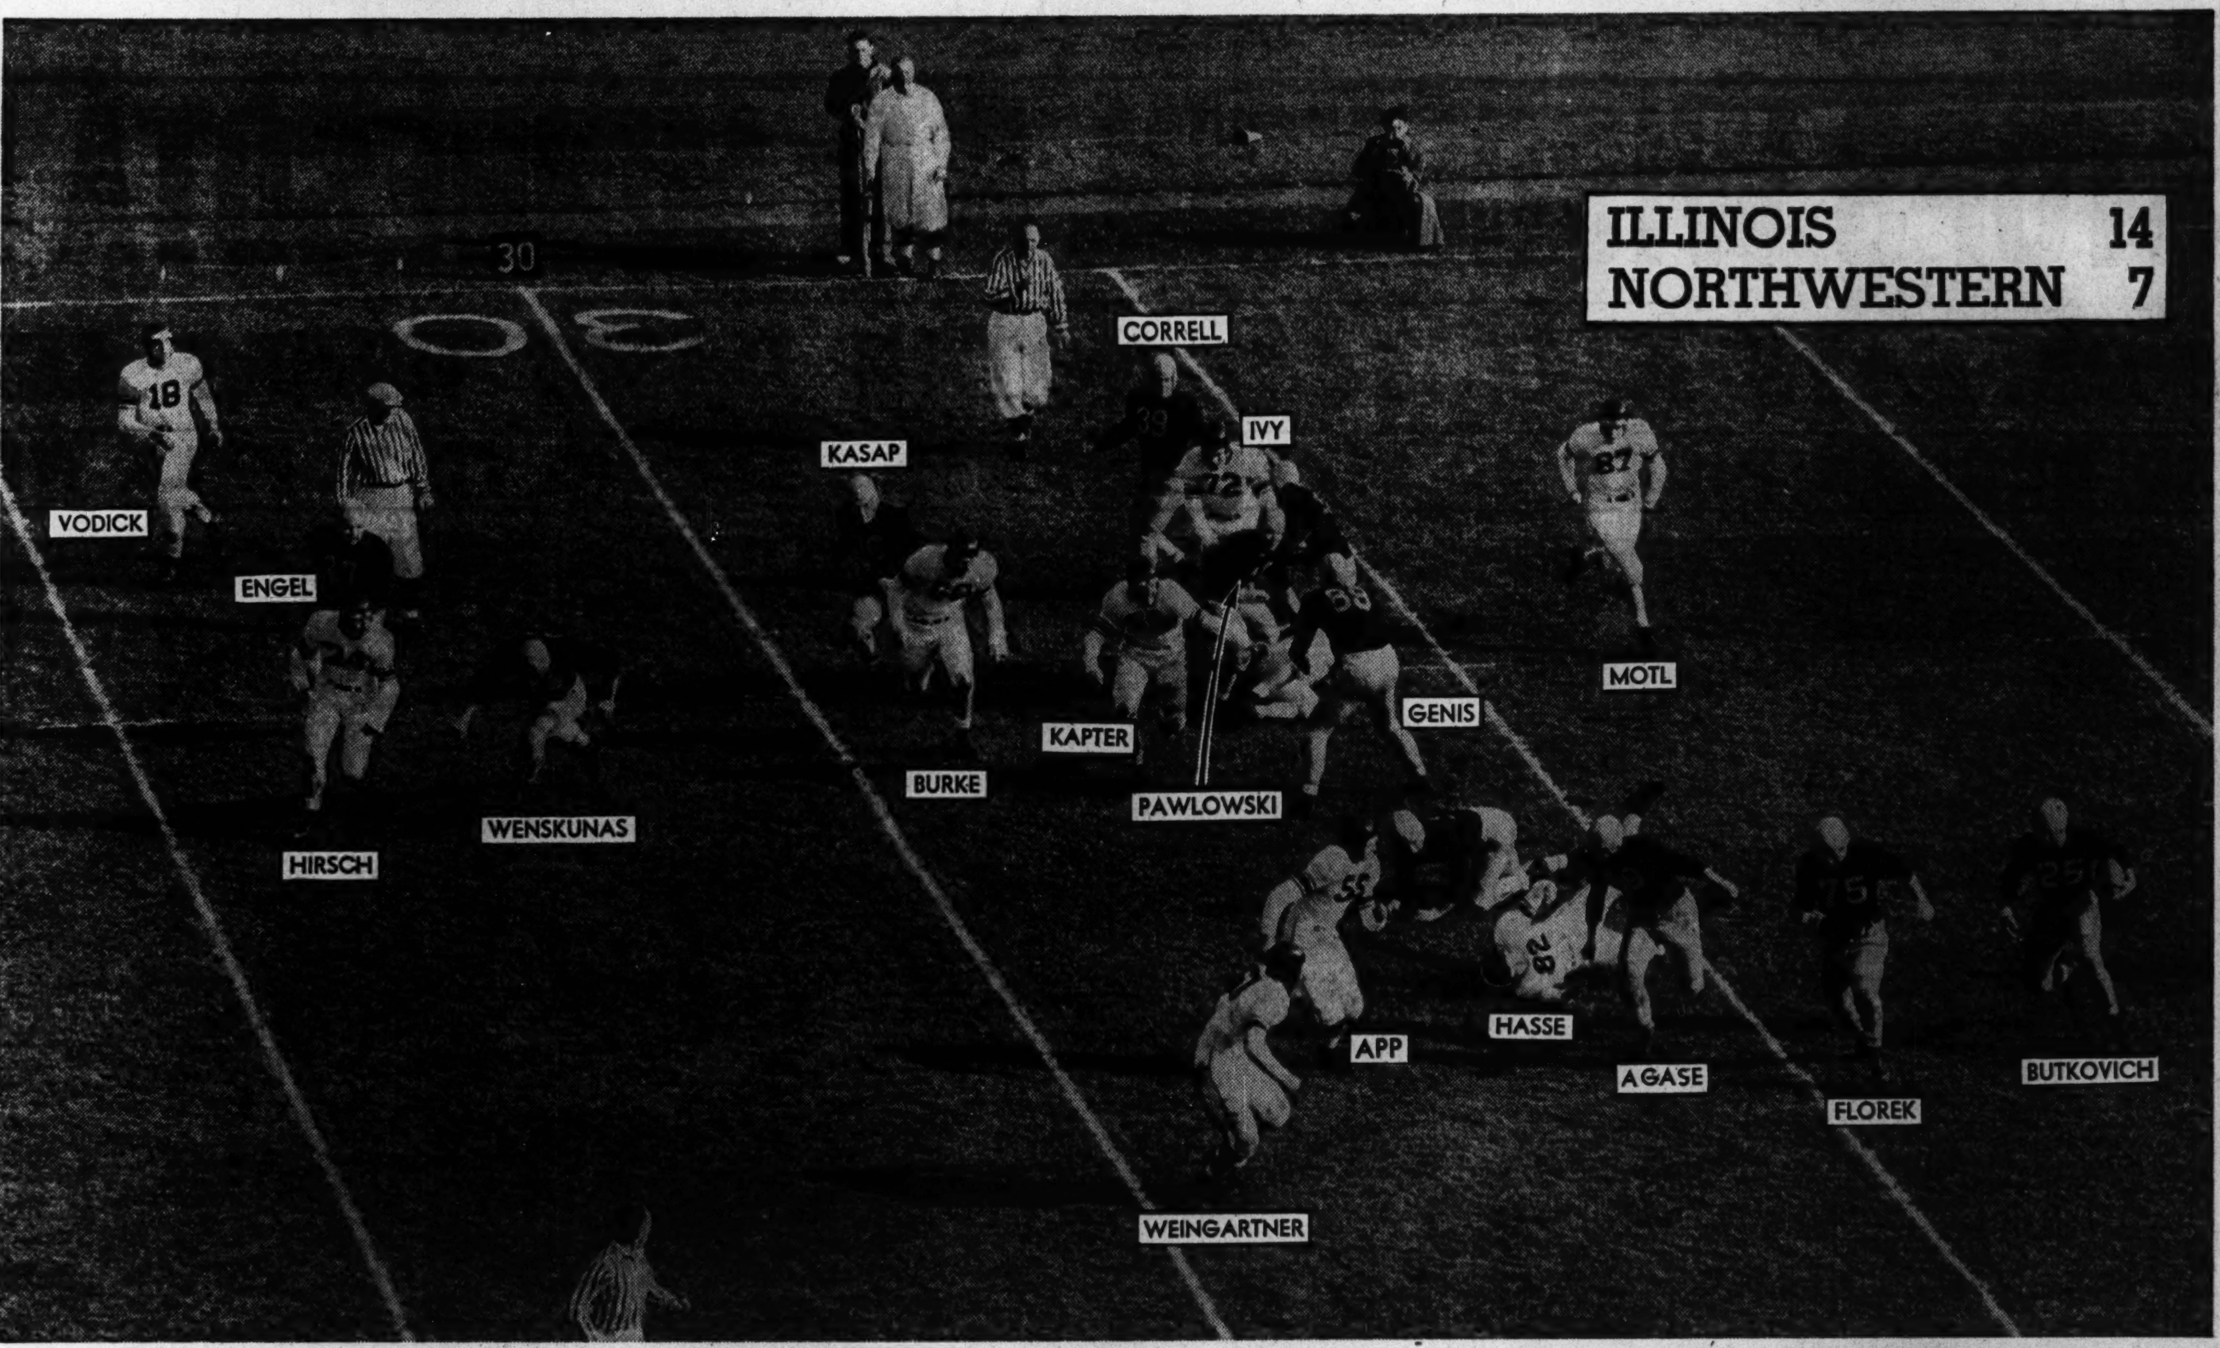
BUTKOVICH HITS HARD FOR ILLINI IN BATTLE WITH WILDCATS



[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Tony Butkovich, Illinois full back, goes wide around end for 16 yards in first quarter of game with Northwestern yesterday in Dyche stadium. Despite heavy ground gaining by the Illini the quarter ended scoreless. Don Griffin, Illinois half back, passed from the 8 yard line over the goal line to Jim McCarthy, end, for first touchdown in second quarter. Elmer Engel, Illinois end, recovered a Northwestern fumble in midair in the third quarter and raced 53 yards for the second Illinois score. Northwestern's Otto Graham clicked on a short pass to Nick Vodick for Northwestern's touchdown, also in the third period.

vance of 45 yards but the honor of launching the touchdown throw fell to Capt. Jimmy Smith.

Punts Drive N. U. Back.

The first period was mainly a matter of punting, but possibly as a warning of what was to come the Illini provided the Wildcats with more than a few hilarious moments.

The punting duel gradually drove the Wildcats back to their own 5 yard line and by way of getting out of this pinch Buffmire kicked to Don Griffin who came back 5 yards to the Purple's 29. The Illini, after Jim McCarthy had dropped a pass in the end zone, tried another and Buffmire staved off disaster temporarily by intercepting and sprinting out to his 39 yard line. A quick kick followed and soon thereafter Dufelmeier fumbled, Bob Wallis recovering to give the Wildcats a shot at the Illini goal. Buffmire passed but threw straight into the hands of Smith.

The second period progressed quietly until Griffin took charge of a Wildcat punt on his 41 yard line. Dufelmeier smashed his way for 4 yards and lateraled to Butkovich for a first down. Dufelmeier and Butkovich reeled off 18 yards and the former then heaved a screen pass to the latter for a first down on the 15 yard line. This menace continued until Butkovich, trying to get away at his left end, was flattened on the 1 yard line, the Wildcats taking the ball and losing no time about punting to midfield.

On the first play after that Wildcat punt, Dufelmeier set out for his right end but suddenly halted and heaved a pass toward the opposite wing, Ray Florek grabbing it for a 23 yard tour to the Wildcats' 31 yard line. Dufelmeier wanted to pass again but the Wildcats didn't give him time to locate a receiver so he just began to sprint and wasn't caught until he had arrived at the 18 yard mark. Dufelmeier lateraled to Smith for 6 yards and Smith passed to Sucic for 4. Smith then passed to McCarthy in the end zone and the latter kicked the point to make it 7 to 0.

Illini Strike Again.

Just about the time the Wildcats were showing signs of getting under way early in the third quarter they were suddenly smacked by the second batch of Illinois points. Lynne McNutt carried the kickoff up to the Wildcats' 27 yard line. Buckets Hirsch smashed thru for 4 and a pass by Graham to Nick Vodick was ruled complete because of interference by Butkovich. Vodick found 2 yards at his right end and 6 more were collected on Graham's toss to McNutt. Then Vodick juggled on the old statue play in which Graham was the statue. Engel grabbed it and kept right on moving for his 48 yard touchdown gallop. McCarthy's toe rounded out the Illini's 14 point lead.

The Wildcats bounced back as if nothing had happened. Bob Motl took the touchdown kickoff out to his 43 yard line and a pass by Graham was incomplete, but nevertheless produced a dividend. The Illini were penalized 15 yards for roughness, sending them back to their 37 yard mark. Graham pitched to Motl for 12 yards and to McNutt for 5. Hirsch ripped thru center and reached the 5 yard line. The Wildcats were set back by an offside penalty but on the next play Graham's pass landed in the arms of Vodick who stepped over the goal line. Al Pick came in to contribute the extra point.

GEORGIA CADETS WHIP AUBURN

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 7 (AP).—Georgia's Naval Preflight school powerhouse bowled over Auburn 41 to 14 today.

Michigan State Beaten, 25-13, by Wash. State

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 7 (AP).—Bob Kennedy staged a football show in Gonzaga's stadium today to lead the Washington state college to a 25 to 13 victory over Michigan State.

Michigan State faded after taking a 7 to 0 first quarter lead. The Cougars scored three touchdowns in the second quarter and added a fourth in the final period. Kennedy scored three times.

Kennedy, passing, power driving, and kicking, had to share the spotlight with Dick Kieppe, whose speed and fire set the cue for Michigan State. Left Half Kieppe, ably seconded by Full Back Morgan Gingrass, gave the capacity crowd of 15,500 its first big thrill, the Cougars their first shock, and the game its first touchdown.

Gingrass Goes Over.

Late in the first quarter the Spartans lost the ball on downs on the W. S. C. 4 after Kieppe and Gingrass had brought it down there. On the next play End Bernard Roskopp stole the ball from Half Back Jay Stoves. Gingrass then plunged over for the touchdown.

That blow awakened the Cougars. In the first thrust Kennedy passed 28 yards to Stoves and the drive carried to the Michigan State 5, but the Spartans held. Starting again on the visitors' 35, Kennedy galloped 20 on a lateral from Stoves and in three more plays scored.

The cheers from that one were still rolling when Bob fired a 35 yard pass down the middle to End Nick Susoeff, who took it on the goal line to put the Cougars in the lead.

Returns Pass 90 Yards.

Minutes after the kickoff the Cougars were galloping again, Stoves put them on the Spartans' 37 with a 20 yard runback of a punt. Kennedy then found Sub End Max Dodge in the clear and hit his target perfectly for a 32 yard gain. He crashed the line twice to tally again and make the score 19 to 6.

With 15 seconds of play remaining, Stoves looped a long forward which Kieppe cuddled on his own 10. Faking, dodging, spinning, he fought to midfield and was hit as the halftime gun sounded, but lateraled in falling to Sub Quarter Robert Otting and Otting rambled to the goal without challenge.

WASHINGTON OF EAST CHICAGO BEATS FROEBEL

Gary, Ind., Nov. 7 [Special.]—Washington of East Chicago defeated Froebel of Gary this afternoon, 39 to 0, in a western division football game in the Northern Indiana conference. Washington is now the only undefeated team in the western division and can clinch the title next week end when it meets Roosevelt of East Chicago.

Lew Wallace of Gary routed Mooseheart High school, 31 to 6, in an interstate game. Bob Bourdage scored on a 68 yard pass play to prevent Mooseheart from being shut out.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 7 [Special].—Great Lakes showed its full power here this afternoon and rolled over a battered Purdue eleven, 42 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000.

The alert Sailors, scoring in every period, left no doubt that they had reached the heights expected of them earlier in the season. A ponderous forward wall that outweighed the Boilermakers 25 pounds per man opend gaping holes for dashes by Bob Sweiger, Steve Belichick, and Bruce Smith.

It's Real Navy Day.

Great Lakes showed its driving power after the first exchange of punts. Starting from their own 46 yard line, the Sailors staged a 54 yard march down to the field, highlighted by the drives of Sweiger and a passs from Smith to Howard Hickey that netted 17 yards. Smith rounded end for 5 yards to end the touchdown march with nine minutes of the first quarter gone.

The Sailors staged another march, this time of 70 yards, to score again in the first three minutes of the second quarter. Starting from their own 30 as the quarter ended, the Sailors took to the air on a pass from Smith to Hickey, to advance to the Purdue 38 yard line in a hurry. The Sailors' passes bogged down momentarily, but a third aerial from Smith to Belichick clicked for 8 yards and Smith then slithered thru tackle for 4 yards and first down on the Boilermaker 26 yard line. Belichick and Smith then combined in a lateral play that took the ball to the 2 yard line and Belichick lugged it over.

Stram Intercepts in End Zone.

Another Sailor drive was halted when Henry Stram made a daring pass interception behind the goal line and twisted his way out to the Purdue 19 yard line, but his efforts went for naught when Belichick leaped in the air to intercept a pass from Andy Berkley and add his second touchdown of the half on a 35 yard jaunt.

The second half was a duplication of the first as far as Sailor scoring was concerned. On the third scrimmage play of the half, Anderson, former Boilermaker half back, picked off one of Stram's passes and raced down the sidelines 54 yards for a touchdown.

Sailors March 95 Yards.

The fifth Bluejacket score was set up when Stram kicked out of bounds on the Purdue 34 yard line. Sweiger gained ground in great gulps thru Purdue's line, taking the ball to the 1 foot mark and Smith then lunged over for his second touchdown.

The longest Sailor drive of the day, one of 95 yards, accounted for the sixth and final touchdown. A 31 yard dash by Ed Heffernan, former St. Mary's star, took Great Lakes out of the hole after Stram had punted to the Sailor 5 yard stripe. Ed Norris, formerly of De Paul, then twisted loose for 46 yards, the longest scrimmage run of the day, before he was dragged down on the Purdue 9 yard line. On fourth down, Kmetovic crashed over from the 1 yard line, to complete the scoring.

MEN with DEPENDENTS

Whether you expect to be drafted, or wish to get into a VITAL WAR INDUSTRY

. . . READ THIS

ELECTRICITY is the driving force of this war. Every plane, every tank, every ship needs skilled electricians — to build and to keep it going.

MEN WHO KNOW ELECTRICITY are wanted, by the thousands. They enjoy better ratings, higher pay in the Service. They find good jobs at war plants.

COYNE, AMERICA'S OLDEST and most successful Electrical School, now offers special streamlined night courses in the most vital branches of Electricity. Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

YOU SELECT THE BRANCH in which you want to specialize—then train quickly and easily by practical work on real apparatus, under personal instruction of experts. No books, no reciting—it's the famous Coyne "Learn-by-Doing" method.

A FEW WEEKS IN EVENING SCHOOL prepare you for a better rating in Army, Navy, or essential war work. The cost is low. Previous experience or education not necessary. Whether you are 16 or 50, you can qualify for this training.

VISIT OUR SHOPS any Monday, Wednesday or Friday up to 8:30 P.M., or any day including Sunday between 9 A.M. and 4 P.M. See for yourself. You can start this week to prepare for a real future in Electricity. Evening school hours Mon., Wed. and Fri from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m. Convenient to L, street car and bus.

SLOVAKS TO PLAY LINNEAS TODAY IN SOCCER FEATURE

Hakoahs to Clash with Italian Sport Club.

BY OFFSIDE.

Play will be resumed today in the International Soccer league with the game between the Slovaks and the Linneas in Sparta stadium the main attraction in the major division, while a clash between the Italian Sport club and the Hakoahs in Reda stadium will highlight the first division schedule.

The Slovaks, still feeling the loss of some of their stars to the service, are confident, however, that they will uphold their reputation as state champions. They will bring in a newcomer at outside right. He is Ray Wilcop, former Kelly High school star. Frank Tomecek, out of action for a time with a hand injury, will be back at center half.

The Linneas, who started the season with little strength, have become a threat to all and contemplate but one lineup change. Eric Johnson taking John Sobol's place at full back. Sobol has entered the service.

The Hakoahs, who absorbed the Maccabees, have stitched together one of the best teams they have had in several years, while the Italians, since combining with the Sam Redas, have put together a formidable outfit.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 7 (AP).—The Iowa Preflight Seahawks ran into unexpected trouble here today when a bunch of Armoraiders from Fort Knox held them to a score of 13 to 7 before 3,000 football fans.

Odds-on favorites to take the soldiers, the sailors time after time found their attack stopped by the hard charging and hard tackling Armoraiders, who have been able to win only one football game this fall. Repeatedly Fort Knox pushed the Seahawks back with punts that traveled 60, 70, and 80 yards.

Seahawks Score in First.

The Seahawks punched over a touchdown near the end of the first period after Dick Fisher, former Ohio State star, had put them in Armoraider territory with line plunges. Dashing off right end, Fisher lateraled to Malcolm Kutner, who ran 45 yards for a score. George Svendsen's try for the extra point was blocked.

The Seahawks came back strong after the half and, starting deep in his own territory, Fisher again drove thru the line for repeated gains. Having pulled the Armoraider backs in, he then cut loose with a 30 yard pass to Bolger over the goal line. Svendsen made the extra point good and the Seahawks settled down with apparently a safe lead.

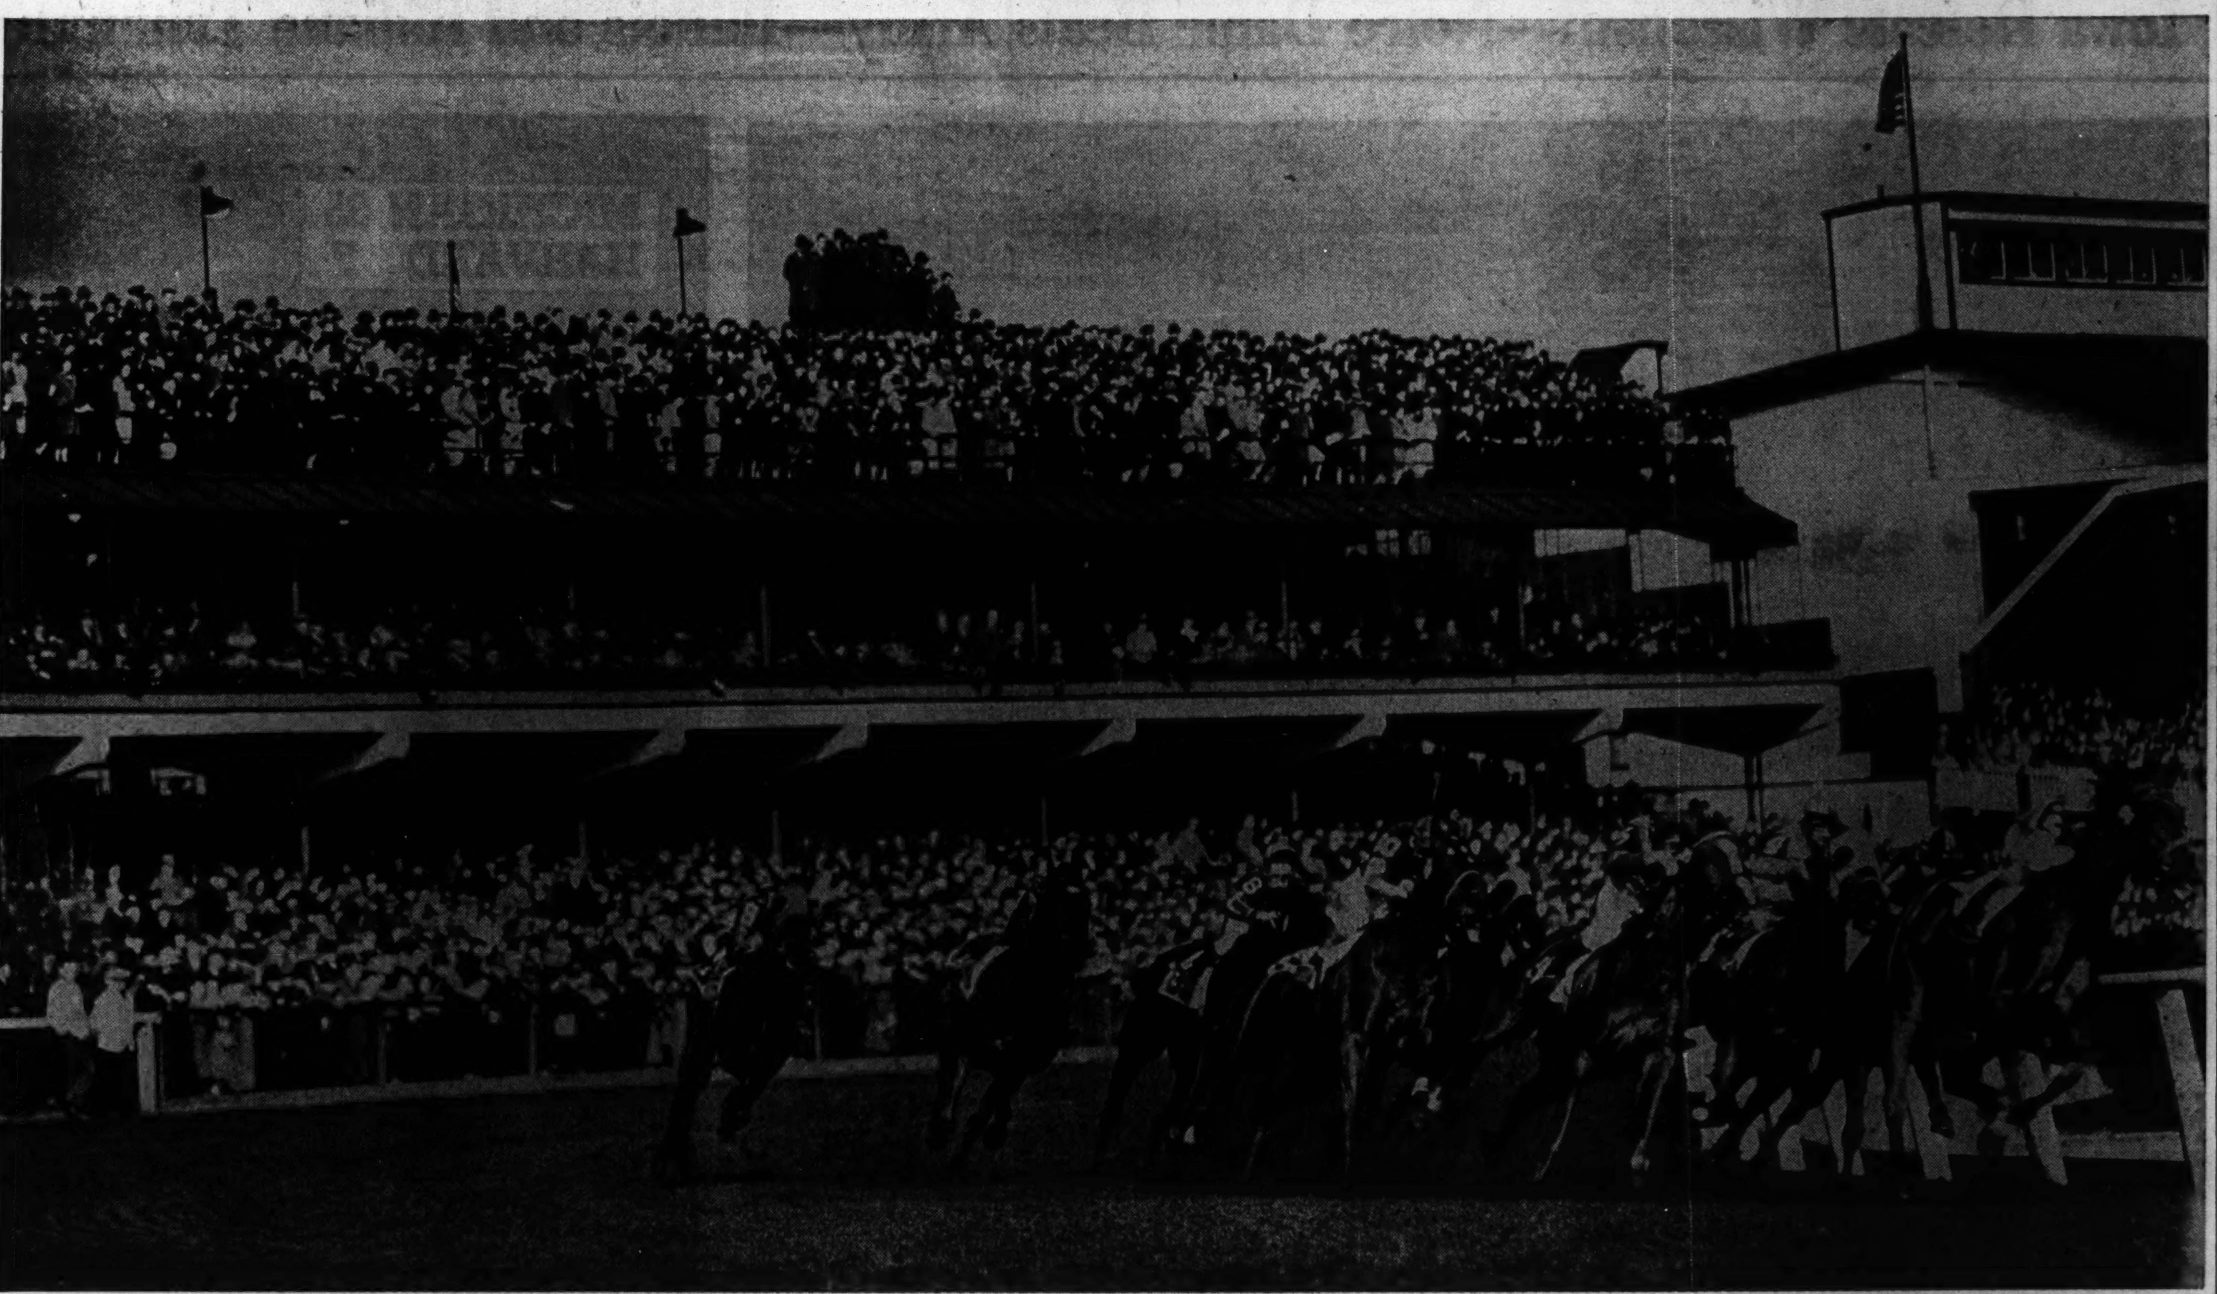
Fort Knox, whose attack had been unable to make much headway all afternoon thru the Seahawk line, took to the air in the final period and, with John Spirida, a former Washington Redskin, and Carl [Hoot] Combs, formerly of Kentucky, slinging passes, the soldiers advanced as far as the sailor's 16 yard line—the closest they had been all day.

Fisher Intercepts Pass.

However, the threat ended when Fisher intercepted a Combs' pass on his 5 yard line and ran it back 16 yards. The Seahawks started down the field with Ed Jankowski and Jim Langhurst alternating and passing and running. The threat ended when Ed Pearce, formerly of Michigan State, intercepted a pass by Fisher and sped safely for 82 yards and the lone Fort Knox score. George Rimmer, formerly of St. Xavier college at Cincinnati, made the placement good.

The Seahawk had the better of the statistics, making 13 first downs to 8 for Fort Knox and rushing the ball 310 yards to the soldiers' 104. In the air the naval cadets gained 66 yards to 61 for the Armoraiders.

CHICAGOLAND RACING DOES ITS BIT IN A BIG WAY



Horse racing in Chicagoland closed yesterday with the final program at Sportsman's Park drawing a capacity crowd of 17,000 persons, who poured $579,194 thru the mutuels to bring the handle for six days to $2,267,429, thus making it by far the biggest final week in the history of racing in this area. All proceeds of the six day meeting, sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will be distributed among local welfare organizations. The picture shows part of the grandstand crowd and the field in the third race yesterday making one of the turns. The winner was Lactose. Devil's Frolic was second and Buss third.

Marquette U. to Seek Fifth Victory Today

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7 [Special].—Intersectional football fare will feature the Marquette university homecoming tomorrow afternoon with the Hilltoppers attempting to score their fifth consecutive victory as they face Manhattan college of New York City.

Memories of one of the most freakish scores in the annals of football have been stirred by tomorrow's game. The Marquette eleven will be out to avenge the startling 45 to 41 setback suffered by the Hilltoppers at Yankee stadium just two years ago. Marquette's only senior, Left Tackle Al Klug, is the only local veteran of that dizzy battle.

The Hilltoppers, who have lost only to Wisconsin this fall, are pre-game favorites. However, they expect trouble from Coach Herb Kopf's Manhattan eleven, which reached peak as it trounced Duquesne. The Jaspers also have beaten Muhlenberg and have lost to Georgetown, Detroit, and Villa Nova.

Marquette's first string lineup is ready for action, altho Stidham may rest his quarter back, Al Vogt, who is favoring a slight injury. Kopf, upon arrival today, reported his squad also is in good shape and said he had shaken up his lineup this week.

STATE'S UPLAND GAME SEASON TO OPEN TUESDAY

Quail Hunters to Have 30 Days of Sport.

BY BOB BECKER.

New provisions for the storage of wild game [legally taken during the open seasons] are in force in some of the states, giving hunters a better opportunity to use their ducks, geese, venison, pheasants, and other game during the days when meat rationing has been put into effect. Thus every hunter will be able to help save fresh meats which are needed by our armed forces by substituting wild game for beef, pork, or mutton. Altho no definite date has been announced for the start of meat rationing, sportsmen seem to be expecting it some time next month. By that time millions of pounds of wild game meat will be in homes, in lockers, or other places where it may be kept until used in the home.

Illinois director of conservation, Livingston Osborne, told us several weeks ago that he was going to permit Illinois hunters to keep their pheasants and quail longer than ever before. This season such upland game may be held in possession until about Jan. 23, in keeping with the federal duck regulations which this season stipulate that we may keep our waterfowl on ice for 30 days after the close of the season instead of 10 days as in previous years.

Season Opens Tuesday.

Illinois hunters are going to get into action against the pheasants, rabbits and quail Tuesday when the season opens. The pheasant season extends thru Nov. 19, but the quail hunters get 30 days for their sport. Osborne says he expects that shooters will "harvest" more than 500,000 cock pheasants during the open season and well over a million quail, which will furnish many appetizing meals for the families of sportsmen. A good nesting season plus heavy stocking of pheasants by the state promises good ringneck shooting next week.

Wisconsin is very liberal this year on the possession of wild game. Because of the new regulations, many a sportsman's family will be able to eat wild game in place of fresh meat after rationing is put into force. Thus the regulations are both patriotic and practical. Wisconsin says upland game birds may be held or placed in storage for a period not to exceed 30 days following the closed season for any species, without a permit. A permit from the conservation department, supplied without charge, is required to hold upland game birds for more than 30 days following the close of the open season.

30 Day Permit for Waterfowl.

Migratory waterfowl or shore birds may be held or placed in storage for 30 days following the close of the open season without a permit. A permit for holding them longer cannot be issued.

Deer, bear, and other game may be placed in storage for 30 days following the close of the open season without a permit. A permit is necessary to hold or place such game in storage for a longer period. All game stored under permit is subject to inspection at all times by conservation wardens. Any person who has legally killed a deer or bear may hold the same at his home without a permit.

Jerry Vessels, Minnesota department of conservation, writes us that deer hunters in that state will bring home 7,425,000 pounds of venison this month. [The season opens in Minnesota Nov. 15. He adds, "this amount when used by the families of sportsmen and their friends, would spare enough meat, beef, pork, and mutton to feed an army of 500,000 for one month."

Wheaton Soccer Team Beats Morton Junior, 3-1

Led by Student Coach Jack Rosser and Senior Forward Stacey Roberts, the Wheaton college soccer team defeated Morton Junior college, 3 to 1, on the Morton field yesterday. It was Wheaton's third straight victory. Morton led at the half, 1 to 0, but a goal by Rosser tied up the score and then two more by Roberts clinched the game for the Crusaders. Wheaton closes the season Wednesday with a return game with Morton at Wheaton.

FEEDING YOUR DOG in Wartime

Answers TO QUESTIONS COMMONLY ASKED TODAY

Today's dog foods differ even more widely than did the moist foods in cans. For your dog's sake choose a food that is backed by years of experience—a well-known name that assures a nutritious, wholesome, balanced diet.

Answer: The dehydrating process removes most of the moisture from fresh ingredients. The result is much the same, in effect, as if you were to roast a piece of beef very slowly until the meat is completely dried out. The color would then be brown. That is the reason Ideal "V-T" Dog Food is dark brown in color. No artificial coloring has been added to Ideal; It is all fine food, natural in both its "dehydrated" color and its food value. And, dogs are color blind, anyway.

* * *

Quick and Easy to Prepare

Merely add liquid—water, milk or broth—to Ideal "V-T", stir a bit and feed. Ideal "V-T" absorbs moisture quickly. No waiting. Each carton of Ideal "V-T" with liquid added makes over a pound of moist food. The cost is the same, so start feeding Ideal "V-T" today.

74,000 SEE NAVY STUN PENN, 7 TO 0, IN EAST UPSET

Pass Brings Touchdown in First Period.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 7 (AP).—A Navy eleven which wasn't bluffing when it made its one big threat of the game in the first period today, astonished a near capacity crowd of 74,000 in Franklin field by defeating a favored Penn football team which was forever a menace, but never quite could make good.

The score was 7 to 0, the points resulting from a 59 yard march midway in the first quarter, the march climaxed by an 11 yard pass, H. A. Hamberg to Ben Martin. Martin took the ball in the end zone for the touchdown, Oreal Crepeau came in and placekicked the extra point, and the Middies dug in to protect that lead the remainder of the afternoon.

Penn's many drives always failed, bogged in the Navy's defense and as the minutes dragged on and the Quakers were frustrated at every turn, they became panicky and erratic. Their running offense became spotty, their passes wild and futile, and when at last, in the final seconds, they got their two biggest chances, they just didn't have what it takes.

Hamberg's Wayward Punt.

Punting out from behind his goal, Hamberg saw the ball carom off the side of his foot and tumble waywardly outside on the Navy 24. Odell took it to the 9 on a frantic dash around his right end, and another play picked up 3 more.

This time the Quakers, realizing the Navy line wasn't one of least resistance, tried to sail the ball over the goal. Kane flipped the ball into the end zone, where Ben Martin grabbed it and sprinted out to the 7. The Middies froze the ball the last expiring seconds to beat the team which just a week ago tucked away Army under three touchdowns.

There was little to the Navy offense aside from its touchdown drive. Occasionally Gordon Studer, a rapid young man, or Ben Martin would get away for brief sprints, but the attack never was convincing. Lineups:

COLGATE, 35; COLUMBIA, 26.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Everybody had fun today as Colgate outscored Columbia, 35 to 26, in a wide open football game. In the first half the 18,000 spectators had their laughs as the clubs traded touchdowns. In the last two periods the players got theirs trading punches.

The player troubles never were severe enough to cause Referee F. X. Keating to oust any one but there was seldom a formation run off in the waning moments that didn't find the belligerents ready.

Mike Micka, 188 pound full back, was the winners' star with 115 yards picked up in 21 thrusts at the Lion line.

Lake Michigan Yachtsmen Pick Theodore Dunlap

Theodore Dunlap of the Jackson Park Yacht club was elected commodore of the Lake Michigan Yachting association last night at the annual meeting, held in the Chicago Yacht club's downtown clubhouse.

Commodore Dunlap, co-owner of the racing schooner Fame, was vice commodore of the association's sail squadron last summer. He succeeds Raymond L. Greist of the Chicago Yacht club as commodore.

The association elected James Barr of the Milwaukee Yacht club as sail squadron vice commodore, and L. T. Rountree of the Chicago Yacht club as power squadron vice commodore. Ed Schnabel, owner-skipper of the Chicago Yacht club R class sloop Yankee, was elected rear commodore of the sail squadron, and D. E. Hobelman of the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club was elected secretary.

Leon J. D. Healy of the South Shore Yacht club, Milwaukee, was named power squadron rear commodore, and Commander Warren Baunach of the Columbia Yacht club was chosen squadron secretary.

John T. Snite, owner-skipper of the Chicago Yacht club cutter Copperhead, was presented the Lake Michigan Yachting association's annual award for distinguished service to yachting for the year. He served as liaison man between the 250 yachtsmen who participated in training Abbott hall naval midshipmen on Chicago yachts, the navy department, and the Navy League of the United States, sponsor of the training program.

Cornell Luck Turns; Beats Yale, 13 to 7

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7 (AP).—A hard luck Cornell football team, fighting desperately to break a jinx, finally got a smile from old dame fortune and upset favored Yale, 13 to 7, for its first major victory. The game was played before 22,000 in the Yale bowl.

The Ithacans, who outplayed the Elis most of the game and yet found themselves trailing 6 to 7 with two minutes to go, connected on a spectacular 47 yard pass and run to drive within the shadows of the goal posts. Nick D'Onofrio bulled his way across the line for the winning touchdown.

After being tossed around for most of the opening half, Yale suddenly came to life and paraded 80 yards, mainly along the air route, to score on a 9 yard toss from Ed Taylor to Freshman Dick Jenkins. Fred Dent added the extra point from placement to give Yale the lead which it held until near the end.

Cornell came back soon after the third period started to launch a 66 yard sortie in which Sophomore Walter Kretz pitched 24 yards to Stacy Mosser and followed it up with a 6 yard bullet throw to Fred Westphal, sub end, who tallied deep in the end zone. Joe Anderson's placement was blocked.

BOSTON CRUSHES TEMPLE.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 7 (AP).—After stubbing their toes on Temple's 10 yard line during the first few minutes of play, Boston college's undefeated Eagle settled down to touchdown-a-period gait and overwhelmed the Owls, 28 to 0, before 20,000 at Fenway park today.

Coach Denny Myers' high powered operators, while piling up a total yardage of 416 yards against 39, scored twice on 1 foot bucks besides registering on a 25 yard pass from Mickey Connolly to Johnny Killelea and a 48 yard dash by Bernie Lanoue.

Second Touchdown Jaunt.

Mike Holovak then banged to Temple's 25 and Connolly tossed his touchdown pass to Killelea. Another Sutch punt started the Eagles on their second touchdown jaunt late in the second period. After Ed Doherty ran it back 4 yards to Temple's 48, Lanoue twisted thru the right side of his line and raced into the end zone.

Holovak was the first Eagle to bang over the last 12 inches on fourth down but before he did so in the third quarter, Connolly set the stage by passing from B. C.'s 40 to Charley Furbush, the left end, on Temple's 5. The Eagles' final scoring drive, midway thru the finale, started in midfield.

With the ball within a foot of the Temple goal line Boudreau went over. Connolly made three successful conversions and Commane one.

Men Who Whistle While They Work

Simple Decision Is Often Vital, Goebel Says

PAUL G. [SHANKS] GOEBEL, who played football at Michigan and with three pro teams, including the Bears, doesn't realize he's made a tough decision until the game is over. He writes: "As head linesman in last year's game between Northwestern and Minnesota, I called back Northwestern's score on a delayed pass from its own 23 yard line because ineligible linemen were down field before the pass was made. Minnesota won, 8 to 7. . . . I felt as badly or worse than any one concerned with N. U.'s fortune when I realized after the game what an important part that decision played in the outcome. . . . At the time of calling the foul it seemed the obvious thing to do. . . . It never is a pleasant duty to call fouls. Nevertheless, had I not called it, I would have been derelict in my duty as an official." . . . Goebel's biggest thrill was scoring a touchdown and kicking the tying point in a 7 to 7 game against a strong Wisconsin eleven in 1921 in Madison to silence critics of Fielding H. Yost, Michigan coach. . . . He credits Capt. Jerome [Duke] Dunne, now a Chicago judge, as inspiring this upset by a talk before the game. . . . He's 41 years old and is a native of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dartmouth Is 19-7 Winner Over Tigers

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP).—Dartmouth drove three short touchdown stabs thru Princeton's line today to triumph over the Tigers, 19 to 7, before 16,000.

Midway in the first period, Tom Douglas put Princeton in a hole with a punt that was downed on the Tigers' 2 yard line. When Bob Perina kicked out, Ray Wolfe gathered in the ball on Princeton's 38 and raced back 25 yards. Then he slashed at the line for a first down on the 2 and Meryll Frost drove over left tackle to score.

Princeton Loses Ball.

In the third period, Perina fumbled while back to punt on fourth down and Princeton lost the ball on its own 33. George Pulliam cut thru left tackle for 12 yards. John Monahan added 13 more, Wolfe picked up 4 on a reverse and Pulliam slid thru right guard for 4 and another touchdown. Kast place kicked the extra point.

Taking the kickoff on their own 20, the Tigers started a drive that eventually brought them a touchdown.

Douglas Sneaks Over.

Dartmouth appeared content to rest on this margin, until Perina got off a low, hurried punt from deep in his own territory and Wolfe returned it to the Princeton 31. Douglas sneaked over right tackle for the touchdown. Lineups:

Lentz Leads St. John's in 19-3 Triumph

Terry Lentz of Pewaukee, Wis., led St. John's Military academy to a 19 to 3 defeat of Culver academy's eleven on Wrigley field yesterday.

The game, the 13th of a series which dates back to 1905, was played before an estimated crowd of 4,000 for the army emergency relief fund. The military pageantry of the traditional meeting was heightened by the induction between halves of 100 18 and 19 year old youths into the United States army. They were sworn in by Capt. H. T. Crane as seven companies of St. John's cadets stood at attention on the field.

Culver Leads at Half.

By reason of a successful field goal by Julius Adler Jr., in the middle of the quarter, the youngsters from Culver led, 3 to 0, at half time.

Culver's 3 to 0 margin died in the first minutes of the second half as young Lentz projected himself into the fray. He took the kickoff on the left side of his own 26 yard stripe, cut sharply across the attacking Culver flank and raced 74 yards down the right side of the field to the goal.

It's Lentz Again.

His next notable sally into Culver territory came in the second quarter as he took the ball on the opposition's 28, feinted in a double reverse, and smashed thru tackle for 18 yards before he was brought down from behind on the 9. On the following play Bob Mellonig, 210 pound full back, plunged over right guard to score standing up. David Devonald's try for the point after touchdown was successful.

Then Lentz collaborated with Mellonig in fashioning the final score, which followed Allen Brown's interception of Don Hulbert's pass on the Culver 14. Mellonig on the next play brought the ball down to the 3 and set the stage for Lentz' scoring smash thru center a play later.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—It was rumored that even the cheer leaders changed uniforms and participated in Ohio State's 59 to 19 crusher over the one time powerful Pitt Panthers here this afternoon. The Buckeyes drove, sped, and passed their way for nine touchdowns, six of them before the Pennsylvanians got in on the scoring fun.

This violent comeback by the Buckeyes was so pleasing to their constituents that the crowd of 34,893 began filing out of the stadium long before the annihilation was completed. Today the Buckeyes were to prove they could bounce back after losing last week to Wisconsin, 17 to 7, their chances of an undefeated season spoiled. They did, altho they wished the opposition had been more capable.

Use 40 Players.

Today's victory points equaled Ohio State's 59 to 0 early season triumph over Fort Knox. Had the Buckeyes forgotten their manners as hosts, the score could have been much larger. Before the first half was over, Coach Paul Brown was sending in a steady stream of substitutes. Fourth and fifth stringers were mainly employed in the second half in which the Panthers had a 3 to 2 touchdown advantage. Ohio used 40 players in all.

It was a one man Pitt team—Wild Bill Dutton against all that fine talent of the Buckeyes. Dutton scored the first two Panther touchdowns and passed for the third one. This, by the way concluded the scoring barrage of 78 points.

Frye Suffers Broken Leg.

Bob Frye, Ohio State half back who made one of the first half touchdowns, suffered a broken leg late in the second quarter. He was injured when tackled after running 13 yards and starting the sixth touchdown drive.

Coach Brown kept the players coming and going so fast none had a chance to stand out. Paul Sarringhaus was the only Buckeye to score more than one touchdown. He made the first one two and a half minutes after the game started. Ohio took the kickoff on its 35. Six plays later, Sarringhaus had plunged over.

James Makes Score.

Ohio started again when Sarringhaus returned a punt to his 35. The big play was Gene Fekete's 38 yard dash around Pitt's right end to the 15. Thomas James, a Massillon boy then ran around the opposite end for the score, the fourth play of the series.

The next time Ohio had the ball, Horvath fumbled on Pitt's 28. Here the Panthers drove 66 yards with Dutton passing and running. The Buckeyes took over on their 16 and on the first play Fekete spun, and then dashed down the middle for an 84 yard touchdown run.

The 21 to 0 first quarter lead expanded to 28 to 0, 25 seconds after the next period started. From Ohio's 48, Horvath passed to Capt. George Lynn, who bumped four men out of his path for a 14 yard gain. Sarringhaus then passed to Bob Shaw on the 10 and he ran out of bounds on the 1 foot line. Sarringhaus dashed over left tackle standing up and Fekete's extra point kick made it 28 to 0.

Pass Produces Score.

Dutton punted out on the Buckeyes' 47 and they were off again, this time in three plays. Dick Palmer got 3 and Frye, on a reverse, ran to the 42. Then George Slusser passed to Frye on the 24. He took the ball away from a Pitt defender and ran the rest of the way, then kicked the goal that made it 35 to 0.

Pitt came back with a drive from its 31 to Ohio's 24, but again Dutton's passes failed. A pass, from Friday to James, was good for 17. James twisted his way for 13 more. Palmer passed to John White on the 16, and he ran to the 5. Palmer drove over for the score and James missed the kick to make the score, 41 to 0, at the half.

TILDEN DEFEATS LINDBLOM TAKES CENTRAL CROWN

Tilden Tech, defending City league champion, won the central section football title for the second straight year yesterday by beating its arch rival Lindblom, 21 to 6, before 8,000 in Soldiers' field. It was the sixth straight league victory for Tilden and qualified it to meet Fenger, champion of the south section, in the City league semi-final round next Saturday. The loss was Lindblom's second in six games.

Tilden took advantage of a poor Lindblom kick which went out of bounds on the Tilden 48 to score its first touchdown. With Frank Maratea, Eddie Uvodich, and Ray Schumacher carrying the ball, Tilden marched to the Lindblom 25. After a pass was ruled incomplete, a clipping penalty on Lindblom moved the ball down to the latter's 10. Schumacher ploughed thru tackle for 6 and then Maratea went around left end for the touchdown. Al Frey place kicked the first of his three successful attempts for the extra point.

Old Trick Works.

Maratea scored the second Tilden touchdown soon after the second half began. After an exchange of punts, Tilden, with Uvodich sprinting around the ends and Schumacher smashing thru tackle, reached the Lindblom 5 yard line. Schumacher was slowed down and picked up only 3 yards in three attempts, but, on the old Statue of Liberty play, Maratea went around left end for the score.

A 20 yard pass, Schumacher to Uvodich set up the third touchdown with Schumacher going over for the score from the 2 yard line shortly after the fourth quarter began.

Lindblom Scores.

Taking Tilden's kickoff, Lindblom began a passing attack which eventually led to a touchdown. Jimmy Hilger tossed a 35 yard pass to Harry Paulson, who took the ball on the Tilden 30 and raced to the 7 before Uvodich and Schumacher brought him down. Earl Weincek went around right end and fumbled just before reaching the goal line the ball rolling into the end zone where Stan Vinkler recovered it for a touchdown. Lineup:

The 15th annual game between Leo High school and Mount Carmel to be played in Shewbridge field this afternoon once again will decide the south section football race in the Catholic league. Leo has the edge in this intense rivalry dating back to 1928, having triumphed eight times to Mount Carmel's five victories with the 1939 contest ending in a scoreless tie.

Since 1931 either Leo or Mount Carmel has captured the south section title, Leo taking the title in 1934, '35, '36, '37, '40, and '41 while Mount Carmel was the title holder in 1931, '32, '33, '38, and '39.

Each is undefeated this year, altho Mount Carmel was held to a scoreless tie by St. Rita.

Other league games in the south section send St. Ignatius against St. Patrick in Key Branch stadium and De La Salle at St. Rita. North section contests involve St. George at Loyola, Weber at St. Philip and St. Mel and De Paul in Lane Tech stadium. Fenwick, undefeated north section leader, draws a bye.

Proviso Beats Oak Park, 13-7, in Suburban

Proviso High school of Maywood added more confusion to the Suburban league football race by defeating Oak Park, 13 to 7, yesterday on the latter's field. It closed the season for both elevens and left Proviso in second place with two victories, two ties, and one defeat. The defeat, the second for Oak Park, eliminated it from the race.

New Trier of Winnetka, current leader of the race with three victories in four games, can clinch the title next Saturday when it meets Evanston. Should Evanston defeat New Trier, the championship would go to Proviso on percentage which would be .667 for Proviso and .600 for New Trier.

Bob Miller, full back for Proviso scored both touchdowns for the Maywood team, on one yard plunges in the first and second quarters. Clare Young added the extra point after the second score. George Geyer scored Oak Park's touchdown on a 70 yard run in the final period and Howard Schoeller place kicked the extra point.

The Oak Park freshman-sophomore squad captured the Suburban league juvenile championship by defeating Proviso, 7 to 0, for its fifth straight victory. Lineup:

ALL-STAR TENPIN PRELIMINARIES TO FINISH TODAY

Krumske, Voyles, Mann, and Grogan Lead.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Probable members of the Chicago team in the All-Star bowling tournament emerged last night as sixth round matches in the Chicago eliminations were rolled in four recreation centers. The two high men in the group of eight in competition at each house automatically will qualify when the seventh and final round is completed this afternoon, and it is likely that the next two men in each group also will be invited.

Jules Sowa, who previously had rolled the tournament's high series, last night set a new mark when he dropped 928 pins in his match with Harry Ledene Jr. at Gold Coast. Jules won four games, scored 22.28 points, and pushed his total to 116.11, just 14 pins below that of the group leader, Ivan Mann. Mann shot 846 in taking three games from Bob Wills. His total is now 116.25. Ledene knocked down 842 pins, Gold Coast's third high of the night.

Sabik Drops 919.

Sowa's old mark was also bettered by Frank Sabik at Pla-mor. Sabik got 919, including a 261 game, to take four from Eli Maricich and move up to fourth place in his group. Barney Grogan took the squad lead by hitting 821 and winning three from Jerry Steinberg. Andy Melant split four games with Glenn Gersch and dropped to second, less than a point behind Grogan.

Eddie Tadevich, in eighth place at Garden Recreation, fired an 815 series to win three games from Troy Voyles, the squad leader. Eddie scored 19.15 points. Voyles kept the squad lead despite the victory of left handed Norman Nelson in knocking down 871 pins and winning three games from Joe Puccinelli. Nelson cut Voyles' lead to less than a point—46 pins to be exact. Adolph Carlson split with George Calder to keep third place.

Krumske, Plunge Lead.

Paul Krumske and Adam Plunge made sure of winning the two places on the Congress Recreation center, but Sam Saric, the eighth place man, did the best shooting yet seen there during the tournament. Sam dropped 875 pins and scored 21.25 points in routing John Small. Plunge rolled 827 to score 19.27 points in his match with John Munch. Krumske's shooting was good enough to bring his total to 115.19 points, three more than Plunge has scored. Jerry Skovie is third with 104.35.

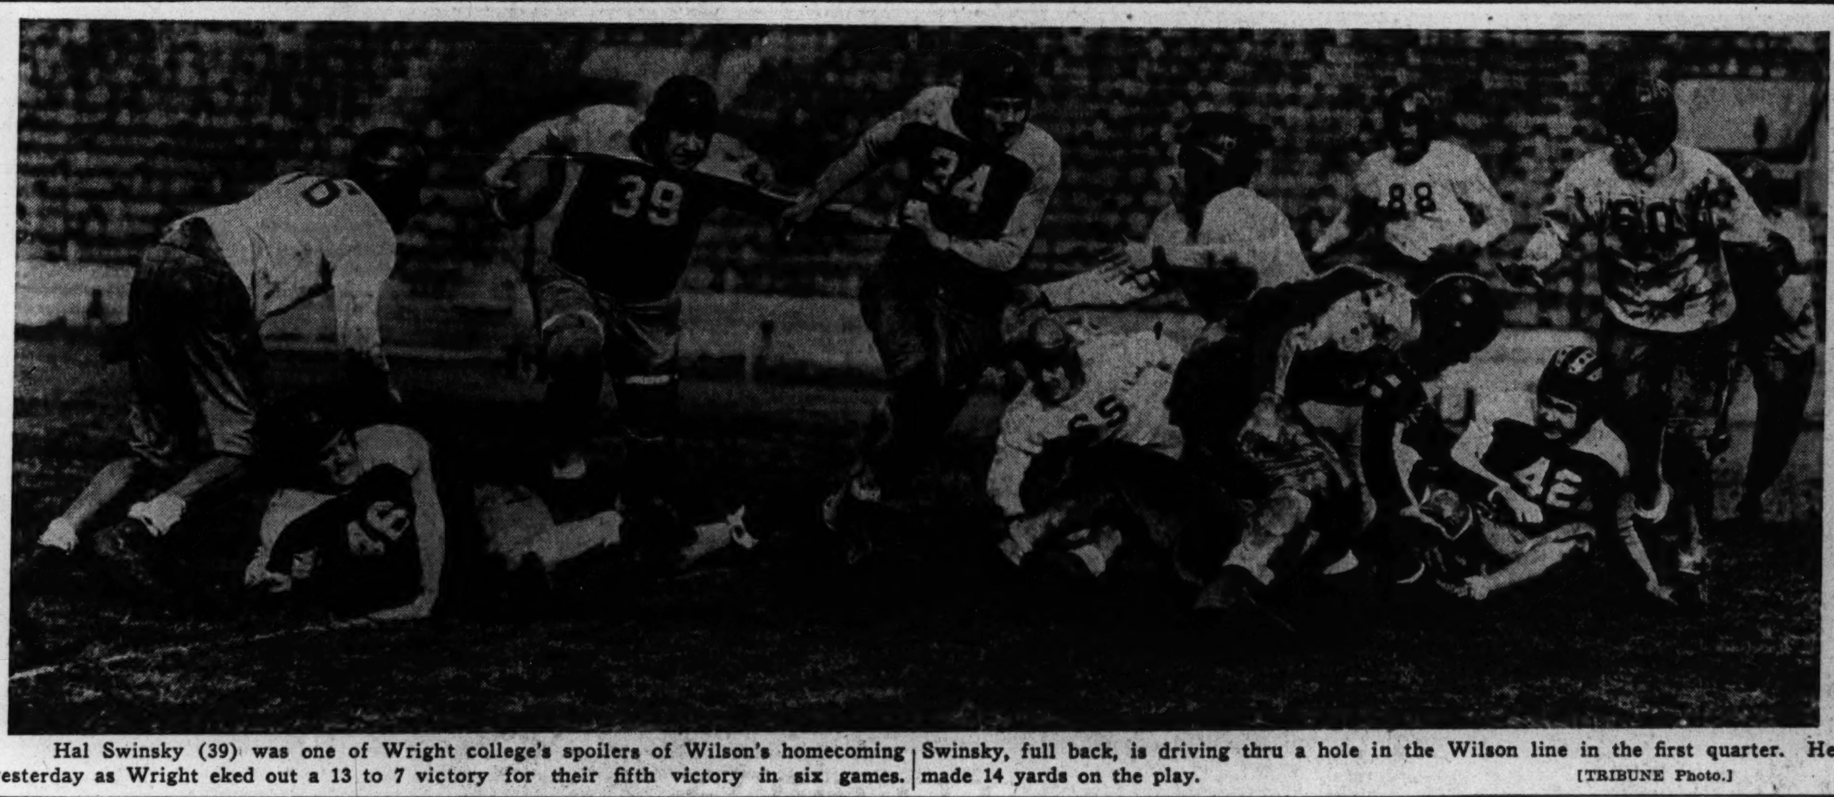
WRIGHT COLLEGE FULL BACK BORES A HOLE



Hal Swinsky (39) was one of Wright college's spoilers of Wilson's homecoming yesterday as Wright eked out a 13 to 7 victory for their fifth victory in six games. Swinsky, full back, is driving thru a hole in the Wilson line in the first quarter. He made 14 yards on the play. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SPOTTING THE PINS

THIS is the week when the nation's bowlers make their first nationally organized effort of the season in behalf of a war activity. From virtually every city and even villages where there may be a league, dimes, quarters, and dollars will stream in, to go into the USO treasury. The campaign will embrace not only tenpin, but duckpin and candle pin sections of the country as well, all organizations in all variations of the game having joined in the effort. . . . Eighteen teams are to shoot tonight in the weekly sweepstakes sponsored by the Classic league. The event is scheduled at Garden recreation, 4074 Milwaukee avenue. The schedule:

7 p. m.—Monarch Beers, Washington Shirts, Prima Pilsners, J. L. Gills, Thompson Restaurants, Schamberger Left Handers, Ace Fasteners, Stack & Ryan Bowl, Schlitz in Brown Bottles, Lukko Radio Sales.

That 300 and 677 fired by Herb Woodrich helped Fox De Luxe to a 3,044 total and two games over the Hunter Bourbons in the North West Traveling league. Fox De Luxe is leading the league with a 980 average and Mat Simmons of that team, defending individual champion, is again in front with 201 plus. . . . A 278 game figured largely in Charley Mueller's leading series—692—in the Stack & Ryan major. His team, Raab Tailors, won the odd game from Pepsi-Cola.

A 967 Game, Then Again 967, and Once More 967.

Pogue Bourbons rolled three 967 games in the Samuelson major and two of them were good enough to win from Waggoner's Service. High team series, tho, was Wallace Coals' 3,037 in winning two from Mee & Ramme and thereby boosting their lead over the losers to two games. Hank Pedersen got 717 in that battle. . . . Harry Harwens gave the Pla-Mor fans a thrill when he registered a 710 total in Pla-Mor major competition. Bill Sherman got 676. . . . Walter Matthes with 609 and Elmer Buxton with a 233 game—both on the Chamber of Commerce team—did the honor shooting in the North Evanston league.

Scores can become tiresome, but when 708 is marked up in the Insurance league, it's news. Jules Sowa, Classic league secretary, did it. And of course his Joyce & Co. team won three. . . . Reminder: Get entries in the mail before midnight tonight for the Central States tournament, opening Nov. 21 in the Detroit recreation. W. J. Mattison, 3311 Gallatin road, Toledo, is secretary. . . . John Massolio and Walter Thiem, both with 277, and Regina Trocz, with 214, are leading in the R. G. Kinney Shoe company trophy competition at Gateway. The high game contest ends Nov. 27. . . . Consistency thy name is Bob Glascott, so far as the 20th Battalion Firemen's league at Lawrence Bowl is concerned, Bob rolled 131, then 131, and again 131. His average is—yes, 131.

When It Rains, It Pours, Flip Finds.

Even a 264, rolled with a house ball, didn't begin to compensate Flip De Caluwe, Tribune Nite Hawker, when his equipment was lost in the theft of a car. Reason: The team he anchored, the Watts, lost the game by one pin and he got only boоes for the best game of the season. . . . Mel Miller, who soon will go into uniform to do his shooting, set a season's individual record in the Hyde Park Major with a 683 count. And his team, the Mann Novelties, dropped the Atlas Pragers out of the top spot by setting them down thrice. . . . Scores usually are ordinary in the Evergreen Towers Mixed league, but Fred Harvey picked up a 658 last time out. . . . And in the Crest Major Don Blake was high man with 639. Wes Briggs had high game there, 267. . . . The Gills hold the Windy City Major's scoring records not only for this season but for the circuit's 38 years—including that 791 Ad Carlson registered; furthermore, their Joe Sinke leads the individuals with a 215 average, but they're still a game behind the Mineralites and Budweisers. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Gills vs. Cascade Bowling Center; Nonebetters vs. Soper Brothers; Mineralites vs. Reichman Jewelers; Ace Fasteners vs. O'Keefe Coals; Furman Funerals vs. T. W. Samuels; Kralovecs vs. Meister Brau; Tomans vs. Vogel Brothers; Budweisers vs. Bee-Vacs.

Bee Hochstadter is shooting for 1,000 entries in the eighth annual Catholic women's individual sweepstakes, a handicap event Nov. 28-29 and Dec. 5-6 at Congress recreation. It is open to all Catholic women. Entries close Nov. 19. . . . Catherine Fellmeth's 650 series was the nation's sixth high for the season until her teammate, Nina Van Camp, tied it at Bowling Lanes Monday. Nina's games: 211, 235, 204. Women's scores:

GEORGIA TECH BREEZES THRU KENTUCKY, 47-7

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 7 (AP).—By land and by air, and almost every other conceivable means of offensive striking power, Georgia Tech's rough riding engineers breezed on toward an undefeated football campaign today by overwhelming Kentucky's Wildcats, 47 to 7.

The engineers' great line, the sensational freshman, Clint Castleberry, and Sophomore Eddie Prokop, all combined with scintillating performance by Davey Eldredge to bury the Kentuckians under a devastating attack.

Georgia Tech counted soon after the game started, as Bobby Sheldon unloosed a barrage of passes and Bobby Dodd carried over from the 4. Then came the trio of quick touchdowns in the second period. Eldredge took a 22 yard pass from Sheldon and breezed over.

Castleberry Goes 40 Yards.

Prokop, standing on his 40, faked a pass and handed the ball to Eldridge, who broke into a clear field and twisted and squirmed across. Freshman Castleberry entered the spree. The 155 pound neophyte scampered 40 yards to the Wildcat 9. Dodd crashed for 8 and then went thru the middle to score.

Prokop, a husky youngster from Cleveland, O., came right back to engineer Tech to another score within two minutes after the third period. After running 26 to the Kentucky 44, Prokop passed to Eldridge at the Wildcat 20, and the midget Miamian ran the other 24 to score with hardly a hand laid on him. That made it 34-0.

Third String Keeps Going.

Tech's second and third stringers were in the ball game then and they kept going right on. Sheldon began passing. Duck Smith and Alvin McDonald began catching and finally, McDonald crashed over from the 2. A few plays later McDonald, a third stringer fumbled and a Kentucky recovery set up the Wildcats' lone score.

Kentucky was at its 25, on the recovery made by End Carl Althaus. Jimmy Hucst almost got away and was pulled down after a 42 yard sprint to the Tech 24. Flinging Phil Cutchin, whose passes were rushed all afternoon, finally clicked. He hit Althaus for tosses of 6 and 7 yards and then caught him for an 11 yard heave for the score.

Tech's final score came after Pat McHugh kicked out of bounds at the Kentucky 5. Cutchin's return punt went only to the Wildcat 36. Castleberry and Ralph Plaster carried to the Kentucky 25. There, Castleberry faked a pass, swung wide and outraced the Wildcat secondary to score.

GEORGIA SWAMPS FLORIDA.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP).—Georgia's unbeaten, untied football team pulled out all the stops today, tuning up a prelude to post-season bowl music by overwhelming a bewildered Florida eleven, 75-0, before 22,000 fans.

It was Georgia's 14th consecutive victory since mid-season of 1941, and the eighth straight win of 1942.

All-America Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's captain, scored two touchdowns and pitched to his one-time schoolboy pal, George Poschner, for two others in a spectacular 30 minute performance. He gained 112 yards passing and 71 rushing to push his offensive mark of the season toward an all time record.

Poschner played brilliantly and scored a third touchdown on a pass from Sinky's sophomore understudy, Charlie Trippi, altho he had suffered until just before game time with acute indigestion.

Georgia broke Florida's resistance with a staggering offensive which yielded a 28 to 0 lead in the first 10 minutes of play. The second and third stringers hammered out another touchdown in the next quarter to give Georgia a 35 to 0 advantage at half time.

Wally Butts, the Bulldogs' coach, gave his Orange bowl champions another workout in the third period, for 27 points, and the third stringers scored 13 in the last period. It was the worst defeat ever handed Florida by a Georgia team, eclipsing the 56 to 0 rout administered in 1920.

Texas Blasts Baylor Line to Win, 20-0

Austin, Tex., Nov. 7 (AP).—Baylor's famed goal line stands failed to materialize today and Texas moved into first place in the Southwest conference with a 20 to 0 victory before 25,000.

Roy McKay, Ken Matthews, and Jackie Field led the victors in a series of marches which compiled 256 yards thru a Baylor line which previously had stopped Texas A. & M. and Texas Christian inside the 20 yard line 11 times. Texas scored in each of the last three periods. McKay raced around right end for 19 yards to get the first touchdown. He failed to convert.

The second Texas touchdown came just five minutes after the third period opened on a 55 yard surge with Field and Matthews doing the work. Field hit tackle for a first down then combined with Matthews for another on the Baylor 24. Here Matthews went inside left tackle, cut to the sidelines and romped over. McKay added the point.

A fumble by Kit Kittrell paved the way for the final touchdown. Lewis Mayne got off a fine kick that Kittrell couldn't hold and the ball went to Texas on the Bear 25. On the second play from scrimmage Mayne cut thru tackle and raced to a touchdown. Field kicked the goal.

TEXAS A. & M. WINS, 27-20.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 7 (AP).—Texas A. & M. defeated Southern Methodist, 27 to 20, today in a game which saw every touchdown scored by passes.

Barney Welch, Aggies' substitute back, threw three passes, all good for touchdowns. A pass interception by Bill Sibley, Aggie center, set the stage for the first of Welch's passes early in the opening quarter after Southern Methodist had tied the score. Welch passed 24 yards to Cullen Rogers for his first touchdown. The second Welch-passed touchdown tied the score again in the third period. Early in the fourth quarter, Otto Payne intercepted a Southern Methodist pass in midfield, and the Aggies scored their fourth and winning touchdown with a screen pass to Zapalac.

MISSOURI BEATS NEBRASKA, 26-6, FOR BIG 6 LEAD

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 7 (AP).—Missouri, defending champion of the Big Six conference, spotted Nebraska a touchdown today, then ran the home boys into the ground to take a 26 to 6 victory and move into commanding position in this year's race.

Nebraska, generally looked upon as the number one threat to the Tigers' supremacy, ended the initial Missouri threat by recovering a fumble on the Husker 10. Then, with nine minutes gone slipped into a 6 to 0 lead when End Jack Hazen got behind the secondary to take Roy Long's 30 yard pass for a touchdown.

Missouri roared back from the kickoff to Nebraska's 18, where a fumble stopped the Tigers again. Then Long got off a kick that went out on the Missouri 44 and the champions were on their way. Bob Steuber tossed to End Bert Ekern on the Nebraska 30. Ekern made 9 on an end-around, and Don O'Hara raced to the 9 on the last play of the first quarter.

Three plays in the second period took the Tigers to the 4, where Full Back Fred Bouldin drove at the line, spun and tossed a wide lateral to Steuber, who raced over untouched.

Two members of the Missouri team broke their arms in the contest, Coach Don Faurot said tonight. Faurot said they were Center Jack Keith and Right End Jack Lister.

INDIANA TAKES HOOSIER STATE HARRIER CROWN

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 7 [Special].—Indiana university regained the Big State cross-country championship at the Butler university course here today as its harriers finished second, third, fifth, seventh, and ninth in the annual championship meet for a total of 26 points. Notre Dame was second with 52, and Purdue, defending champion, third with 53.

The individual title went to Oliver Hunter of Notre Dame, who covered the course of approximately 3¾ miles in 17:34, finishing 150 yards ahead of Indiana's Earl Mitchell. Tom Judge of Indiana, was third.

Butler displaced Earlham as Little State champion, the Bulldogs finishing in first, fourth, fifth, seventh, and fifteenth places for 31 points. Paul Wagner of Butler, was the Little State individual winner, being timed in 18:36.

The vaunted Gopher power was stymied thruout the game, and the home team was forced to the air to make any yardage profit. Not the least of the reasons for this failure on the ground were Indiana's ends—Pete Pihos, Chicago Graeco-American from Austin High school, and Paul Walker, sophomore from Wichita, Kas.

It was the first game Walker ever had started in college football, and the 58 minute job he did in replacing Regular Ted Hasapes was a sight to behold. He and Pihos today collaborated in one of the most thorogoing jobs of smashing by ends that Minnesotans will see for many a day. And when Pete and Paul weren't being annoying, Saban and Earl Doloway were there to freeze the Gopher thrusts.

Hillenbrand Busy as Usual.

And Willie Hillenbrand? Yes, the Hoosiers' bright boy from Evansville played his usual all-around game. So, too, did Bobby Cowan, the Fort Wayne sophomore. It was Cowan who set up the Indiana touchdown with an interception of a Gopher pass which he returned from midfield to the Minnesota 28. Here Hillenbrand stepped in. He got three over his own right tackle, then skirted the defensive left end to the Minnesota 19 yard mark.

Bill then flipped the ball to Pihos, who made a shoestring catch on the Gopher 8 yard line. Hillenbrand was still pitching, for he tossed the ball to Pihos, who was momentarily detained at the Minnesota 6 yard line by Quarterback Bill Garnaas, then twisted away and scored. Saban made good his placement try, with 3 minutes and 12 seconds of play remaining.

Minnesota did not appear up to the football it played against Michigan and Northwestern, in spite of the fact that it started its first string backfield as a unit for the first time since the season opener against Pittsburgh. This happy condition didn't exist for long, since Bill Daley was injured late in the first half and Bill Garnaas suffered a broken blood vessel in his right eye.

Missed Signal Spoils Chance.

Outstanding in the Gopher performance were Herman Frickey, Don Nolander, and John Billman. In the first quarter, Frickey, on a punt return, traveled 57 yards, and Minnesota was soon hammering at the door from Indiana's 1 yard line. On the next play, one of the Gopher backs missed a signal, and they were lucky to recover the ball on the Indiana 13 yard mark. The Hoosiers ultimately took possession on their 1 yard stripe, and from there on became a different football team.

The Hoosiers were still in there fighting in the third quarter, notably on a 32 yard punt return by young Jacoby to the Minnesota 38 yard line. They pursued this advantage to the 20 yard mark, where Nolander recovered an Indiana fumble. Two plays failed, and Frickey punted to Cowan. The latter accepted the ball on his 35 yard line, ran backwards and to his left for 10 yards, and then slipped the ball to Hillenbrand, who romped down the sidelines, goalbound until Luckemeyer hauled him down at the Minnesota 19 yard mark.

Nolander then interrupted the Hoosier march for a second time, intercepting an Indiana pass on his own 8 yard stripe.

Gopher Offense Bogs Down.

The Indiana line, led by Walker and Pihos, smashed the Gopher offense at the Hoosier 30 yard mark, after the Minnesotans had driven 39 yards. Shortly afterward Cowan made his handsome interception at midfield.

Wright Beats Wilson, 13-7, to Win Title

Wright won the Northern Illinois Junior College conference football championship yesterday by defeating Wilson, 13 to 7, at 83d street and Yates avenue, to spoil the Wilson home coming festivities. It was the fifth victory in six games for Wright.

In the second period George Raby intercepted a pass and ran 75 yards for the lone Wilson tally. Harold Swirsky accounted for the first Wright touchdown when he plunged over from the 5 yard line. The winning points were scored by Swirsky in the last quarter when he crawled over from the 1 yard line. Lineups:

Lake Forest Is Beaten, 20-13, by Augustana

The first score of the game was by the Foresters when Latz went thru the center of the line for 10 yards in the first quarter. The touchdown capped a drive from Lake Forest's own 10 yard line.

In the second quarter Wood went thru the Lake Forest line from the 20 after an intercepted pass and Deyo kicked the extra point. A blocked Forester kick was carried over by Rinck for the second Augustana score and Deyo kicked the point. A pass from Swedberg to Sharpe was good for another in the last period, but Deyo missed the kick.

With less than two minutes to go Latz scored from the 1 foot line for Lake Forest and McKenna kicked the point. The lineups:

LAWRENCE BEATS BELOIT, 47-0; WINS MIDWEST TITLE

Vikings Finish the Season with Perfect Record.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 7 [Special].—The Lawrence college Vikings won the Midwest conference championship here this afternoon by crushing Beloit college, 47 to 0, in a homecoming game that ended the season for both teams.

The victory gave Lawrence an undefeated season, its first without the blemish of a tie game since 1922. The Vikings also won the Midwest crown in 1938, the first year that Bernie Heselton coached them.

167 Points to 6.

Lawrence, with what some observers claim it its best team in 20 years, also set a high scoring record for the conference since the round robin schedule was started. In five league games, the Vikings ran up 167 points while allowing only 6. The closest approach to this and the only other time a conference team has scored 100 points in a season was in 1939 when Cornell totaled an even 100 in six contests.

Bill Crossett raced for a touchdown for Beloit's 20 in the first period after taking a pass from Carl Giordana and in the second quarter ran 60 yards for another score on a pass play. Zupek plunged over from the 1 yard line for the third Viking touchdown shortly before the end of the first half.

Vikings Pile Up Score.

On the first play of the third period, Giordana ran 57 yards for a touchdown. Forward passes set up another Lawrence score, Zupek counting from the 1. A pass, Giordana to Crossett, who lateraled to Buesing, was good for the sixth Viking score. Charles Kliefoth, reserve half back, ran 14 yards in the final quarter for the last Lawrence touchdown. Dick Miller made good on five out of seven placement attempts for extra points. Lineups:

WHEATON GAINS REVENGE; BEATS CONCORDIA, 40-0

Wheaton college gained revenge for an early season 0 to 0 tie with Concordia yesterday by trouncing the River Forest eleven, 40 to 0, in Wheaton. It was Wheaton's fourth victory on its home field.

Whitaker scored on a plunge early in the first quarter after Koppin's pass interception started a 45 yard drive. In the same period McCullough threw a 25 yard pass to Munro to score. Just before half time Mathison, Wheaton guard, blocked a punt on Concordia's 13, and Koppin scored.

OREGON RISES IN FOURTH PERIOD TO UPSET UCLA, 14-7

First Conference Defeat for Coast Leaders.

Eugene, Ore., Nov. 7 (AP).—UCLA's Rose bowl stock dropped several points today as the Bruins lost their first Pacific Coast conference start of the year, 14 to 7, to Oregon before a homecoming crowd of 8,000.

Tommy Roblin, Oregon full back, made the Hayward field jinx—the Bruins never have won a game here—hold good with a last period touchdown that gave the lowly Webfoots their margin. Roblin's sparkling line plunging paced the Oregons to the upset victory under unfavorable conditions.

Solari Is Big Threat.

Coach John Warrn's battered Webfoots kept the Bruin "QT" formation in check most of the contest, but Half Hack Al Solari was a serious threat twice, returning the opening kickoff 71 yards and again running 57 yards on a cutback play later in the period.

Roblin set up the first Oregon touchdown with a 50 yard dash to the UCLA 20 midway in the opening period after Solari's performance. A 25 yards pass play from Half Back Bob Reynolds to End Jim Shephard gave Oregon its touchdown after 10 minutes of play.

Bruins Tie It Up.

The Bruins tied it up in the third quarter when a pass from Quarter Back Bob Waterfield to Solari fooled Reynolds. The 12 yard play climaxed a 77 yard drive. Full Back Ken Snelling kicked the point.

Oregon intercepted the second of three UCLA passes to set up the final touchdown in the fourth period. Waterfield had passed to End Burr Baldwin for 33 yards to the Oregon 14 when Reynolds intercepted Waterfield's pass on the 2 and returned to the Oregon 42. On nine palys, featured by a 30 yard run by Reynolds, The Ducks advanced to the Bruin 4. Roblin smashed over on two plays and Guard Floyd Rhea, who hasn't missed a placement this season, booted the extra point.

TROJANS BEAT BEARS, 21-7.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 7 (AP).—Southern California's speedy half back, Mickey McCardle, had another field day today and the Trojans upset University of California Bears, 21 to 7, in a football game watched by 50,000 persons.

STANFORD, 20; WASHINGTON, 7.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 7 (AP).—Stanford outclassed the University of Washington in a Pacific Coast conference game today to win, 20 to 7. The Huskies from Seattle took a first period lead, scoring on a pass soon after the game opened. Stanford came back in the second, third, and fourth quarters with touchdown drives to post another upset.

OREGON STATE, 33; MONTANA, 0.

Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 7 (AP).—Oregon State college, defending champion in the Pacific Coast conference, hauled itself out of a mid-season slump today at the expense of Montana university, 33 to 0.

Two touchdowns each by Beauchamp and Gustafson, and another by Shelton won for the Beavers who have lost to the University of California at Los Angeles, Southern California, and Washington.

Carroll Beats North Central by 19-9 Score

A hard charging, hard driving Carroll college team sparked by Moose Staven, defeated North Central college in Naperville yesterday, 19 to 9. With the first quarter hardly under way Carroll, by straight football, punched over a touchdown. Several minutes later North Central's Mast faked a kick and tossed a screen pass to Jacob who went 47 yards for a touchdown. From then on Carroll put on the pressure and save for a bad pass late in the fourth quarter which resulted in a safety, held the Cardinals scoreless.

Novatney, a substitute back, had the Cardinal fans on their feet when in five straight plays he went 42 yards. But the Carroll line stiffened and North Central was held to downs. Late in the fourth period North Central tried a long pass which was intercepted by West who ran the ball back to the 7 yard line where Stanger pushed it over two plays later. Lineups:

CARROLL [19].		NORTH CENTRAL [9].
Koehler	L.E.	Smith

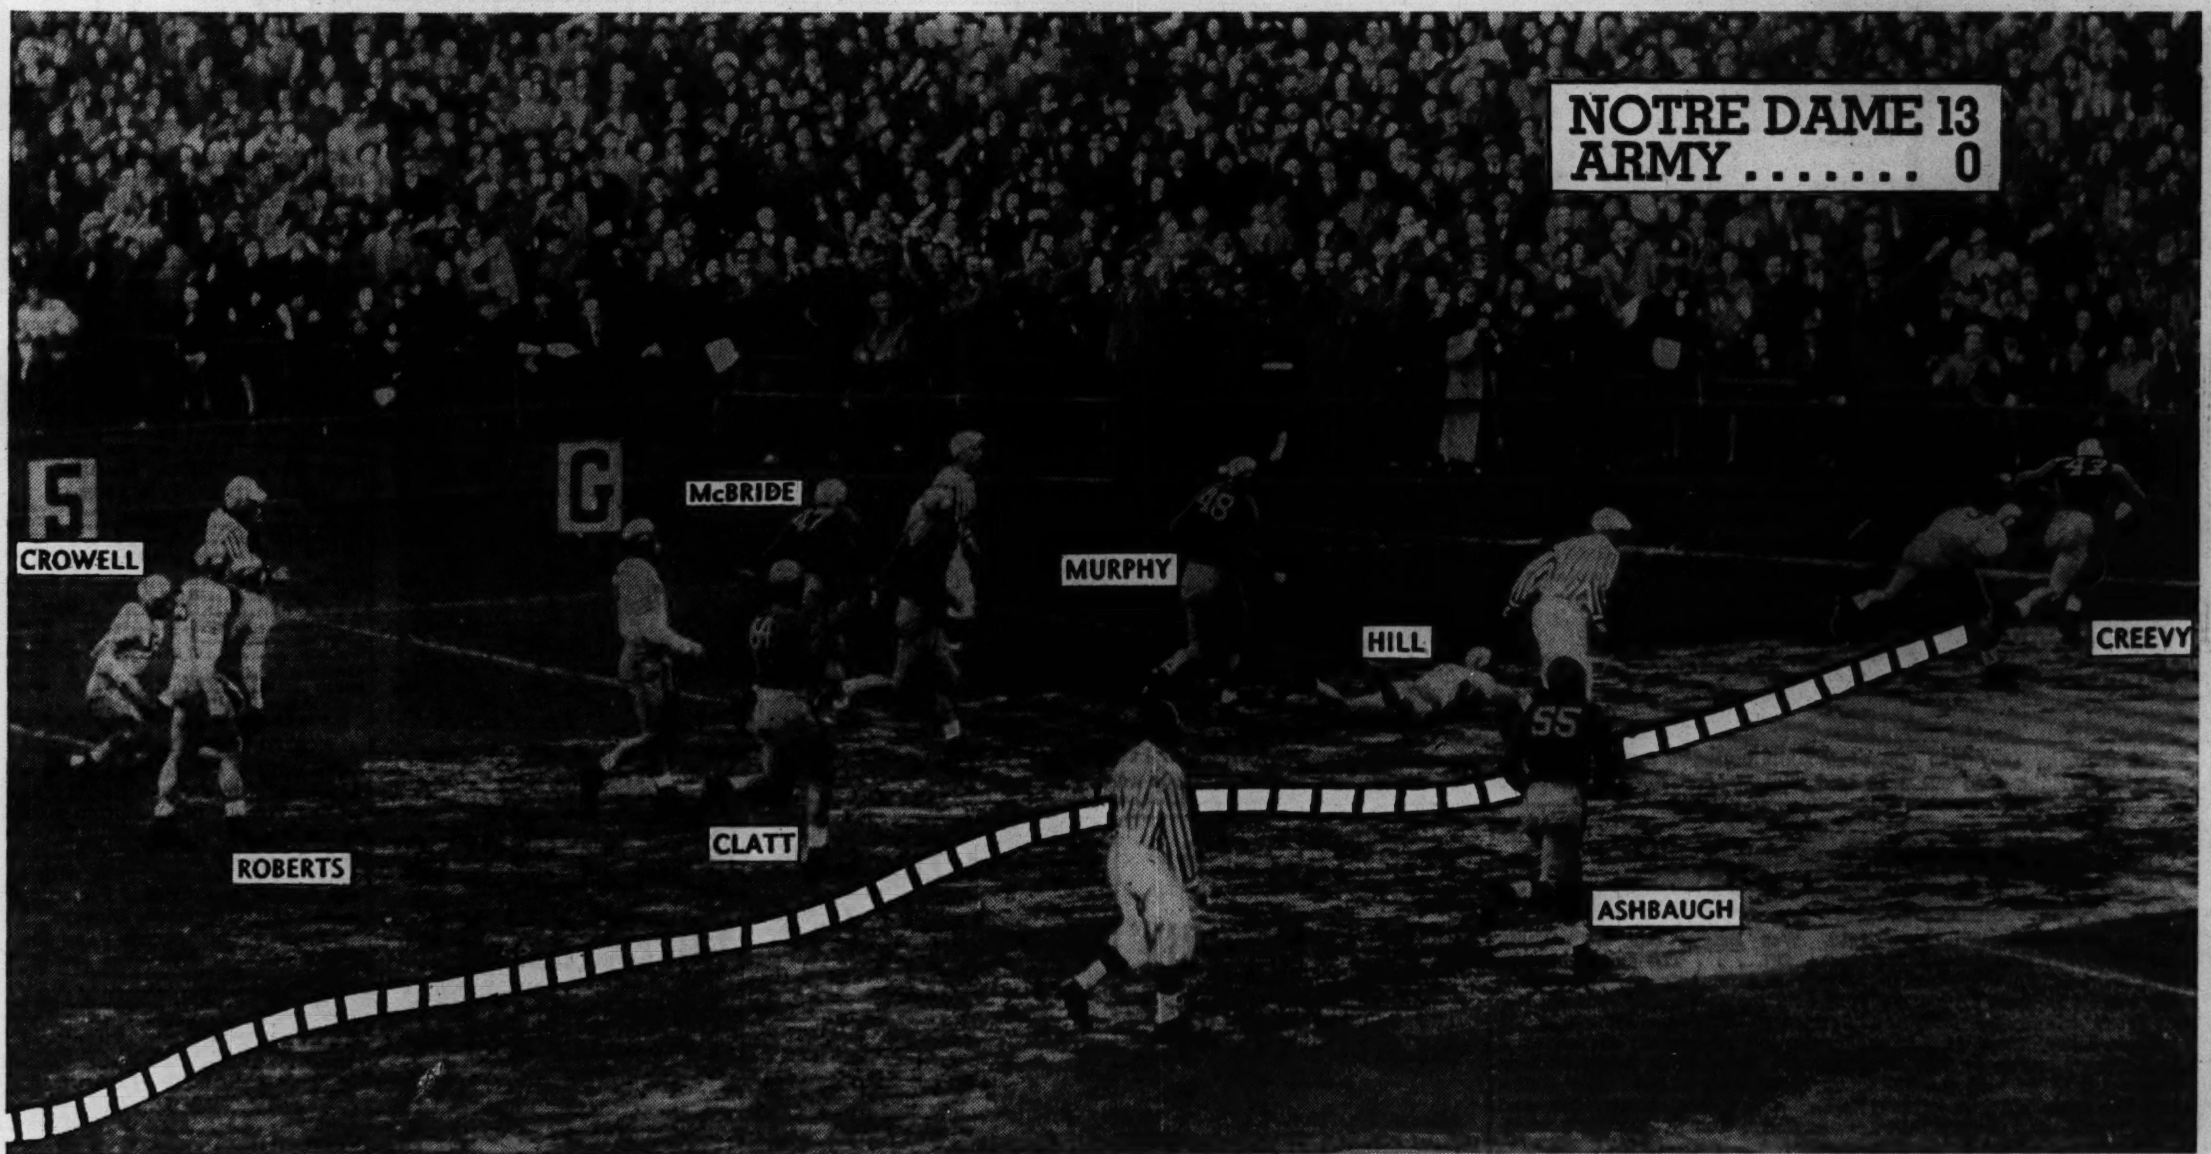
STATE NORMAL WINS COLLEGE HARRIERS' RACE

Macomb, Ill., Nov. 7 (AP).—Illinois State Normal won the Illinois college cross country race over Western Teachers' muddy 3.6 mile course today with 25 points. The host school was second with 45 and Wheaton third with 56. Entries from Charleston and Bradley did not report at the starting line. Individual places, and best times: First, John Twomey, Western, 19:03.4; second, Rogers, Normal, 19:31; third, Hansen, Normal; fourth, Priepot, Western; fifth, Steele, Normal; sixth, Thompson, Normal; seventh, Hess, Wheaton; eighth, Stewart, Wheaton; ninth, Morrison, Normal; tenth, Steat, Normal.

STRAIGHT DOWN THE MIDDLE! DICK CREEVY GIVES IRISH LEAD OVER CADETS



Right down the middle from the 15 yard line goes Dick Creevy, Notre Dame back from Chicago, to score first touchdown for the Irish against Army in third quarter of yesterday's game in Yankee stadium, New York. This was the scene as Creevy outdistanced last pursuer to score. Notre Dame added a second touchdown in the fourth period when Angelo Bertelli passed into the end zone where Capt. George Murphy grasped the ball after it was batted into the air by an Army defender. Only 10 seconds of the game remained after the score. It was Notre Dame's fifth straight victory. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Notre Dame Comes to Life in Last Half to Beat Army, 13-0

Clatt, hardest running back in the game, ripped off five yards at left tackle. Creevy earned a first down on Army's 24. Ashbaugh, taking a shovel pass from Bertelli, picked up 4 yards around his right end, and Clatt banged thru right tackle for 5. On the next play Creevy dashed thru right guard on a quick opening play and found himself in the clear with only sunshine and green grass between him and the goal. He went over standing up with Mazur and Hill, defending backs, trying in vain to grasp his flying heels. Bertelli's kick from placement was good, and Notre Dame led, 7 to 0.

Invade Irish Territory.

A short time later Notre Dame got the ball on its 24 when Mazur kicked out of bounds. Creevy, as usual, made 4 yards thru the line, but the Irish, who apparently felt it wouldn't be patriotic to overpower the Army, lifted their attack to the air, and Bertelli's pass was intercepted by Hill on the Cadets' 48. The Irish line stopped Hill twice for a total gain of only 2 yards, which obviously convinced Army that there was no use pursuing those tactics any longer. On the next play Mazur took the ball from Hill on a reverse and hurled a long pass to John Hennessey, an end, who was wrestled to earth by Bertelli on Notre Dame's 14. Thus in one stroke the Cadets had moved out of the valley into the loftier plateaus of Irish territory. It was the first time they had seen what the Notre Dame side of the 50 yard stripe looked like.

The brigade of gray clad Cadets, 2500 strong, were on their feet booming their sharp yell, "Fight Army, Fight." Two Army mules, which participated in the pregame ceremonies, began to kick their heels, and race up and down the sidelines. Clashmore Mike, the Irish terrier which serves as Notre Dame's mascot, was barking defiance from the opposite side of the field.

Halt Cadet Threat.

Wally Ziemba, Notre Dame center who was playing his first game since he was injured against Georgia Tech, dropped Mazur for no gain. The Army back then flipped a screen pass to George Troxell, Cadet full back who last year was a member of the Dartmouth squad, and he was downed by Bertelli and Creevy just short of a first down on the 5 yard line. An offside penalty set back the Cadets to the 10. Mazur's bullet pass to Troxell was knocked down by Ashbaugh. On fourth down Ziemba and Bob Neff, right tackle, rushed Mazur, and Bob Dove knocked down his attempt to get away a pass. Notre Dame took the ball on its 10, ending the Army's only scoring opportunity, altho early in the last period the Cadets returned to Notre Dame's 30, where a forward pass interception by Livingstone dashed Army hopes.

It was Notre Dame's ball on its 20 after Livingstone's interception, and the Irish marched 80 yards from that point to its final touchdown.

The Parade Is On.

The Irish succeeded in their second effort, because they capitalized on their superiority at straight football until time necessitated a last play forward pass. Cowhig got 4 yards at center and 14 around right end. Clatt in two plunges gained a first down on Notre Dame's 48. Creighton Miller made 4 and then caught a wide lateral from Bertelli for a first down on Army's 42.

Clatt cracked left tackle for 5 and repeated for 12 with two or three Army tacklers clinging to his waist and shoulders. His gains were an extraordinary demonstration of strength and drive. He rammed thru the middle for 5 yards, putting the ball on Army's 20 with only 30 seconds to play. Bertelli then threw a pass into the end zone. Hennessey, defending back, batted the ball into the air, and it came down into the arms of Capt. George Murphy for a touchdown with only 10 seconds remaining on the clock. Bertelli's kick from placement was wide.

Notre Dame got its first scoring chance right after the opening kickoff. Robert Woods, Army half back, fumbled on the first play after the kickoff and Lou Rymkus recovered for the Irish on Cadets' 31. Bertelli's 9 yard pass to Ashbaugh and 5 yard gain by Clatt gave Notre Dame a first down on the 17. Clatt made 2 at right guard. Bertelli twice was unable to find a receiver for his passes, and on fourth down John Creevey came in for Notre Dame and tried a field goal, but Army's left end, Dean Crowell, blocked the kick and recovered on the Cadet 17.

Play was in Army territory thruout the first half, but the Irish were unable to make good on two or three scoring opportunities. One of these threats ended with an Army forward pass interception in the end zone.

SATURDAY.
Chicago at Toronto.
Detroit at Montreal.
New York at Boston.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 7 [Special].—Chicago's Blackhawks, off to a winning start with a 5 to 1 victory over the Boston Bruins Thursday night in their first game of the season, meet the Red Wings tomorrow night in the first of five games to be played in eight days.

Manager Paul Thompson's skaters were impressive in their victory over the Bruins and he is confident that before the present road trip is concluded the Hawks will be in the physical trim necessary for the tough going expected in the National Hockey league this season.

The Red Wings, who by scoring 12 times Thursday against the New York Rangers marked up more tallies than ever were scored before by a team in the major league, will be after their third conscutive victory tomorrow night.

The Hawks last year were unable to defeat the Wings in Detroit, but outscored Jack Adams' club by five goals and won four more games than the Detroit outfit.

After tomorrow night's contest, the Blackhawks will face the Rangers in New York Tuesday; Montreal, Thursday; Toronto, Saturday, and the champion Maple Leafs in Chicago next Sunday. Iineups for tomorrw night's game follow:

MICHIGAN ROLLS OVER HARVARD FOR 35-7 VICTORY

tween the goal lines as well. His and Michigan's first touchdown was from the 9 yard line after a 91 yard advance in which Paul did some great sprinting along with Don Robinson and Bob Wiese. White's second, Michigan's fourth, was on a 32 yard pass from Bob Chappuis.

Tom Kuzma went for 13 yards to effect what proved to be the winning touchdown. A fumble by White was recovered by Merv Pregulman on the Harvard 13 to set up Kuzma's tally.

Elmer Madar scored on a 53 yard run after a pass interception and Bob Stenberg went over from the 1 yard line for Michigan's final touchdown after Cliff Wise had set up the situation by breaking thru with a 43 yard run to the Harvard 6.

Great Day for Jim.

Not the least distinguished of the Michigan performers was Jim Brieske, third string center, who converted the point after each of the five Michigan touchdowns. Brieske thus lifted his season total to 22, 19 out of 21 and 12 straight. The young man's cup of joy was filled to overflowing, however, when he was allowed to play center during the second half.

The Harvard touchdown was accomplished by Wayne Johnson Jr. in the final minute of the third quarter. It began to bud when Don Richards intercepted a pass on Michigan's 43. W. Gordon Lyle Jr., who later was severely injured, then got the ball to Michigan's 36 on two plays, whereupon Johnson made a first down on Michigan's 32. A pass, Richards to Johnson, put the ball on Michigan's 1 yard line and Johnson then went over. Bill Barnes converted the point from placement. With all its futility Harvard made a good showing in the statistics with 11 first downs to Michigan's 14. Harvard made 156 yards from rushing against Michigan's net of 280.

Each Completes Five Passes.

Harvard tried 15 passes and completed 5 for 67 yards, while Michigan tried 17, also completed 5 for 88 yards. Michigan, however, interecepted four passes, while Harvard grabbed off only one. Michigan gained 97 yards on pass interceptions, Harvard 10.

Least notable aspect of the game was the punting. Harvard averaged 21 yards on six kicks and Michigan averaged 16 yards on two boots.

Biggest ground gainer of the day was White, 86 net yards on 13 tries. Johnson was the main traveler for Harvard with 43 yards, closely pressed by Charles Corven, with 40.

Michigan, confronted with Notre Dame next Saturday and Ohio State the following week, made generous use of substitutes and sent in the third team in the final quarter.

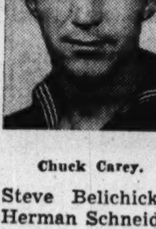
NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Great Lakes.

THIS station's football team, which recently beat Missouri, 17 to 0, for its third victory, will make its eighth appearance of the season against the Camp Grant Warriors in Bell bowl Wednesday. . . . The Great Lakes players will be led by Bruce Smith of Minnesota fame. . . . Other members of the back field will include Chuck Carey, Michigan State; Bob Sweiger, also a former Gopher player; Pete Kmetovic, ex-Stanford star; Steve Belichick, Western Reserve; Herman Schneidman, Iowa, and John Popov. . . . Smith, who was voted the most valuable All-Star in the game against the Bears on Aug. 28, hopes to be able to see a movie in which he is starred after the grid season ends for his team against an aggregation of southeastern stars in Memphis on Dec. 12. . . . Bruce attended the première of the film in his native town of Faribault, Minn., several weeks ago, but was kept so busy making speeches and obliging autograph collectors he didn't see the picture. . . . Smith, who is a specialist, 3d class, now is a company commander. . . .



Chuck Carey.

Tommy Freeman, former world welterweight champion, is going thru recruit training at this establishment. . . . Tom, who is 38 years old, enlisted as a seaman, 1st class, and will be assigned later to a fire department at another station. . . . Jimmy Basso, outfielder on the sailors' baseball team last summer, and Miss Constance Walker were married in the Naval hospital chapel a week ago. . . . Coxswain Robert L. Gums, who hails from Kenosha, Wis., and his crew of the 10th regiment won the first heat of competition in the whaleboat division during the week. . . . The 23d regiment scored a victory in the cutter division, the coxswain being Howard Jackson of Madison, Wis. . . . Four teams have been added to the Officers' Bowling league, the circuit's personnel now totaling 14 delegations. . . . A six team women's league, composed of navy nurses and officers' wives, also has been formed. . . . Two basketball leagues are in the midst of tournament play in Service school, a 12 team elimination tourney for night school barracks having passed the first round in building a gymnasium.

Fort Sheridan.

MONTE RUDOLPH, erstwhile civilian sports director at this fort, will be inducted at Camp Grant this week. . . . His job has been taken over by Lieut. Dee Pinneo, former athlete at Michigan State, under the direction of Capt. Elbert M. Hartom, special services officer. . . . Skip Hartom, young son of the captain, has been appointed official handler of the electric scoreboard for all post league basketball games. . . . The Cyclones, Sooners, and Huskers are in a three way tie for the Big Six league cage lead, while the Bakers and Cooks school, and the Motor Transport school are in a deadlock for leadership of the Tower loop. . . . Among prominent athletes attached to this camp are Paul Jones, North Dakota university; Jack King, River Falls Teachers' college, and Leland Verschuren, Seattle, Wash. . . . High scoring honors in the Officers Bowling league goes to Capt. Nathan Zolt, who shot a 204 game in competition during the week.

Camp Grant.

THE camp's basketball standard bearers will open the season against the professional Sheboygan Redskins in Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 17. Coach Lieut. Robert Harris has selected 15 of the best performers on the reservation to make up his team, including several former college and professional stars. . . . The centers will be Corp. Ernest Herbrechtsmeir, member of last year's delegation at the camp, and Pvt. Joe Frivaldsky, Baylor university; forwards, Privates Ray Adams and Don Blanken, and Corp. George Hogan, all alumni of the major league Chicago Bruins; guards, Pvt. Marvin Rottner, Loyola university, and Stanley Szukala, Chicago Bruins. . . . Among other candidates are Pvt. Andrew Skurski, Sergt. Harley Graf, and Pvt. Harry Heller. . . . Heller's alma mater is Central Missouri Teachers. . . . Also available, after the grid campaign is over, will be Pvt. Stanley Stasica, University of South Carolina, and Pvt. Ernest McCall, Bradley Tech. . . . Stasica and McCall will be in the lineup when the Warrior gridders meet Great Lakes in Bell bowl Wednesday.

Navy Pier.

THE pier cross country team, which defeated the University of Chicago, 23 to 36, on Oct. 31, to score its fifth consecutive triumph, will return to action against Notre Dame in a dual meet in South Bend Friday. . . . The pier harriers will be directed by Ensign Howard Paul and Chief Petty Officer John Flynn. . . . Five teams of the Monday night Bowling league were defeated by representatives of the Elgin Moose in Elgin last Sunday. . . . Company 17, with a team total of 2,444, led the station's color bearers. . . . Bob Nixon of company 17 won individual high honors by scoring a 618 series. . . . Nixon, who represents this establishment in the Arena House circuit, is in second place in the individual averages in this competition with a 180 percentage. . . . Joe Chief, also a member of the pier squad, is in possession of first place with a 188 average.

Glenview.

JOE KEENAN, Notre Dame athlete of few years ago, reported for duty at this air base on Thursday. . . . He came from the Iowa preflight school, where he was a member of the Seahawks football team. . . . Keenan, who stands 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 220, also is adept at basketball and may see action with Lieut. Bill Cerney's cage team. . . . Glenview will start its basketball season with a game against De Paul at De Paul Dec. 7. . . . The navy boys also will play Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest college, Illinois Institute of Technology, Camp Grant, Navy pier, and Loyola university. . . . Lieut. Cerney, athletic officer at this station, was a football star at Notre Dame, but failed to receive his share of the limelight because fate placed him on the same team as Elmer Layden of Four Horsemen fame.

Chanute Field.

LARRY DEW, student-private from Fayetteville, N. C., invaded the very highest reaches of basketball scoring when he poured in 40 points as his squadron scored an 87 to 10 victory in a recent intersquadron game at this army air forces technical training command school. . . . Dew played the game at Presbyterian college, Clinton, S. C., before entering the service. . . . Another squadron cage standout is Donovan [Red] Conner, 6 foot 6½ inch center, who formerly played with East Texas Teachers' college. . . . Two new bowling alleys are being constructed at this field, the addition increasing to 10 the number available to military personnel. . . . Nurses of the post have organized a league which is composed of eight teams.

BOLDEN TO MEET COLAN FRIDAY ON STADIUM CARD

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Nate Bolden, Chicago boxer, who was all set to eliminate Bob Pastor from future consideration as a heavyweight contender only to have Pastor announce his retirement from the ring prior to their scheduled match a week ago, will try his luck in a 10 round bout against Johnny Colan of New York in Chicago Stadium Friday.

Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun chose Colan to give Bolden his first test as a heavyweight after recalling fans had voted to see such a contest in the Marigold outdoor arena last summer. Because Anton Christoforidis had beaten Colan in the Stadium last May 20, however, the promoters gave Chris the assignment against Bolden instead.

Holds Chris to Draw.

Bolden's excellent performance in holding Chris to a draw decision earned for him the chance to appear as a windup principal in the world's largest indoor arena. However, while this achievement was meritorious, it made it hard to obtain Colan's signed agreement.

Paul Damski, representative of Colan, first demanded $10,000 to have his protége meet Bolden, double the sum Colan was offered to face Nate in that proposed outdoor contest. Damski finally capitulated, accepting 25 per cent of the net receipts, which is expected to be equivalent to $5,000.

Must Make Up $1,400.

Since the promoters expended $1,400 on various items in connection with the Pastor-Bolden fiasco, this expenditure will be added to expenses of the forthcoming Colan-Bolden encounter.

Colan, who will join the coast guard next month, has added seven pounds to his frame since last appearing in Chicago with Christoforidis, against whom he carried 173 pounds. While this excess poundage was expected to be a handicap for the hammered down boxer from Hell's Kitchen. Johnny's exploits in recent weeks belie this opinion. He has won his last six appearances, two by knockouts. In addition to beating Tommy Campanella, Al Boros, and Danny Cox [twice], Colan stopped Jack Marshall and Herb Marshall. Jack weighed 192 and Boros carried 195.

A 10 round semiwindup on Friday's program will bring together Sergt. Joe Muscato, Buffalo heavyweight, and Altus Allen, former International Golden Gloves champion.

Tickets are selling at $1.50, $2.50, $3.50, and $5, including tax.

There also will be a show in Marigold Gardens tomorrow, featured by an eight round event involving Quentin [Babe] Breese, Milwaukee junior welterweight, and Joe Dupont. Another eight round match will bring together Mickey Hayes, heavyweight, also of Milwaukee, and Frank Greene. Pvt. Ernie Derho, formerly of Minneapolis, but now stationed at an army camp in El Paso, Tex., will face Mike Sopko of East Chicago in a six rounder. Opponents in a five round contest will be Johnny O'Brien, Calumet City middleweight, and James Smyles, and Clarence Thurman, Danville, Ill., featherweight, and Young Ted Lewis.

Charles [Gorilla] Grubmyer and Ole Olson will be principals in the windup bout of a wrestling show in White City tomorrow.

Wales Defeats England in Rugby Game, 11 to 7

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP).—In the first international rugby game of the season, Wales defeated England, 11 to 7, today before a crowd of 20,000 at Swansea End. In a co-featured match, the Scottish Army eleven shut out the Netherlands Army, 8 to 0.

HAWKEYES JOLT BADGERS' TITLE HOPES BY 6 TO 0

Wisconsin Misses Score by Half a Yard.

vet can command. He sent his backs hurtling at the crumbling Badger line. He knew the answer to each situation, and it was Farmer who cautiously played out the string in the closing minutes to deny Wisconsin a final play.

The difference between the teams this afternoon was in mental preparation. The game was another chapter in the same book in which last week the Badgers wrote a victory over Ohio State before their homecomers in Madison. Today it was Iowa that played with abandon to outmaneuver a team that had been presumed a favorite.

11 Men Carry Burden.

The Hawkeyes committed mechanical mistakes, but they never failed to adjust their defenses properly. Seventeen Iowa men shared in the victory but the burden was carried by 11. Six played without relief. They were Bob Yelton, lanky left tackle, transferred from end after the opening game; Gene Curran, guard; John Staak, right tackle; Youel, Duke Curran, and Farmer.

Except at right guard, where Del Dickerhoof replaced Bob Penaluna, the other regulars, who had only a few minutes' rest, were Chuck Uknes, full back; Bob Lauterbach, center; Burkett and Bill Parker.

Wisconsin's early advantage of position was nullified by a sparkling 32 yard punt return by Duke Curran. From midfield, the Hawkeyes threatened at the start of the second period, but punted after being stopped on the Badgers' 31 yard line. On the fourth down return kick by Baumann, Farmer brought the ball back 11 yards to his own 45 yard stripe. Seven plays later Iowa had its touchdown.

Curran failed on the first, but Youel followed with a smash thru the Badger six man line for 4 yards. On third down Farmer went wide and threw a high wabbling pass which Curran came back to catch for a first down on Wisconsin's 29.

Farmer to Burkett for Score.

With Youel in motion to his right from Iowa's T formation, Curran went inside tackle for four yards on a quick opening play. He repeated between Ken Currier and Paul Hirsbrunner for 3 yards. Uknes then tried Gene Lyons' end and failed to gain. On fourth down, with three yards required to continue the drive, Farmer passed to Burkett, Iowa's right end, who raced down field behind Jack Wink, Wisconsin's defending left half back. Burkett caught the ball in the end zone. Harder blocked Farmer's place kick for the point.

Wisconsin's Harder received the kickoff and returned 16 yards to his 27 yard line. From this point the Badgers ran and passed to Iowa's 1 yard line where on second down, as time expired, Harder failed to score.

Passes Fail to Click.

Hirsch's third down pass to Mark Hoskins for 14 yards [Harder and Hirsch had lost 3 yards] gained 14 yards. Harder hit outside Yelton for 5 yards but Hirsch was stopped and the latter's pass was then incomplete. On fourth down Baumann punted but Iowa was offside, and the assessment revived Wisconsin's attack on its 48 yard line.

Hirsch again failed on a pass, but Harder passed to Dave Schreiner for a first down on Iowa's 21 yard line. One minute and 25 seconds remained to play. Hoskins turned Burkett's end for 3 yards on a reverse Harder plunged for 3 more at Stack's tackle position. The clock read 35 seconds as Wink returned to the game to take over direction from Ashley Anderson.

Wink called for a screen pass against Iowa's five man line. The linemen charged thru unimpeded and then Wink passed to Harder at the line of scrimmage where the Badger full back awaited behind his massed line. The group rolled down on Iowa's secondary but Youel and Curran and the other backs piled up the Badgers with Harder behind them on the Iowa 1 yard line.

Harder's Try Fails.

Iowa went into a six man line and Harder plunged after a back field shift to the right. He was stopped just short of the last line. As the seconds ticked off, Harder called for the ball. Wink was literally pushed out of the path of the pass from center, and Harder, without protection, tried to score by individual effort and failed.

third quarter twice gave Wisconsin the ball near midfield, but the Badgers' last threat did not materialize until the final period.

TURKEY, POTATO AND ONION PRICE RISE PERMITTED

OPA Fixes Rate for Seasonal Change.

Expect New Meat Cut

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—A further reduction in the amount of beef and veal available to the public is in prospect, government officials said today. They said the present 80 per cent allotment of beef and veal probably would be reduced to 70 per cent. The order may be issued next week. The necessity for the cut was understood to have resulted from heavy buying by the army and navy.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Stores got permission today from Price Administrator Leon Henderson to increase prices of potatoes, onions, and turkeys.

These and many other foods were placed under temporary price "freezes" Oct. 5. Today's order is the first of a series designating permanent price controls.

For the housewife, Henderson said, the effects of the order, some of which probably will be noticeable within a week, will be:

About one cent a pound increase on Maine potatoes, but probably no change on western potatoes; about one-half cent a pound increase on onions; no material change on turkeys during the holiday season, but a 3 per cent increase in February.

Meanwhile the labor department reported that the food bill of the average American family rose 2.4 per cent between Sept. 15 and Oct. 13.

Foods Up 16% in a Year.

At the mid-October levels, foods in retail grocery stores sold 6.6 per cent above the level of mid-May and 16 per cent above the October, 1941, levels. The cost index stood at 129.6 per cent of the 1935-'39 average in mid-October, the highest since May, 1930.

Most of the Sept. 15-Oct. 13 rise occurred before the OPA brought under price control an additional 30 per cent of the family food bill.

Henderson explained that the foods involved in today's announcement were pegged Oct. 5 at their Sept. 28-Oct. 2 levels, but in preparing a permanent regulation he found it only fair to permit "normal seasonal fluctuations."

Among other foods now controled by temporary orders for which Henderson soon will issue permanent regulations are: Butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, dry edible beans, flour, mutton, canned milk, cornmeal, and citrus fruits.

The orders on potatoes, onions, and turkeys specified prices or price formulaes for every transaction from the farm to the consumer.

Warns 4,000 Retailers.

For the consumer, Henderson said, "the new ceilings will give assurance of a stable and reasonable price for turkeys during peak sales in the holiday season and will prevent civilian shortages of beef, pork, and lamb from bringing excessive turkey prices."

Henderson also announced that he had sent more than 4,000 warnings to retailers found by investigators to be breaching the cost-of-living rules.

"Many others," he said, "who plainly showed willful violations were not included among those receiving warning notices. These latter cases, including many instances of plain overcharging, selling of inferior quality goods, and reduction of quantity in packaged goods, are being reserved for more drastic action."

CORN PRICES RISE THEIR SHIPMENTS AS FARMERS CUT

A reduction in offerings of cash corn at terminal markets and reports that farmers were holding grain for higher prices started buying in futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The market showed a firm undertone from the start and closing sales were ¼ to ⅝ cent higher with December at 83⅝ cents a bushel, highest for more than a month.

During the last week the price of the lower grades of new corn have advanced as much as 10 cents a bushel, brokers reported, with industries and elevator interests competing for the reduced offerings. Expectation that the department of agriculture will announce the government loan rate on the 1942 corn crop this week is said to be limiting sales.

Strength in corn and an upturn of ½ to ⅞ cent in Kansas City wheat futures brought in short covering which raised Chicago wheat prices ⅛ to ¼ cent with December at $1.26⅝.

WEEK'S AVERAGE HOG PRICE AT 23 YEAR TOP FOR EARLY NOVEMBER

Packers in the Chicago stockyards paid an average of $14.50 a hundred pounds for last week's hog supply, more than in any corresponding November week in 23 years. The average was $4.15 or 40 per cent above a year ago and $8.30 or 133 per cent over two years ago. Yesterday's sales were mostly 10 to 20 cents under a week earlier, altho some heavy lard hogs showed 5 to 10 cents advance.

Top grades of cattle last week rose to new five year peaks, steers selling up to $17.50 or 15 cents above the previous high point. Heifers, at $16.60, were highest since September, 1937, and best for November since 1918.

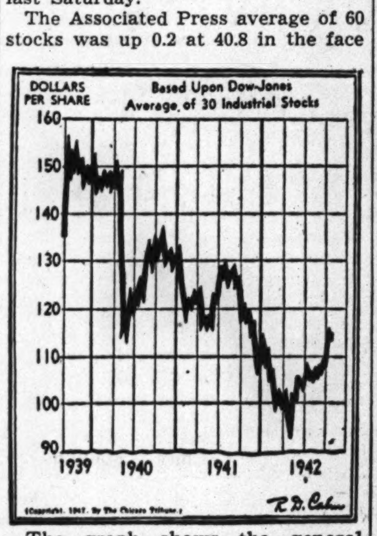
Stocks Stem Profit Cashing, Reach '42 High

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The stock market today ended a week of general gains with a rise despite substantial profit cashing.

Buying of so-called peace stocks in the industrial section as a result of the apparent axis defeat in Africa helped prices generally at the start, as was the case yesterday. Numerous favorites touched highs for a year or longer.

The market was the broadest and most active for any two hour trading day since last December. Volume was 553,280 shares, compared with 350,210 last Saturday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.2 at 40.8 in the face of a decline of 0.1 in the railroad group. It was a new top since Nov. 5, 1941, and a net gain for the week of 0.8.



Copyright, 1942, by The Chicago Tribune.

Du Pont gained 2½ and lesser improvement was shown by Westinghouse Electric, American Can, Consolidated Edison, North American, Armour, Wilson & Co., General Electric, Dome Mines, American Smelting, United States Gypsum, and Omnibus corporation.

Brightening the market also was the sale of two stock exchange seats for $30,000 each, up $3,000 to the best price of the year.

CHICAGO STOCKS RISE.

New high prices for this year were established by 12 stocks yesterday in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of the 83 issues traded in volume of 23,000 shares, 46 were higher, 16 lower, and 21 unchanged.

Those at new highs were Allied Laboratories common, Crane, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Peabody Coal B common, Pure Oil, Quaker Oats common, Radio corporation, Jersey], Union Carbide, and Walgreen.

RAIL BONDS DECLINE.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—A large part of this week's rise in low priced rail bonds was canceled today by profit selling of obligations of roads in reorganization. As the carriers reacted there were indications of some switching of interest to various utility and industrial issues.

Several foreign dollar bonds moved up fractions to 2 or more points on buying associated with the axis rout in Egypt.

SLOWER SCHEDULES ADD HOUR TO CRACK CHICAGO-N. Y. TRAINS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Eastern railroads may slow passenger train schedules wherever necessary as a means of improving utilization of locomotives and passenger cars, the Office of Defense Transportation announced today.

Each railroad will decide which schedules should be lengthened in view of present traffic conditions, and put changes in effect by Dec. 6.

The running time of two crack New York-Chicago trains, New York Central's Twentieth Century Limited, and Pennsylvania's Broadway Limited, will be increased one hour.

ODT said slower schedules will make it possible to add more coaches and handle a heavier volume of passengers for each train, enable railroads to maintain schedules better, and permit withdrawal of some secondary trains.

FOREIGN OWNED PATENTS WILL BE SOLD AS WAR AID

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—The government will sell at a nominal price to American industry foreign owned patent applications seized from axis owners, Leo T. Crowley, alien property custodian, announced tonight.

Many of the patents, covering latest developments in industrial processes and designs, "can improve American processes and devices," Crowley said in disclosing this departure from traditional secrecy on patent applications.

In line with President Roosevelt's instructions to use all means to put enemy owned property and patents to war use, publication of the printed copies will start in December. Meanwhile, Crowley said he would make the information available to any person having a legitimate interest. Requests may be filed with Crowley's office in Washington on a form obtainable there and in Chicago or New York.

MORTGAGE FIRMS ADVISE SERVICE MEN ON DEBT LAW

Formation of a nation-wide free advisory and counseling service to aid service men by explaining the provisions of the soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act was announced yesterday by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

Officials said mortgage bankers indorse the intentions of the act, which seeks to protect the service man with a mortgage loan outstanding, but warned, that it is a serious mistake for service men to forget their loans because it means returning to civilian life faced with large obligations.

One of the unfortunate results of the act, the officials said, has been to shut off credit to many men of military age and subject to call who otherwise would be good risks.

Chicago District Steel Mill Rate to Slacken This Week

Steel ingot production in the Chicago district is scheduled to start this week at 101.6 per cent of theoretical plant capacity, against 102.7 per cent in the preceding week, Dow, Jones & Co. reported yesterday.

READY TO RULE ON PAY HIKES

Employés, employers, and labor union officials in the Chicago area will use the office of the wages and hours division of the department of labor in the Merchandise Mart as a clearing house for information and problems connected with potential wage increases. Thomas O'Malley, regional division head, explained the system thru which problems associated with the freezing of wages will be worked out.

In general, the office in the Merchandise Mart will be for those who are making less than $5,000 a year. Other wage problems will go to the bureau of internal revenue for preliminary processing, O'Malley said.

Board to Rule on Wages.

Applications for wage increases, either by the employé or the employer, will be given the wage and hour division. That office will then cull those applications which obviously would be turned down.

Applications which deserve consideration will then be referred to Dr. Robert Burns, formerly of the University of Chicago, and now regional director of the War Labor board. Dr. Burns, aided by a panel of 12 men, of which one-third are labor representatives, one-third from management, and one-third from the general public, will hear the reasons for the requested pay, and any objections which may be raised. After the evidence is taken, a ruling on the particular case will be made.

Four Reasons for Raises.

In general there are four reasons which may be considered favorable for a raise. They are in instances of maladjustments, cases of pay inequalities, cases of wages below standard of living, and cases in which pay changes are needed for the manipulation of the flow of man power.

Refusals of pay increases by O'Malley's office will be based on War Labor board rulings in Washington, D. C., an assistant in the office said. He explained that appeals from the ruling of Dr. Burns' jury can be made only to the War Labor board in Washington.

The Chicago office and branch offices over the area, in addition to receiving applications for wage increases, will anso questions of the public in regard to the program.

Army Guards Railway Hit by 84 Man Strike

Painesville, O., Nov. 7 (AP).—With federal troops mounting its six locomotives and guarding its right of way, the small but important Fairport, Painesville & Eastern railroad resumed hauling war goods today in the face of a strike by 84 men.

An army engineer battalion, augmented by military police, moved in upon the road's 3½ mile Fairport-Painesville link at 7 a. m. and within three hours had the locomotives shuttling supplies to and from chemical and magnesium factories near Lake Erie.

Cite Damage in Delay.

"Continued delay in the delivery of vital raw materials would have resulted immediately in irreparable damage to equipment in plants engaged in essential war work," the war department stated.

The strike was called yesterday by district 50 of the United Mine Workers, which announced it represented maintenance, shop repair and section men, and car inspectors. Maurice J. Dineen, regional director of the John L. Lewis union, said the men were protesting against employment of 30 nonunion workers.

Doubts Early Settlement.

"Prospects for a settlement don't look very good," Dineen said. He declared some district 50 members at the Diamond Alkali company, war plant served by the road, were refusing to load cars.

Other plants served by the road's Fairport-Painesville section are the Diamond Magnesium company, which recently went into production of magnesium ingots, and the Industrial Rayon company. The road connects at Painesville with trunk lines.

L. D. Dixon, the road's general manager, referred inquiries to army officers, who said the soldiers were ordered out only after other efforts to restore operations had been unsuccessful.

STORE REOPENED ALTHO STRIKERS IGNORE WLB PLEA

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 7 (AP).—Gimbel Brothers department store reopened today after a one day shutdown caused by a strike of three AFL unions which continued despite a War Labor board request that striking employés go back to work.

Strikes by two of the three unions —Building Service Employés and Hotel and Restaurant Employés alliance —also hampered operations at Kaufmann's and Frank & Seder department stores.

Picketing continued at all three stores. Retail Clerks' Protective association members, not included in the WLB appeal, joined Gimbel picket lines. Service employés struck first, seeking a 20 per cent wage boost, checkoff of dues and a 40 hour week.

Bank Clearings in Chicago Decline to $396,700,000

Mainly because of the election day closing, bank clearings slumped last week below the preceding week, but were above a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The total for last week was $396,700,000, compared with 425 million dollars in the preceding week. The association's report follows:

	Clearings	Balances
Monday	$ 69,000,000	$ 3,300,000
Tuesday	Election day
Wednesday	92,000,000	10,100,000
Thursday	88,700,000	7,300,000
Friday	74,600,000	5,000,000
Saturday	72,400,000	8,200,000
Week's total	$396,700,000	$33,900,000
Last year	$393,500,000	$30,700,000

140,000 Privately Financed War Homes Begun in 1942

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Construction of 140,000 privately financed dwelling units was started during the first 10 months this year by builders operating under its war housing program, the Federal Housing Administration reported today. Construction of 13,800 one to four family dwellings to provide 15,600 homes for war workers was started in October compared with 11,378 involving 12,575 units in September.

U. S. WAVES BIG STICK AT HOME TO BACK RULES

War Agencies Keep Courts Busy.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—While the army and the navy fights the axis in far places, Uncle Sam still waves his big stick in all directions at home.

Conditions on the domestic front are little less kaleidoscopic than those beyond the seas, but the locale is more often than not the federal courts. The home front is an important sector in the world scene, and much of the widespread crackdown has been in the name of keeping the machinery running.

Activity centers in the justice department, which has been investigating or prosecuting in such varied fields as railroads and railbirds, meat packing and munitions making, brick and bread baking, patents and plastic, milk and music, acids and aluminum, spies, sedition, and sabotage.

Other units have not been far behind. The Federal Communications commission is dialed in on everything that goes thru the air. The treasury and the alien property custodian have been interested in the $7,000,000,000 of holdings of enemy aliens, with the result that the government controls some important businesses.

Fights With Injunctions.

The Office of Price Administration has been trying to maintain its ceilings with injunctions. The War Labor board is working to solve employer-employé problems by mediation. In a few cases where strikes have affected war production, the government has directed the army or navy to take over plants temporarily.

The postoffice department has been active against some newspapers and magazines on two grounds—printing either seditious or salacious matter. The Federal Trade commission complained against the advertising practices of some of the largest tobacco companies as well as against the operation of small groups accused of obtaining personal data under the guise of government activity.

Biggest single project is the work of some 4,000 agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who match wits and daring with the secret agents of the axis countries. They have broken up two major syp rings and rounded up two bands of spy saboteurs who landed from submarines.

Transport Inquiry Under Way.

The anti-trust division of the justice department has under way an investigation of the entire transportation industry which will involve the largest segment of business ever covered by a Sherman act inquiry. The division also has gone into court against the nearly 1,300 member newspapers of the Associated Press in an effort to force the association to open its membership to any one willing and able to pay the cost of the service.

On dozens of smaller fronts—from contracts for window cleaning to violations of War Production board orders —the anti-trust division has been active. Such giants of industry as E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., General Electric company, and Standard Oil of New Jersey have been indicted on charges of restraining production, dividing markets, or fixing prices in materials needed for war.

The war frauds unit of the justice department has been prosecuting alleged collusive bidding on contracts with the government. Several indictments already have been obtained.

53 CHICAGO AREA FIRMS GET WAR ORDERS IN WEEK

Seventy-six new war contracts were awarded 53 Chicago area companies last week, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced yesterday. Fourteen of the companies had not previously participated in war production, Lyons said.

He estimated that since the beginning of the war production program 1,756 Chicago area firms have received 8,118 federal contracts totaling $1,857,539,000, of which $1,013,403,000 was for manufactured goods and $844,136,000 for construction of war plant facilities.

People and Events

Harry Kunin has resigned as operating manager of Sprague, Warner & Co., effective immediately, it was announced yesterday. Kunin, a former president of the company, had retained his position under terms of the agreement by which the company's capital stock was sold recently to the C. D. Kenny company of Baltimore. He had been with Sprague, Warner & Co. since 1939.

Directors of Clark Equipment company, Chicago, yesterday elected John M. Clark to the board.

Needham, Louis & Brorby, Inc., Chicago advertising firm, announced that William P. Bager, chief of copy, has entered the army as a private. Bager has been with the firm since 1934.

Nearing Arms Goal--Knudsen; U. S. Man Power Ample--OWI

Worker Morale High

BY WARD WALKER.

America's production drive is more than half way to its goal, Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen, director of production for the war department, said in a press conference yesterday at the Chicago club.

That goal was set last winter and the deadline was fixed at June, 1943, Gen. Knudsen recalled. The production figure was calculated to provide an irresistible wave of planes, tanks, and guns to send against the axis in never-ending streams.

Most Construction Done.

He said that in his opinion most of the construction work for the armament drive has been done. "We may have to put up a building here or there," he said, "but the major job now is supplying transportation and raw materials."

Gen. Knudsen estimated that the production rate is between 50 and 60 per cent of the 1943 goal, but he parried all questions as to when the mark will be reached with: "I can't answer that. But the second half will be quicker than the first."

Sees Tough Job Ahead.

"We're off to a pretty good start," he said, "but there's a pretty tough job ahead. We'll give the tools to the boys out there on the fronts—they'll do that job."

Gen. Knudsen, who worked his way out of the day labor class to the top of General Motors corporation, said his background qualifies him to know American shops and American workers.

"Worker morale is high," he said. "If we can give the workers the materials to handle, we can knock this stuff out like nobody's business."

He said that aside from a few shipbuilding areas in the northwest, he has encountered no man power shortages.

Gen. Knudsen inspected six plants in the Chicago area and then took a plane to Detroit. He expects to return to Washington on Monday.

Vast Pool Untapped

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—No serious shortage of man power, such as exists in Japan and Germany, threatens the United States, the Office of War Information reported today.

"While Germany long ago reached maximum utilization of her man power and Japan has faced a labor shortage for two years, the United States has great unused resources after spending the first two years of the war production effort in taking up the slack in its labor force," the federal agency said.

Meet It Before It Arises.

"The talk about man power shortage in America is not interpreted as a sign of alarm at a serious shortage such as Germany has known for more than three years. It is merely evidence that America is preparing to meet a problem before it develops in a serious form. That problem can be met successfully without sweeping away the high standards which the United States set up in protecting working men and women."

The optimistic statement of the man power problem was interpreted in the capital as further evidence that President Franklin D. Roosevelt intends to delay any request to congress for enactment of labor draft legislation. The decision has been attributed to the overwhelming Republican victories at Tuesday's election.

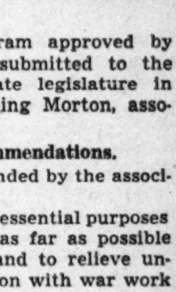
Doesn't Want Draft Now.

For weeks administration leaders have been conjuring up alarming forecasts of grave shortage in man power. The first indication that the President was putting the brakes on man power legislation came yesterday when congressional leaders said the President does not wish congress to enact any legislation at this time.

President Roosevelt's declaration yesterday against suspension or repeal of the 40 hour week was seen as inspiring the OWI statement's assertion that the man power problem can be met without sweeping away labor standards.

Industry Asks Rigid Economy of Legislature

An appeal for strict wartime economy in the expenditure of money, man power, and materials was made to state and local governments yesterday by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. It also urged improved accounting methods and simpler financial reports that the public can understand.



Sterling Morton.

This fiscal program approved by directors will be submitted to the leaders of the state legislature in January, said Sterling Morton, association president.

List of Recommendations.

Policies recommended by the association:

1. Outlays for nonessential purposes should be reduced as far as possible both for economy and to relieve unnecessary competition with war work for materials and labor.
2. Capital commitments should be reduced to the minimum or postponed until after the war.
3. Efforts should be made to reduce all indebtedness, and attempts to borrow new funds should be halted.
4. Funds accumulated for tax purposes which are not needed should be utilized to reduce debts.
5. The tax system and its administration should be made more efficient, with waste and inequity eliminated.

Difficult to Get Information.

Because of present practices respecting budgets and reports, said the association, the ordinary citizen is not able to obtain specific information about any government without much research. Until such information is made readily available, it asserted, citizens will be hampered in the effective control of their government and taxpayers will be skeptical of requisitions for funds.

Because of the vast extension of governmental services in the last quarter century, money required for the support of these services, the association asserted, has increased accordingly, with Illinois' present outlay 600 million dollars yearly.

Amphibian War Vehicles Use Rubber Auto Springs

Rubber springs, originally devised by the B. F. Goodrich company for use on automobiles, are being used on amphibian war vehicles, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was told last night in New York. A company spokesman described the spring as a simple steel cylinder and shaft, with the space between cylinder walls and shafts filled with rubber. Springing is accomplished, he said, by the twisting movement in the rubber.

SURVEY OF ILLINOIS' ABILITY TO TURN OUT RUBBER COMPLETED

The survey of Illinois resources for rubber production, made at the behest of Gov. Green, has been completed and the rubber advisory committee he appointed in an effort to bring the synthetic rubber industry to the state will meet in Chicago Tuesday to discuss the findings.

Dean C. M. Thompson, state rubber coördinator, announced completion of the survey, and Gov. Green said that the report will be delivered to William Jeffers, federal rubber coördinator, and others in charge of locating synthetic rubber plants.

"The report has surprised all of us in that it exceeds all our largest estimates as to Illinois' resources available for synthetic rubber production," the governor said.

The state is seeking a share in the synthetic rubber program because of its abundant supplies of coal, grain, and oil, factors in the manufacture of the synthetic product, plus transportation and power facilities.

KRESGE REPORTS 21.8 PCT. RISE IN OCTOBER'S SALES

S. S. Kresge & Co., yesterday reported October sales were $18,406,498, an increase of 21.8 per cent from the $15,102,025 reported in Oectober, 1941. Ten months' sales, for the period ended Oct. 31, totaled $150,518,249, an increase of 15.2 per cent over 1941.

October sales of Speigel, Inc., Chicago mail order house, decreased 29 per cent to $4,577,091 from $6,451,396 in October last year. Sales for the 10 months decreased 21.75 per cent to $33,044,012.

Two Railroads Report Increases in Earnings

Northern Pacific railroad yesterday reported September net income was $2,181,827, compared with $1,557,796 in September, 1941. Nine months' net income amounted to $7,968,561, against $4,784,882 last year. Chicago, Minneapolis, and Omaha railroad reported September net income was $257,838, compared with $66,498, and nine month profit was $226,428, against a loss of $548,211 a year ago.

WARD ORDERED TO GRANT UNION SECURITY TO CIO

Checkoff, Grievance Plan Provided.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—A unanimous decision by the War Labor board today directed Montgomery Ward & Co. to include union security, arbitration, and seniority provisions in a contract with the CIO United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employés of America, which represents the 6,800 employés of the company in Chicago.

The board previously ordered an increase of 5 cents an hour for the employés.

Voluntary Checkoff Ordered.

The new order directs that the contract include a standard maintenance of membership clause, provisions for adoption of a grievance procedure, and a voluntary and revokable checkoff clause providing that any employé may request the company to deduct union dues from his pay and that "the company will be bound to comply with such a request until the employé revokes it in writing or ceases to be employed by the company."

These recommendations, the board said, were made "in the hope and belief that experience, which is the only true guide in industrial relations, will demonstrate their value in removing sources of discontent and in promoting morale and harmonious relations."

The board said that in addition to its headquarters in Chicago, Montgomery Ward operates eight mail order houses and some 650 retail stores and warehouses.

Contracts Termed Identical.

In 24 of these 658 Montgomery Ward units, the board said, the company had written contracts with labor organizations, including both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

"Each of the contracts," the board added, "is substantially identical and consists of a form worked out by the Chicago office—the same form, with immaterial variations, which was offered the union in this case, and the only form on the basis of which the company has been willing to negotiate."

NO COMMENT BY WARD

Montgomery Ward & Co. officials in Chicago said last night that they did not wish to comment on the ruling issued during the day by the War Labor board. The WLB accepted in full the recommendation made earlier by a panel.

At a hearing Wednesday, Wayne L. Morse, WLB member, threatened the company with "whatever forces of government are necessary" when its representative indicated that the company would resist the union maintenance provision. Morse assailed a "position of rugged individualism on the part of any employer."

The company, at the Wednesday hearing, said its stand was based on the premise that "American principles of liberty require freedom of a worker to join, not to join, or to resign from a union."

SALESMEN SEEK GAS; SOCIALIZING SCHEME CHARGED

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 7 [Special]. —President Roosevelt, congressmen and other government officials will be bombarded next week with letters requesting gasoline and tires for traveling salesmen, John Dow, Bloomington, president of the American Travelers' association, announced today.

With salesmen off the road, approximately 48 million dollars a week will have to be paid out for 16 weeks in unemployment insurance, the letters are to say, adding that an estimated 4 million traveling salesmen pay more than 2½ billion dollars in income taxes.

Dow said traveling men believe the government deliberately is cutting down the possibilities of selling as a move toward collectivization. This would be done, he said, by eliminating the small retailer and channeling goods to a few large distributors who could easily be controled.

FINANCE COMPANIES.

Finance companies for some time have faced the problem of securing new outlets for funds which will produce a return sufficient to fill the gap in earnings caused by the reduction of installment receivables on consumers' goods.

A halt in the manufacture and sale of automobiles has been the principal factor in the steep decline in the volume of business of finance companies. Automobile financing in the United States in the first eight months of 1942 amounted to about 17 per cent of the dollar volume of the corresponding period of 1941. Retail automobile receivables outstanding on Aug. 31, 1942, were about 55 per cent of the dollar volume at the end of 1941.

It has been estimated that by mid-1943 receivables will decline to about 10 per cent of the total at the end of 1941, assuming continuation of the war.

* * *

Financing of consumers' goods other than automobiles also has dropped considerably since last April, when the manufacture and sale of many goods were restricted. The aggregate of outstanding installment paper of all types held by finance companies on Aug. 31 was 55 per cent of the total at the end of 1941.

For the duration of the war some earning power may be maintained by large finance companies thru the use of extensive liquid funds for investment in other lines.

Several major companies have purchased outright or have obtained substantial interests in manufacturing enterprises related to war work. In other instances large sums have been advanced for financing manufacturers engaged solely in war production.

The return from investments and financing of this nature is expected to be good during the war, altho not as high as the return on installment financing of durable goods. However, net results over a period of years are believed to be more uncertain than in the case of normal operations.

* * *

The downward trend of finance company earnings is expected to continue thru 1943. By then many of these organizations may resemble investment companies in the scope of their operations.

Improvement in the earning power of finance companies is not expected until the postwar period when the production of automobiles and other durable goods is resumed on a large scale.

RAILWAY SUPPLY MAKER REPORTS SMALLER PROFIT

Poor & Co. Earnings Drop for Quarter and Year.

Poor & Co., Chicago manufacturer of railway track equipment, yesterday reported reduced profits for the 3, 9, and 12 months ended Sept. 30. Third quarter earnings were $166,000, equal to $1.03 a share on the class A stock, compared with $239,000, or $1.49 a share.

Nine month net income fell to $480,000, or $3 a share on the class A stock, from $759,000, or $4.74 a share, in the first nine months of 1941. Net earnings in the 12 months were $733,000, or $4.58 a share, against $849,000, or $5.31 a share.

The report said further consideration will be given by directors, Nov. 23, to payment against class A dividend arrears of $2.25 a share.

Federal Taxes Increase.

Federal income and excess profits tax provisions rose to $489,000 in the September quarter from $265,000 a year ago, and to $1,690,000 from $879,000 for the 12 month period.

"The level of our operations continues at about the same rate as has been maintained thruout the year," President Fred A. Poor said, "and while it is possible there may be some slackening in the last quarter, we do not expect that this will seriously affect the results for the year as a whole."

Net income of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Ltd., Montreal, increased to $10,897,439 in the 12 months ended July 31, compared with $8,110,012 in the preceding 12 months, despite a steep increase in taxes to $15,656,484 from $4,043,314. Earnings per share were $5.75, against $4.17. Sales climbed to $207,892,397 from $133,850,357.

Get Five Year Credit.

President Samuel Bronfman said American subsidiaries entered into a new bank credit agreement during the year which enables them to borrow money up to five years.

Net income of the North American Car corporation, Chicago, rose to $463,542 in the nine months ended with September, compared with $322,679 last year.

39 U. S. SCHOOLS CLOSE OR MERGE BECAUSE OF WAR

Junior Colleges Hard Hit by Enrollment Drop.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—At least 39 colleges and professional schools have closed their doors or merged with other institutions since last spring, records of the United States office of education and the American Association of Junior Colleges disclosed today. Twenty-five were junior colleges.

The office of education is conducting a study of enrollments to determine the war's effect on higher education.

Henry G. Badger, who is working on the survey, said his information, still incomplete, showed that 14 institutions above junior college rank had succumbed, most of them giving as reasons lack of money and loss of students and faculty members to the armed forces and war jobs.

The steady national increase in junior colleges appeared to have been halted by the war, altho a spokesman for the American Association of Junior colleges said some larger junior colleges actually had increased their enrollments. Most of those which closed were schools with less than 100 students.

Only Four Arts Colleges.

There now are 614 junior colleges, a net loss of 13 since January, the association said. Altho 25 have been lost, 12 new ones have opened.

Badger said his records showed that only four senior colleges which lost their identities granted the bachelor of arts degree. He listed these as De Sales, Toledo, O.; St. Vincent's, Shreveport, La.; St. Joseph's, Princeton, N. J., and Yeshiva, New York City.

He listed the following as closing or merging:

Westminster Law school, Denver, Colo.; Lamont School of Music, Denver; Los Angeles University of Applied Science, Los Angeles, Cal.; Des Moines College of Law, Des Moines, Ia.; Kentucky State Colleg of Optometry, Mt. Sterling, Ky.; Graduate School of Jewish Social Science, New York City; Hartwick Theological seminary, New York; Bridgeport City Normal school, Bridgeport, Conn.; Eastern State Normal school, Castine, Me., and Posse Normal school, Kendall Green, Mass.

One in Des Plaines.

The association listed the following junior colleges which closed or were merged:

El Dorado Junior college, El Dorado, Ark.; Gunston Hall Junior college and Columbus University Junior college, Washington, D. C.; Emory Junior college, Valdosta, Ga.; Maine Township Junior college, Des Plaines, Ill.; Dowling college, Des Moines; Bethel Women's college, Hopkinsville, Ky.; Dodd college, Shreveport; National Park college, Forest Glen, Md.; Hillman Junior college, Clinton, Miss.; Great Falls Junior college, Great Falls, Mont.

The junior college association said that the opening of more war courses in the two year schools might brighten the future of some.

THOUSANDS PAY GEORGE M. COHAN FINAL TRIBUTE

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Thousands of mourners stood in the aisles and crowded the sidewalks outside St. Patrick's cathedral today as a solemn high mass was celebrated for George M. Cohan, veteran Broadway star, producer, and author. Cohan, who was 64 years old, died Thursday.

The Rev. Francis X. Shea, vicar general of the archdiocese of New York, celebrated the mass and the Rev. John F. White, chaplain of the Catholic Actors' guild, of which Cohan was president, was deacon.

It was revealed today that a few days before his death Cohan got out of bed, had his chauffeur drive him for one last ride down Broadway, and stopped in a theater and stood for a few minutes watching a matinée.

Eugene McDanial, Pana Youth, Killed in Action

Pana, Ill., Nov. 7 [Special].—The war department today wired Edward Mathias, a Pana township employé, that his nephew, Eugene McDanial, 22 years old, had been lost in action on a United States submarine. McDanial was well known in Pana and nearby towns. He was born at Palestine, Ill., where memorial services will be conducted for him Sunday.

NICKELL TO GUIDE SCHOOLS BACK TO BASIC SUBJECTS

Finds Too Much Emphasis on 'Projects' Now.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 7 [Special].—Vernon L. Nickell, elected Tuesday as state superintendent of public instruction, said today he will insist that education in Illinois "get back to the fundamentals" when he assumes office Jan. 1. Nickell, a Republican, has been superintendent of Champaign schools for 12 years.

Today he announced that among his first actions as state superintendent will be the establishment of a department of rural education and the appointment of a coördinator of adult education.

He promised that the department of rural education would be staffed by "competent and well trained people who understand rural life and its problems." They will devote all their time to supervising rural schools, which he considers "weak."

Holds Reading Neglected.

"Many cities have very good adult education programs," Nickell continued. "Others are anxious to inaugurate them, but they do not know where to turn for advice and information. I believe the state superintendent's office should be a clearing house for information and experience."

Nickell said, in voicing his plea for a return to "fundamentals," that many Illinois elementary schools have neglected the "tool subjects" of reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, grammer, and industry and have become too engrossed in "projects."

"This trend has been nation-wide," Nickell said.

Sees Lag in Teaching.

"Why, some schools in Illinois don't actually teach school more than half the time. They spend the rest of the time on projects. I don't say the projects aren't beneficial, but they haven't produced the educational values they should."

High school administrators likely will hear much during the next four years from the new superintendent about the need to emphasize the teaching of history and civics as "the science and art of our government."

"From schools training future citizens we have sent out students woefully weak in knowledge of their government. I believe that every high school senior should be required to pass a comprehensive examination on civics and American history before he is graduated," Nickell asserted.

DIES WHILE AT WORK.

Joseph Srp, 57 years old, 2733 Millard avenue, a wood worker, died of a heart attack at work yesterday in the plant of the Turner Manufacturing company, 2315 South Keeler avenue, where he had been employed 25 years.

WANTED

Automobile Mechanics
Car Polishers
Motorcycle Pick-Up and Delivery Men

The CADILLAC MOTOR CAR DIVISION, Chicago Branches, require the services of several good automobile repair mechanics, car polishers, and motorcycle pickup and delivery men for work of repairing CADILLAC and OLDSMOBILE cars.

The maintenance of automotive equipment is important to the war program—really a patriotic objective. We therefore propose to continue the operation of several well equipped and efficiently manned service stations throughout metropolitan Chicago to assure our customers the dependable use of their motor cars for the duration.

The types of men we can use are preferably men with some mechanical experience between the ages of 35 and 50, who have good character, sound health and dependents; even those with slight physical disabilities may qualify. Citizenship papers are NOT necessary.

Our rate of pay is in keeping with the highest in the industry. In addition we offer—

1. 5-Day work week.
2. Vacation with pay.
3. Time and one-half pay over 40 hours per week.
4. Company life insurance and Illinois hospitalization insurance.
5. Good, considerate, and helpful supervision.
6. Most modern facilities and tools.
7. Permanency of work—we will be operating thruout the war period.

Apply at once in person or by letter. If you reside outside of Chicago, to any of the following Chicago Branches:

A GOOD SOUND LINE FOR A GOOD SALESMAN

Thousands of good salesmen are being forced to make a change these days by priorities, etc. Others, due to withdrawal of metal, desk and wall advertising items. If you are one of these and are looking for a selling job in a good, sound, stable business this should interest you. Ours is not a get rich quick, easy money proposition, but good salesmen in our organization make real money after they get established and make a good living while they are learning.

Ours is an old, well-established, nationally known business making very rapid strides the past two years under new management. We manufacture and sell an exclusive line of Advertising and Sales Promotion material — Calendars, Direct Mail, Gift Leather Goods, Business Greeting Cards and Specialties. Our customers usually buy year after year. We give new men a thorough training and turn over to them all established business. We have a national organization and most of our salesmen have been with us for many years, but a number of new men are doing very well. Business is good in our line. Liberal commission.

If you are interested and believe you have the character, sales ability, and experience, call us for an appointment. A personal interview will be arranged for applicants who qualify.

AN UNUSUAL AD
[Ladies for outside work.]
Because of the war we created a new dept. in our sales organization, viz., we employed women to make preliminary sales contacts to arrange appointments for our staff of engineering salesmen. The results exceeded our fondest expectations. We are now ready to add several more women to our organization.
YOU DO NOT NEED PREVIOUS SALES EXPERIENCE, but you must have ability to meet people easily. You must be well groomed, fluent, of good character and habits, and be able to work enthusiastically 5 days each week from 9 to 12 and from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. You have nothing to sell, no samples to carry, no traveling. We train you thoroughly and supply you with helpful field supervision. Guaranteed weekly drawing account against liberal commission. You should earn from $18 to $30 per week to start. Permanent security and glorious opportunity for advancement. We are a well rated, well established Chicago institution marketing EXCLUSIVE rock wool insulation.
We invite you to present yourself at a special personnel meeting at our plant Monday, Nov. 9, at precisely 2 p. m. [No later as doors will be closed at 2:05]. Consumers Insulating & Roofing Co., 3110 S. Michigan-av.
Be prepared to spend 2 hours and do not apply unless you can start to work Tuesday if selected. If we hire you and you come to work you will receive on Saturday an additional check for $5 to compensate you for this 2 hour interview.

SERIOUS-MINDED WOMEN.
Prominent national financial organization offers opportunity for women between 28 and 50, either single or married. Requirements are unquestionable character and integrity, ability to talk fluently and convincingly, and good health. STRICTLY COLONIAL
IN CHARACTER & DIGNITY
9 ROOMS; 4 BATHS
BUILT IN 1940

Able planning, superior materials and craftsmanship par excellence, have here created a VASTLY SUPERIOR HOME, and yet, not pretentious. The salaried man, who is planning a future, may well find this home within his reach; its acquisition should prove a SOUND INVESTMENT.

There are 4 BEDCHAMBERS AND 3 LUXURY BATHS; an extra room and bath is provided for the maid. All rooms are HANDSOMELY CARPETED. A woodpeneled room, SOUND PROOFED FOR MUSE, MUSIC AND BOOKS, overlooks the SPACIOUS, ORDERLY GROUNDS to the rear. YOU MUST SEE the kitchen!—We never saw its equal.

We ask, CAN ANY HOME, ANYWHERE, AFFORD MORE IN "GRACIOUS LIVING" than is to be found in this Hinsdale home?

Owner, who has been called to New York, desires an early sale. If you will phone us, WE WILL MAKE AN APPOINTMENT FOR THE TIME MOST CONVENIENT TO YOU to inspect this home. For additional information, you may write us or call at our office at any time.

9 ADVANTAGES of Getting YOUR LOAN
from 'PERSONAL'

1. Loans made to employed men and women whether single or married.
2. Business girls and those in defense plants borrow here "on your own."
3. Special plan for war workers and others new in community or new on the job.
4. Between payday loans [small sums for short periods] readily made.
5. Loans made for purchase of tools, uniforms, car or home repairs, medical or dental work, payment of old bills, etc.
6. Account here establishes nation-wide credit at over 400 Personal Offices.
7. Monthly payments you can afford.
8. Complete privacy. Loans made on signature, furniture or auto. No wage assignments. Outsiders not involved.
9. Prompt, considerate service. No "Board" or "committee" to pass on your loan.

We believe folks should not borrow unless a loan is the best solution to their problem. If it is, we want to serve them. Monthly payments you can afford.

DON'T BORROW

Borrowing is not always the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance, you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to pay cash for medical and dental attention before your favorite doctor is called into the armed forces . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special courses for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment.

NEXT SUNDAY—"FIRSTS IN COLOR!" THE STORY OF TRIBUNE PRINTING MIRACLES

WHY OURS IS BEST FED ARMY IN WORLD!

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

By LLOYD WENDT

FOOD FOR FIGHTING MEN

Printed below is the army's field ration "K," specially designed for paratroops by the staff of the subsistence laboratory of the Chicago quartermaster depot, and adopted, following successful tests, for army use generally:

BREAKFAST UNIT
1 package defense biscuits
1 package compressed graham biscuits
1 can veal luncheon meat
1 package malted milk dextrose tablets
2 packets soluble coffee
3 tablets sugar
1 stick chewing gum

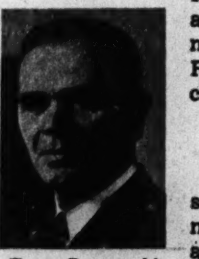
DINNER UNIT
1 package defense biscuits
1 package compressed graham biscuits
1 can pork luncheon meat
1 package malted milk dextrose tablets
1 tube concentrated bouillon
1 stick chewing gum

SUPPER UNIT
1 package defense biscuits
1 package compressed graham biscuits
1 can cervelat sausage
1 two-ounce bar ration "D"
2 tablets sugar
1 package lemon juice powder
1 stick chewing gum

Each unit also contains cigarets. Ration "D," included in the menu, must be eaten slowly (about a half hour) because of the high concentration of food values.

AMERICAN soldiers are the best fed troops in the world. The gigantic task of supplying our fighting men with field rations in the various far-flung theaters of war is importantly centered in Chicago in the several huge brick units of the Chicago quartermaster depot on the city's south side. There, under the command of Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski, army specialists and scientists have devised the newest field and emergency rations for American troops and supervise their preparation for shipment over the world. A paratrooper in England, a flyer in Egypt, a jungle fighter in New Guinea, a ski trooper in Alaska may get their "three squares" today from a boxed ration packed weeks before in Chicago.

Those fighting men will have a balanced diet, the food will be tasty and wholesome, and there will be enough of it to keep a soldier going under the most grueling conditions. For the experts of the subsistence research laboratory, a part of the Chicago quartermaster depot here, have spent long months finding out just how to pack a maximum of food energy into a minimum of space, under conditions that will render it imperishable in wet or cold or extreme heat and resistant to toxic gases.



Gen. Barzynski

The problem of supplying troops in the field is an enormous one, particularly when the armies are scattered over the earth and all nations are desperately short of shipping space. The quartermaster corps has attempted to solve the problem in part by reducing the bulk and weight of food by dehydration.

"Dehydration of food saves ships," said General Barzynski. "Four-fifths of vegetables, for example, is just plain water. What's the use of transporting water when foods can be rehydrated when they are needed? Our chemists are cheating the subs right here in Chicago."

Dehydration is helping to solve the army's food supply problem, but the reduction of space and weight is only a small part of the task. This war is not being fought like any other, and the job of maintaining troops is as different as the new fighting techniques. Thus the staff of the Chicago quartermaster depot, one of the largest of its kind, is faced not only with normal difficulties of supply but must constantly develop new types of rations and different methods of packaging them.

"We don't feed troops in the mass any more under combat conditions," said Lieut. Col. Jesse H. White of the Chicago subsistence laboratory. "Aviation and tanks and infiltration methods have changed all that. Rations now must be provided in small units and for the use of individuals. They must readily be carried by single soldiers, they must be palatable either hot or cold, they must stand up under unusually varied and severe climatic conditions."

Army field ration K is one of the ration types to satisfy all of these requirements. It was developed in the Chicago subsistence research laboratory for parachute troops by Dr. Ancel Keys, professor of physiology at the University of Minnesota medical school, assisted by Col. Rohland A. Isker, who is in charge of the laboratory.

Ration K is packed in three separate boxes, breakfast, dinner, and supper, and the boxes are so constructed that if they are stowed away in a soldier's clothes they will not injure him in a leap or when he "dives" under fire. Each of the three containers measures only six inches in length, four inches in width, and two inches in depth, and they weigh together only 32.86 ounces. The ration contains 3,726 calories, and each meal is a properly balanced diet with adequate vitamin content. The containers are treated to stand temperatures of 20 below zero to 135 degrees above, they are impervious to moisture or gases, and will not permit the food to deteriorate. Each day's ration provides the menu shown on this page, but, what is considered most important among the men who eat them, is the attractive, appetizing packaging and the careful attention given to the palatability of the foods.

Ration K was developed primarily for parachute troops, with all attention given to their highly specialized needs. It was first tried out in large-scale tests at Fort Benning, Georgia, last February. For four weary days paratroopers, experts, and specialists fought a dust storm, slogged thru mud, dug trenches, rested, marched, dived for cover, camped, and marched again, living under battle conditions, and existing only on the K ration. Thruout the test the men were under the observation of experts who watched the physical condition of the men, their morale, their efficiency, their alertness, and their general reaction to the rations served them. All men carried full combat equipment and during the course of the test marched from 10 to 15 miles a day, and one day and night they marched 32 miles.

The following month similar tests were conducted with ski troops on Mount Rainier, with temperatures ranging from zero to 20 above. For the purpose of control the ski troops were split into three groups, one fed the K ration alone, another given an additional M ration (which included dehydrated soups, fruits, cereals, and beverages in powder form), and the third was fed the regular field ration C, which is composed of six tins filled with stew, hash, meat, and beans and other ingredients in various combinations, and in addition crackers, biscuits, hard candies, and soluble coffee.

The Mount Rainier test lasted five days and included every type of mountain maneuver simulating war conditions. The men were weighed and given blood tests before and after the five-day ordeal. In addition they were examined for eye fatigue, night blindness, liver functions, and their general mental attitude. Then the men were asked to write their own opinions of ration K.

The tests were so successful that the ration was adopted not only for parachute troops but for the army as a whole. Study and research is continuing, for the army will improve the ration if it can, but right now it's considered to be the best in existence.

There are three distinct types of rations served to the armed forces—garrison, field, and emergency. The garrison ration is the menu generally consumed in garrison in time of peace, based on a money value. That is, the money value for a ration for a certain number of troops is estimated by the quartermaster corps each month on the basis of wholesale prices, and each garrison is allotted funds to buy the supplies. The foodstuffs are then purchased from the quartermaster commissary and from local markets and farmers, in order to take advantage of seasonal foods or local prices.

In time of war, however, the regular army field ration largely takes the place of the garrison ration. There are two designations to the field ration, referred to as A and B. When a field ration contains fresh meat and soft bread it is referred to as the A ration; when it contains canned meat and hard bread it is designated as the B ration.

The field rations are planned for 30 days in advance to insure a balanced diet, variety, and control of foods. The master menus are planned by a staff of experts, including a nutrition scientist, a home economist, a diet expert, and army mess officers. Following is a typical A ration menu selected at random from the 6th service command schedule for October (Wednesday, Oct. 7):

BREAKFAST
Stewed prunes
Assorted cereal Fresh milk
Bacon French toast Toast
Butter Sirup Coffee

DINNER
Beef pot roast Gravy
Mashed potatoes Cauliflower
Carrot and raisin salad Bread
Butter Vanilla pudding Tea

SUPPER
Spanish frankfurters
Baked potatoes Succotash
Lettuce salad with Thousand Island dressing
Cheese biscuits Butter
Apples Coffee

Emergency rations are given to the armed forces when they are far removed from the facilities of regular field kitchens, and they are prepared to be eaten hot or cold. Among them is ration K, previously mentioned, and the famous ration D.

Ration D is designed for the primary purpose of giving sustenance to the armed forces in times of extreme stress, when troops are fighting and out of touch with bases of supply for short periods and when regular eating time is not permitted. It consists of three four-ounce bars of concentrated chocolate made from a formula developed in the subsistence laboratory that provides a maximum amount of energy and vitamin content. The D ration is a confection as well as a food, it is so concentrated that a good supply may be carried in the pockets, and it will not melt or run even under 120 degrees of temperature. Each bar has a fuel value of 600 calories, or a total of 1,800 calories for a total weight of 12 ounces.

Field ration C is designed for troops able to carry bulkier supplies than a parachutist or a soldier engaged in actual fighting can handle. The ration is packed in six 12-ounce cans, containing three meat units, which include beef and pork, with beans, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, carrots, and condiments in various combinations. In other cans are five special concentrated biscuits, five pieces of hard candy, three cubes of sugar, and a container of soluble coffee that may be used with cold or hot water. Each of the three meals provided in this ration is a perfectly balanced diet and is highly palatable.

The preparation of these rations for millions of men is a huge job. The quartermaster corps buys in quantities staggering to the civilian mind and guarantees the quality of its products with rigid specifications and frequent tests. The army receives the close coöperation of more than 1,500 provisioners and manufacturers who do the actual processing. The preparation of the formulae and the drafting of the specifications and the testing are the tasks of the experts in the subsistence laboratory, the only one of its kind in the country. They must also advise the various prime contractors on the best methods of manufacture as indicated by the laboratory work.

The subsistence laboratory, headed by Colonel Isker, who is assisted by Lieutenant Colonel White and a staff of trained biochemists, physiologists, technical advisers, and specialists, was organized in 1936. To its research men come from all parts of the world food samples which are analyzed for their adaptability to army use. They are tested for their keeping qualities, for purity, for nutritive characteristics, for taste, and for general suitability under differing climatic conditions. While the chemists and physiologists "break down" the food samples, packing experts study the samples from the viewpoint of package construction and other shipping and storage considerations.

Many of these sample foods, after they have been tested and approved, are included in army food specifications. Balanced rations are prepared, packaging specifications are worked out, and manufacturers are invited to bid on the basis of the specifications. In addition to this, before orders are actually placed the laboratory men test the rations on themselves and in the field. Some of the foods also are given exacting precipitation, cooking, and baking tests, exposed to pressure and humidity chambers, storage tests, and other examinations.

In addition to preparing the special rations the laboratory has been experimenting extensively with special dehydration problems. Steps in this field were taken during World War I., but the results generally were unsatisfactory. Technical improvements have been made since that time, and prior to the outbreak of war there was considerable production of dried eggs, soups, milk, and some other foods. The subsistence laboratory began its studies by analyzing each fruit, vegetable, and meat product to be treated. Because of organic differences, the process for preparing one vegetable might differ completely from another.

One of the most perplexing problems now under study is the proper stage of maturity at which to dehydrate a vegetable. Another question still unanswered is whether certain varieties of vegetables will produce equally satisfactory dehydrated products if grown in different sections of the country.

Dehydration of foods, as General Barzynski pointed out, will save millions of cubic feet of cargo space before the war is ended, and this means more ships available for the transport of men and munitions. The army is sending to troops outside continental United States dehydrated potatoes, onions, carrots, cabbages, beets, rutabagas, sweet potatoes, and powdered soups, eggs, and milk. By saving cargo space the army experts in Chicago are helping to beat the subs.

Another quartermaster corps achievement is the development of frozen boneless beef. Not only does this accomplishment save space, but it eliminates the difficulties field mess units had in "breaking down" quarters of beef for troops on field maneuvers. Army boneless frozen beef is prepared in three classifications — steaks and roasts, stewing and boiling pieces, and ground meat. All bones and fat are removed by expert meat cutters and boners. This innovation has proved highly successful, for in addition to its practical convenience it means that boneless beef can be shipped at a 30 per cent saving in weight and a 60 per cent saving in bulk.

Deboned meat, from carcasses specially selected by animal industry bureau inspectors and veterinary corps officers, is cut into portions of about 10 pounds each and placed in special boxes. The boxed meat is then sent to freezing rooms to be hard frozen at temperatures ranging from 5 to 10 degrees below zero. The bones and fat which are salvaged from the carcasses of beef are used for soaps, fertilizer, and other useful by-products.

In addition to the problem of planning rations that will best serve the troops from the types of raw materials that are available, the quartermaster corps must keep in mind that the army's fighting men are in all parts of the world and that a ration best for Iceland, Ireland, and Alaska might be unsuitable to Egypt or northern Australia. Also the operations of certain kind of troops mean a difference in the preparation of their food. For mountain troops, usually traveling in groups of four, the rations are packed four in a box, and consideration is given to the special need for heat-giving foods and those which may be rehydrated with snow or water. In the desert canned foods must be used, for the scarcity of water makes rehydration difficult and sometimes impossible. Similarly, the ration for jungle troops has been packed with their special problems in mind.

The Chicago quartermaster depot is believed to be one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. Built in 1917 at a cost of $5,500,000, it was located in Chicago as the point central to the country's biggest food-producing regions and best served by transportation. For a number of years after World War I. only a small part of the 1,000,000 square feet of floor space was used by the government. When the CCC camps were organized the depot was made a central supply station, and in late 1939 it boomed with defense preparations. Now it spends millions of dollars a day.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood.

HAS IT EVER occurred to you how few actors and actresses who've once reached the top ever retire, unless it's forced on them?

I don't mean that this is true only of actors. You'll often find bankers, college professors, musicians who are still in there pitching long after it's necessary; but people from other walks of life are more likely than actors to retire and raise flowers, content with clipping coupons (when there are any), after they've won their laurels and established themselves in security. In most professions there is time for other interests and for the enjoyment of one's home all along the way; so that when work is no longer necessary, a man can let go of it (it may be quite a wrench, I'll admit!) without having to readjust his whole life, because he still has other interests that he's always had. With an actor it's different. If he's really in earnest he gives up his whole waking life to his work. If he's on the stage he often has no home for years—just a hotel room where he can hang his hat and snatch some sleep. While working in a picture, he cuts out all social life. And as soon as one picture's finished, he begins reading and studying scripts for the next one.

After gearing your whole life aiming for a certain spot at the top, and working like a galley slave to get there, you'd naturally like to stay there a while. But you can't sit up there forever. It all depends on how long the public will keep you there. The only other place you can go is down—and there's nothing like that downward slide to make an actor stew in his own juice. Steeped in the idea that the show must go on, he applies it personally, and will keep right on acting, always trying to improve himself, long after all possible honors and monetary awards have been achieved and discounted.

• • •

And this seems to apply to reasonably young players as well as the veterans of our profession. Let's take Bette Davis, for instance. She's won two Academy awards, been nominated for more. She's achieved every success it's possible for any Hollywood actress to achieve. Yet she's busier and harder working today than she's ever been in her life. Why? No one knows. Least of all, Bette herself.

Driven as much by habit as ambition, Bette tries to top each picture with a better performance. She's finished "Now, Voyager" and "Watch on the Rhine" and will soon be plunging into "Old Acquaintance." In the meantime, she pauses long enough to become president of the Hollywood Canteen. Got out of a sick bed to attend the opening.

Bette's been making what we call big money for years. Her bank account should be in a healthy state. Anyway, it's healthier than her body, which she's driven so energetically for so long. But if you suggested retirement to her, she'd probably spit in your eye. Well, why should she quit and rest on her laurels? I do think for her health's sake she should cut down a bit, and instead of making four pictures a year, make two. But if she did that, she'd probably use the extra time for some other activity, and work harder at it than she does at the studio.

• • •

George M. Cohan didn't retire until illness forced it. About the only two top men I can think of who did were Weber and Fields, and they led marvelously interesting lives to the very end — Fields because he watched his children succeed in show business and carry on the family name and tradition, even tho it wasn't acting—and Joe Weber because he looked upon Fields' children as his own, and got almost as much kick out of them.

Bette Davis risks her health keeping up with a hard movie pace.

Then there's Fay Bainter, who mellows in each rôle. She can play anything. So can Spring Byington, also Janet Beecher, Beulah Bondi, Helen Broderick. I wonder why the producers don't wake up to the worth of Helen, and give her the same type part which made her a star on Broadway, the parts that Moss Hart wrote around her own personality and which nobody can play as well. Yes, Helen's in semiretirement—not because she wants to be, but because she won't play inferior rôles or those not suited to her.

You might ask why Wally Beery doesn't retire and live quietly on his income. He could. So could Ronnie Colman. But acting is in their blood.

Charles Grapewin has a woodworking hobby for spare time.

Mary Pickford's retired, but would come prancing back at the drop of an adjective, if anybody asked her to play the mother in "Life With Father." She'd give her eyeteeth for it. Many's the time I've suggested to Mary that she adopt some young girl, like Teresa Wright or Deanna Durbin, and guide her into stardom, watch over her career as Mary's mother watched over hers. And thru that guardianship, she could live her life all over again, and still be part of the business she loves.

Why do you suppose I drop everything when I get a call to a picture, and am as skittish as a young goat? And instead of being tired at the end of the day, I'm exhilarated, 'cause that's the life I've lived so many years. They're my people—they're my pals. The smell of grease paint is more potent than any perfume. The satisfaction of a scene well done is greater than riches. And there's no note of music ever written that's comparable to a round of applause.

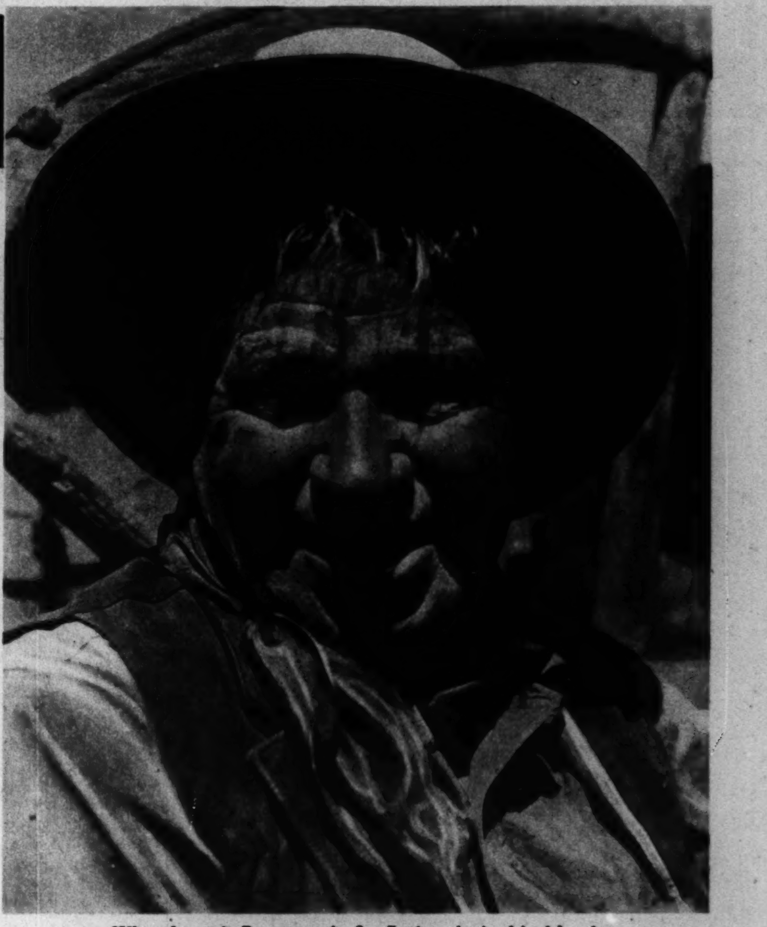
Yet, I can hear you say, Gloria Swanson retired when she was quite a young woman. Sure she did, but she didn't want to. She only retired from the screen because at last she realized she had never learned to act. And now that she's about to become a grandmother, she's out in the theaters learning the technique of our business. She's been playing all around New York in Noel Coward's "Private Lives." When Gloria was young, she was too busy being a star and too busy with the excitement of living to learn the fundamentals of her trade.

Norma Shearer's another. Norma was built up into being the first lady of Hollywood. She was—and she had the best of everything. A husband who, if she'd wanted it, would have tried to buy the moon and build a fence around it, too. She had the finest writers, directors, actors, actresses, sets, clothes, jewels, to help her. And while Irving Thalberg lived, Norma deserved her title. But things haven't gone so well with her since his death. If she gets the right part, tho—and I hope she won't make a return to the screen until she does—with proper coaching and concentration, Norma can still be a great asset to the screen.

One who's semiretired is Charley Grapewin. He's moved to the country, too. I must remember to take a week-end off and visit Charley — heaven knows, he's asked me often enough. Remember him as the father in "The Good Earth"? Well, after he'd been away from Hollywood for about six months, it didn't take an awful lot of persuasion to get him back for "Crash Dive" with Tyrone Power, and he tells me their location trip to New London, Conn., was one of the happiest experiences of his life.

• • •

It brought back so many memories of the old days when he had toured all thru New England. He found many changes — went searching for landmarks no longer there. But he relived his youth thru Ty Power. He knew his father well when they were Ty's age. Of course, Charley has a great hobby which keeps him busy between pictures. He's one of our finest cabinet makers. I hope to live long enough to get one of those superb card tables he turns out. Then, too, he's written many books. His latest, "Meg Randall," will be on the stands almost any minute.



Why doesn't Beery retire? Acting is in his blood.

No, it just isn't in an actor's makeup to quit until the last curtain call. The oldsters stick around to watch each other. Younger players gradually usurp their places. But it's never been part of a trouper's makeup to quit any job before it's completed. And very few actors think they're thru with the stage or screen until that final summons from which no one has ever returned.

PRIVATE FAY ON PARADE!

This is another of Private William C. Fay's amusing reports on army life as the draftee sees it. The author is on leave from the sports department of The Tribune.

READ PRIVATE FAY IN THIS SECTION EVERY SUNDAY

By PVT. WILLIAM C. FAY

PRIVATE ADAMOWSKI has a very sore jaw tonight for no other reason than that he is a nice guy and likes to coöperate with the top sergeant whenever possible. The top sergeant, poor fellow, has been having hard times. His boys have been A. W. O. L. consistently from dental appointments. Sarge was told forcefully yesterday that if this deplorable condition continued something was going to happen to somebody—and not to the dental delinquents.

Sarge has two kids and a wife who is bigger than he is—not the kind of a wife who would be understanding and kind if the sergeant were busted down to a corporal by some so-and-so medico. And this morning Sarge answered the phone and the Voice of Doom from the clinic asked:

"Where is Private Andrews? He's 15 minutes late. Didn't I tell you yesterday that——"

"I'll send him right up, sir," answered Sarge; then hung up and looked around for the missing Andrews. Andrews, the sergeant discovered, was out on the range—a good 30 minutes away.

What to do? Confess that Andrews was unobtainable? Be busted? Go home and face the ever loving? Not our sergeant!

"Private Adamowski."

"Yes, sergeant."

"Report to dental clinic and tell them you're Private Andrews."

"But, Sarge——"

"Look, Adamowski, do I ever ask you to do much—except K. P. now and then? So you go to the dentist and get your teeth cleaned and get me out of a spot. Is that asking too much?"

Adamowski said the request sounded reasonable enough, grabbed his hat, and reported to the dentistry.

The dentist was looking over a chart as Adamowski settled down in the chair. The dentist said: "Open, please—a little wider—that's it—hmnnnn——"

It seems the dentist had surveyed Andrews the week before, noted a bad bicuspid, and was all set to operate when Adamowski reported as Andrews.

So Adamowski has a very sore jaw tonight and the sergeant is wondering how to insert Andrews into the dental line. For Andrews has a very sore jaw tonight also—only Andrews still has the bicuspid Adamowski involuntarily surrendered.

Losing a bicuspid is serious. Lose a leg and the army will mechanize you; lose an arm and the army will make you telephone orderly and let you call up sergeants all day long; but lose a bicuspid and you're out of luck. The odds are heavy enough anyway when you buck up against chunked beef at chow, even without spotting the mess sergeant a bicuspid.

Joe, a club fighter at 210 pounds for three years, must be a descendant of Mrs. Malaprop. That was evident his second morning on post when he was bawled out by the top sergeant for making morning formation 10 minutes late. Joe explained that he was under the expression formation was at 7:15 instead of 7 sharp.

A week later, after a practice hike, Joe sighed and said it certainly was one constellation we didn't have to carry our full packs, anyway.

Joe also can get off the subject, as our platoon lieutenant discovered during a lecture on scouting duties. A good scout, the lieutenant said, can find north easily either by the position of the Big Dipper at night or the sun in early morning, or by using a watch. (If you point the minute hand at 12 o'clock and the hour hand at the sun, north bisects the small angle between the hands.)

Joe was dozing against a tree most of the lecture, but when the lieutenant mentioned the watch Joe became slightly more conscious and evinced his desire to join the discussion by waving an arm violently.

Recognized by the lieutenant, Joe arose and said: "Sir, I can also tell time by the shadow of the sun off the side of a house."

The lieutenant said that was very interesting. Joe sat down. For several days after that, whenever any one asked for the time, somebody always popped, "Sorry, I left my side of the house in my other pants."

One thing about the army, there's a Joe in every outfit. That's one constellation.

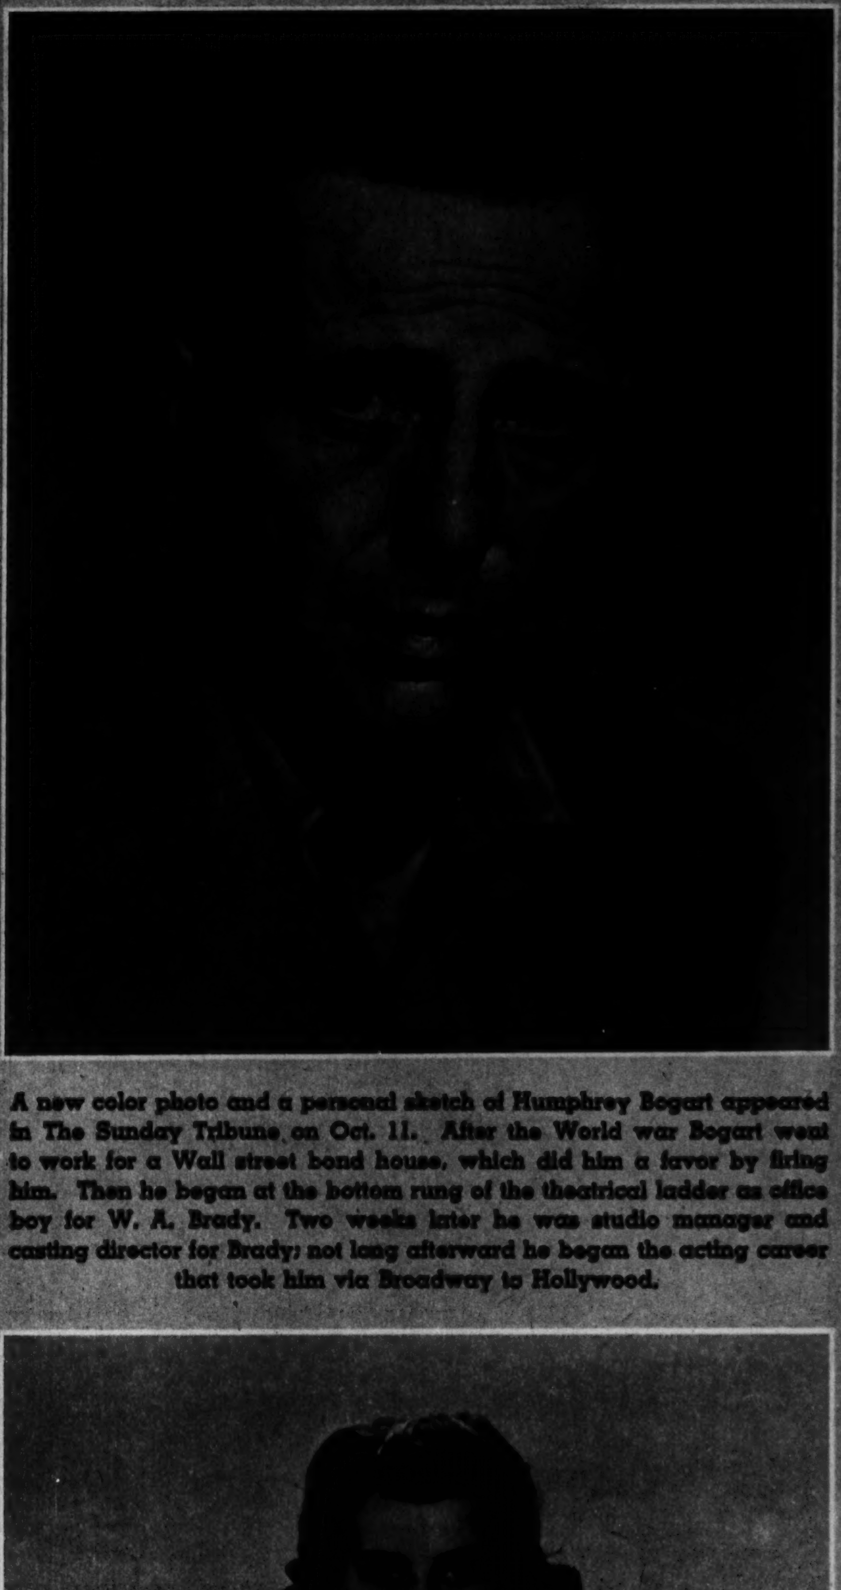
Hollywood took Nancy Coleman from Broadway after her second rôle on the stage. Her first one had been the part of Blossom in "Susan and God." Previously Nancy had worked as an elevator girl, a salesgirl, and a radio actress; she had been forced to leave the University of Washington, where she studied dramatics, by the death of her father. Nancy is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has red hair. She has been in five movies; her current picture is "Edge of Darkness."



A new color photo and a personal sketch of Humphrey Bogart appeared in The Sunday Tribune on Oct. 11. After the World war Bogart went to work for a Wall street bond house, which did him a favor by firing him. Then he began at the bottom rung of the theatrical ladder as office boy for W. A. Brady. Two weeks later he was studio manager and casting director for Brady; not long afterward he began the acting career that took him via Broadway to Hollywood.

At right: A new color photo and a brief biography of Alice Faye appeared in The Sunday Tribune on Oct. 4. Born Alice Leppert, she borrowed the last name of Frank Fay and added a final "e" about the time she began to get on in New York; Fay at the time was one of the biggest names on Broadway, and Alice thought it might bring her luck. About three years ago she had the name legalized to avoid confusion; other members of the family also use it professionally.

At right: Betty Field's Hollywood contract provides that she may divide her time between the screen and the stage, and she has made liberal use of that option for appearances on Broadway. Her professional debut in the theater came in work as an extra in a stock company while she was in high school at Morristown, N. J. That experience moved her to study acting in New York. She got on Broadway immediately as an understudy and speedily won important rôles. She made her first screen appearance in 1939. Betty is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has brown hair and gray eyes.

Madeleine Carroll

Graduate of Birmingham university (England), postgraduate student at the Parisian Sorbonne, and for a time schoolma'am at Brighton, England, Madeleine Carroll has a background distinctly on the academic side. Drawn to the theater, she endured conventional hunger pangs getting her career under way in London. She had reached stage and screen stardom when she was brought to Hollywood, where her first picture was "The Case Against Mrs. Ames." She is 5 feet 4, weighs 115, has blonde hair, blue eyes.

Somewhat precociously William Lundigan enrolled at Syracuse university in his home town when he was 16 years old; played football, basketball, and tennis and became an expert swimmer. He was fond of hanging around a broadcasting station, where he eventually became an announcer; and it was his radio voice that prompted a Hollywood executive to give him a screen test which led to a contract. You saw him recently in "Apache Trail."

Two hitch-hikers, raving about "the Hedy Lamarr of Santa Monica" to their picker-upper, a Hollywood executive, really put Gail Russell in the movies. A telephonic message, relayed as a memo to Gail in a commercial art class, invited her to a screen test. "It's a gag," she said, and into the waste basket it went. But on second thought she retrieved it, and a lucky thing, too. Gail was born in Chicago; family moved to California five years ago. She is 5 feet 4; has black hair, blue eyes.

Ruth Hussey

At left: As a rolling stone, Ruth Hussey has gathered no moss but an abundance of experience and kudos. She was born at Provincetown, Mass.; majored in art at Pembroke college; had her stage apprenticeship with the Provincetown Players; attended the drama school of the University of Michigan; worked as a radio fashion commentator; toured with the road company of "The Old Maid"; had roles in several Broadway productions; made her first cinema appearance in "Big City"; recently was in "Pierre of the Plains."

Rudy Vallee earned his first dollar jerking sodas in his father's drug store in Maine; but his saxophone was the real foundation of his fortune, at the University of Maine, at Yale, in night clubs, and, more recently, in films. He made his radio debut in 1928, his screen debut in 1929. He is in his 41st year.

Daughter of a clergyman and wife of another, Marjorie Main was an actress of the professional stage first in Chautauqua, next in vaudeville, and finally on Broadway. She played the gangster's mother in "Dead End" in the theater and (in 1937) in her screen debut. Since, she has appeared in more than 40 films.

Below: On the air from Richmond, Va., Joan Merrill began singing professionally when she was 14 years old, and speedily became a singing sensation at the swankiest night clubs of Chicago and New York. She has appeared in two pictures, "Time Out for Rhythm," and "The Mayor of 44th Street." She is 5 feet 4 inches tall; weighs 110 pounds; has dark brown hair and hazel eyes.

At right: John Loder, 44 years old, has had enough of personal adventure for any bold spirit. Son of Gen. Sir William and Lady Frances Lowe, he was schooled at Eton and at Sandhurst, the British West Point; served as an army officer during the first World war, was injured and captured by the Germans. In Berlin after the war, he was put to work in pictures by Alexander Korda. In 1926 he began playing in English films, and in 1928 was brought to Hollywood. During the '30s he went back to movie-making in England and France, returning to Hollywood in 1939. Recently he was cast in "Gentleman Jim."

Portraits and brief biographies of Joan Crawford, Dona Drake, and Raymond Massey have appeared in recent issues of the Movie Star Album.

• • •

JOAN CRAWFORD, who rose from the line of a cabaret chorus to the top shelf of cinema stardom, was called on last April to dance in a movie for the first time in six years. Her partner, Allan Jones, threw her over his back, tossed her across the floor, and bounced her off his knees. Joan took a day off to rest a sprained back, fervently hoping she wouldn't have any more professional dancing to do for another six years. . . . Last July she acquired husband No. 3, who is Phillip Terry (Frederick Kormann), a Hollywood player of minor rôles. . . . She has been traveling assiduously, selling war bonds and entertaining service men; she donated to the Red Cross the $112,420 she received for working in "He Kissed the Bride."

• • •

DONA DRAKE lives in a small house high on a hill in suburban Los Angeles. She has a blonde cocker named Jackie, Jackie's five puppies, a pair of rabbits named Hug and Kiss, and two Siamese kittens named Ama and Pola. . . . She'll leave any party at 5 p. m. to rush home to feed the live stock. . . . She likes to ride and jump horses.

The great triumph of RAYMOND MASSEY'S career remains his characterization on stage and screen of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." While playing that rôle in Chicago he appeared in a special radio play, "Lincoln the President," over W-G-N. At one of the rehearsals for this performance Massey fell to discussing expletives on radio and the screen. "I used to have on a small piece of paper," he reminisced, "the list of expletives permitted by the Communications commission and the Will Hays office. It was a very short list—you could put the approved words on a pinhead. 'Raising Ned' and 'blame it' are two that I recall are all right." "Darn" was dangerous, the radio play director pointed out, because it might sound like "damn" on the air. . . . Massey has been married three times. His first wife was Peggy Fremantle; he was divorced by his second, Adrienne Allen, English actress; his third is Dorothy Ludington Whitney, socially prominent daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Amos Ludington of New Haven, Conn. . . . Tho Massey was born in Canada, his mother was American born, and ancestors on her side of the family fought with American forces in the Revolutionary war. Geoffrey Massey, first of the name to come to the new world from England, settled in Sulem, Mass., in 1629.

Marjorie Reynolds

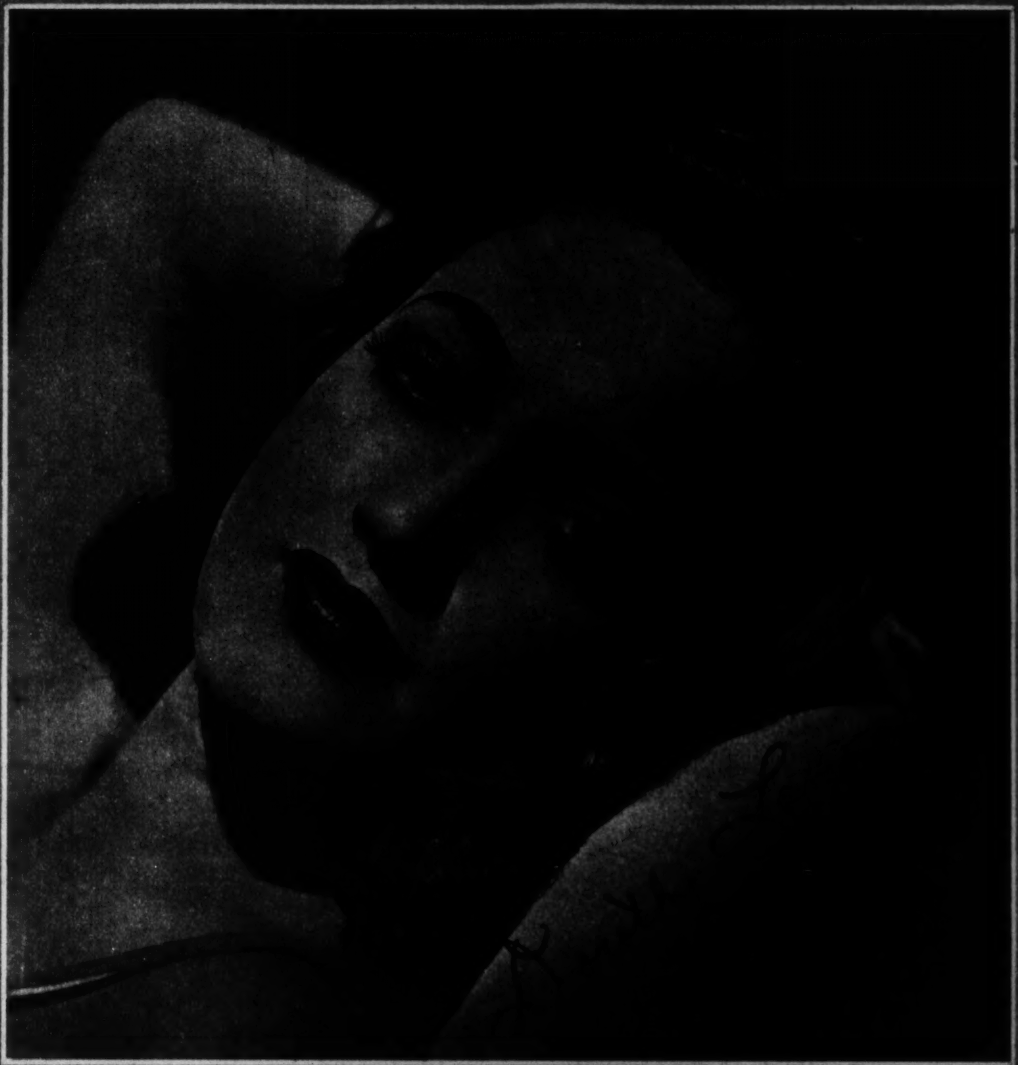
A new color camera portrait and a brief biography of Marjorie Reynolds appeared in The Sunday Tribune on Oct. 4. Here's how she became dancing partner to Fred Astaire, when that headliner was looking for a girl of her type: Marjorie at the time was in retirement. Danny Dare, studio dancing coach, remembered her, but not her name. He spent most of a night going thru old files until, in the small hours, "Marjorie Reynolds" came to light.

At right: Marcy McGuire was singing in a Chicago bright spot last April when she was approached by a man who voiced that overworked line, "You ought to be in pictures." The man turned out to be a Hollywood director, leaving for the west within an hour. Marcy had her screen test on the diner of his train, caught a taxi back from the first stop in time for her next show in Chicago. Made her screen debut in "Seven Days' Leave"; second picture will be "Sweet or Hot." She is 16; Kansas-born; Iowa-reared.

Lucia Carroll

At left: Eye-filling Lucia Carroll was born on Nov. 16, 1916, at Wausau, Wis., where she attended high school and a school for girls. She studied drama and dancing in preparation for modeling for her father, a commercial photographer, and continued that career in New York until she was drafted for a role in the picturization of "The Women." She plays the piano, sings, paints; yet extends her enthusiasm to a variety of sports, among which are swimming, riding, tennis, badminton, and fishing. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has brown hair and brown eyes.

Eddie Albert began life at Rock Island, Ill., April 22, 1908, and continued it in Minneapolis, where he went to the University of Minnesota and varied home work with singing on the air. Slipping into New York to make his fortune acting, he found it was always just around the corner until he got (1) a berth on a radio program, (2) a leading role in "Brother Rat," and (3) an invitation to be a Hollywood performer. He appeared recently in "Ladies' Day."



The charmer who made the South sea negligee the most popular apparel in films once was an elevator girl in Chicago's loop; and, mindful of that, never has gone high and mighty. Dottie was born in New Orleans Dec. 10, 1914. She became Herbie Kay's singer and then his wife (they now are divorced); made her Hollywood debut in "The Jungle Princess" in 1936. She has made four war bond selling tours, travels indefatigably entertaining service men. She is 5 feet 5; weighs 117; has brown hair, blue-gray eyes.

As to Russell Hoyt, accounts contradict; here is one: He was a hosiery salesman in New York; never dreamed of acting. A fried took him to an agent, who took him to a talent scout, who sent him to a dramatic coach and later gave him a screen test, and — presto! — Hoyt had a contract. He is now being groomed for screen roles.

Below: While she was in high school at Beverly Hills, Cal., Jacqueline White achieved a triumph that definitely set the rudder of her career: With her rendition of a scene from "Elizabeth, the Queen," she won the national high school dramatic championship. Dramatic class productions at the University of California at Los Angeles, in which she invariably was the star, brought her to part in Hollywood; a talent scout who saw her in one of these invited her to have a screen test, and she was placed under long term contract. She had a role recently in "Three Hearts for Julia."

Richard Quine, Detroit-born, went from high school at Los Angeles to the stage, thence to radio and the screen. His most important legitimate role was in "My Sister Eileen"; that brought him increasingly important parts in Hollywood. His first picture was "World Champ" (1931); his most recent, "For Me and My Gal."

Jacqueline

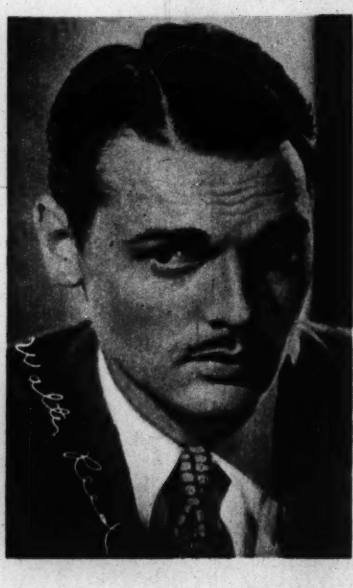
Movie Star Album

They found Pamela Blake among the extras and gave her a small role, first in "Sorority House" and later in several other pictures; and shortly she was cast as Red Skelton's light-o'-love in "Maisie Gets Her Man." On the strength of that performance Ann Sothern sponsored her, with the result that this year she was given the lead in "Ox Train." Pamela was born and reared at Oakland, Cal., where she went to high school and studied drama. She is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 100 pounds, has blonde hair and blue eyes.

Richard Carlson

Vignette of Richard Carlson: Born at Albert Lea, Minn.; actor, director, playwright in University of Minnesota theatricals; M. A. degree; Phi Beta Kappa; little theater actor, Pasadena Playhouse; Broadway star and playwright; writer, actor, director, Hollywood, 1938; screen debut in "The Young in Heart," 1938; in "The Affairs of Martha," 1942; height, 6 feet; weight, 175 pounds; hair and eyes, brown.

Norma Shearer, distinguished lady of the screen, was born in Montreal, Canada; took her first job there, selling music in a five-and-ten; had her first screen experience in New York; called to Hollywood by the late Irving G. Thalberg, who later became her husband; starred in scores of pictures; in 1929 won the Academy award for her role in "The Divorcee"; married last August to Martin Arrouge, professional ski instructor; has two children by her first marriage: Irving Jr., 11, and Katherine, 8.



At left: Walter Reed came up to Hollywood last year with a thoro seasoning in stock, more limited experience on Broadway, and the sponsorship of Joel McCrea and his wife, Frances Dee. He has an important part in "Seven Days' Leave." Reed was born in 1916 at Seattle, Wash.; was graduated from Beverly Hills, Cal., High school; rode the rods to New York to make a career of the stage. He is 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 178, has brown hair, brown eyes.

At right: Philip Dorn was brought to Hollywood in 1939 after 15 years of acting on stage and screen in the Netherlands and Netherlander colonies. He made his American film debut the next year in "Ski Patrol"; has appeared in seven other American pictures, recently was seen in "Random Harvest." He is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 175 pounds, has brown hair and blue eyes.

At right: By the time she was 15 Fay Bainter was an ingenue playing in stock; by the time she was 20 she was an acknowledged figure in the theater, entering upon 20 years of Broadway stardom. In 1934 she made her screen debut, in 1938 won the Academy award for her role in "Jezebel"; she has "retired" several times, yet each time returns to add to her triumphs. In all she has been seen in a score of pictures.

Fay Bainter

A new color photo and a brief biography of Ida Lupino appeared in The Tribune last Sunday. She gardens enthusiastically at her home in suburban Los Angeles and is active in civilian defense work; she thus follows in the footsteps of her father, Stanley Lupino of the English stage, who not only gives shows at various army camps but also is an air raid warden in London. Ida, too, finds time to appear at camps to assist in the entertainment of service men; she was active in the organization of a volunteer ambulance unit, and operates an ambulance herself.

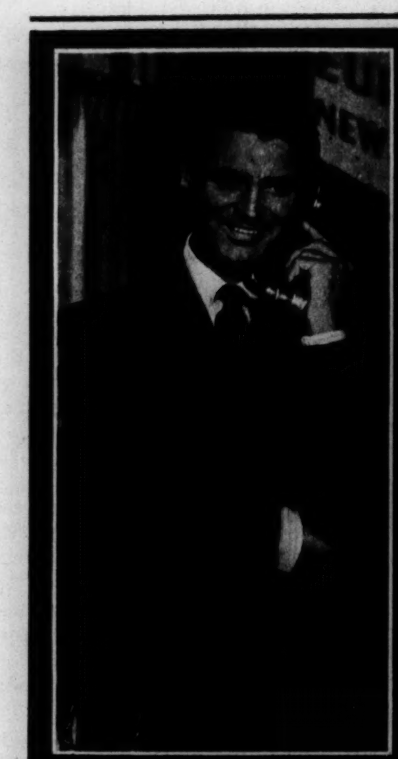
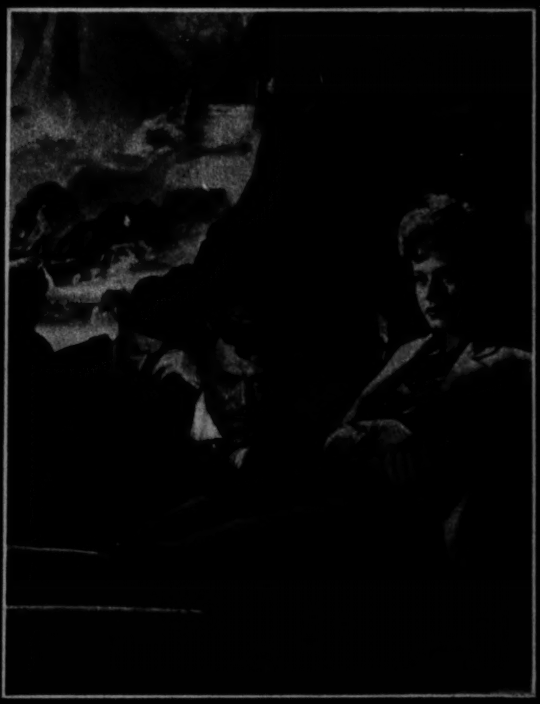
GRAPHIC LITTLE THEATER presents Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant in "ONCE UPON A HONEYMOON"



1 In Vienna is an American newspaper man, a brash young gent named Patrick O'Toole (Cary Grant). He has his eye on Hitler as eagerly as Hitler has on Austria.

2 Also in Vienna, but on a treasure hunt for a title, is Katie O'Hara (Ginger Rogers), former American strip-tease dancer, now masquerading as Katherine Butt-Smith of Philadelphia society.

3 It is inevitable, of course, for the purposes of our story, that O'Toole and O'Hara meet. No sooner do they, however, than Hitler steps into Austria, and they have to flee to Warsaw, getting there just in time for a town-wrecking air raid.

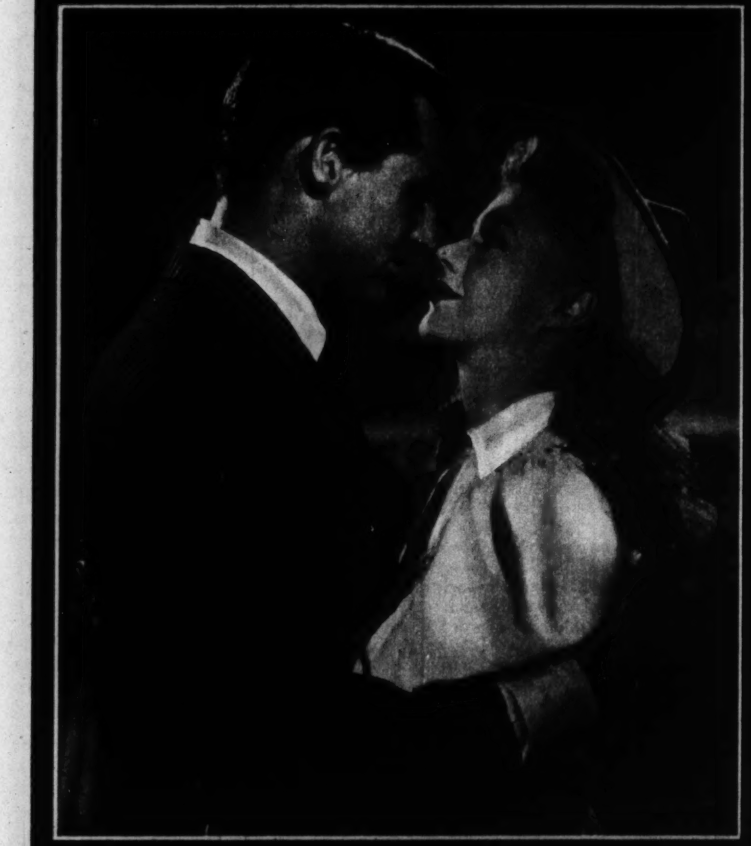


4 In the confusion of trying to escape Poland their passports are mixed up, so the O'Toole and the O'Hara end up in a concentration camp.

5 The American consul comes to their aid, and they start a roundabout trip to France via the Baltic. But a torpedo complicates their lives again—if not fatally at least dangerously.

6 In Paris, O'Hara meets her title, with beard. But when the baron (Walter Slezak) introduces her to a German military attache she grows suspicious. And rightly. The baron is Hitler's front man.

7 When he discovers her suspicions the baron imprisons O'Hara and forces O'Toole to make a broadcast praising the German way. But O'Toole finds a way to turn the tables and exposes the baron.



8 Another narrow escape takes the two O's to an America-bound ship, where whom do they find but the baron? But in their own certain way they finish him off. Then—but why be trite? They just spell "blitz" "bliss." (THE END)

Cake Talk!

By MARY MEADE

IF YOU BLEW most of your recent sugar rations in a small splurge of making jam and jelly from some of the harvest fruits you'll be very careful for a while about how much sugar you use in desserts. Yet the family will undoubtedly clamor now and then for cake and cookies, no matter how much you preach about fruit being the most healthful dessert of all. There's no reason for denying their craving for cake and cookies if you can do it within the limits of your sugar quota.

Well, here's a cake without any sugar, and cookies containing very little. They have good flavor and are sweet enough to suit any palate.

FLUFFY CHOCOLATE CAKE
(Two nine-inch layers)

2 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup shortening
1 cup light corn sirup
6 tablespoons honey
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 7-oz. package semi-sweet chocolate, melted
½ cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt several times. Cream shortening thoroly and add corn sirup and honey, pouring in a small amount at a time and beating it in thoroly. Add eggs one at a time and beat batter well after each addition. Add vanilla and melted chocolate. Alternate sifted flour mixture and milk, beating well after each addition. Pour into two greased, wax paper lined pans and bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

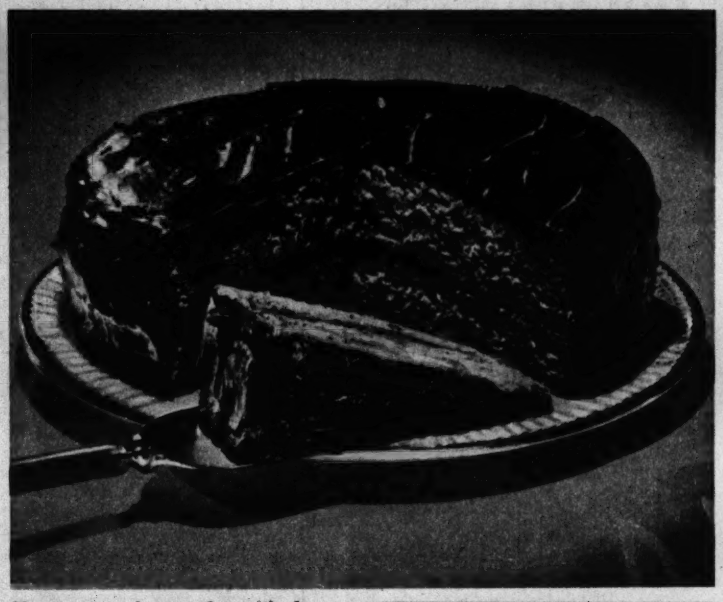
• • •

CHOCOLATE FROSTING—Cream ½ cup butter or margarine and add 2 eggs, one at a time, beating thoroly. Melt another 7-ounce package of the semi-sweet chocolate and cool slightly. Add gradually to creamed mixture, beating until thick and smooth. This is sufficient frosting for filling and frosting two nine-inch layers.

CEREAL PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES
(3½ dozen)

½ cup shortening
¾ cup peanut butter
½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup dark corn sirup
1 egg
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups popped rice cereal

Cream shortening and peanut butter together. Add brown sugar and cream thoroly together. Add corn sirup gradually, beating well. Beat egg and add. Sift flour, soda, baking powder, and salt together and add to creamed mixture. Crush cereal with rolling pin and add. Blend well and shape dough into one-inch balls. Place on greased baking sheet and flatten with fork. Bake at 375 degrees for 8-10 minutes.



Here's a cake made with honey and corn sirup instead of sugar. It's moist and has good flavor.

Popped cereal and peanut butter make these light cookies good. The others are chocolate drops.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

BOILED HONEY FROSTING

1½ cups honey
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 egg white
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cook honey and salt to 238 degrees or until it will spin a thread or make a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Beat egg white. Pour the sirup in a thin stream over the white, continuing to beat until all sirup is added and frosting will stand in peaks. Add vanilla and spread on cake.

This is a splendid recipe to keep on hand, never-fail type. It has an unusual flavor and requires no sugar.—LAURA JUDD, 4731 Lake Park avenue, Chicago.

UNDERGROUND! The Czechs Unchecked

This is another in a series of stories revealing the amazing details of the growing resistance to Germany in occupied countries of Europe. Earlier articles have told about guerrilla activities in Poland, Jugo-Slavia, and Greece.

By LLOYD WENDT

THE sleek new Mercedes-Benz streaked north from Prague on the road to Dresden and Berlin. In the front seat, beside the driver, sat grim, hawk-nosed Reinhard Heydrich, SS Obergruppenfuehrer and "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia,—known to occupied Europe as Heydrich der henker (Heydrich the hangman) and "Butcher of Prague." Behind him, to the left, crouched a blue-jowled bodyguard. It was a small company; Heydrich, one of the most hated men in Europe, rarely traveled so unattended.

The road is tortuous, even in the suburbs of Prague, and the car came almost to a halt at one of the horseshoe turns. It was precisely 1 p. m. From the brush of a little gully that opens onto the road appeared two men, both heavily cloaked. They were so close as almost to touch the fenders before the occupants of the car saw them. Then it was too late. One man had already pulled the pin of the grenade he carried. He hurled it swiftly, and it exploded almost at once, tearing away the right rear of the car. A fragment of the bomb pierced the seat, striking Heydrich. At the same time the second man opened fire with an automatic pistol. Heydrich crumpled, a bullet wound in his throat. Both the bodyguard and the chauffeur were mortally wounded. The pistol jammed, and the assailant flung it away. Then the two men disappeared, one fleeing on foot back into the valley, the other on a bicycle, speeding quietly down the curve.

It was within a few moments that a car of Gestapo men appeared on the scene. Exactly what they found probably never will be known. Perhaps it was the Gestapo purge list Heydrich was believed to have carried when he departed Prague. But quickly the alarm went out, and a few hours later Heinrich Himmler, spectacled chief of the Gestapo, arrived in Prague.

• • •

Martial law was clamped down on Bohemia and Moravia. All train service to Prague was stopped. Hotels, restaurants, theaters, and all places of entertainment were closed. A 10 million crown reward (about $235,000) was offered for the apprehension of the attackers. A 9 o'clock curfew was invoked. "Every person appearing in the streets after 9 p. m. and not stopping when hailed, will be shot," announced the German-controled radio. Squads of Gestapo and SS men went out into the night and began their raids.

A few days later, Reinhard Heydrich, the butcher of Prague, was dead, having suffered a few of the agonies he had inflicted on thousands of helpless persons in the occupied countries. Himmler vowed vengeance, altho the reprisals had already started days before.

Kurt Daluege, the new deputy protector, began by ordering the execution of Czech patriots in the concentration camps, among them Dr. L. Rasin, member of the old Czecho-Slovakian parliament, and the noted Czech novelist, Dr. Vladislav. Scores of persons were killed because they could not prove their place of residence, others were shot on charges of possessing firearms, and still others for expressing approval of the attack on Heydrich. Thruout the nation selected leaders were seized and imprisoned or slain, altho the Nazis offered no direct evidence against any of them.

Then came the blows that stunned the world. On June 10, the Nazi police went to the little town of Lidice, about 18 miles from Prague, the home of miners who worked in the coal shafts at Kladno and iron workers from the Poldi works in the same city. They accused the townspeople of harboring the Heydrich assassins, and professed to have found arms and a secret radio transmitter.

All of the adult males and some of the women and boys in the village were shot. The rest of the women were ordered sent to concentration camps. The children were sent to reform schools. "The township," said the German radio, "was leveled to the ground and the name of the community was extinguished."

A chain letter "prayer" being distributed in underground circles in Czecho-Slovakia.

Germany reported the population of massacred Lidice at 483 persons. The Czecho-Slovakian government in exile said that the population was 1,200 and that 483 was the number of persons actually killed.

On June 25, the Gestapo wiped out a second village, Lezaky, with a population of 100, about 70 miles southeast of Prague. Daily the executions continued, until an estimated 4,000 persons had been killed. Among the victims of the bloody terror were four leading Czech churchmen, Orthodox Bishop Matej Pavlik Gorazd, Elder Jan Sonneveld, Dr. Vladimir Petrek, a chaplain; and Pastor Vaclav Cikl.

Germany then announced that the actual assassins of Heydrich had been trapped and killed in a Prague church. It was charged that they were parachutists, landed in Czecho-Slovakia by British airplanes, and that the weapons they used were of British make. After the merciless reprisals had been taken, it suited Nazi policy to blame the British, and not the Czech underground, for the killing of Heydrich.

But the Czech underground was responsible for the death of Reinhard Heydrich, and it did more than kill off the butcher of Prague that fateful afternoon of May 27, 1942. The Czech underground proved to all the world that the bloodthirsty Gestapo is rotten to the very hilt, that betrayal and treachery were rife in the upper ranks, and that a festering organization run by fear and hate is not invincible before resolute men ready to die for their liberty.

For Reinhard Heydrich, second in command to Himmler himself, was betrayed to the Czech underground by a man who was reached among his most trusted confidants. That fact, vigorously obscured by German propaganda, was the thing that truly terrified Heinrich Himmler. The Gestapo was rotten, it could not even protect the "protector" of the oldest and best organized of the Nazi "protectorates." The horrible atrocities that followed were designed to prove to occupied Europe that it should not hope to take advantage of the decay starting in the ranks of the Nazi secret police.

• • •

Nevertheless, in a half dozen subjugated countries, riots and waves of sabotage began. These were put down with savagery. In Berlin, the jittery Gestapo put to death 258 Jews at the Gross Licherfelde barracks, merely on suspicion that they were planning an uprising in connection with the Heydrich killing. In France and Norway hostages were killed because the Germans thought they were threatened by the crowds that gathered when the news of the Heydrich attack was revealed by underground sources. But the reprisals stopped nothing. The Czech patriots had proved the power of the underground, and the whole of Europe began stirring.

Czecho-Slovakia, betrayed at Munich and more than three years under the Nazi heel, has developed masters in the various arts of the underground. The Czech patriots must operate in close proximity to the Germans, for the thickly populated country is completely surrounded and overrun, and there are few opportunities for guerrilla forces to organize. The Czechs and Slovaks must destroy the Germans while they live with them. Nowhere else is sabotage carried on in such efficient and daring fashion, and nowhere else can an act of sabotage or the stubborn continuance of the slowdown do greater damage to the Nazi war machine.

Czecho-Slovakia is a great arsenal and a gateway to eastern and southern Europe. The huge Skoda works is only one of a network of factories seized by the invading Germans. The crisscross of roads and railways provides Germany with one of the most efficient communication and supply lines on the continent. Czecho-Slovakia is a strategic hub for operations in many parts of Europe and any dislocation of Nazi organization there is most damaging.

When the German tanks rumbled into Bohemia on March 15, 1939, the Czechs could do nothing but toss snowballs at them. The country grumbled, and stubbornly delayed the execution of German orders, but nothing much was possible beyond passive resistance. When the Nazis invaded Poland, however, and England and France declared war on Germany, the restive Czecho-Slovak underground got busy. The Maffia, secret society that terrorized the Austrians and Germans in World War I, was revived, as were the famous Green Guards, who began operating from the Krivoklat forests, in the vicinity of the industrial districts of Kladno and Pilsen, the latter containing the Skoda works. The Green Guards also have made raids from the forests of Moravia and the Tatra mountains in Slovakia. The well organized Czech railway men, known as the "Blue army," who already had smuggled hundreds of patriots wanted by Germany

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE: Follow Crisco's method exactly—you'll get flaky pastry. If dissatisfied, write on back of Crisco label, telling how pie crust was unsatisfactory. We'll refund price of a full pound of Crisco. Mail to Crisco, Box 837, Cincinnati, Ohio. Offer ends February 28, 1943.

HERE'S CRISCO'S AMAZING NEW PASTRY METHOD—
Goodbye tough pie crust!

SINGLE-CRUST PIE: Mix 1⅓ cups sifted flour with ⅓ teaspoon salt. Remove ¼ cup of this flour to a small bowl and to it add 3 tablespoons water to make a paste! (No more guessing how much water to use!)

TO THE DRY FLOUR ADD ⅓ cup Crisco—cut in until pieces are size of small peas. Blending's easy 'cause Crisco's so creamy.

NOW, MIX THE DOUGH CRISCO'S NEW WAY: Scrape all the flour-paste into Crisco-mix. Mix thoroughly until dough comes together and can be shaped into a ball. Roll out. The dough's just right—not sticky! No need to over-handle it and make it tough! Flaky pastry is plain sailing now!

DO SOMETHING ABOUT THAT NEW "FRONT" NOW!

By ELEANOR NANGLE

WE'RE finding out now as we never did before that wishing to be or to do something isn't nearly enough. We have to get started definitely, and we have to master the "know how." It's a time for getting down to cases. And this applies to everything from war work to one's personal program of self-improvement. We are ceasing to be a nation of women who are going to do something some day but never quite get to it!

Maybe you're too thin, and always planned to get around to putting on weight. Maybe you're one of the larger group (in both literal senses) who talked wistfully of dieting and exercising but never quite got around to the day when doing setting-ups and turning down cocktails were your inflexible rule.

Now's the time to do something about it—and it's easy, economical, and admirable. Others are doing it, for a variety of reasons.

Not long ago we checked in a few times on one of the beauty courses being held in Chicago afternoons and evenings for housewives and career girls. Here were women and girls who'd stopped mere wishful thinking, who'd signed on the dotted line for a six weeks' course in self-improvement—and were having not only a wonderful time but wonderful results.

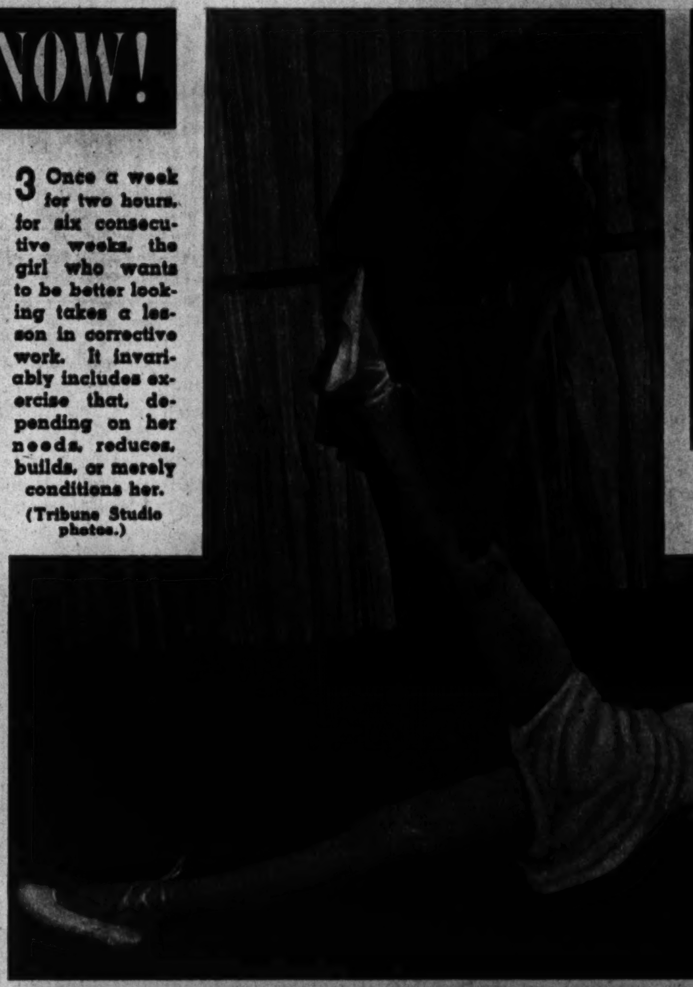
Once a week for two hours for six consecutive weeks these girls and women—the thin, the fat, the Plain Janes, the dissatisfied—take training in the art of being healthier, happier, and better looking. It doesn't cost much, and it's fun, and they have the knowledge and the habit of making the most of themselves when they've "graduated."

1 First step in a beauty course that starts the career girl toward self-improvement: Weight and measurements are checked.

2 Posture defects, the most common of all beauty flaws, are discussed, and experts show her the do's and don'ts of good carriage.

At the start each member (classes are small enough for individual attention from the experts on hand) is weighed and measured. She exercises at each lesson. Depending on her needs, these rhythmic, scientific exercises are designed to reduce, build, or condition her. She's given general diet suggestions, and she learns about grace and posture from people who really know. She learns about complexion care and makeup and care of her nails. A hair stylist looks her over and tells what's wrong with her current hair-do and what is advisable for her new rôle as a chic person. She gets a slew of useful pointers on voice control (and would that more of us could get that!), and she even learns about color, which is certainly one of the most important lessons for any beauty-on-a-budget who must make every dress purchase a foolproof one.

It's perfectly possible to make yourself over, or at least learn the mechanics of doing just that, in six weeks. These students are doing it. The thing is to get started. Even in this purely personal phase of our existence it's the present that counts.



3 Once a week for two hours, for six consecutive weeks, the girl who wants to be better looking takes a lesson in corrective work. It invariably includes exercise that, depending on her needs, reduces, builds, or merely conditions her.

4 She learns how to care for her complexion, hair, hands—and she is taught the correct way to apply makeup.

Marines Have Landed!

On page one of this section are reproduced color photos of marines in training.

By WALTER SIMMONS

THE AMERICAN warship had just dropped anchor in Tokio bay, but the marines couldn't wait. Over the sides they went and into the boats—tough-fisted, battle-hardened men, eager for the honor of being first to set foot on Japanese soil.

There was no resistance as they swarmed ashore. Yet the undercurrent of excitement that ran thru Tokio was strong enough to be felt like a tangible thing. The air was surcharged with hostility, curiosity, and fear. High officials were actually servile in their politeness. Civilians just stared and chattered.

This marine landing was made July 8, 1853—nearly 90 years ago—and is one of the 180 landings of the proud and capable leathernecks in their long history. The corps will observe its 167th anniversary next Tuesday, Nov. 10. "The fightinest men in the world" will be fighting, as usual.

There were no shots fired, no blood spilled, on that morning in 1853, because Commodore Matthew Perry's visit was a friendly one. He wanted to negotiate a treaty opening Japan to foreign trade. Maj. Jacob Zeilin and his 100 marines were there to give "face" to the landing. And this they did with their brilliant uniforms, discipline, and precision drill.

• • •

The marines hope to return to Tokio next year on the 90th anniversary of their courtesy call with Commodore Perry. That would be, too, on the 20th anniversary of their march thru Yokohama streets in 1923, shortly after the great earthquake. It was a mission of mercy when the marines landed with food and supplies.

History has pretty well buried these and other visits to Japan by the marine corps, but the record is there if you care to dig for it. With a single exception it is a history of peace. The exception—in 1863—was prompted by the prince of Nagato, who hated all foreigners and especially Americans. His highness started a war to drive all foreigners from Japan. He commanded six forts and three warships at the Straits of Shimonoseki, at the west exit of the Inland sea, a vital trade route. The U. S. merchantman Pembroke was fired on.

American sailors and marines on the steam sloop Wyoming wrecked the prince's fleet and disabled his shore batteries in an hour when Commodore David McDougal moved in to answer the challenge. The prince called off his war.

In 167 years the marines have served in China, Corea, Egypt, Alaska, Tripoli, Germany, France, Sumatra, Formosa, Algeria, and on hundreds of tiny islands which dot the seven seas. Marines were aboard the first ship to carry the flag east of the Cape of Good Hope in March, 1800. A few years later, "aboard" cranky camels, they bore the American flag in triumph across the North African deserts.

Marines were the first to raise the American flag over Alaska—Oct. 18, 1867—and they were the first to bring it to the Virgin Islands in 1917. When World War I. ended, the first American flag was carried across the Rhine by Capt. Gaines Mosely of the marines.

Marines are all over the world these days—in more places than it is possible to tell of. The corps, which has seen actual fighting in 92 of its 167 years, launched out before Pearl Harbor with the occupation of Iceland. Since then there have been the unforgettable epics of Wake Island, Midway, Makin Island, and the Solomons.

This tradition of gallantry and dash goes back to 1776. Congress had, the year before, ordered the formation of the marines. Recruiting was placed in the tough and capable care of Robert Mullan, operator of Tun's tavern in Philadelphia. There was no glamor in those days to draw young men into the corps, but frequenters of Captain Mullan's tavern found themselves tempted by grog, prize money, bounties, pensions.

The new leathernecks—who got their name from high leather collars worn to turn enemy cutlasses—were called into action in 1776 when it was learned the British were accumulating ammunition on the island of New Providence in the Bahamas. Naval Lieutenant John Paul Jones secretly assembled a squadron of eight vessels, 220 marines marched aboard with the crews, the rattlesnake flag—"Don't Tread on Me"—was hoisted, and the nation was off on its first sea-borne offensive.

Two bulging fortifications, Forts Montague and Nassau, guarded New Providence. The marines obtained two native sloops, into which they were loaded in company with 50 sailors. The squadron remained just out of view of the island.

This perfect setup for a surprise was spoiled, however, when the big ships of the expedition drifted out of concealment too soon and were glimpsed by lookouts, who sounded an alarm. But it didn't really matter. The landing party swept in from the sea, backed by the thunderous guns of the fleet. Fort Montague fell without a single marine casualty.

• • •

Fort Nassau was next on the timetable. The governor of the island, inside the fort, refused to surrender his military stores. Marines attacked the next morning, captured the fort and its equipment, including 71 cannon, 15 mortars, and 24 casks of powder—stores badly needed by the revolutionary cause. The marines' first offensive had been a success.

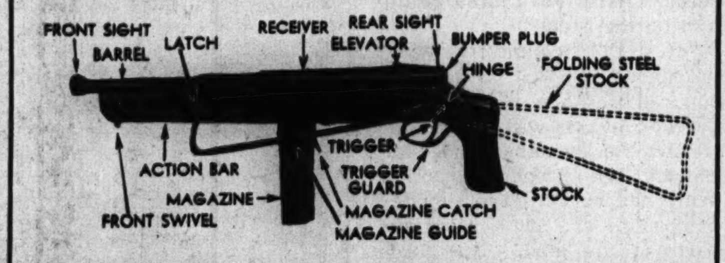
And they went on from there, crashing thru to victory against huge odds time after time, building the tradition of a service arm that is definitely not for pantywaists. It was a marine who turned the tide when John Paul Jones and his worm-eaten, barnacle-ridden Bon Homme Richard dared to tackle the mighty Serapis in 1779. At the high point of the battle the marine crawled out on the yardarm and tossed hand grenades down the open hatch of the enemy man-o'-war.

Strong emphasis on physical fitness and rifle marksmanship thru the years has made the marines good men to have on our side. In Revolutionary times the marine arsenal included cutlasses, pikes, spears, boarding axes, muskets, and even tomahawks. Today the seagoing soldier learns to use the .30-caliber Springfield, the new Garand, the .45 automatic pistol, and the Reising gun.

When you fight with barbarians you have to throw the rules out the window, and that is why the marine of 1942 is a tougher, better trained, and more resourceful warrior than ever.

Armed with this thoro training and conscious of 167 years of proud tradition, today's marine, his officers claim, is the hardiest, best equipped, and best fed of modern fighters. He's of the same breed as the 378 gallant defenders of Wake Island, who held off an armada of 12 Jap ships and scores of bombers for 15 days, and who replied when asked what they wanted most:

"Send us more Japs!"



The Reising gun, model 55. Dotted line indicates how stock (folded against barrel) looks when extended for use.

THE REISING GUN

THE CENTER figure in the color picture group on page one of this section is that of a United States marine literally "armed to the teeth." The weapon in his hands is the new Reising submachine gun. Other weapons of this identical type are shown in two other pictures on the page.

The Reising submachine gun, a wicked little weapon, is taking its place as one of the most important firearms of the United States. On Aug. 22 the navy department announced officially that this arm had been adopted as a supplementary .45-caliber weapon for the marine corps, and today instructors from the marine corps weapons school at Quantico, Va., are visiting all posts and shore stations from Maine to Florida and as far west as Corpus Christi, Tex., tutoring marines in the use of the Reising gun.

Small as compared with either the Garand semiautomatic rifle or the Thompson submachine gun, the Reising is made in three models. It is an air-cooled, delayed-blow-back, magazine-fed hand or shoulder weapon which can be fired from any position with one or both hands. The exterior surface of the rear part of the barrel is made with radial flanges or cooling fins which radiate the heat from the barrel during firing, thus keeping it cool.

The type of fire is selective, either automatic or semiautomatic. The weapon is fed from a box type magazine having a capacity of 20 rounds. The gun is intended for intensive fire within a range of 300 yards and is particularly suitable for parachute troops. Accuracy is high within the stated maximum effective range.

Of the three models of the weapon, two are pictured in the October issue of the United States Naval Institute Proceedings. Model 50, according to the illustrations, is a gun with a conventional rifle stock of wood, while model 55 is made with a pistol grip and a skeleton metal folding stock. The weapons shown on page one of this section are provided with the pistol grip.

The arm with the pistol grip weighs around six pounds, or more than three pounds less than the Thompson submachine gun. Its over-all length with the stock folded is 22 inches. With the stock extended it is 32 inches long. The barrel is 11 inches long, and the length of the sighting radius is 18¼ inches.

The Reising uses the standard .45-caliber service ammunition, the same as the Colt automatic service pistol and the Thompson gun. The bullet weighs 230 grains, or 80 grains more than the .30-caliber bullet of the Garand rifle. The automatic rate of fire of the Reising is 400 to 450 rounds a minute, and the bullet penetrates six inches of white pine at 20 yards.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

AT SHATTUCK, which adequately describes itself as "primarily a college preparatory school, traditionally a church school, and essentially a military school," the highest standards in American scholastic and military training aims are woven into an academic picture modeled after the English public school pattern.

Tho it is the oldest military preparatory school in the United States, that phase of its curriculum having been continuously under the direction of the war department since 1869, it clings in many respects to the pattern of Winchester, its "mother school" in England. Youngest Shads, seventh graders, are classified as first formers. Oldest cadets, high school seniors, are sixth formers. As in England, Wednesday is the weekly holiday. There is close relationship between masters and boys, all classes are small, and Shattuck still retains three of the conference type classrooms, where boys work with the master at old oval conference tables rather than at desks. Masters and their families take meals with the students at tables in Morgan refectory. And the center of religious life at Shattuck is the lovely little Memorial Church of the Good Shepherd on the school grounds, where daily chapel and Sunday Episcopal services are held.

In prewar days Shads who took their college preparatory at Faribault, Minn., felt most at home when they visited Winchester in England. Today an English boy, Radley Searle of Derby, Derbyshire, who prepped for Winchester, is a happily transplanted fifth former at Shattuck in Minnesota!

Shattuck's enrollment (there is almost always a waiting list) is small. Almost half of the current 230 cadets are sons or relatives of former Shads; there are two third-generation Shads there now.

Today's cadets at Shattuck revel in the traditions of the men who went before them and respect their immemorial customs. Only seniors traverse the steps of Shumway, the administration building. The raised platform in Morgan where the headmaster dines is still called, as it always has been, the "hash pulpit." The girls from nearby St. Mary's, the exclusive Episcopal boarding school for the girls with whom Shads share social life, are still referred to as "Saints."

But, as even precollegians must, and especially those attending one of the oldest and finest military schools in the country, Shads are readying themselves for battle. The old cannon that flanked the entrance to Johnson Memorial armory were dramatically tossed into Faribault's scrap collection, but that was a minor gesture. New traditions are shaping every day.

• • •

Many will center, probably, around the "commando training" now incorporated into Shattuck's always vigorous physical education program. The 12-year-olds and 18-year-olds alike must now three times a week cover Shattuck's new obstacle course, 100 yards of hurdles, walls, wire barriers, tunnels, and 18-foot ladders. One cadet recently distinguished himself by doing the tough course in 23 seconds. Jujitsu has also been added to the training program.

The Lovelier Way to AVOID OFFENDING

UNDERGROUND!

out of the country, went into action to disorganize the Nazi transport system, which was pouring troops and supplies into Poland by way of Czecho-Slovakia.

The main line from Prague to Brno was blown up in several places. Bridges were damaged, rails loosened, and military trains had to stand for hours while German experts tested the lines ahead. A train of German armored cars was held up in Ceske Budepjovice because saboteurs cut the electric cables connecting them. Some railway warehouses were blown up, the telegraph poles were cut, and the telephone system ceased to function. When a train, loaded with grenades manufactured in German-controled plants in Czecho-Slovakia, arrived at its destination, the cars were still sealed, but they were empty!

In ensuing weeks the number of accidents on Czecho-Slovak railroads exceeded the total for the previous 20 years of operations. The Germans could do nothing to stop them. Jiri Hronek, writing in London of the work of the Czech underground, described a typical "accident." Near the station of Josefova Hut on the Pilsen-Cheb line there was a huge cliff that had caused Czech railway men much worry for years. They guarded against danger by regularly and carefully checking the cliff and taking precautions when a landslide seemed imminent. When the Germans came in, however, the Czechs said nothing about the danger. Day after day Czech railway crews, forced into German service, took their trains past the cliff, well aware that sooner or later the vibration would start a landslide that would wreck a train.

One day the cliff crashed down, just ahead of a Nazi military transport. Scores of Nazi soldiers were killed, and quantities of military supplies were destroyed. It was weeks before the line could be reopened to vital military traffic.

At another time the Germans were transporting a train load of gasoline to the front. En route the train had to make several stops in Czecho-Slovakia, and the German guards could not, of course, watch every Czech railroad man in the country. Somewhere along the line, expert saboteurs tampered with the cocks, and while the train was again in motion, all of the oil drained out.

By 1941, the Germans had arrested 800 persons on charges of railway sabotage in Slovakia alone, in addition to others simply shot "while attempting to escape." The arrests and the shootings did not deter the "Blue army." Railway sabotage continues to harass the Nazis, and following the attack on Russia it was reported that the Czecho-Slovakian lines have deteriorated to 25 per cent of their former efficiency.

The Czecho-Slovakian saboteurs must work with great ingenuity and care, for the Nazi party, which got into power by sabotaging the Wiemar republic, is thoroly familiar with underground methods, and ruthless in combating them. When the Germans moved into Czecho-Slovakia they brought along 120,000 security police and additional Schupo (a kind of economic detective force) to enforce obedience to the reich edicts. The Nazis in the beginning were particularly interested in the Czech munitions factories and the nation's banks. Factory directors were forced out, replaced by Germans or men friendly to Germany. Banks were required to merge with German institutions. Czech workers were sent to Germany, and German workers were placed in the Czech plants.

Despite these precautions, Czecho-Slovakian factory production fell off 33 per cent during the first year of occupation. No amount of German supervision could prevent Czech and Slovak workers from smashing machines, dropping metal filings into bearings, or from underestimating stresses and tolerances in such a fashion that guns and machines broke down shortly after they were put into service. Finally it became necessary for the Germans to make only simple parts in many of the Czech plants. These were shipped to Germany for assembly.

Germany also expected to benefit largely from Czecho-Slovakian farm production. But the first year the farmers failed to plant properly, and 1940 grain production was 45 per cent less than in 1939. The pig crop dropped 30 per cent, and the number of cattle on Czecho-Slovakian farms went down 6 per cent. Even Czech cows somehow joined the sabotage effort. German experts complained that they produced less milk than cows of similar breed and similarly fed in Germany.

The example of the cows particularly maddened the Germans. It seemed symbolic of the whole nation. The performance of the Czechs and the Slovaks seemed to be not only against the New Order, but against nature. The people persisted in starving themselves, in wrecking their own property, in ruining the country in the effort to harm their "protectors." Finally, in September, 1941, Hitler lost patience. He removed Baron Konstantin von Neurath as reich protector of Bohemia and Moravia, and installed Heydrich.

Heydrich, already possessed of a reputation for ferocity, issued a number of drastic decrees, proclaimed a state of siege, and began killing off Czech and Slovak hostages, most of them intellectuals. They were charged with conspiracy, altho all of them had been in concentration camps for months. Then Heydrich and a group of Gestapo officers called upon Czech Premier Gen. Alois Elias, and invited themselves to dinner. Following that dinner several of the officers became ill, and some of them died. Whether or not General Elias was guilty, he was promptly seized and sentenced to death for "high treason." A purge of the puppet government was ordered, and a number of former Czech army officers were killed.

Following the arrival of Heydrich, Czecho-Slovakian underground activity speeded up remarkably. When the Germans began the winter campaign in Russia, and called heavily upon the occupied countries for war materials, the Maffia and the Green Guards, collaborating with the "Blue army" of the railroad workers, launched a wave of sabotage, furnishing expert sappers and saboteurs for particularly dangerous jobs on the rail lines or in the factories. It was this campaign that finally culminated in the death of Heydrich, and the wholesale reprisals.

• • •

The underground in Czecho-Slovakia includes, at one time or another, almost the whole of the population, save for the few officials, under President Emil Hacka, who have elected to collaborate with Germany, and a small Nazi party. As in Poland, the directing force of the underground is the hidden radio and illegal newspapers, such as the famous "V Boj"—"To Arms," which continues to publish altho Josef Skalda, its first editor, was sentenced to death, and 15 other staff members have gone to prison. The Czecho-Slovakian government in exile has been in close touch with the underground, landing parachutists, who are effectively hidden under the noses of the Gestapo and the security police, and scattering pamphlets, among them the Letecky Zpravodaj (Aerial Courier), which floated down by the thousands from British planes.

The Czech police force carries out German orders, in a fashion. When the Aerial Courier was dropped, the Nazis sent Czech police out to gather up the pamphlets and destroy them. The Czech police went out, and to convince the people that they ought not read such subversive literature they carefully showed the pamphlets to every Czech citizen they met.

Despite the Nazi terror, the people of Czechoslovakia have preserved a sense of humor about many of the problems of occupation. One of their favorite stories concerns the radio. The Germans have pasted on every set a notice warning that listening to foreign broadcasts is punishable by imprisonment, or death. A Czech woman, according to the story, visited the German-controled police headquarters to ask help in finding her son, who had left home. "We'll find him," she was assured. "We'll put a message for him on the radio."

"O, sirs!" exclaimed the woman eagerly. "Put it on the London radio. Then every one in Czecho-Slovakia will hear it!"

When the Germans invaded the country the Czecho-Slovakian army had buried large supplies of gasoline and arms in various parts of the land. The Nazis hoped to get the supplies. They discovered, however, that all maps of the caches had disappeared, and no Czech officer would talk. Finally, after some months, a civilian familiar with the location of a hidden oil dump was induced to lead a group of Gestapo men to it. He took them to a field that appeared to contain buried gas tanks. The "gas dump" exploded just as the Germans were inspecting it. The Czech patriot gave his life for the privilege of taking a dozen Nazis with him.

At present, according to latest dispatches from the Czech underground, Germany is attempting to force the country to produce at high speed for a winter campaign in Russia. Sabotage is on the increase, rail wrecks occur daily, and even in Sudetenland there is dissension and unrest. The traitor Konrad Henlein, it is reported, has been imprisoned by the Nazis because of his failure to get the Sudeten Germans to supply troops for the winter fight. Elsewhere Czechs and the Slovaks resist stubbornly, patiently awaiting the day when they can arise against their oppressor.

In an early issue—Norway fights the Nazis.

MOSTLY ABOUT • DOGS

By BOB BECKER

Not many dog owners get an opportunity to see a mastiff puppy, for this breed is not common in the United States. This one posing so nicely is named Prince Igor. It's owned by Laraine Day, motion picture actress.

A PUPPY OWNER cannot possibly know too much about the active, amusing little animal that is brought into the home. Unfortunately, people who do not know dogs buy a nice little pup and without reading anything on dogs attempt to raise their new pet. It's not surprising that they run into trouble. Usually the trouble is due as much to the owner's lack of knowledge on how to feed and train the new pet as to misbehavior of the puppy.

For example, it's quite natural for a young puppy to pick food from its dish and decide to eat that particular morsel under a table or on a rug. A puppy doesn't think like a human being, so you can't expect it to behave like one and have regard for carpets or cushioned chairs.

• • •

It's natural for a young, untrained pup to chew a newspaper, magazine, or shoe. It has to be taught that these things are taboo. The amount of chewing that puppies do in a home varies. We raised one terrier pup that never chewed a single article in the home because we never gave him a chance to get started. At first it's a good idea to keep a puppy away from this temptation to chew articles. Don't keep him in a room where he can get into mischief.

When you pick up a puppy, use both hands. It's possible to cow some pups by grabbing them suddenly, seizing them by the back of the neck and lifting them quickly.

Some puppies whimper a good deal at first in their new home, due to the fact that they are not fed often enough. A grown dog can get along well on a light breakfast and a heavy meal at night. A puppy 8 or 10 weeks old needs four meals a day at least. Milk is one of the foods the little pup should have every day so he will get calcium, butter fat, minerals, and other food items which young dogs need. In addition to milk give the pup solid foods, too.

A smooth bone is excellent for a puppy. A bone serves two purposes: In the first place, it helps during the teething period. Secondly, a bone often amuses a pup. If there is anything a 10-week-old dog wants it's amusement, and often such a pet gets into trouble simply because it is trying to find amusement.

Annoying and teasing a spirited young dog may make it irritable. If such a pup snaps at the owner you can hardly blame the dog. The owner asked for it.

We feel sorry for the new dog (age around 10 weeks) which is put into a bath almost as soon as it arrives in the home. It's not advisable to bathe very young dogs, especially at this season of the year. You can clean the puppy and kill all dog odor by first combing and brushing it, then applying a cleaning powder (made especially for dogs) containing a deodorant, or by using some of the liquid deodorants especially made for young and old dogs. Some of the liquids also have cleaning properties, so the dog gets his coat cleaned up and all odor killed with one application.

When a very lively, playful pup suddenly becomes listless and doesn't want to play or romp around, better consult a veterinarian, for the chances are the puppy is not well. Above all, don't give the pup a worm capsule when he doesn't act like a well dog.

Your pup will appreciate a box or bed (mattress stuffed with cedar shavings), for he wants a corner or spot that he can call home. Make him stay here several times during each day so he will learn that he can't expect human company every minute. This training will prevent the pup from whining when he is left alone later on.

No dog (young or old) likes to be worried at meal times. Always let the pet alone until he has finished his meal. And don't forget that all puppies must be exercised right after a meal. A dog (in our estimation) has a perfect right to growl or even snap at anybody when he is eating. Nobody likes to be worried or annoyed while eating. Why shouldn't a dog have the right to be left alone when it's his meal time?

PERFECT POEMS

The Tribune each Sunday reprints in the Graphic Section a poem selected from the works of all writers whose writing has survived the test of years.

JIM BLUDSO OF THE PRAIRIE BELLE

By JOHN HAY

Wall, no! I can't tell whar he lives,
  Because he don't live, you see;
Leastways, he's got out of the habit
  Of livin' like you and me.
Whar have you been for the last three year
  That you haven't heard folks tell
How Jimmy Bludso passed in his checks
  The night of the Prairie Belle?

He weren't no saint—them engineers
  Is all pretty much alike,—
One wife in Natchez-Under-the-Hill
  And another one here in Pike;
A keerless man in his talk was Jim,
  And an awkward hand in a row,
But he never flunked, and he never lied,—
  I reckon he never knowed how.

And this was all the religion he had,—
  To treat his engine well;
Never be passed on the river;
  To mind the pilot's bell;
And if ever the Prairie Belle took fire,—
  A thousand times he swore
He'd hold her nozzle agin' the bank
  Till the last soul got ashore.

All boats has their day on the Mississip',
  And her day come at last,—
The Movastar was a better boat,
  But the Belle, she wouldn't be passed.
And so she come tearin' along that night—
  The oldest craft on the line—
With a nigger squat on her safety valve,
  And her furnace crammed, rosin and pine.

The fire bust out as she clared the bar,
  And burnt a hole in the night,
And quick as a flash she turned and made
  For the willer bank on the right.
There was runnin' and cursin', but Jim yelled out
  Over all the infernal roar,
"I'll hold her nozzle agin' the bank
  Till the last galoot's ashore."

Thru the hot, black breath of the burnin' boat
  Jim Bludso's voice was heard,
And they all had trust in his cussedness
  And knowed he would keep his word.
And, sure's you're born, they all got off
  Afore the smokestacks fell,—
And Bludso's ghost went up alone
  In the smoke of the Prairie Belle.

He weren't no saint,—but at jedgment
  I'd run my chance with Jim
'Longside of some pious gentlemen
  That wouldn't shook hands with him.
He seen his duty, a dead-sure thing,—
  And went for it thar and then;
And Christ ain't a-going to be too hard
  On a man that died for men.

HATS TO CROCHET

Practically every portrait needs or can use retouching. This "afterwork" may be limited to removing spots or scratches, it may involve softening the contrasts in the picture, or it may call for changing certain features of the model. (Posed by Barbara Stanwyck.)

EVERY photographer should know something about retouching, whether he plans to retouch his own pictures or to leave the job to a professional retoucher. Practically every good photograph requires some amount of retouching either in the negative or in the print stage. Therefore the amateur should have a fair conception of what the advantages and limitations of retouching are.

Small contact prints of ordinary snapshots may get by without the need for retouching. But very few enlargements have been made which would not have required some "afterwork" to clean them up and make them really presentable. If nothing else, tiny white spots on the print—caused by dust particles which settle on the negative while in the enlarger—must be removed. In addition there are usually a few small scratches and so-called pinholes on the negative, the latter appearing as black spots on the print.

In addition to removing such mechanical defects, retouching can vastly improve many a picture by eliminating harsh contrasts and sometimes completely changing the appearance of certain objects.

The most important use of retouching is in portraiture. It can eliminate such things as ugly wrinkles, harsh shadows, or a disturbing strand of hair. It can even straighten crooked noses and remove double chins. The only question in this field is how far to go.

Outdoor shots as well as studio portraits can be improved considerably by retouching. One important improvement is to build up the highlights by darkening the corresponding portions of the picture on the negative.

Old-fashioned portrait photographers used to carry retouching to a point where the faces of their models took on a smooth, masklike appearance and the subjects lost their character if not their identity. As a reaction to this practice, some people shun retouching entirely. However, there is no reason for disregarding a sound and useful photographic technique just because it was applied improperly in some instances.

Negative retouching is the first step in all afterwork on a photograph, even tho it is considerably more difficult than print retouching. Not only can the negative be damaged beyond repair, but you must figure every correction you make in reverse. If you darken a spot on the negative it will appear lighter in the print, and vice versa. It takes experience to judge the effect of your work correctly.

The simple and inexpensive tools required for negative retouching are pencils of different grades, spotting colors, a camel's hair brush, retouching fluid, and an etching knife. Dark spots and streaks can be gently scraped away with the knife, but it is safer to remove these on the print, where they will appear light and can be easily darkened. Best results can be obtained in this stage by darkening portions of the negative to make them print lighter.

• • •

First spread some retouching fluid over the entire emulsion side of the negative and wipe off the excess. The purpose of using this fluid is to make the pencil and brush marks stick. The negative then should be propped up in such a manner that it can be illuminated from behind. Get a sheet of opal glass, cover it with black paper, then cut out a square the size of the negative. Place the negative in this opening and you are ready for work.

Before you start retouching facial features or other important parts of the picture, clean up the negative by filling in scratches and pinholes. This can be done with spotting colors or a soft retouching pencil. In both cases your tool should have a sharp point and you should barely touch with it the surface of the negative.

The next step consists of the major corrections you want to make. The deep wrinkles and dark shadows appear light on the negative, and your job is to fill in these sections with color or with pencils. The trick here it to apply tiny and regular brush or pencil strokes which will gradually build up the density of the light spots on the negative. Most professional retouchers apply a regular pattern of crosshatches which finally blend into an even tone.

As you go along, examine your work with a magnifying glass, or, better yet, make a test print. When you enlarge the picture you will enlarge with it your retouching marks on the negative, and you will soon see whether your lines are fine enough. Because these marks are enlarged, it is impractical to retouch miniature negatives. Even 2¼x2¼ negatives will reveal retouching if blown up to sizes of 8x10 or larger. The best results are obtained in contact printing.

If large sections of the negative are too thin—that is, underexposed—you can equalize them with the rest of the picture by applying new coccine to them. This red liquid holds back part of the light going thru the negative so that the corresponding part of the print will appear lighter. The effect of the new coccine can be controled by using it in a more or less concentrated solution or by applying several coats to the negative.

The main thing to remember in the case of portrait retouching is that you should be satisfied to subdue certain blemishes instead of trying to eliminate them completely. Too much retouching defeats its own purpose. In many cases it will be possible to make further improvements on the prints. Negative retouching and print retouching must supplement each other.

Next Sunday—Simple ways to retouch your prints.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.

Stephen Decatur

STEPHEN DECATUR, famous naval hero of the hostilities with the Barbary pirates and the War of 1812, was born at Sinepuxent, Md., Jan. 5, 1779. His father, also named Stephen, was a naval captain who had served in the Revolutionary war.

The younger Stephen attended the Episcopal academy and the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, and later entered the employ of a Philadelphia shipping firm. At the beginning of the quasi war with France in 1798 he obtained a midshipman's commission and sailed in the frigate United States, under the command of Commodore John Barry. In May, 1799, he was promoted to lieutenant. The summer of that year he fought the first of two duels, wounding his adversary, the mate of a merchant ship.

• • •

Decatur was on the frigate United States when the hostilities with France came to an end. After only three years of service in the navy he was elevated to first lieutenant of the Essex, a vessel of Commodore Richard Dale's squadron, which was in Mediterranean waters from May, 1801, to July, 1802. Later in 1802 he was transferred to the New York, commanded by Capt. James Barron. In 1803 Decatur again was back in the Mediterranean as commander of the Argus. At Gibraltar he was transferred to command of the Enterprise.

Soon he was in the thick of the action against Tripoli. Off the port of Tripoli he captured the small vessel Mastico, which was renamed the Intrepid. Decatur proposed to Commodore Edward Preble the use of the Intrepid for the destruction of the American frigate Philadelphia, which had stranded and fallen into the hands of the Tripolitans. Preble agreed, and the exploit was carried out in the evening of Feb. 16, 1804. The Intrepid crept up on the Philadelphia and completely surprised the enemy aboard it. The Americans, led by Decatur, sprang aboard the frigate and drove most of the Tripolitans overboard. Then, after setting fire to the Philadelphia, they returned to the Intrepid and escaped.

In the bombardment of Tripoli on Aug. 3, 1804, Decatur commanded one of the two divisions of ships. Leading a handful of men, he boarded and cleared the deck of an enemy craft. As his vessel was towing the prize away he learned that his younger brother James had been killed.

Thereupon he turned his ship around and returned to the fight, attacking another enemy craft and boarding it at the head of only 10 men. In a hand-to-hand struggle with the commander of the enemy vessel Decatur fell, with his adversary on top of him. Another Tripolitan was about to strike him with a cutlass when a devoted sailor saved his life, taking the blow himself and receiving a severe wound. Decatur finally slew his original enemy with a pistol shot fired from a pocket of his coat.

In a second attack on Tripoli, on Aug. 7, Decatur again led a division of vessels. About a month later he was placed in command of the frigate Constitution, with a commission of captain, but not long afterward he was shifted to the command of the Congress.

After the peace with Tripoli in the spring of 1805 and until the beginning of the War of 1812 he held various commands. At the outbreak of the second conflict with Great Britain he joined his squadron of three ships, including his flagship, the frigate United States, with a like squadron and sailed upon a cruise that netted seven prizes. On Oct. 25 the United States fought the Macedonian, gaining two of the three famous American frigate victories of the first year of the war.

In May, 1814, Decatur was shifted to the frigate President. The following January he was compelled by superior forces of the enemy to surrender this vessel after a thrilling engagement in which he had been painfully wounded. Decatur was taken prisoner to Bermuda but soon was paroled. In the findings of the American court of inquiry which considered his case he was given high praise and credited with a victory over the British ship Endymion.

Placed in command of a squadron of nine ships, he sailed from New York in May, 1815, to bring to terms the Algerians who had been preying upon American shipping since 1812. On June 28 the squadron reached the port of Algiers, and Decatur went ashore to give the dey of Algeria the choice of war or peace. Two days later Algeria signed a peace treaty. The American squadron then sailed to Tunis and later to Tripoli, exacting reparations for the injuries suffered by Americans at the hands of these two countries.

On his return to America Decatur was accorded ovations wherever he went. Public dinners were held for him in a number of cities. It was at one of these, at Norfolk, Va., that he offered his famous toast to his country:

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."

From November, 1815, until his death Decatur served as a member of the board of navy commissioners. He made his home in Washington, where he and his wife were prominent in capital society.

A quarrel with James Barron, at this time a commodore, led to Decatur's second duel, fought at Bladensburg, near Washington, March 22, 1820. In this encounter, which was fought with pistols, Decatur consented, out of deference to his opponent's faulty eyesight, to a distance of only eight paces between the two principals. Decatur was killed and Barron was wounded.

ON THE ALERT—EVERYBODY!

By MAUREEN DALY (Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

THE war hasn't changed your life much. You may have a brother off in camp somewhere or the lady next door may have two service stars in her window or you may have spent all last Saturday morning helping your dad clean out the garage looking for scrap metal.

Perhaps you have supper late some evenings since your mother has been helping at the service center or you have to wait longer for your father to come home from work since he's not taking the car any more. Maybe last year's English teacher is now training with the WAACs or the fellow who coached your football team last fall is now a physical instructor at Great Lakes. But high school life is still going pretty much on schedule.

You may be turning more of your jingling money into war stamps and cutting down on your drugstore output these days but so far you haven't had to resort to any drastic date rationing. And even tho you do cast an anxious eye on the war news first thing every morning you still get a kick out of the "Wake" and you still need your day-by-day adventure with "Terry and the Pirates."

You go to Red Cross instructions and get bandaged into mummies gladly because you realize you're learning something valuable and besides it gives you an extra opportunity to get together with the kids for a little fun afterward. The rubber shortage may have hit you hardest because your father has made the car a family luxury for the duration and all your girl friends will have to be satisfied with simple "walkie-talkie" dates from now on.

But you are having just as much fun as you did this time last year. The girls are as pretty, the boys are as tall, and the smooth bands are still turning out the sweetest recordings this side of Tommy Dorsey. There are still the same number of classes every school day, the same excitement of basketball games and the same routine of homework and book reports.

It's still as important to have a date on Friday night and it's still important to have that date with the right person. You count the number of times the phone rings in the evening and you subconsciously keep track of the times it doesn't ring when it really ought to. Outwardly at least, school life is going on much the same as before but underneath it all there is a new streak of seriousness.

There is a new and determined activity. It is nothing new written into school rules, you don't find it posted on the bulletin boards and you probably don't even talk about it among yourselves. It isn't anything forced on you and it isn't anything organized into zones and districts under the supervision of wardens and captains. (Tho you would be a bit of a block head yourself if you didn't sense it and coöperate.)

It is a new urge toward harder work because everything you do this year is twice as important as it was this time last year. you are glad to be there. You can pass notes in study hall, hang around your current girl's locker and speculate about your teachers' love lives—school still is going on in the same old way but under all the fun you have a new and serious job to do. The very fact that you are in school with the opportunities of learning places a definite responsibility on you.

Make up your mind that that old sweater really can still be made into a very smooth number.

You're learning for keeps now. Whether its a snap course with a push-over for a teacher or whether its something that really takes some clean needling to get into your head, you have to do a permanent job. No surface learning or last minute cramming. A few years from now you will be called on to give back the knowledge you were able to get while the fighting was going on.

The notes you took and the lectures you listened to in this year's chemistry class may make you a valuable worker in next year's munitions plant and the mathematics you might have struggled thru before only for your pride and the sake of a good grade, in fact, the very equation that stumped you for two study halls, might be used in figuring out the big aerial navigation problem for that final raid on Tokio! Everything you learn in school these days is yours to keep and to give back when the time comes. And you haven't a minute to lose.

You'll find yourself doing war work at home, too. Perhaps your brother is working the night shift now and that means pussy-footing around the house in the daytime with the radio turned low and making your phone calls with the door shut tight while he's sleeping it out. And you won't be able to open a can of pork and beans to feed your father every time your mother goes away for the day and leaves you in charge of the kitchen. And between homework and housework and being coöperative generally, you'll still find time to get off a letter to some Johnny Doughboy who's waiting for news from home.

And you can do your war work in small ways that no one will know about but yourself. All the little woolly lambs are cropping grass for the boys in the armed forces these days so get your mind off the new heather slip-over and wash and stretch the three perfectly good sweaters you had last year. With the sleeves pushed up and a new string of beads you will look so smooth no one will ever guess that the sweater you meant to have was made into a khaki uniform coat with stripes on the sleeve instead.

The same goes for fellows. Instead of shooting yourself the old con about "having to get something decent," try a little reconditioning on the things that made you a beau brummel last year. They are still smooth and with a little brushing and pressing you will probably look as zoot-suited as the best boy in school.

And above all—take care of yourself. "Early to bed, early to rise—no more circles under your eyes." You can't expect to hit the hey every night and find the sun shining brightly every morning. Believe all you read about the importance of good lighting for preserving your eyesight—you'll need a 20-20 for the air corps, you know.

WANT TO HAVE MORE zip and zest for your job? Then never let your stomach go sour during the night because you ate a rich dinner or stayed up late at a party. Take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at bedtime. It does more than merely neutralize excess stomach acidity—it finishes the job by acting as a very gentle laxative. It's an ideal laxative-antacid. Helps you to wake up feeling full of pep! Read the directions on package and take as directed thereon or as prescribed by your physician.

ONE-TWO ACTION

1 NEUTRALIZES EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS—and does it almost quicker than it takes to tell. Relieves that uneasy feeling of discomfort almost immediately.

2 ACTS AS MILD LAXATIVE. Gentle—does not upset the system and leave you feeling "all wrung out". Take any time—does not act with embarrassing urgency.

HE'S GOT TO HAVE WHAT IT TAKES to bully these big, thundering "land battleships" through tough, gruelling test runs on Pullman-Standard's "Burma Road"—built to prove their famed combat tanks can take it, as well as dish it out! Roaring over mountainous ramps, giant ditches, mile after mile of tortuous terrain, Robert (Pat) Patterson proves, beyond a shadow of doubt, that General Lees will really deliver the goods for the Armies of Democracy! Here's a job that takes good husky muscles, quick-thinking cool-headedness, loads of energy! "Pat" Patterson's got "what it takes"! Plenty of it!

A HUNGRY DUCK

THE weather had turned cool. There was a touch of frost at night, and the leaves of the sugar maples along the creek bank had begun to take on their Autumn coloring. Flocks of geese and ducks flew high overhead on their way to the South, and that told the Teenie Weenies that Winter would soon be along.

The Teenie Weenie Sailor loved to look at the colored foliage, and one morning he carried his tiny pea pod canoe down to the creek. He was paddling along under the red and yellow branches, enjoying the pretty colors, when he was suddenly startled by a rustling of the leaves near the shore. A big mallard duck popped his huge head out and began to jabber.

The Sailor was a little startled at first, but he soon saw that the duck was friendly. He tried to make out what the duck was saying, but he couldn't understand a single quack, although he did see that the bird was in trouble.

"I'll get the Chinaman," the Sailor said to himself. "He'll know what the duck is trying to say."

The Sailor paddled to the shore and hurrying to the Teenie Weenie village, he soon returned with the Chinaman. As soon as the two Teenie Weenies appeared, the duck began quacking again, and the Chinaman, who is quick to understand what the birds and animals say, listened carefully to the chatter.

"He say," the Chinaman told the Sailor, "he have hurt wing and can no fly much. He say he hungry but can no go out for food because a duck hawk is waiting to pounce on him. He want for us to bring him something to eat."

"Sure!" said the Sailor. "We'll get him some corn."

The duck seemed to understand what had been said, and he began to nod his big head up and down.

The two Teenie Weenies hurried to the shoe house where they told the General about the duck. That kindly little man immediately ordered several canoe loads of corn to be taken to the hungry bird.

The Turk carried his pea pod canoe down to the creek while several of the other Teenie Weenies brought corn from the storehouse to fill the two little boats. When the canoes were filled, the Teenie Weenies paddled across the creek to the duck, who stretched out his long neck. In his hurry to get the corn he would have sunk the canoes if the Chinaman hadn't warned him to stop.

"Takie time! Takie time!" shouted the Chinaman. "You upset us tryin' to get big beak in little canoe. Me hand you corn so you no upset canoe."

The duck gobbled up the corn as fast as the Chinaman could hand the big grains to him, and in no time both canoes were empty.

"Him still hungry," the Chinaman said when the duck had swallowed the last grain.

"Well, we'll get some more," said the Turk, and the little men carried six canoe loads of corn to the duck before the General stopped them.

"We can't give that duck all our corn," the General said. "We must save some for ourselves or we won't have anything to eat this Winter. You men ought to find some scraps here and there that could be given to the duck. We can't spare any more of our corn."

The Teenie Weenies fed the duck for nearly a week. He was so big and he ate so much it was about all the little people could do to keep him supplied with food. They worked from morning until dark collecting food and even then the duck acted as though he had not had enough.

One morning the duck tried out his wounded wing and found that he could fly. He thanked the Teenie Weenies for what they had done, and he promised to stop and see them when he came North again in the Spring. Spreading his great wings, he raced across the water and soaring into the air, he flew straight toward the South.

IT'S A BEDRAGGLED BUNCH THAT STRINGS IN TO WORK THE NEXT MORNING, AFTER THE HECTIC TIME ON DAPHNE'S YACHT
WELL, TOM, OUR PLAN TO MARRY HANK O'HAIR OFF TO ELMER HAS FAILED COMPLETELY NOT NECESSARILY WHY CAN'T THE CONTEST BE HELD AT A LATER DATE?
I'M AFRIAD NOT. HANK HAS BEEN "WISED-UP", THANKS TO DAPHNE..
OUR PAL!
BUT, ELMER IS THE ONE I'M REALLY DISGUSTED WITH..... HE'S AS FICKLE AS A SCHOOL GIRL...... FIRST, HE WANTED TO MARRY HANK BECAUSE SHE WOULDN'T INTERFERE WITH HIM IN THE KITCHEN. THEN......
.... HE WAS INTERESTED IN DAPHNE BECAUSE SHE IS THE BOSS' NIECE... AND NOW.....
..IT'S YOU, BRENDA... BECAUSE YOU'RE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL GIRL ALIVE
NO.... NOT I. BUT ABRETHA
ABRETHA???
ABRETHA?
YES, EVER SINCE SHE ATE HIS DINNER FROM SOUP TO NUTS, HE JUST LOOKS AT HER WITH LOVE LIGHT IN HIS EYES AND GURGLES, "WHAT ENTHUSIASM, WHAT APPRECIATION..... MISS BREEZ, WHEN MAY I COOK FOR YOU AGAIN?"
SO, I'M RIGHT BACK WHERE I STARTED. IF I GET HANK O'HAIR TO COME OVER TO OUR PAPER, I'M SUNK. IF I DON'T, I'M FIRED.....
DO NOT FORGET, DARLING.... IF THE WORST COMES TO THE WORST, THERE IS ALWAYS TOMMY TAYLOR WAITING WITH THE PREACHER
I STILL HAVE A FEW DAYS TO GO . I'M NOT LICKED YET . I'LL THINK OF SOMETHING...
THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK!
AT THIS PRECISE MOMENT, WHO SHOULD KICK OPEN THE DOOR OF THE CITY ROOM.... BUT HANK O'HAIR....
CITY ROOM
WHO DO I SEE ON THIS RAG ABOUT A JOB?

REMEMBER THIS FAMOUS LISTERINE AD?

If you want the truth, go to a child
LISTERINE ANTISEPTIC

Famous for over 60 years in the field of Oral Hygiene

THE MAKERS OF LISTERINE ANTISEPTIC PRESENT

A PRESCRIPTION FOR YOUR TEETH!

How to use it: At least twice a day use this cream paste as you would any tooth paste.

More than 14 ingredients

The new Listerine tooth paste prescription is compounded with more than 14 carefully selected ingredients, precisely balanced to give you maximum polishing and cleansing qualities without danger to the enamel.

What to expect: 1. Sensational "Pin-Point" Cleansing (thanks to a special ingredient) gets after many tiny microscopic spots on enamel some of which might be missed entirely by a less efficient dentifrice.

2. An Eye-Widening Taste Thrill that sets your mouth tingling, leaves it feeling fresher, cleaner, sweeter.

3. Economy that You Can Measure in Hard Cash. See for yourself how little of this new, energized tooth paste prescription is needed to get results!

LISTERINE Tooth Paste

If you have no turn-in tube, or if you prefer powder, you can get "A Prescription For Your Teeth" in powder form! Just ask for

LISTERINE Tooth Powder

WAIT TILL YOU TASTE IT!
LISTERINE TOOTH PASTE
DOUBLE SIZE

The government tin salvage order allows you to turn in a used tin tube of any type of product, from any manufacturer, for a new tube of Listerine Tooth Paste.

by BERNDT
JUST AS I THOUGHT -- NOT WORKING !!! I'LL HAVE THAT LITTLE TALK WITH HIM NOW
I'VE GOT AN IDEA THAT WILL MAKE IT CLEAR TO THE LAD"
SMITTY, DID YOU EVER THINK THAT BUSINESS IS A GAME JUST LIKE FOOTBALL ?
YOU SEE, YOU'RE ONE OF THE TEAM AND THE GOAL IS SUCCESS
FIRST YOU GO INTO TRAINING -- IN BUSINESS ITS GOING TO SCHOOL --- THEN YOU'RE PUT INTO THE GAME
AND WHEN YOU'RE ONCE IN THE GAME ITS A REAL BATTLE -- YOU CAN'T RUN STRAIGHT THROUGH FOR A TOUCHDOWN.
IT'S A HARD FIGHT ALL THE WAY -- YOU'LL BE TACKLED AND THROWN FOR A LOSS MANY TIMES
BUT YOU MUST ALWAYS GET UP AND KEEP TRYING -- IT'S THE OLD FIGHT SPIRIT THAT COUNTS
THEN AFTER HARD PLAYING YOU CARRY THE BALL OVER THE GOAL LINE --- A TOUCHDOWN !!! THAT IN BUSINESS IS SUCCESS !
SEE? UNDERSTAND?
YOU'RE RIGHT, BOSS -- IT IS JUST LIKE A FOOTBALL GAME ' RIGHT NOW I'M TAKING TIME OUT BETWEEN HALVES !!

TODAY...American women are washing the New OXYDOL way...

TO SAVE CLOTHES IN WARTIME!

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT! —CLOTHES LAST MUCH LONGER THE NEW OXYDOL WAY!
—AND SO GLEAMING WHITE —WITHOUT BLEACHING THAT MAY FADE COLORS OR WEAKEN FABRICS!
—AND NO HARD RUBBING TO WEAR THINGS THREADBARE!

Millions find this Modern Soap washes

WHITE without bleaching... CLEAN without hard rubbing!

American women have declared war on washday wear and tear

Millions are using the new OXYDOL and getting beautiful washes without the hard rubbing that wears things threadbare. No need to run the washer those extra minutes, as you do with poorer soaps. And no need to risk weakening fabrics or fading colors to bleach clothes white!

Your Oxydol wash is white without bleaching—except for stains or unusual pieces. It's the sparkling kind of whiteness every woman loves to see in a wash.

The new Oxydol is much richer in washing power than before. Every ounce gets more dirt for you. Its livelier "Hustle-Bubble" suds draw out dirt with only a quick rub here and there from you.

And washable colors come tulip-bright this gentler way. You see, the new Oxydol is so safe you can use it for dainty washable rayons—even milder on hands than before. So change to OXYDOL. Make your clothes last longer in wartimes.

OXYDOL
OXYDOL

NEW OXYDOL'S

Modern "Hustle-Bubble" Suds Draw Out Dirt With Rich, Safe Washing Action Alone.

NEW OXYDOL is the only soap recommended by a group of leading washer makers including THOR, first all-electric washer—makers of the famous 1942 THOR Electro-Rinse Model.

OXYDOL is famous for washing WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING

WELL, WILLIE, I JEST CALLED THE DOCTOR'S OFFICE AND IT LOOKS LIKE I WON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT WHERE YOU'RE AT FOR A LONG, LONG TIME.
OHOOOH, GEE! I DIDN'T THINK I WAS THAT SICK, SWEETHEART.
YOU AIN'T! BUT LAST WEEK WHEN DR JOSLYN WAS HERE HE SAID YOU WASN'T UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES TO GET OUT OF BED TILL HE TOLD YOU YOU COULD— AND NOW HIS OFFICE TELLS ME HE'S UNEXPECTEDLY BEEN ORDERED TO ICELAND BY THE ARMY.
THAT IS TOUGH, UNCLE WILLIE - AND RIGHT WHEN OUR LODGE IS THROWIN' OUR GRAND ANNUAL STAG TO NIGHT
OH, WELL, MAMIE'S WENT TO A MOVIE AND I'M SURE THE DOC WOULDN'T OBJECT TO THAT WAIT A MINUTE, MOONSHINE, WAIT A MINUTE!
ARE YOU HURT UNCLE WILLIE?
NO! I'M OKAY, MOONSHINE.
YOU'RE WALKIN' AWFUL WOBBLY- I BETTER CALL US A CAB-DON'T BE SILLY, MY BOY, I CAN WALK ALL RIGHT.
BOP!
SAY, YOU'RE REALLY IN BAD SHAPE. I'M GONNA TAKE YOU HOME
NO! NO! NO! THERE'S NO NEED FOR THAT.
WHEN KAYO SHINED MY SHOES HE TIED THE LACES TOGETHER AND IT MAKES IT A BIT DIFFICULT TO WALK.

FACE NEW TASK ON ARMISTICE DAY

SERVICE MEN FLOOD LAWYERS WITH PROBLEMS

500 Attorneys Give Free Advice.

BY JOHN WILHELM.

Possibility of military pay allotments has prompted a surprisingly large number of Chicago women to recall that somewhere they have a long forgotten spouse—and he might be in the army. If so, they are entitled to a monthly stipend.

Dragging their skeletons from the closet is one of the many duties encountered by the Chicago Bar association in fulfilling their offer of free legal aid to servicemen and dependents of servicemen.

"We receive about 75 telephone calls a day, plus as many letters, from service men and their families who are in some legal tangle," Charles E. Lind, bar association assistant executive secretary, relates. "Five hundred local attorneys have volunteered their services, and we refer the cases to them thru a military committee headed by Charles F. Hough."

Must Be in Service.

"Any man desiring to have legal help on problems arising from entrance into the armed forces can write to the military committee, Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street, Chicago. However, he must actually be in service before we can help him. Also, we do not touch divorce cases nor are we a collection agency. Aside from those exceptions, we will attempt to untangle anything presented.

"Pay allotment is the most common problem now. Many women have been shocked to find some stranger has already applied for a share of her husband's army pay. If she wishes to press her claim, she has to establish bigamy."

Each Case Stands Alone.

Typical of the problems that are brought to Lind's committee are the following, which, Lind notes have been changed to avoid any personal identification. He also cautions that no person should assume that an apparent similarity between cases can be used in applying the determination of one case to a second. It usually doesn't work that way.

Case A was the problem of the living room suite. A few weeks after having purchased furnishings for his home, a young married man received a notice he would be dratfed in 30 days. His wife didn't want to live alone in a large house. If they relinquished the rented home, storage plus payments would wreck the couple's lowered budget.

An attorney from Lind's bureau advised the furniture company that payments could be suspended for the duration, suggested instead they take the furniture back and after the war give the couple full credit on new furniture. This was done.

His Own Beneficiary.

Case B was a marine's insurance. The young man lost his life while effecting a landing on a Pacific isle. The boy's mother received notice of his death, but no word was received about his government insurance.

The attorney assigned by the bar association committee reached the proper Washington authorities, found the marine had made a error in filing out his enlistment papers. He had made himself his own beneficiary. By drawing up proper affidavits, the attorney secured the proper compensation for the mother.

Case C was the service man that wished to make his pay allotment to his minor child, but not to his wife. The child was staying with his parents. He consulted the association attorney and was assured that he could do so.

Rents Mortgaged Home.

A man going into the army, Case D in Lind's typical list, didn't see how he could continue payments on his mortgaged home. As he had no children, the attorneys arranged for him to rent the home for the duration and have the payments made from the rent. In other cases where men are paying for their home, payments have been suspended until after the war. They will be resumed at that time with little or no penalty, Lind said.

Case E concerned a free lance taxicab driver who had been inducted into the army. He wrote the association, saying that while he had assigned his license and cab number to his brother-in-law, a former partner of his was also using the same permit without authority. An association attorney determined the status of the permit, found it to be nontransferable.

Uncovering marriages of the multiple variety is only one of a series of legal trends resulting from the selective service program. When young men were called, the problem was half-paid-for autos. When older men were called the usual question was settling mortgages. Now the dependent's allotments it's a question of who gets what from the soldier's pay envelope.

Most Need Common Sense.

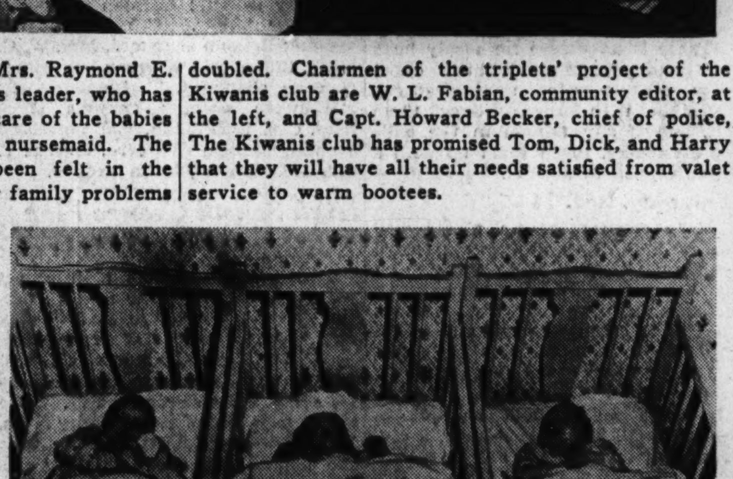
"Each man inducted into the army is advised that we can furnish him with free legal advice on any problem traceable to his military service," Lind explains. "On his induction papers a notice tells him who we are and how to get in touch with us. As a result we have a steady stream of jumbled affairs being brought to our attention for solution."

Des Plaines Kiwanians Adopt Triplets as Their Club Project

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Krause, 1000 1st avenue, Des Plaines, were surprised on July 30. Overnight their family grew from five members to eight. Their number of children was doubled when Tom, Dick, and Harry made their entrance into the world at the Swedish Covenant hospital. The eldest boy, Arnold, had wanted a brother. He is just as satisfied with three. The girls in the family, Arlene, 7, and Nancy, 4, were in the majority until Tom, Dick, and Harry nosed them out. The Krause family has become the center of attention in Des Plaines and the entire Kiwanis club has become godfather to the first triplets in town.

[TRIBUNE Photos by Julius Gantter.]

Holding one of the triplets is Mrs. Raymond E. Griffith, Des Plaines, the Girl Scouts leader, who has been helping Mrs. Krause with the care of the babies until the Kiwanis club can locate a nursemaid. The shortage of household help has been felt in the Krause home as the mother finds her family problems doubled. Chairmen of the triplets' project of the Kiwanis club are W. L. Fabian, community editor, at the left, and Capt. Howard Becker, chief of police, The Kiwanis club has promised Tom, Dick, and Harry that they will have all their needs satisfied from valet service to warm bootees.



Cradled in the warm beds provided by their godfathers, the Kiwanis members, are Tom, Dick, and Harry who take up most of the room in the small house which the Krause family occupy. Kiwanians are looking for larger quarters.

Des Plaines Triplets Keep Kiwanis Busy

Tom, Dick and Harry Krause, newcomers to Des Plaines, have made more friends in three months than any one who ever arrived in town.

So many women have wanted to look at them that a glass window was cut in their bedroom door. The entire Kiwanis club of Des Plaines is working to provide them with a valet, a vehicle large enough so they can ride to town, and free pants pressing service. All this fuss is being made over Tom, Dick, and Harry because they are the town's first triplets.

Their father, Arnold Krause, a bus driver, still can't believe it. Their mother, a pretty, slender woman, says their daddy has been walking in a daze ever since July 30 when a nurse in the Swedish Covenant hospital said kindly, "Mr. Krause, maybe you better sit down while I tell you this. You are the father of triplets." In time Tom, Dick, and Harry—who had doubled the Krause family overnight—went home to the white bungalow at 1000 First avenue and met brother Arnold, age 11; sister Arlene, age 7 and sister Nancy, 4.

Arnold Really Concentrated.

Mr. Krause said Arnold had wanted a brother so badly that he must have concentrating terribly hard. Arnold was going to call his brother Tom or perhaps Dick.

Wives of the Kiwanis club members told them the news. One by one they went over to call on the triplets and their imaginations were stirred by the problem of caring for a thrice increased family. "Imagine washing the diapers," brooded one member who was the father of one.

"Imagine feeding oatmeal to three every breakfast," said another.

"Let's make Tom, Dick, and Harry our project," said W. L. Fabian, editor of the Des Plaines Journal; Capt. Howard Becker, chief of police, and Patrick Lucey, manager of St. Mary's cemetery. The three are now chairmen of the baby project.

Help in Many Ways.

They are going to get a baby buggy designed for three. They will hire a maid to help Mrs. Krause at least four hours a day. They have interested a diaper washing service in the three-fold task. They will help the Krause family to find a larger house.

Mr. and Mrs. Krause were very cordial in accepting the Kiwanis club offer of becoming godfather to the baby boys. They have been cordial, too, as neighbors and Des Plaines residents called at all hours to see what triplets were like. Proud Daddy carved a piece out of the nursery door and put in a pane of glass just like a nursery in a hospital. Outside is a guest book signed by relatives and friends from Maine to California.

Each baby has gained five pounds in three months. Dr. Armand Naffziger is their attending physician.

From now on the Kiwanis club members will be holding benefits to supply the needs of their young charges. "Tom, Dick, and Harry are our major activities for the future," said Mr. Fabian, "but it's alright with us if the women in town help too."

NORWOOD PARK OCD BENEFIT IS NEXT SATURDAY

A gala evening is planned next Saturday for 650 active civilian defense workers who, with their families and friends, will gather at the Avalon ballroom, 4952 Lawrence avenue, for old fashioned square dances, modern ballroom numbers, and entertainment by radio stars and guest artists. Proceeds will help the Norwood Park township civilian defense council to continue its work. Edwin T. Clark, 4117 North Ottawa avenue, is coördinator of the township, and Edward Singer, 4258 Overhill avenue, is general chairman of the frolic.

ARMOUR SINGERS APPEAR TONIGHT IN STRAUS CENTER

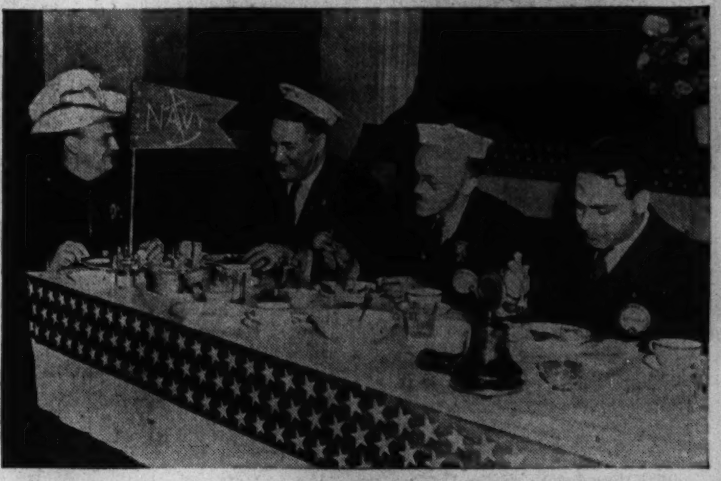
Armour Jubilee Singers, famous Negro choir, will be heard at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the Community hall of the Max Straus center of the Jewish People's institute, 3715 Wilson avenue. The program will combine a number of semi-classics, spirituals and Negro work songs. The Armour Singers are employés of Armour & Co. who make singing their hobby. Cornelius W. Pierce is director; Harriet Hammond, accompanist, and John Brown, president of the organization.

Saddle and Spurs Club.

The 40 members of the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club rode to Starved Rock this week-end to observe their fifth year as a riding club. They will return to Chicago tonight.

Sorority Holds Convention.

Mrs. E. J. Bousser, 2428 West Byron street, is chairman of the sixth convention of Sigma Alpha Sigma sorority, which is being held at the Edgewater Beach hotel this week-end.



Shedding their parental duties just for one lunch period are four leading Kiwanians making merry at one of their parties. The luncheons are held in the Congregational church for Des Plaines soldiers and sailors home on furlough. The Navy day luncheon for which the St. Mary's Training school band played finds the Kiwanians donning sailor hats for three courses of fun. Left to right are Chief Becker, Vern Olson, the Rev. W. L. Manny, and President Ernie Sprison.

The entire number of godfathers of Tom, Dick, and Harry relax after the navy luncheon with the St. Mary's Training school band seated at a table in the center. The band members wear sailor suits.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Second Lieut. John S. M. Lee, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Lee Jr., 501 Grand boulevard, Park Ridge, was graduated recently from the army flying school near Columbus, Miss. He began his pilot training on Nov. 20, 1941, and attended schools at Arcadia, Fla., and Montgomery, Ala, before his graduation at the Columbus advanced flying school. Lee is a former student of Wabash college, Indiana.

Second Lieut. Lee.

From the graduation ceremonies at Camp Lee, Virginia, where he was commissioned a second lieutenant Oct. 16 William Burke went to Milwaukee, Wis., to marry his Marquette university sweetheart, Marde Watt, the next day. The wedding took place in St. Monica's Catholic church, Shorewood, a suburb of Milwaukee. Burke is in the quartermaster division of the army and has been assigned to an army hospital base near Dallas, Tex. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. William D. Burke, 1413 North Lockwood avenue.

"I chose submarine duty," Eugene F. Petz, seaman second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Petz, 1236 North 72d court, Elmwood Park, said when he completed his basic training at the submarine school, New London, Conn., "because of the food, the extra pay, and the comradeship found aboard a small ship." Petz joined the navy June 18 and received recruit training at the Great Lakes station. He had won letters in swimming, baseball, and football at Steinmetz High school, from which he was graduated in 1940.

Milton Miska, 27, seaman second class, at the New London, Conn., submarine base stated he had volunteered for service in the underseas craft because in his opinion "it's the most interesting work for me and I can do more in this respect for the service." Miska is a Roosevelt High school graduate, and was active in the B'nai B'rith, Chicago, before his enlistment in the navy last July. His mother, Mrs. Sarah Miska, resides at 4516 North Troy street.

After further experience aboard a submarine Miska will wear the twin dolphin insignia of the submarine serivce.

John G. Borson, traffic manager of the Edison General Electric company, was appointed a major in the army transportation corps and left last week for active duty on the Pacific coast. Borson, whose home address is 2814 North Parkside avenue, served overseas with the signal corps in the first World war.

This month, Frederick, A. Poole Jr., 34, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Poole Sr., Barrington, will enter the officer candidate school of the army air forces technical training command at Greensboro, N. C. The senior Poole is president of the Production Instrument company, 710 Jackson boulevard.

Previous stations for the aviation cadet were at Camp Grant, Illinois; Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, Mo., and the army clerical school at Camp Logan, Colorado. Poole is a graduate of the Chicago Latin school, and attended Oxford university, England, from 1929 to 1931.

William H. Riggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert A. Riggs, 3317 Overhill avenue, is undergoing eight weeks of intensive training in the quartermaster replacement training center, Fort Warren, Wyoming. Such basic military subjects as rifle marksmanship, close order drill, tent pitching, and camouflage occupy his time. Later Riggs will be assigned to one of the QM specialty schools. He is a graduate of Steinmetz High school.

Pvt. Joseph W. Schuhow, 3709 Concord place, has been selected to attend the army course in cookery at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. After acquiring dexterity in the time-tried "way to every man's heart," Schuhow will return to Selfridge field, Michigan, to engage in his new art.

The navy's preflight school at the University of Iowa will shortly see the following northwest side cadets enrolled for training: Abram Miller, 3438 Foster avenue; Howard Behrens, 5485 Mason avenue; Zenon Sinica, 3325 North Central Park avenue; Robert Schafer, 5710 North Richmond street; John Deger, 3324 North Newcastle avenue; Charles Paprocki, 3312 Keystone avenue; James Nelson, 5243 Argyle avenue, and Jack Nikolich, 4014 North avenue.

Recently commissioned second lieutenants at the eastern signal corps school, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, were Kenneth V. Leslie, son of Mrs. Genevieve Leslie, 2937 North Menard avenue; Marvin S. Friedberg, 5525 North Sawyer avenue, and Robert C. Swansen, son of A. E. Swansen, 2832 Elston avenue.

QUALIFIED MEN MAY SEEK RATING, SAYS RECRUITER

Men having the proper qualifications are again being allowed to apply for naval ratings as storekeeper, second and third class, and yeoman, second and third class, according to Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson, chief recruiting officer here.

For a rating as storekeeper, applicants should have some knowledge of accounting and typewriting and be able to take complete charge of a ship's store, Comm. Goldenson said. Allied civilian jobs are stockroom manager, freight checker, or accountant. A storekeeper, second class, receives a base pay of $96 per month, and the third class rating carries a base pay of $78.

Applicants for a rating as yeoman need a business background, including typewriting and shorthand. They will be expected to take charge of a ship's office and correspondence. The pay is the same as that of storekeeper.

NORTHWEST SIDE PUTS STRESS ON WAR SACRIFICES

North Park College Plans Solemn Rites.

Armistice day which since 1918 has marked the end of fighting in World War I. will be celebrated Wednesday thruout the northwest side with stress on new sacrifices. The first observance of the Armistice in time of war will consist of roll calls of another generation at its battle stations, scrap collection reports and solemn services.

Most poignant of the celebrations will be a pledge to take up the fight at North Park college where 150 of the 310 men enrolled are in the 18 to 19 year old age bracket and are expected to be called upon in World War II. The Armistice commemoration will be highlighted by the dedication of the American flag, the Christian flag and the college service flag at 9:50 o'clock Wednesday morning while a color guard from Navy pier stands at attention.

Navy Chaplain to Speak.

The speaker will be Lieut. Philip Nicholas of the chaplain corps, United States naval reserve. Participating in the program will be Dr. Algoth Ohlson, president of North Park; Dr. Peter Person, dean of students; the Rev. Bernard Hawkinson, service chaplain at large for the Evangelical Mission Covenant Church of America, and Frank Torell, executive secretary of the service men's committee of the Chicago Church federation.

The college service flag represents with its 198 stars the faculty, students and alumni serving in the United States armed forces. One is a gold star representing Aviation Cadet Roy W. Erickson who was killed in an airplane accident. One of the stars is for Capt. Arthur Wermuth, an alumnus of North Park, known as the "One Man Army of the Philippines."

Sixty of the students now enrolled in the college have applied for enlistment in the various reserve corps programs. Applications for enrollment in the army, navy or marine corps enlisted reserve corps programs are handled thru a faculty enlisted reserve corps committee comprised of Dean Walter J. Moberg, chairman; Dr. Peter Person, dean of students, and Oscar E. Olson, admissions counselor.

Appeals for Scrap.

Clarence Biewald, commander of the Montclare Civilian Defense organization, has sent out an appeal to citizens of his community to climax the salvage drive on Armistice day. "The grand climax of the present salvage drive," he said, "will be reached Wednesday when the city, the park boards and many commercial firms will unite in putting 1,200 trucks and 4,000 workers on the streets to pick up all remaining deposits of scrap on parking lots and empty lots."

He urged civilian defense workers of his community to bring in all the scrap possible as an Armistice day tribute. He also announced that all air raid warden posts of the community will be equipped with material necessary for first aid. Each post will have an illuminated sign designating the location of the post more easily in a black-out or air raid.

The featured speaker at the special Armistice day meeting of the Logan Square Women's division of the American Jewish congress Wednesday afternoon will be Max M. Korshak, master in chancery of the Circuit court of Cook county. The meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock in the Daughters of Zion Day and Night Nursery, 1400 North California avenue. Mrs. Harry Perlmutter is president of the organization and Mrs. George Schneider is program chairman.

Public Legion Service.

Portage Park American Legion post will hold a public Armistice day service at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at the six corners where Irving Park road meets Milwaukee and Cicero avenues. Members of the post, auxiliary members, Juniors and Sons of the American Legion in addition to the Portage Park drum and bugle corps will participate in the service. The groups will assemble at the Legion hall, 3960 Milwaukee avenue, at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and parade to the six corners where a salute will be fired and taps sounded.

Jens Sorensen is the commander of the post and Mrs. Laura Green is president of the auxiliary.

The post and auxiliary also will observe the 24th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice with a dance at the Legion hall at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. There will be a smorgasbord dinner and an entertainment. Martin T. Petersen is chairman.

The 9th division, Cook County council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold its 24th Armistice services at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Episcopal Church of the Advent, 2900 North Francisco avenue. The services will be dedicated to the sacrifices of the men of the armed forces.

Melin-Romer American Legion post will fire a salute to the war dead at 11 o'clock on Armistice day at North and Central avenues. This year the North Austin Lions club and community residents will join in community prayer. Speakers at the ceremony will include Herbert Schwartz, post commander; Harry Harmon, Americanization chairman of the post; Dr. George H. Welk, president, and

Plan to Install 65 Units by Early December.

A new type of street light which throws more light on the pavements and silhouettes people and objects is to be tried out at the five most dangerous intersections in the Chicago street system this winter. Three are on Ashland avenue and two on Western avenue.

Delivery of the 65 units needed for the five crossings is expected within two weeks, Floyd Johnson of the city commission of streets and electricity, said. They will be installed early in December.

92 Accidents Reported.

The most dangerous intersections were named in a survey conducted by Johnson, with coöperation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The record showed 92 accidents in 1941 at these crossings:

Ashland avenue and 47th streets—11 night and 13 day accidents.

Ashland and Chicago avenues—10 night accidents, including one fatal, and 7 day accidents.

Ashland avenue and Lake street—11 night and 3 day accidents.

Western avenue and Division street—10 night and 4 day accidents.

Western avenue and 63d street—14 night and 8 day accidents.

Cost Is $3,106.

The finance committee of the city council recently authorized purchase of the lights at a cost of $3,106.

They will be distributed as follows: Eight at Ashland and Chicago, where seven are now used; five at Ashland and Lake, instead of three; 16 at Ashland, McDowell avenue, and 47th street, where there are nine; 12 at Western and Division, where seven are now used, and 12 at Western and 63d, where 12 are now in use.

This will give 53 lights instead of 38 now in use. Extras will be held for replacements.

Addition of 15 lighting units will help, but the greatest advantage of the new system is in lighting science and engineering, Leslie Sorenson, traffic engineer, reported. Regular incandescent electric bulbs will be used, but the globes over them will be different. They are designed for their reflection, refraction and deflection values to get the most light possible to the pavement.

Full lighting on the pavement, over the traffic lane, contrasts people and objects against the pavement background, Sorenson explained.

Placed 25 Feet High.

To get full advantage of reflection, refraction and deflection, the lights must be at least 25 feet above the street, Sorenson said. To get them over traffic lanes, they will be on arms eight feet long. Simple brackets will be erected on present standards in most cases.

Many of the present brackets are only two feet long. Many lights are placed only 12 to 14 feet high, but altho they are nearer the street, they still are not so effective as the new type fixture, Sorenson said.

Light effectiveness is measured by "foot candles" of illumination on the street. The new lights are to give two foot candles of light at each intersection. Various amounts have been measured at various intersections, but all were short of two foot candles. At Ashland and Lake, for instance, only .002 foot candles were found.

Ald. George D. Kells, chairman of the council traffic committee, is among those pushing for early installation of the new lights.

URGE NEW BUS LINE

Petitions for city bus transportation on Bryn Mawr and Talcott avenues in the city's extreme northwest section will be approved by the city council committee on transportation, Ald. W. H. Cowhey [41st] was confident last week, but he was not so sure what would happen to the plan afterward.

Ald. Cowhey is a member of the transportation committee, of which Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] is chairman. A snag may come in getting approval from the state commerce commission which, Cowhey said, is limited by war restrictions.

Another Petition Held Up.

A petition for service from Cuyler and Narragansett avenues to Nagle and Milwaukee avenue, along Narragansett and Nagle, has been pending before the commission for more than a year.

Cowhey's action was based on petitions signed by the Northwest Civic association, comprised of leaders in various neighborhood business and civic groups; the Parent Teacher association of Taft High school, 5635 Natoma avenue, and the sisters of Resurrection academy, 7400 Talcott avenue.

Pupils Go Mile Out of Way.

Requests also were made by the Rev. Albert Drohan of the Immaculate Conception school, 7300 Talcott avenue, and residents of the Edgebroow neighborhood, who said their children must go a mile out of their way if they go to school by present street car facilities.

The proposed bus line would begin on Bryn Mawr avenue at Elston avenue, run west to Talcott avenue, where it would veer north and extend to Canfield road. Transfer privileges to and from surface lines on Elston, Central, and Milwaukee avenues and Northwest highway also are sought.

Rosary Isabellan Ladies Sponsor Carnival Today

Rosary council, Ladies of Isabella, will hold its annual penny carnival this afternoon and evening in St. Philomena hall, Kedvale avenue and Cortland street. Proceeds will be added to the Christmas cheer fund which provides parties at the holiday season for orphanages and old people's homes. Miss Ann Zoltek and Miss Claire Monsch are chairmen. The council's grand lady is Miss Ottile Monsch.

It's Coffee Day at a Northwest Side Store

The line forms to the left, to the right and all over the street far up on North Milwaukee avenue when a store puts coffee on its shelf. The scene has been duplicated every Friday and Saturday morning when men, women, and children wait for the store doors to open so they can buy a pound of the precious commodity. Storekeepers are awaiting coffee rationing when the distribution will not be such a grab as grab can proposition.

Inside the store there is such a rush around the coffee counter that customers don't have room to look around for other products. One store manager complains he has been losing money because the store gets too crowded because of the coffee rush. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

VICTORY PAGEANT TO SPUR OCD ON NORTHWEST SIDE

Singing Cast to Appear in Area Parks.

A Victory pageant with a singing cast that will move from park to park, was announced last week by northwest side headquarters of the Office of Civilian Defense.

The pageant entitled "Fight for Freedom" will be shown for the first time at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Eugene fieldhouse, 5100 North Ridgeway avenue, and will be under the auspices of the Albany Park civilian defense organization. Albany Park will be host at the pageant to the Mayfair, Irving Park, Sauganash, and North Park civilian defense workers.

On Dec. 3 the pageant will be presented in the Norwood Park fieldhouse and on Dec. 17 in the Avondale fieldhouse.

Open Information Centers.

Information centers for mothers working in defense plants have been opened on the northwest side at 4832 Byron street in the Lutheran Home Finding society; at 955 West Grand avenue, in the Chicago Commons; at 3600 West Fullerton avenue in the United Charities office, and at 4806 North Central Park avenue, the Jewish social service office.

The purpose of the centers is to provide places where mothers and others affected by the war, may come and talk over their problems with workers trained in family and child care.

William Gilson has been appointed divisional chairman of physical fitness and has arranged courses for the workers in 4,584 blocks of the northwest area. Activities will include marching drill, conditioning exercises, defense exercises, and games.

Schedule Physical Training.

Classes for men will be held at 7:30 o'clock Mondays in Eckhart park and Pulaski park for Northwest Town workers, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Holstein park for Milwaukee-Armitage and Western avenue; at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday evenings in Kosciuszko park, at 7 o'clock Tuesday evenings in Almira Simons park, and at 7:15 Thursday evening in Mozart park for Wrightwood-Fullerton, and Armitage workers.

For Montclare fire watchers the physical fitness classes will be held at 7 o'clock Monday and Wednesdays in Rutherford Sayre park and for Irving Park they will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesdays in Independence park, at 8:15 o'clock Monday evenings in Mayfair park, at noon Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 5:45 o'clock Mondays and Thursdays, and at 8 o'clock Tuesday and Friday evenings in the Irving Park YMCA.

At 7 o'clock Monday evenings the course will be given in Portage Park and at 8:30 o'clock Friday evenings in Gompers park for Forest Glen workers.

DINNER TRIBUTE PLANNED TONIGHT AT B'NAI SHALOM

The Congregation B'nai Shalom sisterhood will hold a dinner in tribute to its president, Mrs. Harry Reitman, at 6 o'clock this evening in the vestry of the synagogue, 3245 Ainslie street.

A membership tea will be held by the sisterhood at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Morris Kayne, 5108 North Kimball avenue. Mrs. David Graubart will introduce Tania Berman, dramatic reader, who will review John Steinbeck's book, "The Moon Is Down." Rabbi David Graubart will deliver the membership address. The membership chairman is Mrs. Jack Belowitch.

The Men's club of B'nai Shalom will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the vestry of the synagogue. Dr. James M. Yard, director of the Chicago Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will be the guest speaker. Emil M. Pollak is chairman of the program, assisted by Harry J. Director.

Legion Service Flag.

Belmont Park American Legion post, 5100 Belmont avenue, will dedicate a service flag with 30 stars representing members, sons and daughters serving with the United States armed forces at 2:30 o'clock today at post headquarters.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 9

Bulk planting should be completed as soon as possible before severe freezing weather. Many bulbs were received from the growers late, which makes it imperative that they be procured and planted. It is not too late to pot up a good calla lily. Its tropical foliage is an asset to any window. Give it full sun and copious watering when once established.

Pots of crocus, with the corms placed close together, flower readily and their showy flowers are desirable. The different narcissi are all excellent for pot culture and some few, such as King Alfred, Sir Watkins, Emperor, and Poeticus are fine for naturalizing outdoors.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

There still is time to prepare some flowering plants for display at Christmas. Keep the poinsettias growing by feeding and plenty of water with a warm location. Bulbs like the narcissus paperwhite can be started now for Christmas; begonias can be purchased in a well developed state and will prove attractive.

All foliage plants, such as coleus, screw pine [variegated], should be carefully watched and kept in the best condition by careful watering and given plenty of light.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

Plants of poison ivy can be moved without harm at this season. Those who are susceptible should wear gloves. Dig out all the roots and destroy. The lawn can be given a top dressing at this time by simply spreading a quarter inch layer of rich compost over it to fill depressions.

Do not neglect to protect young fruit trees by placing a collar of tar paper around them. Fine meshed wire may be used. Many trees, such as poplars, hawthorns, lilacs, and others, are likely to be attacked by San José scale, but an application or two of a soluble oil mixture will prove effective.

Thursday, Nov. 12

Vines can be cleaned up at this time and old diseased wood removed. Some pruning can be done: The hydrangea P. G. should be cut back to three or four buds to each shoot. The dwarf spireas, like the S. Anthony Waterer, should be severely cut back, halfway to almost to the ground, and it will start up again in springtime.

Cut out the old stems of the philadelphus or mock orange, for the wood made this season will produce the flowers next spring. The Rose of Sharon [Hibiscus syriacus] can be trimmed to shape.

Friday, Nov. 13

Try sowing a row of sweet peas now. The seed must not grow sufficiently to penetrate the surface or the young growths will freeze. The seeds may germinate but remain in that condition until spring, when the plants flower much earlier than if spring sown. They should be given some protection.

There is no excuse for mealy bugs on house plants—with little effort they can be kept under control. Syringing with force will knock them off, and if any remain in the axils of the leaves, touch them up with a swab dipped in alcohol.

Saturday, Nov. 14

Keep chrysanthemum plants well watered, for they are closely rooted and require plenty of water. All flowering plants require the same attention. If they can be placed in a cool room during the night they will last longer.

Grape vines can be pruned now and material for cuttings collected. Grape cuttings should be tied in bundles and buried in sand in a cool basement and planted out in spring.

CHICAGO AREA'S DOGS OF WAR GO OFF TO BATTLE

Alert, Aggressive Canine Warriors Recruited.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

From every Chicagoland neighborhood the dogs of war are going to battle. Since Babylon dogs have joined their masters in struggle, but the modern war dog is different from any of his ancestors.

Unlike the dogs of Gaul, which were clad in armor and spiked collars for attacks enemy dogs and soldiers, the modern American war dog usually has a background of friendly companionship with the children of its neighborhood. The four-footed enlistees are almost uniformly alert, aggressive, intelligent, and friendly. Under army supervision they will retain their basic personalities, but be trained to use their keen senses to detect intruders while serving as sentry aids and in other capacities.

Volunteers Do Work.

The task of recruiting dogs for army service has been given to Dogs for Defense, a new material organization of volunteer dog owners and trainers which already has gained the confidence of the army and that of the public.

The Chicago office of Dogs for Defense, 228 North La Salle street, is receiving applications from patriotic dog owners from every section of the Chicago area each day. These dog owners are offering their pets to the army without pay and with the knowledge that the dogs may never be returned.

Gerald Murphy, 801 Harlem avenue, Glenview, regional director of Dogs for Defense, has the aid of more than 40 local breeders and trainers who serve as inspectors to test all dogs offered for service. Other voluntary helpers include veterinarians serving under the chairmanship of Dr. W. A. Young, 639 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, and members of the Dogs for Defense speakers bureau headed by Mrs. Tanyah Corday, 6014 North Broadway, Chicago.

Eager to List More.

Dogs for Defense is eager to list dogs of many types for army use. As dogs are offered, Dogs for Defense sends the owners an application blank on which is listed the canine's breed, size, age, sex, physical condition, traits, and other data. The army wants no dogs under 1 year old or over 5 years old.

The breeds already sent from Chicago have backgrounds of useful service to their masters: Collies and German shepherds for herding stock, Dobermanns, Dalmatians, and boxers for guard duty and airedales for vermin destruction. As the supply of these breeds diminishes the army will turn to other adaptable breeds.

Two Main Objectives.

The main objectives of the Chicago office of Dogs for Defense are twofold: Most important is that of recruiting the right dogs for the army and being organized to the degree that the required number of dogs can be shipped as soon as the army requests them; the second obective is that of gaining enough public support to maintain the service. Like the Red Cross, Dogs for Defense is given no subsidy by the army or the government. Civic groups wishing speakers on this subject may write to Dogs for Defense, room 1660, 228 North La Salle street.

List District Recruits.

Among the 60 dogs already donated to the army thru Dogs for Defense are these from residents of the northwest section of Chicago and the northwest suburbs:

German shepherd, V. J. Ungaro, 6317 North Neenah avenue; boxer, Bud H. Peters, 3536 North Kilbourn avenue; Dalmatian, Larry Morck, 4815 Fullerton avenue; German shepherd, Mrs. John Hoenigman, 4024 North Mango avenue; German shepherd, Albert Benning, 1738 North Washtenaw avenue; German shepherd, Joseph Chubinski, 5628 Eastwod avenue; German shepherd, W. R. Elsome, 1457 Byron street; German shepherd, Edward Wells, 2316 North Ridgway avenue; German shepherd, Mrs. Lee Miller, 628 North Albany avenue; Belgian shepherd, Mrs. W. C. Nieft, 2305 North Normandy avenue; German shepherd, T. Blonder, 1892 Milwaukee avenue; German shepherd, Carl Biesemann, 2651 Waveland avenue; German shepherd, Marcus T. Sill, 4205 West Haddon avenue.

High School Groups Plan Skating Parties This Week

Two northwest side high school groups will have roller skating parties at the Riverview Roller rink this week. Students of St. Columbkille's, 521 North Paulina street, will take over the rink tomorrow evening for their skating party, while the sophomores of Holy Trinity High, 1443 Division street, will skate with the general rink crowd Tuesday evening.

G. O. P. FAR AHEAD IN CHICAGO AREA CONGRESS VOTE

Republican Count Exceeds Democratic Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans gained one Chicago district seat in Tuesday's congressional elections, but an analysis of the figures for the 11 districts in the area shows that the actual improvement in party strength was much greater than appears on the surface.

The study reveals that the Democrats' pluralities of 133,255 in 1938 and 33,249 in 1940 were wiped out completely and replaced in Tuesday's balloting by a G. O. P. margin of more than 76,500.

The total Republican vote in the 11 districts last week, with 25 precincts missing, was 956,218, a gain of 133,876 over the party total of 822,342 in the comparable by-election four years ago.

Democratic Vote Declines.

Here are Tuesday's unofficial results by district, complete except for the 25 missing precincts, which will not be reported until the official canvass is announced:

Candidate.	1942 Vote.	Plurality.
First District.
William L. Dawson [D.]	34,641	11,013
William E. King [R.]	23,628

Eleventh District.
[1 precinct missing.]
Joseph Sam Perry [D.]	39,726
Rep. Chauncey W. Reed [R.]	97,682	57,956

Districts 1 to 10 are in Cook county, the 10th also including all of Lake county. The 11th district is made up of McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will counties.

The district recaptured by the Republicans was the 3d. The G. O. P. showed gains over their 1938 pluralities in all except the 4th and 8th districts. It registered advances over its 1940 margins in all but the 9th and 11th districts. The Republican gains since the last off year election in 1938 were especially large in the 2d and 7th districts.

YOUTH IS THEME OF IRVING PARK CLUB TOMORROW

Teachers Union Secretary to Address Women.

The meeting of the Irving Park Woman's club opening at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning will be dedicated to youth. Mrs. Clarence Garasha, chairman of education who is in charge of the program, will introduce Kermit Eby, executive secretary of the Chicago Teachers' union, who will speak on "Understanding Our Boys and Girls."

A film on Boy Scout activities will be presented by the Chicago council of the Boy Scouts of America. In the afternoon Sue Harmon, a pupil at the Park Ridge School for Girls, will play piano selections and Kenneth H. Anderson, service director of the 4-H clubs, will tell of the origin and purpose of the organization.

On Tuesday the club's directors will meet at 12:45 o'clock in the home of Mrs. William F. Willard, 4221 North Kildare avenue. Mrs. Eugene J. Kuntzman will preside.

The garden department will meet at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lester Christenson, 5623 North Newark avenue, for a dessert luncheon. Mrs. Frank Maresh Jr., former 7th district garden chairman, will demonstrate the making of a terrarium. Mrs. Frank W. Richards is department chairman.

Norwood Park Club.

A service flag made in tribute to the sons and husbands of members of the club serving in the armed forces will be dedicated at the 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon meeting. Education day will be observed also with a program by Paul Dallwig, layman lecturer of the Field museum.

Dinner, Bazar Friday Event.

Financial help in emergencies for the wives and children of service men is the goal this year of the Norwood Park Woman's club as it attempts its most ambitious benefit—a Victory carnival scheduled Friday from noon until midnight in the Norwood Park Community house, 5801 North Natoma avenue.

Each of the 250 members is pledged to take gifts for the 12 bazar booths designed to bring in hundreds of dollars for the club's war chest. The chest will be opened as the need arises to help service men's wives or children. Part of the money will be added to the student loan and Indian welfare funds.

Expect Large Turnout.

All of Norwood Park is expected to turn out for early Christmas shopping and for the dinner to be served from 6 until 8:30 o'clock in the small clubroom of the fieldhouse which is being converted into a ranch house by Mrs. Charles E. Shaw, dinner and tea chairman.

A Christmas wrapping booth will be arranged and staffed by the club's pages, Mrs. Arne S. Bakken, chairman; Mrs. Allen C. Wideburg, Mrs. Fred Wilson, and Mrs. Harold C. Strayer. Mrs. Peter Bukowski is in charge of Christmas cards. The delicatessen and bakery goods counter will be planned by Mrs. Eugene Steeb. For the last several months club members have been collecting and decorating coffee cans, and on the night of the carnival the brightly painted cans will be filled with fresh cookies and sold as a suggestion for gifts to service men. The cookey booth will be managed by Mrs. Raymond A. Harris.

Carnival Booths Listed.

Other booths and their chief sales women are the canned goods counter, Mrs. Irvin Heckel; candles, Mrs. Daniel Schneider; the fish pond, Mrs. William McCabe; handkerchiefs and aprons, Mrs. Edwin Droege; the relic booth, Mrs. Austin Moshier, and the candle booth, Mrs. Charles Saxe.

Mrs. Clyde Culpepper and Mrs. Louis Berghouse will be in charge of the Red Cross booth, where kits will be sold for men in service.

General chairman of the carnival is Mrs. Robert G. Ball, assisted by Mrs. Herbert Trieger. Mrs. Herbert Stukes is in charge of decorations and the placing of the booths. Some 3,000 Norwood Park residents are expected to attend the afternoon and evening of prizes and purchasing.

AIR MORE GOOD MUSIC THAN EVER FOR CHICAGOLAND

Added Classical Programs on Local Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A search thru the program schedules of Chicago stations and the national networks reveals that more good music than ever, particularly in symphonic, opera, operetta, and concert fields, is available to Chicagoland listeners this season.

Three outstanding symphony orchestras broadcast concerts each week. The Metropolitan opera will be back on the Blue network, starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 28. WLS will be the outlet here. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is heard from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Fridays on Mutual [W-G-N is not an outlet].

The NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Arturo Toscanini, broadcasts over WMAQ-NBC from 4 to 5 p. m. Sundays. The New York Philharmonic Symphony series is aired over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. The Theater of the Air operettas are broadcast regularly from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturdays over Saturdays over W-G-N and Mutual.

The last year has brought several added transcribed or recorded programs featuring classical music on Chicago stations.

WEEKDAYS.

8:30-9:30 a. m.—WJJD—Concert hall.
Noon—1 p. m.—WAAF—Symphonic hour.

10:30-11 a. m.—WBBM—New York Philharmonic Symphony's Children's concert.
1:00-4:00 p. m.—WLS—Metropolitan Opera company [Nov. 28].
8:00-9 p. m.—W-G-N—Theater of the Air operettes, starring Marion Claire with guest male singers.

Besides these there are many other programs in which both classical works and popular compositions are presented. Ralph Ginsburgh's concert ensemble is heard numerous times thruout the week on W-G-N. And for those who have frequency modulation receivers numerous high fidelity FM programs are available on the three Chicago stations.

Orson Welles to Start Two Broadcast Series

Orson Welles is to begin two new radio series. His "Ceiling Unlimited" series, devoted to the story of American aviation, will be introduced over WBBM-CBS at 6:15 p. m. tomorrow. His other program, "Hello Americans," will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Sundays, starting next Sunday.

Mystery Murder Slated on First Nighter Today

Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy will be co-starred in a mystery murder by Anthony Wayne titled "The Allardice Case," from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and the Mutual network. The mystery will be produced as another in the "First Nighter" dramatic series.

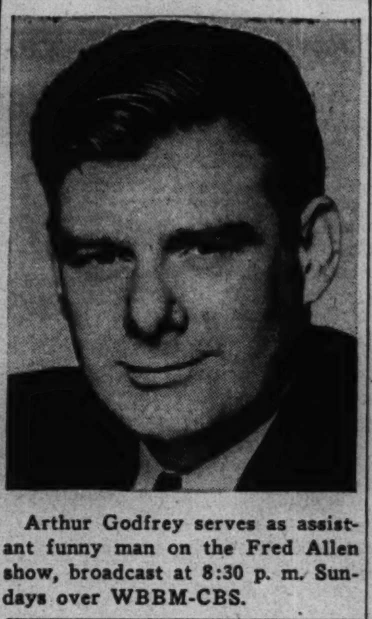
La Marre on Victory Show.

George La Marre, former middleweight champion in the United States marines, will be interviewed on the "Victory Is Our Business" program on W-G-N from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today. He is a subassembler of navy engines at the General Motors electromotive plant here.

SOLDIER'S FAMILY FINALLY GETS LOTS OF NEWS ABOUT HIM

Talk of coincidences! It would be hard to rival the record set last week in the Esrick family. Corp. Samuel Esrick has been in the marine corps since October, 1939. Since January of this year, when he was sent into the Pacific war zone, his brothers and sisters had received no word of him. Then on Tuesday of last week Brother Harry reported to Camp Grant as an inductee, and as part of his orientation was shown war movies. There was Sam! On Thursday one of the sisters looked in her mail box—a letter from Sam! Sunday in the rotogravure section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE were photos of marines, and there once again was Sam! His four sisters—Mrs. Fay Rubin, 3206 Sunnyside avenue; Mrs. Ethel Grepel and Miss Esther Esrick, 1901 Barry avenue, and Miss Mary Esrick, 2902 North avenue—say they're "still weak from all the excitement" but "mighty happy" they know Sam is well.

Allen's Aid



Arthur Godfrey serves as assistant funny man on the Fred Allen show, broadcast at 8:30 p. m. Sundays over WBBM-CBS.

'FORTUNE TELLER' ON THEATER OF AIR ON SATURDAY

Miss Claire, Baggiore, Thomas to Star.

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire, soprano, Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will be cast in the singing rôle of Musette, a gypsy fortune teller. Mr. Thomas will portray the rôle of Sandor, Musette's sweetheart, while Baggiore will be cast as Capt. Ladislas, a young soldier who is in love with Irma, a ballet student, who is a double for Musette.

The plot is built around the likeness of Irma and Musette whose suitors are confused by their identities. Many of Herbert's most beautiful tunes, taken from this operetta, will be heard. These include "The Song of the Gypsies," "Romany Trail," "Gypsy Love Song" and "Song of Romany."

Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus led by Robert Trendler. The program will be produced by Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production.

A full dramatic cast will portray the speaking rôles of the operetta and Marvin Mueller will be narrator.

SALUTE NILES HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' HOUR

Niles Township High school in Skokie will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. The program was transcribed at the school last Wednesday.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, youthful principal of Niles, will tell what the student body is doing in the war effort. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune editorial staff, master of ceremonies on the program.

The Niles choir, under the direction of Clara A. Klaus, will sing two numbers, "Rain and Water" by Fox, and "Pledge to the Flag" by Malotte. The student body of 1,000 will join the choir in singing the school song, "Gold and Blue," composed by C. W. Collins.

Two more high school students will be added to the program's Roll of Honor: Willard James Stockfish of Niles Township High and John Leon Iltis of Madison, Wis.

Bob Jellison and Beryl Vaughan will be back on the program in the rôles of Jimmy and Jerry. Jane Anderson provides piano accompaniment on the program and Holland Engle is the announcer.

Toscanini Conducts Works by Rossini, Mendelssohn

Arturo Toscanini, distinguished conductor, has selected works of two old masters and one contemporary composer for his concert at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Opening the program will be the Overture to "Il Signor Bruschino" by Rossini, followed by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy "Reformation" Symphony No. 5 in D minor. The last works will be Symphony No. 11, Opus 19 by Dmitri Kabalevsky, 37 year old Russian.

W. C. Fields Will Heckle Charlie McCarthy Tonight

W. C. Fields, screen comedian, will renew the feud between him and Edgar Bergen's knee partner, Charlie McCarthy, when he puts in a guest appearance at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ-NBC. Songs by Dale Evans and Don Ameche, and music by Ray Noble's orchestra will round out the program.

OFFER SECOND OF 'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' SERIES

The second in the dramatic series, "Mightier than the Sword," based on the experiences of Stanley Johnston, famous CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, will be broadcast over W-G-N from 2:30 tot 3 p. m. today. The central theme of these Sunday presentations is the American doctrine of the freedom of the press.

Johnston, whose stories of the battle of the Coral sea and the sinking of the Lexington have made history, will join in the broadcast.

Today's episode will unfold the story of Johnston's experiences aboard a decoy fishing boat used to pioneer a new transport route and to determine whether German submarines were patroling the proposed route. Johnston and his crew discover a U-boat cruising in the area and warn merchant and passenger ships. The skipper of a neutral refugee ship ignores the warning, having been duped by propaganda and exaggerated newspaper reports. His vessel is attacked and sunk.

In summarizing this narrative Johnston will emphasize the need for a free American press in which the public can place implicit trust. He will explain the need of printing factual news promptly, providing it does not interfere with military actions.

An all-star Chicago radio cast will provide dramatic background for the Johnston narration. The actors: Charles Penman, Sid Ellstrom, Forrest Lewis, Marvin Mueller, Murray Forbes, Hope Summers, Laurette Fillbrandt, Fred Howard, and Carl Kroenke.

SCRAP DRIVE TO HAIL ARMISTICE DAY

SERVICE MEN FLOOD LAWYERS WITH PROBLEMS

500 Attorneys Give Free Advice.

BY JOHN WILHELM.

Possibility of military pay allotments has prompted a surprisingly large number of Chicago women to recall that somewhere they have a long forgotten spouse—and he might be in the army. If so, they are entitled to a monthly stipend.

Dragging their skeletons from the closet is one of the many duties encountered by the Chicago Bar association in fulfilling their offer of free legal aid to servicemen and dependents of servicemen.

"We receive about 75 telephone calls a day, plus as many letters, from service men and their families who are in some legal tangle," Charles E. Lind, bar association assistant executive secretary, relates. "Five hundred local attorneys have volunteered their services, and we refer the cases to them thru a military committee headed by Charles F. Hough."

Must Be in Service.

"Any man desiring to have legal help on problems arising from entrance into the armed forces can write to the military committee, Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street, Chicago. However, he must actually be in service before we can help him. Also, we do not touch divorce cases nor are we a collection agency. Aside from those exceptions, we will attempt to untangle anything presented.

"Pay allotment is the most common problem now. Many women have been shocked to find some stranger has already applied for a share of her husband's army pay. If she wishes to press her claim, she has to establish bigamy."

Each Case Stands Alone.

Typical of the problems that are brought to Lind's committee are the following, which, Lind notes have been changed to avoid any personal identification. He also cautions that no person should assume that an apparent similarity between cases can be used in applying the determination of one case to a second. It usually doesn't work that way.

Case A was the problem of the living room suite. A few weeks after having purchased furnishings for his home, a young married man received a notice he would be dratfed in 30 days. His wife didn't want to live alone in a large house. If they relinquished the rented home, storage plus payments would wreck the couple's lowered budget.

An attorney from Lind's bureau advised the furniture company that payments could be suspended for the duration, suggested instead they take the furniture back and after the war give the couple full credit on new furniture. This was done.

His Own Beneficiary.

Case B was a marine's insurance. The young man lost his life while effecting a landing on a Pacific isle. The boy's mother received notice of his death, but no word was received about his government insurance.

The attorney assigned by the bar association committee reached the proper Washington authorities, found the marine had made a error in filing out his enlistment papers. He had made himself his own beneficiary. By drawing up proper affidavits, the attorney secured the proper compensation for the mother.

Case C was the service man that wished to make his pay allotment to his minor child, but not to his wife. The child was staying with his parents. He consulted the association attorney and was assured that he could do so.

Rents Mortgaged Home.

A man going into the army, Case D in Lind's typical list, didn't see how he could continue payments on his mortgaged home. As he had no children, the attorneys arranged for him to rent the home for the duration and have the payments made from the rent. In other cases where men are paying for their home, payments have been suspended until after the war. They will be resumed at that time with little or no penalty, Lind said.

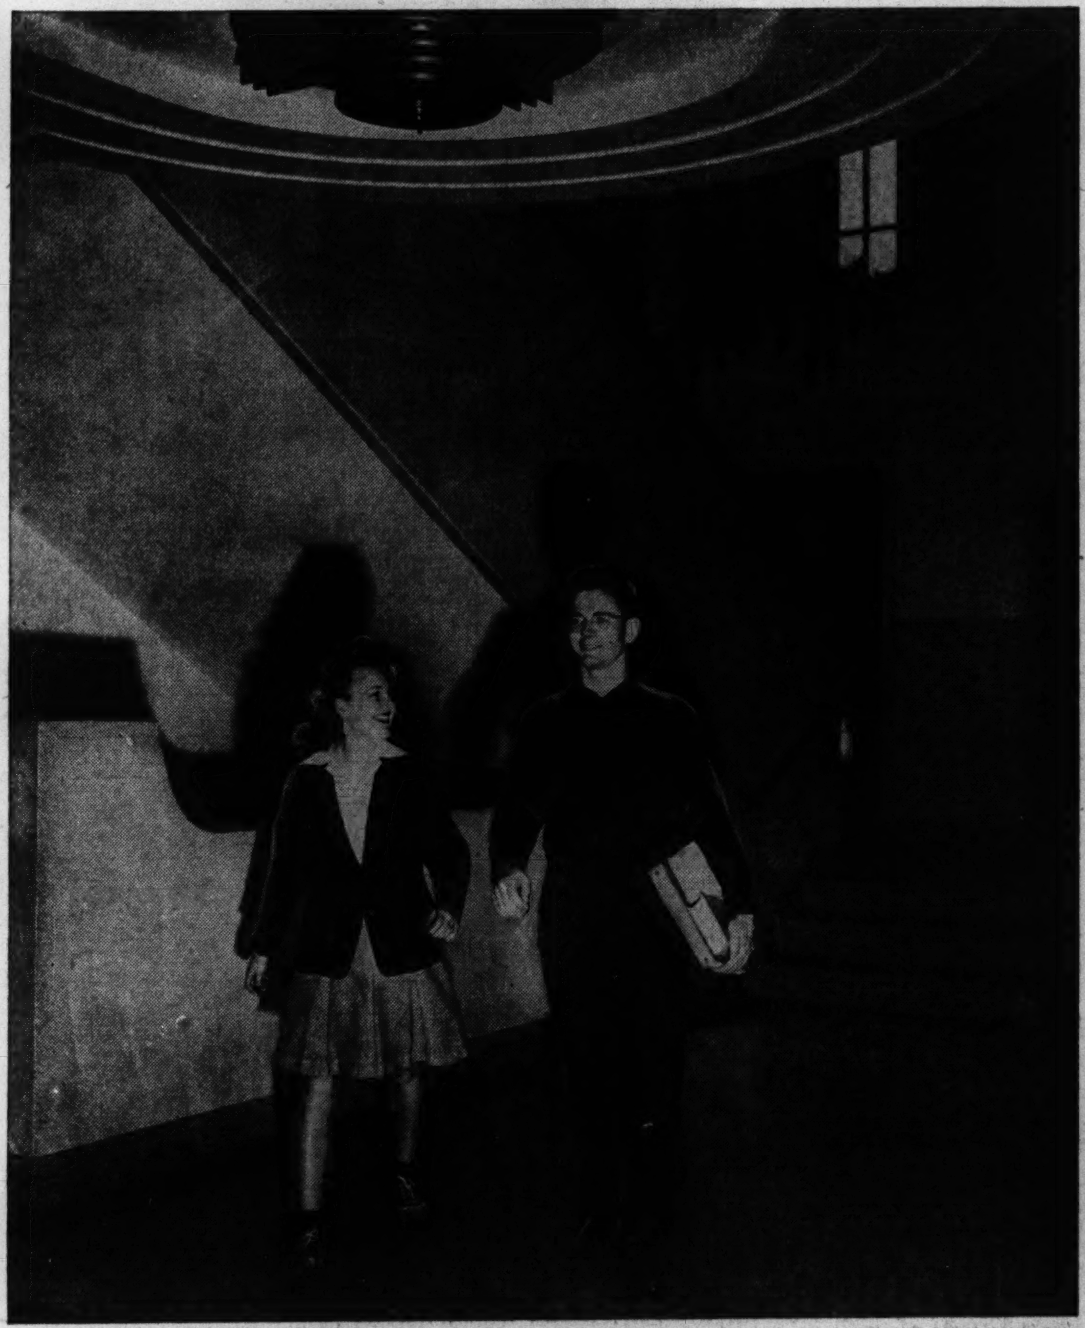
Case E concerned a free lance taxicab driver who had been inducted into the army. He wrote the association, saying that while he had assigned his license and cab number to his brother-in-law, a former partner of his was also using the same permit without authority. An association attorney determined the status of the permit, found it to be nontransferable.

Uncovering marriages of the multiple variety is only one of a series of legal trends resulting from the selective service program. When young men were called, the problem was half-paid-for autos. When older men were called the usual question was settling mortgages. Now the dependent's allotments it's a question of who gets what from the soldier's pay envelope.

Most Need Common Sense.

"Each man inducted into the army is advised that we can furnish him with free legal advice on any problem traceable to his military service," Lind explains. "On his induction papers a notice tells him who we are and how to get in touch with us. As a result we have a steady stream of jumbled affairs being brought to our attention for solution."

Niles Township High Students Prepare for Useful Citizenship



Some one once said the strength of a nation lies in its citizens of tomorrow. Nowhere is this more evident than at Niles Township High school, the guest school to appear on W-G-N's radio program, Citizens of Tomorrow, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Betty Burns and Danny Dever are typical of the 1,000 healthy and alert young Americans who attend there.

Spacious grounds surround the three year old modern yellow brick building, situated at the edge of Skokie, one of the five communities in Niles township which use the school. Looking east from the superintendent's office is part of the playgrounds and flagpole around which freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors play. Pupils go to the school from Skokie, Morton Grove, Niles, Lincolnwood, and Golf by bus.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, the school's new principal, is doing much to make Niles Township High school pupils examples of health and physical fitness. Talking with him is Bill Stockfisch of Skokie, the honor student who will appear on the radio program this afternoon.

Two Girls Find War Work on Food Truck

BY ANN FORD.

"War Work" means many things to many people. To some it's manning the roaring assembly lines of industry. To others it's serving as air raid warden or block captain. To several million young Americans it's fighting at the front.

In Evanston two girls have discovered "war work" rides with them in a grocer's delivery truck. They are 19 year old Phyllis Hausheer of 828 Ingleside place, Evanston, and 20 year old Marjorie Swan, who resides at 2240 Wesley avenue in the suburb. Both are delivery girls for Randlev's food store, one of the oldest in Evanston.

"We like to think that we have more than just jobs," Marjorie remarked, grinning and shaking her curls. "These are war jobs. We're taking the place of two fellows who can go out now and fight."

Uniforms Not Glamorous.

Phyllis came over to have her say. "Maybe our uniforms aren't so glamorous in this business, but they're practical. And besides helping with the war, we're having a good time and helping ourselves."

Then she told that she is saving "every cent" she can so that she'll be able to return to the University of Michigan next year to continue her studies in medical research. Last year she was a dental assistant in the loop.

"That's no fun. You're inside all day long. Driving the truck is my idea of an ideal job, but maybe that's because, besides the fresh air, I like the actual work of driving."

Wants Try at Convoy Trucks.

She confessed that she'd never be happy until the men at the warehouse let her try her hand at one of the huge convoy trucks. "That would be the life!" she exclaimed, her dark eyes sparkling.

"My route from Kenilworth to South Evanston is just right for me," she went on. "I drive the long distances. Marjorie does more of the footwork."

"Got her roped together?" Phyllis clicked out efficiently.

"All set," was the reply.

Sailors Take Care of Food.

The open truck was packed from stem to stern, and the crates were

WISCONSIN ALUMNAE TEA NEXT SUNDAY TO BENEFIT WAR WORK

Alumnae of the University of Wisconsin have been invited to a benefit tea next Sunday afternoon in the Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5016 Drexel boulevard. The program will be a book review by Miss Dorothy Posey, 2248 Lunt avenue.

Dorothy Posey.

Each year Miss Ruth Sayre, alumnae and superintendent of the home, invites the Chicago Alumnae club to give the tea at home. Part of the proceeds, usually turned over to a scholarship fund, will be used for war work this year.

Mrs. Bernard McShane, president, will pour. She will be assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Todd, past president, and Miss Hida Iamison, program chairman.

MARRY SOLDIER? JEWISH YOUTHS PLAN DISCUSSION

A discussion "Should I Marry a Soldier?" will be followed with writing letters to service men and preparing Christmas packages for them at a 3 o'clock meeting this afternoon of the Senior Alliance of Temple Emanuel. The meeting will be held in community hall of Temple Emanuel, 801 Buckingham place.

All young people over 21 years of age have been invited to attend the meeting and take part in the discussion. The admission charge is a package of cigarets to be included in the Christmas packages.

The Lakeview Women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Buena Park hotel, Buena avenue and Broadway.

Hospital Staff in Service to Be Sent Medical Books

Staff members of the Children's Memorial hospital, 707 Fullerton avenue, who are now serving in the armed forces in places inaccessible to libraries will be furnished upon request the latest material on pediatrics, surgery, military medicine, and other medical subjects, Miss Marion Kappes, librarian for Joseph Breeneman library of the hospital, has announced that it is necessary to limit the service to staff members.

MEAL OUTDOORS TO OPEN SUNDAY FITNESS MEETING

A physical fitness outing conference will be held next Sunday at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock with an outdoor breakfast to be held at the 56th street promontory, and continue until late afternoon.

Speakers will be Dr. Arthur H. Steinhaus, professor of physiology at George Williams college; Lieut. Comm. T. Nelson Metcalf, 9th naval district physical training officer; Dr. A. A. Gour, health lecturer and writer; Dr. Margaret Bell, director of department of physical education for women, University of Michigan; V. K. Brown, park district director of education; Miss Helen James, women's physical fitness director for the Chicago OCD office, Roberts Mann, and Miss Justine Cline.

Among clubs sponsoring the conference are: Englewood Outdoor club, Chatham Park Outdoor club, Fort Dearborn Hiking club, Mary McDowell Hiking club, Grub and Pack club, North Shore Outing club, Outing Associates of E. V. Manuel, Outing Club of Chicago Park district, Physical Fitness Club of Oak Park, Prairie club, Roseland Y Outing club, Will County Outing club.

SOLDIER'S FAMILY FINALLY GETS LOTS OF NEWS ABOUT HIM

Talk of coincidences! It would be hard to rival the record set last week in the Esrick family. Corp. Samuel Esrick has been in the marine corps since October, 1939. Since January of this year, when he was sent into the Pacific war zone, his brothers and sisters had received no word of him. Then on Tuesday of last week Brother Harry reported to Camp Grant as an inductee, and as part of his orientation was shown war movies. There was Sam! On Thursday one of the sisters looked in her mail box—a letter from Sam! Sunday in the rotogravure section of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE were photos of marines, and there once again was Sam! His four sisters—Mrs. Fay Rubin, 3206 Sunnyside avenue; Mrs. Ethel Grepel and Miss Esther Esrick, 1901 Barry avenue, and Miss Mary Esrick, 2902 North avenue—say they're "still weak from all the excitement" but "mighty happy" they know Sam is well.

Actress Will Appear.

Cornelia Otis Skinner will appear at 8 o'clock tonight before the North Shore Sunday Evening club in New Trier High school auditorium.

AMUNDSEN ROTC CADETS COLLECT 15 TONS OF SCRAP

The 280 ROTC cadets at Amundsen High school, Foster and Damen avenues, have collected 15 tons of scrap in the last week. Proceeds from its sale will go into a school fund from which the Red Cross and other welfare agencies will benefit.

The collection was made in a car supplied by Cadet Corp. Albert Sluckiger, 4542 Claremont avenue, and a trailer, offered by First Sergt. Bernard Mayer. The boys brought in two old car chassis, offered by a used car dealer, three large boilers, and 30 stoves.

Sergt. Robert Prussing, ROTC instructor, with Lieut. Col. Marshall Stern, commandant of the unit, directed the drive. Important workers on the staff were Capt. Arthur Gleasner, Second Lieut. George Vrooman, and Pvt. John Nosbaum.

Last Woman's Club Holds Annual Dinner Tomorrow

The Last Woman's club, an organization of relatives of World war veterans, will hold its annual dinner tomorrow night at Como inn, Milwaukee and Chicago avenues, Mrs. Irene Calhoun, 6333 North Ridge avenue, announced. The club is affiliated with the Van Buren American Legion auxiliary.

With America's Fighters

Gordon R. Carlstrand, 22 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carlstrand, 5835 North Artesian avenue, received his army flyer's wings and second lieutenant's commission recently in Roswell, N. M. Immediately following his graduation, Lieut. Carlstrand married Miss Betty Jane Johnson of Terre Haute, Ind. The couple has left for an undisclosed air field, where Lieut. Carlstrand will undergo 13 weeks of Flying Fortress training.

Lieut. Carlstrand.

George R. Benson Jr., vice president of Benson & Rixon clothing company, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the army. Lieut. Benson, who lives in Kenilworth, entered the army on Oct. 13, 1941, as a private. He attended officers' training school at Camp Lee, Virginia, and is now stationed at Salt Lake City.

Paul F. Lilly Jr., whose wife resides at 1608 Morse avenue, celebrated his birthday on Navy day — approximately enough, since he now is a sailor in Uncle Sam's navy. Lilly who is stationed at Great Lakes recently was promoted from hospital apprentice, first class, to pharmacist's mate, third class.

Paul F. Lilly Jr.

Five north side men graduated from the naval reserve midshipmen's school in New York recently. The men, who were commissioned ensigns, are Richard Allen Winter, Wilmette; Lowell S. Peterson, Wilmette; William J. Powers, 1240 Hood avenue; Richard Aroner, 7636 Greenview avenue, and Edward L. Hicks III. of Winnetka.

Flying with the fleet will be two north side ensigns who have been graduated from the naval air station in Corpus Christi, Tex. Navy flyer John Lo Vecchio, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lo Vecchio, 331 West Schiller street, volunteered for flight training in July, 1941, and received his primary instruction at Glenview. He is a graduate of Wright Junior college. Ensign Richard J. Schuetz, son of Mrs. O. M. Schuetz, 3750 Lake Shore drive, also received his preliminary training at Glenview elimination base. Schuetz is a graduate of Northwestern university with the class of '39.

Ensign Lo Vecchio.

Ensign Schuet.

Richard G. O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor, 149 Kenilworth road, Kenilworth, is now a private first class in the United States marines, stationed in the marine aviation detachment, Jacksonville, Fla. He enlisted last March, was sent to San Diego and then to Jacksonville. He already has attained special honor as a sharpshooter.

Pvt. O'Connor.

Naval Aviation Cadet Robert N. Stime Jr., 1648 Moody avenue, has completed his course at the preflight school in Athens, Ga., and has been ordered to the naval air base in Kansas City, Kan., for primary flight training.

John R. Stanmeyer, son of Mrs. A. W. Stanmeyer, 1635 Granville avenue, who recently was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air corps, has been appointed to the ferry command. The young flyer will be stationed on the west coast.

Lieut. Stanmeyer.

Eleven north siders enlisted recently for aviation cadet training in the navy. The young men, who soon will leave for the navy's preflight school at the University of Iowa, are Robert Schultze, 7335 Bell avenue; Henry Kading Jr., 1426 Leland avenue; Phillip Ward, 2336 Lincolnwood drive, Evanston; Leo Wozniak, 1210 Florence avenue, Evanston; La Grange Worthington, 360 Ridge avenue, Evanston; George Williams, 613 Wrightwood avenue; Stanley Sund-

NORTH SIDERS' SALVAGE TO AID WORLD WAR II.

Action Honors Two Conflict's Heroes.

The living and dead of the conflict now being waged, as well as the heroes of the first World war, will be honored Wednesday when Chicago observes Armistice day.

After the sound of taps and volleys Wednesday morning Chicago residents will focus their attention on the war effort, taking part in one of the largest scrap drives this year.

Observing the first Armistice day of the nation at war, the Cook county American Legion has canceled many of its usual activities and is directing its energies toward the collecting of scrap in a city-wide campaign it is sponsoring.

Coöperating with the Legion will be 108 salvage wardens thru the city and 350,000 civilian defense personnel. Housewives have been asked to place their scrap on street corners or curbstones fronting their homes Tuesday evening. Any scrap metal will be accepted, except tin cans, William P. Kleuskers, vice commander of Cook county and chairman of the drive, has announced. Boy Scouts, civilian defense personnel, newspapers, and movies are assisting the Legion in carrying the message.

Use 1,400 Trucks.

The Legion has assembled 1,400 trucks to cover the city's 18,000 blocks Armistice day. The blocks have been zoned into 892 sections and a truck has been assigned to each section. Others will stand by and answer complaints or emergency calls. There also will be acetylin torch crews to cut up items too large and cumbersome to place on the curb.

The trucks are being donated by the city, trucking and delivery groups, newspapers, and other organizations. They will distribute the scrap to 26 large scrap dealers thruout the city. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Chicago Service Men's center.

Services of hod carriers, teamsters, coal drivers, flat janitors, boilermakers, and other AFL, CIO, and railroad brotherhood affiliates have been donated.

Salvage Leaders Listed.

John Bennet, 152 North Lamon avenue, is Legionnaire chairman of division 6 on the north side. His salvage chairman for the 20 north side communities is Thomas C. Gannon, 2900 Sheridan road.

The community chairmen are Edward Martin, 833 Sedgwick street; Mrs. Eugene Birmingham, 1414 North La Salle street; William H. Hoyer, 627½ Arlington place; John Ashenhurst, 341 Belden avenue; Joe Frank, 460 Barry avenue; Robert Jeske, 2329 Barry avenue; Mrs. Ruth Fay Meyercord, 3751 Lake Shore drive; Mrs. Rex Davis, 4409 North Seeley avenue; Albert Napolitano, 2111 Montrose avenue; Al Meyer, 4917 Sheridan road; Mrs. Joseph Loewy, 1449 Summerdale avenue; Mrs. Victor Fosh, 2725 Winnemac avenue; Leo Whiteson, 5432 Kenmore avenue; Leonard K. Edmondson, 6445 North Claremont avenue; A. L. Johnson, 1311 Columbia avenue; Mrs. Hugh B. Scott, 6543 Newgard avenue; Mrs. Arthur Flank, 7011 Greenview avenue; Wilbur F. Kellogg, 7540 North Claremont avenue, and Leon Gorfinkle, 7633½ North Paulina street.

Post to Greet Members.

Other activities of the posts next week will include the annual induction of members into Van Buren post Wednesday night. There will be a dinner after the induction in the Skyline Athletic club, 188 West Randolph street. Burl Laughead is the commander.

Three north side posts—Trowe, Daniel C. Gibbons, and Indian Boundary, will have joint church services Sunday morning at Luther Memorial church, Campbell and Wilson avenues. A parade starting from Lincoln avenue and going south to Wilson avenue then east to the church will precede the services. Music will be furnished by the Evanston drum and bugle corps and the Trowel quartet singing "My Buddy" and "Taps." The Rev. George C. Koehler will deliver the sermon.

Jane A. Delano post will entertain members and guests from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon at a tea at 8 South Michigan avenue. On Armistice day all members of the post have been invited to the annual noon luncheon in Field's walnut room. The drum and bugle corps of Carson Pirie Scott post will take part in the usual Armistice day services at 11 o'clock Wednesday at State and Madison streets.

Parade to Water Tower.

Officers and members of Harold A. Taylor post will parade with their auxiliary unit, Sons of the American Legion and junior corps at 2 o'clock this afternoon from their headquarters, 1016 North Dearborn street, to their cenotaph in the old water tower at Chicago and Michigan avenues. They will have Armistice day services in the tower.

The Budlong post committee for relief of American war prisoners will sponsor a midnight show Wednesday night at the Davis theater, 4614 Lincoln avenue. Proceeds will be turned over to a Red Cross representative on the stage that night and will be used to send food packages to American prisoners in axis prison camps.

NILES TOWNSHIP HIGH GETS W-G-N SALUTE TODAY

Citizens' Hour to Honor Outstanding School.

Niles Township High school, one of the north area's largest and most modern schools, will be featured at 1 o'clock this afternoon on W-G-N's Citizens of Tomorrow program. Sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, the entertainment will tell about this million dollar educational plant and its 1,000 students.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, the school's new principal, will describe the army obstacle course for male students which is similar to the physical toughening courses of the army and navy and other phases of the school war program. The Niles choir, under direction of Clara A. Klaus, will sing "Rain and the Water," by Fox, and "Pledge to the Flag." A recording of the student body singing the school song, "Gold and Blue," also will be played.

Willard James Stockfisch, honor student, will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE editorial staff who will be master of ceremonies and "principal" of Citizens of Tomorrow.

Located in Skokie.

The school is a large ultra modern yellow brick building on Lincoln avenue and Harvard street in Skokie, four miles west of Lake Michigan. The students are brought by buses from Skokie and four other villages—Morton Grove, Niles, Lincolnwood, and Gulf.

Designed for beauty and utility, the school after four years of planning by the school board was completed in 1939. It was patterned after an educational plant conceived by T. J. Higgins, Chicago school planning expert.

Twin stairways of flute stone which curve away from the main entrance foyer on the right and left to the second floor enhance the modernity of the building. Wide corridors with checkered linoleum tile floors, muffling the sounds of many feet shuffling between classes, bore majestically thru the building. The spacious library, lined on two sides with wide windows, has been termed one of the finest in the nation by visiting school officials.

Hold Swimming Classes.

Indirect lighting and modern overhead fixtures throw a diffused brightnes easy on students' eyes on dark winter days and nights. A swimming pool, 30 by 75 feet, facilitates the physical fitness program now being stressed. Each student is required to take swimming lessons once a week all four years. The school also is one of the few to teach synchronized swimming. Two other periods a week are devoted to gymnastics and group games in the boys' and girls' gymnasiums which when combined may serve as a large auditorium and stage.

The best and latest of everything was the motto of the school board when it planned equipment for the educational center. There are shops for those interested in machinery, electricity and carpentry. The physics laboratory has an unusual experimental panel for electricity and the chemistry laboratory has several pieces of equipment usually found in college laboratories only.

"Growing" Room to Teach Botany.

There is a growing room for botany and biology students to experiment with plants and seeds. Domestic science students have a modern kitchen equipped with table top gas stoves, electric refrigerators, mixers, coffee makers, chrome trimmed tables, chairs and cabinets, and other modern home aids. There also is an adjoining dining room with complete dining service. A spinet piano in the assembly room is the latest model.

The front and sides of the building grounds are landscaped in keeping with the design of the school. Spacious grounds in the rear are laid off into athletic fields including tennis courts, a girl's athletic field, and beyond that the football and baseball fields and track.

A novel program for parents is being planned for tomorrow night by the students and their teachers. They will be given schedule cards of their children's classes and will march from classroom to classroom sittting in their children's seats and listening to the lectures the pupils hear every day. At "lunch time" the parents will gather in the school cafeteria where they will be served a typical luncheon which their children get at noon.

Girls Find Delivery Truck Is Fun

roped to the tail gate. "How do you manage when you get there?" some one queried. "Well," answered Phyllis, "I just say to the sailors—here's your food, and I never have to worry!"

With that she bounded into the truck, waved good-by and was off on her "war job."

Marjorie still had to wait for her truck, and she began explaining how their "war jobs" had come about. Her parents had been trading for many years at Randlev's grocery, and it was a standing joke that some day Marjorie would come to work as a delivery girl. Late in the summer John Randlev wrote her a letter and asked "When are you coming to work?" And so early this fall Marjorie and Phyllis, her recruit, went to work as delivery girls.

Studied at Art School.

Marjorie attended Sullins Junior college in Bristol, Va., after she graduated from Evanston Township High school in 1940. Last year she was enrolled in an art school which closed for the duration, and so having a job "suits her fine."

"The first day," she said, remembering only too well, "we were whipped! I didn't think I'd ever seen so many stairs in all my life! But we came back the next day. And now we hardly notice it. Well, perhaps that's not quite right. Saturday is always a day that's pretty wearing, especially when you have a date at night. But I always figure I can sleep on Sunday, and that revives me."

Customers Are "Wonderful."

As for the customers, Marjorie reported them as "just wonderful." The one thing that's annoying is some one's saying—"Did you carry that!" She doesn't like the idea of being pampered in her job.

How do the customers react to deliveries by girls? "Amazingly well," says John Randlev. "They tell me they're careful about not tramping in dirt on freshly scrubbed floors, they stow away perishable groceries in the icebox, and they're better about picking up bottles. In fact, all of our customers seem sold on the idea."

Rogers Park Legionnaires to Have Armistice Dinner

EVANSTON CLUB TO HEAR TALK BY N. U. PROFESSOR

Dr. Kenneth Colegrove will speak before the Business and Professional Women's club of Evanston tomorrow night on "The Conflict of Ideas in International Life." His talk will follow a 6:15 o'clock dinner in First Methodist church.

Dr. Colegrove is chairman of the political science department at Northwestern university and has written several books, among which is "Militarism in Japan." He is secretary-treasurer of the American Political Science association and a member of the executive council of the American Society of International Law.

The program is being presented by the international relations committee of the club. Miss Dorothy Wilton is chairman and her committee consists of Mrs. Myra L. Allen, Miss Etta L. Traub, Miss M. Estelle Nash, and Miss Ivy A. Richardson.

Edgewater B'nai B'rith to Honor 39 Service Men

A service flag in honor of 39 men in the armed forces will be dedicated at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at a joint meeting of Edgewater B'nai B'rith lodge and women's auxiliary in Uptown Masonic temple, 941 Lawrence avenue.

2 NEW BRIDGES ON WILLOW ROAD ARE COMPLETED

Build Concrete Highway Across County.

Cook county highway department workers are putting final touches on the second of two bridges on Willow road in a program designed to make it a concrete highway from Winnetka to Algonquin road at the west edge of the county.

The $43,000 span over the middle fork of the north branch of the Chicago river at Northfield, opened to traffic early in September, was completed late in October, when grading and sodding was finished.

The one over the west fork of the north branch, costing $36,000, was opened last spring, but still needs final black dirt and sod.

Extend Pavement 6,000 Feet.

The Willow road concrete pavement was extended 6,000 feet from Sunset Ridge road west to the Willow road cutoff, near tracks of the Chicago & North Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul railroads at a contract price of $55,000. This stretch was opened late in the summer.

Grade separations at the two railroad tracks, which parallel each other a short distance south of Northbrook, are scheduled when materials can be obtained, but war priorities will delay these jobs, a highway department spokesman said. These projects and paving between them would complete the road across the north end of the county.

Finish Equestrian Underpass.

Another bridge job completed was an equestrian underpass west of the middle branch of the Chicago river near Harms road at Morton Grove. This serves a Cook county forest preserve trail. It cost $8,000.

Reviewing the year's work, the highway department cited as another major accomplishment the completion of a 6,225 foot stretch of 22 foot concrete pavement on Central road between Milwaukee avenue and Washington street in Glenview. The contract price was $64,000.

PROPOSE PARKING RULES

Recommendations for traffic improvements in several north side areas were made at a recent meeting of the north area council of the Chicago Motor club in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The council reported congestion on Montrose avenue east of Sheridan road and recommended that parking should be permitted only on one side of Montrose avenue in this district.

Traffic signals for the intersection of Howard street and Damen avenue are ready for installation, as recommended by the council, but work cannot be completed until the city receives priority rating on the necessary electric cable.

Would Shift Foster Stop.

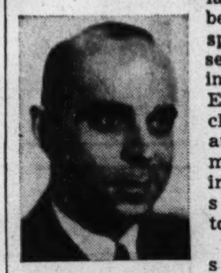
The council suggests the elimination of the bus stop at the southwest corner of Foster avenue and Broadway and the discharging of passengers at the northeast corner. At present the buses must cross lanes of traffic from several directions in order to turn at the intersection.

Other projects discussed were increasing the safety of the North Shore crossing at Sunset Ridge road, where several persons were killed a few weeks ago, and the improvement of the pavement on Waukegan road.

Present at the meeting were Harry W. Delano, North Avenue Business Builders association; N. W. Conrardy, Clark Street Business association; Charles R. Drake, Ravenswood Kiwanis club; Dr. O. R. Englemann and James M. Wing, Edgewater-Uptown Civic council; A. L. T. Hoffmann, Central-Uptown Chicago association; Jacob Libkin, North Town Kiwanis club; Percy Baines, Lower North Community council; George Seebacher, North End Improvement association of the 45th ward; Fred G. Koehler, Ravenswood Improvement association; Lee S. Sanders, Northwestern university; Donald Clavey, chief of police, Northbrook, and George H. Fredrichs, chief of police, Morton Grove.

NORTH END MOTHERS TO HEAR TALK ABOUT EDUCATION AND WAR

Dr. Clark Kuebler, Northwestern university professor of classical languages, will be principal speaker at the semi-annual meeting of the North End Mothers' club of Evanston at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Haven school auditorium.



Dr. Clark Kuebler.

Because his special interest lies in the relationship of education to the preservation of American freedom, Dr. Kuebler will discuss the many factors necessary to an ideal relationship in his talk entitled "Educational Commitments."

Serving as hostesses will be club presidents from the four north end schools. Mrs. Henry Champlin III. will represent Willard school; Mrs. Ernest Wear, Lincolnwood school; Mrs. Clarence Overbeck, Upper Haven school, and Mrs. Parker Comfort, Lower Haven school. Members of the board who will usher are Mrs. M. F. Swaney, Mrs. L. I. Bockstahler, Mrs. Lawrence Lawson, Mrs. Wilbur Smith, Mrs. Leroy Nilles, Mrs. G. N. Taylor, Mrs. Henry Piersen, Mrs. Roy Klute, Mrs. A. R. Rettig, Mrs. C. A. Hiatt, and Mrs. W. C. Weber. Mrs. C. R. Peterson will introduce the speaker.

LAKE VIEW GROUP PLANS CONCERT, TEA TOMORROW

Members of the Lake View Musical society will sponsor a concert at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Arts club. Appearing on the concert program will be Esther Hart, soprano; Elaine Stewart, accompanist; Marion Hall, pianist, and a trio number by Lillian Poenisch, clarinet; Ethel Schwertzler, violin, and Norma Zuzanek, piano.

A tea will follow the concert. Those pouring will be Mrs. Russell Hobbs, Mrs. Holda Bryant, Mrs. Walter J. Welch, and Mrs. F. J. Biederman.

SIX APPOINTED TO NORTH SIDE RATION BOARDS

Mulcahy Says Roster Is Complete for Area.

Appointment of six additional members of war price and rationing boards on the north side was announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, area rationing administrator. The membership of all the north side boards is now complete, altho additional men may be appointed if needed in future rationing programs, Mulcahy said.

Each ward has a rationing board of from three to six men who administer the rationing of fuel oil, bicycles, automobiles, tires and tubes, sugar, and typewriters. They also will handle gasoline and coffee rationing programs and any future rationing of other commodities.

The locations of boards serving north side wards and the names of new members are:

BLOCK MOTHER PREPARES RAID RUMPUS ROOM

Basement Equipped to Amuse 25 Children.

The woman in the shoe has a modern counterpart in Mrs. Fred Steinbach, the north side's first block mother. Only, Mrs. Steinbach "knows what to do!"

To care for the 25 children of the block who might be hers in the event of an air raid or an alert, Mrs. Steinbach has equipped a room in the basement of her home at 3830 North Hermitage avenue. In it is a miscellany of toys which could be rivaled only by Santa's toy shop.

Toys Invite Play.

Small tin soldiers march along the shelves lining the walls. Darts cling to a dart board invitingly. Tables hold friendly piles of pick-up sticks, checker boards and dominoes. Playthings of all descriptions fill the room. An American flag in one corner adds a note of solemnity.

"I couldn't think of another thing to add to the collection," Mrs. Steinbach remarked, smiling. "If any child between 3 and 13 can't find amusement here, I guess I'll just resign my job—much as I'd hate to!"

Mrs. Steinbach Volunteers.

Mrs. Steinbach, who has three children of her own, volunteered for the task of block mother soon after an appeal was issued by the North Side Council of Parents and Teachers. In her new rôle, it will be her duty to keep the room open at all times for the school children of the block bounded by Byron and Grace streets and Ravenswood and Hermitage avenues.

According to Mrs. C. J. Semler, civilian service and citizenship chairman of the council, block mothers for all north side blocks will soon have been selected. They will work in close coöperation with block captains and other civilian defense officials.

Hiking Club Giving Square Dance in Loop Today

Mark 60 Happy Years Together

TOGETHER FOR 60 YEARS—IT'S BEEN FUN, THEY DECIDE

Highland Park Couple Recall Joys.

Happily married for 60 years is the record rolled up by Mr. and Mrs. William Ralph, old time residents of Highland Park. Relatives and friends gathered at their home at 164 Clifton avenue to wish them well.

"Young folks getting married are going to be mighty lucky if they always have as good a time as mother and I have together," said 85 year old Mr. Ralph, "spokesman" for the family. Mrs. Ralph, 80 years old, smiled her agreement.

Patched Tiffs Fast.

"But that's not saying we've never had an argument," he added quickly. "There's bound to be differences of opinion between two people. Mother and I just always patched up our quarrels fast."

Mr. Ralph, his wiry vigor belying his years, told of coming to Chicago from his birthplace in Kent, England. He was only 16 at the time, but still remembers walking down Dearborn street from the Rock Island station when he arrived.

On Nov. 8, 1882, he and Bridget Agnes Rogan, who had come to this country from County Sligo, Ireland, were married in the Holy Name cathedral on the near north side and the couple settled down close by the church.

After years as a florist in Chicago Mr. Ralph and his wife moved to Highland Park, where he started a livery business. Pleasure riding at $1 an hour and a trip anywhere in the village for 35 cents were the standard rates, he recalled. He kept surreys and cabs and one "buckboard" which would seat three instead of the usual two. A boon to business was the new telephone which made it possible for Highland Parkers to phone for service.

Raised Eight Children.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph reared four sons and four daughters, six of whom reside in Highland Park. They are Mrs. Leslie Goudie, Mrs. Roy Duncan, Mrs. Charles Eckert, Mrs. Stanley Peddle, William Ralph Jr., and George Ralph. Another son, Arthur, lives in Florida. Their fourth son, John, was killed a few years ago in an automobile accident.

The couple has 14 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren. One grandson, Victor, is a Catholic priest in Corpus Christi, Tex.

N. SHORE AUTHORS WILL BE GUESTS AT BOOK DINNER

Public Invited to Annual Party Nov. 17.

The Orrington hotel in Evanston will be the scene of the second annual Book and Author dinner at 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17. The dinner, in honor of author residents of the north shore, will be sponsored by the book shops of Evanston and will present a distinguished list of Chicago authors as speakers. Miss Eleanor Perkins will be toastmistress.

The principal speaker will be Howard Vincent O'Brien, columnist and author of "Memoirs of a Guinea Pig: Eight Years in a Doctor's Waiting Room."

Stanley Johnston to Speak.

Preceding him will be Stanley Johnston, famous Tribune war correspondent, whose recent book, "Queen of the Flat Tops," ranks as one of the ablest and most accurate appraisals of the battle of the Coral sea.

Other speakers who will be heard for three minutes each will be Otto Eisenschmil, Herbert V. Prochnow, and Vincent Starrett.

List Other Guests.

Other north shore authors who will be guests include Dorothy Aldis, Marjorie Barrows, Dr. W. W. Bauer, Florence Marvyne Bauer, Lucile Carpenter, Dr. William C. Danforth, Margaret Friskey, Isabel Heaps, Harriet H. Hester, Nels Hokanson, Elizabeth Orton Jones, Clara Judson, Fredrick Nelson Litten, Dr. Louis W. Sauer, Fredrika Shumway Smith, and Ethel B. Wright.

Sponsors of the dinner will be Miss Lillian Anderson of the Book Shop, Miss Jessie Bawter of Book Nook, Miss Mildred Moore of Chandler's, Mrs. Winifred Stanley of Gift Book Shop, and Miss Ruth Tooze of Book Box.

Parents' Clubs Dedicate De Paul Roll Wednesday

A roll of honor for 196 alumni in the armed forces will be dedicated at a joint meeting Wednesday night of the DePaul academy mothers and dads' clubs in the clubrooms, 1010 Webster avenue. The dedication will be followed by a talk by a representative of the public relations department of the United States navy.

KILMER LEAGUE HOLDING SILVER JUBILEE TODAY

Eight Charter Members to Greet Guests at Tea.

Miss Marian R. Gray.

Members of the Joyce Kilmer league will celebrate their 25th anniversary with a silver jubilee tea from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Rogers Park Woman's clubhouse, 7077 North Ashland avenue. Eight of the founder members, together with past presidents and Miss Marian R. Gray, president, will receive the members and guests.

Guests will be presidents of neighboring clubs. Arrangements are being made by Mrs. Ned A. Corbett, vice president and membership chairmen. She is being assisted by Mrs. C. T. Conway, Mrs. D. C. Cronin, Mrs. Grace Curtin, Mrs. Meritt G. Davoust, Mrs. F. L. Finlayson, Miss Loretto Halaburt, Mrs. C. A. Jennings, Miss Mary McCarren, Miss Olive Schmitt, and Mrs. Robert L. Sullivan.

List 200 Members.

The league, now grown to 200 members, was organized in 1917 by 23 young women who were interested in a philanthropy program. They named their league for Joyce Kilmer, the poet who died an American soldier hero on the battlefields of France.

With philanthropy the league's chief project, it has maintained a ward for St. Vincent's Infant asylum for several years. A card party to raise funds for this ward is one of the major events of the league each year. It is usually given in the crystal ballroom of Edgewater Beach hotel. The league also prepares baskets for poor families and gives clothing to underprivileged children at Christmas.

Meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month from October to May in the Rogers Park Woman's clubhouse. In addition there are meetings of the choral group, reading group, drama group, and bowling league.

Giving Traveling Series.

The reading group will present a series of travelogs at 8 o'clock on the third Tuesday night of November, January, February, March, and April. The drama group meets on the fourth Friday of every month and are working on puppets with which they will entertain children at a Christmas party Dec. 29, in Green Briar fieldhouse. After the first of the year it will begin rehearsals of several short plays to be presented at the April meeting.

The choral group directed by Mrs. William J. Pigott, will sing Christmas carols at the December meeting and will present a musical program at the May dinner and annual business meeting. Twelve teams make up the bowling league which meets at 7 o'clock Thursday nights. Next Saturday night the league will sponsor a mixed doubles party to which all members are invited with their husbands and friends.

Deerfield Stagers to Open Season

Opening the Deerfield Stagers' seventh season will be "The Youngest," to be presented Friday and Saturday evenings in the Deerfield school auditorium. The cast includes (left to right) Geneva Ritter, vice president of the group; Jim Tibbetts, production manager; Eleanor Jenkins, Fred Marx, Mildred Holmquist, Russ Mau, Dorris Endebrock, and Helen Giss. All settings and stage lighting systems have been made by members under direction of Robert Jordan, stage manager. James Russell is president of the Deerfield Stagers.

WORLD EVENTS STILL KEEP HER INTEREST AT 90

Watches Eagerly for V Mail from Grandsons.

Altho she has passed her 90th birthday, Mrs. Arthur Burrage Farwell of Kenilworth has lost none of her intense interest in current affairs. Her radio is turned on for news commentators. She watches avidly for V mail from her grandsons in the service. She spends long hours knitting for the Red Cross.

Now a great-grandmother many times over, Mrs. Farwell was born Oct. 12, 1852. Her father, a fisherman along the Massachusetts seacoast. lost his life at sea when she was 12 years old. Her mother died shortly afterward, and young Floretta went to reside with her grandmother.

Came to Chicago in 1876.

Feeling that she should help, the girl started binding shoes on Saturdays and in the evenings knit shawls for a Boston firm. After she finished school she worked at stitching cloth shoes. During a visit to her aunt in Chicago in 1876 Mrs. Farwell decided she liked the city so much she would stay, supporting herself as a dressmaker.

As an active member of the Plymouth Congregational church and Armour mission, she met her future husband. After their marriage in 1882 her life was closely identified with his until he died six years ago.

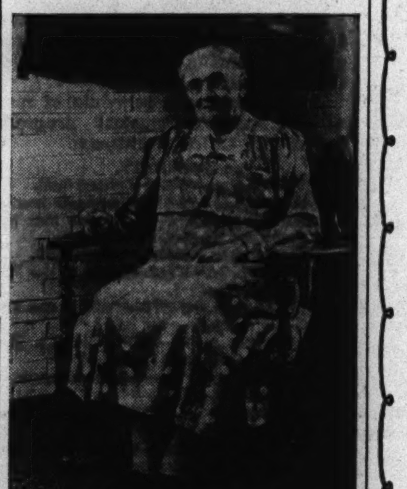
Three Grandsons in Service.

Now, aside from her interest in world events, her life is wrapped up in the walfare of her daughters and son, their husbands and wife, her grandchildren, and a constantly growing number of great-grandchildren. Her children are Mrs. Elizabeth F. Farwell of Winnetka, Mrs. Luther H. Barber of Barrington, Mrs. Charles F. Davis of Wilmette, and Stanley P. Farwell of Winnetka. Her three grandchildren in the army are First Liuet. Loring C. Farwell, Second Lieut. Luther H. Barber Jr., and Pvt. Richard W. Farwell.

Northtown Book Review Club to Hear Louis Zara

Louis Zara, novelist, will address an open meeting of the Northtown Library Book Review club Friday night on "Old Books and Old Friends" at Cine hall, Maplewood and Devon avenues. Among Zara's novels are "Give Us This Day" and "Blessed Is the Man." He also has written screen stories and contributed articles and fiction to leading magazines.

Alert at 90



Ninety years old, Mrs. Arthur Burrage Farwell of Kenilworth, takes a keen interest in world events.

SCRAP PILES UP IN NORTH SHORE SUBURBAN TOWNS

Twelve women salvage wardens and 75 children last week used trucks to help Shield township OCD gather 11 tons of scrap. Lake Forest added 40 more tons to their pile bringing their total to 104 tons.

Deerfield, including Bannockburn and West Deerfield townships, collected 40 tons during a five day drive. The Boy Scouts in Lake Bluff collected more than 18 tons. North Chicago's chief of police, Jacob J. Novak, is in charge of his village's drive which the first week amounted to 15 metal was collected by the town metal was collected by the town theater which fixed its admission price at two pounds of scrap per child.

A women's demolition crew, city and Fort Sheridan truck drivers accounted for 400 tons of scrap in Waukegan. The drive was under the direction of the Waukegan Women's club with Mrs. Leo Wolfe chairman. The Red Cross canteen served coffee and doughnuts to the volunteer workers and the trucks were donated by the army at the fort.

EVANSTON CHILD ACTORS TO OPEN YEAR SATURDAY

Treasure Island First of Four Plays.

The Children's theater of Evanston will open its 18th season next Saturday at Nichols school with the production of "Treasure Island." It will be repeated Nov. 21 at Haven school.

Following the request of the juvenile members of the theater, the season's selections will be light and whimsical and devoid of any war theme. "Mr. Popper's Penguin," a light comedy about a dreamy house painter and his performing penguins, will be presented Jan. 23 in Nichols school and Jan. 30 in Haven school.

Other Plays Scheduled.

"Radio Rescue" will follow on Feb. 27 at Haven school and March 6 at Nichols school. The last play, "The Emperor's New Clothes," a gay comedy in which two rogues make some very surprising clothes for the emperor, will be given March 27 at Haven school and April 3 at Nichols.

The casts for the four plays will be taken, as in other years, from the Evanston public schools and the school of speech at Northwestern university. A children's board, made up of one boy and one girl chosen from each public school, acts as a guiding committee in selecting and directing the plays.

Miss Ward Is Founder.

The Thalian Dramatic club, composed of Northwestern students, the High School Associates' group and chairmen from each PTA group assist with productions.

Miss Winifred Ward is director and founder of the theater. She is assisted by a professor of dramatic production at the school of speech and a staff including a costumer, technician, electrician, publicity manager and business manager.

Grade school children in "Treasure Island" will be Tony Larimer who will play Jim Hawkins Saturday night, and Robert Osborn, who will play the same rôle Nov. 21. Others will be Tom McCarthy and Vito Kosky, grade school; Jerry Mitchell, Robert Mogge, John Weyer, and Robert Cameron, Evanston township high school; William Nissen. Melvin Roebuck, Matthew Cohen, Ray Fry and Jane Frazier, Northwestern university school of speech. Miss Rita Criste of the public school dramatic department is directing the play.

Le Cenacle Group to See One Act Comedy Saturday

Members of Le Cenacle will meet at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Belden-Stratford hotel. A one act comedy, "Il Fait du Vent," written by Miss Laura Doetsch, will be played by Mrs. Joseph Narat and Mrs. William Zellweger.

Flag, Plaque Dedication Arranged on North Kedzie

A flag and plaque in tribute to the boys in block 4, zone 1 of community 7 serving in the armed forces will be dedicated at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 1524 North Kedzie avenue. Mrs. Jewell Organ Coleman, superintendent of the Illinois department of labor, will speak.

Calvary Lutheran Program.

The Calvary Lutheran church, Berteau and Keeler avenues, will hold a patriotic program this evening at 7:45 o'clock in honor of its 42 men and one woman in war service, the Rev. E. Luther Spaid, pastor, announces.

AIR MORE GOOD MUSIC THAN EVER FOR CHICAGOLAND

Added Classical Programs on Local Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A search thru the program schedules of Chicago stations and the national networks reveals that more good music than ever, particularly in symphonic, opera, operetta, and concert fields, is available to Chicagoland listeners this season.

Three outstanding symphony orchestras broadcast concerts each week. The Metropolitan opera will be back on the Blue network, starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 28. WLS will be the outlet here. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is heard from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Fridays on Mutual [W-G-N is not an outlet].

The NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Arturo Toscanini, broadcasts over WMAQ-NBC from 4 to 5 p. m. Sundays. The New York Philharmonic Symphony series is fired over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. The Theater of the Air operettas are broadcast regularly from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and Mutual.

The last year has brought several added transcribed or recorded programs featuring classical music on Chicago stations.

8:00-9 p. m.—W-G-N—Theater of the Air operettas, starring Marion Claire with guest male singers.

Besides these there are many other programs in which both classical works and popular compositions are presented. Ralph Ginsburgh's concert ensemble is heard numerous times thruout the week on W-G-N. And for those who have frequency modulation receivers numerous high fidelity FM programs are available on the three Chicago stations.

W. C. Fields Will Heckle Charlie McCarthy Tonight

W. C. Fields, screen comedian, will renew the feud between him and Edgar Bergen's knee partner, Charlie McCarthy, when he puts in a guest appearance at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ-NBC. Songs by Dale Evans and Don Ameche, and music by Ray Noble's orchestra will round out the program.

La Marre on Victory Show.

George La Marre, former middleweight champion in the United States marines, will be interviewed on the "Victory Is Our Business" program on W-G-N from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today. He is a subassembler of navy engines at the General Motors electromotive plant here.

'FORTUNE TELLER' ON THEATER OF AIR ON SATURDAY

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire, soprano, Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, will speak.

Miss Claire will be cast in the singing rôle of Musette, a gypsy fortune teller. Mr. Thomas will portray the rôle of Sandor, Musette's sweetheart, while Baggiore will be cast as Capt. Ladislas, a young soldier who is in love with Irma, a ballet student, who is a double for Musette.

Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra.

OFFER SECOND OF 'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' SERIES

Another Stanley Johnston Story on W-G-N.

The second in the dramatic series, "Mightier than the Sword," based on the experiences of Stanley Johnston, famous CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, will be broadcast over W-G-N from 2:30 to 3 p. m. today. The central theme of these Sunday presentations is the American doctrine of the freedom of the press.

Johnston, whose stories of the battle of the Coral sea and the sinking of the Lexington have made history, will join in the broadcast.

Today's episode will unfold the story of Johnston's experiences aboard a decoy fishing boat used to pioneer a new transport route and to determine whether German submarines were patroling the proposed route. Johnston and his crew discover a U-boat cruising in the area and warn merchant and passenger ships. The skipper of a neutral refugee ship ignores the warning, having been duped by propaganda and exaggerated newspaper reports. His vessel is attacked and sunk.

In summarizing this narrative Johnston will emphasize the need for a free American press in which the public can place implicit trust. He will explain the need of printing factual news promptly, providing it does not interfere with military actions.

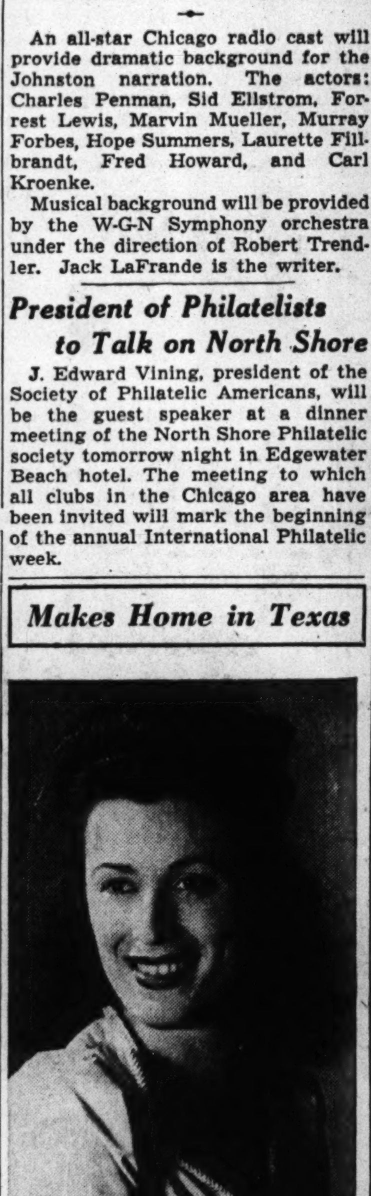
An all-star Chicago radio cast will provide dramatic background for the Johnston narration. The actors: Charles Penman, Sid Ellstrom, Forrest Lewis, Marvin Mueller, Murray Forbes, Hope Summers, Laurette Fillbrandt, Fred Howard, and Carl Kroenke.

Musical background will be provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Robert Trendler. Jack LaFrande is the writer.

President of Philatelists to Talk on North Shore

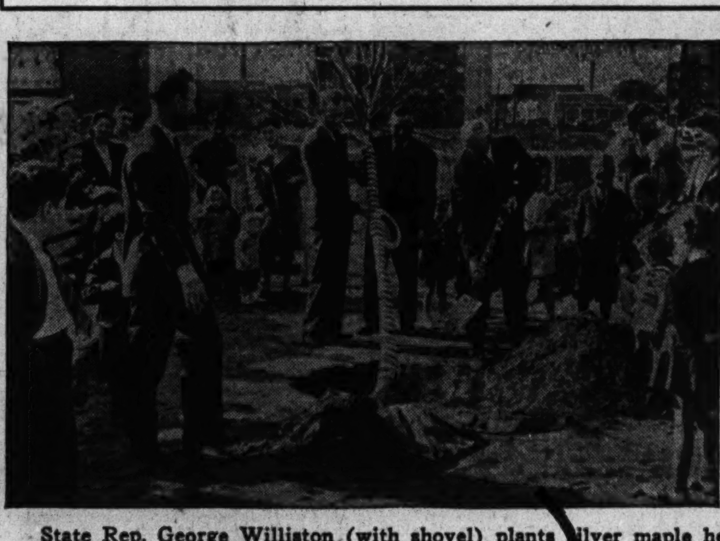
J. Edward Vining, president of the Society of Philatelic Americans, will be the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the North Shore Philatelic society tomorrow night in Edgewater Beach hotel. The meeting to which all clubs in the Chicago area have been invited will mark the beginning of the annual International Philatelic week.

Makes Home in Texas



The former Miss Elizabeth Barbara Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brooks, 825 Sunnyside avenue, is the bride of Lieut. H. B. Sneider and is making her home in San Antonio, Tex. Her husband is stationed with the army air force at Randolph field.

Tree Planting in New Park



State Rep. George Williston (with shovel) plants silver maple he donated to the new Mary Schrup children's park, Elmdale and Greenviwe avenues. Herschel Johnston, one of the parents who has helped develop the park, holds the tree. Jacob Zeneler, landscaper who assisted the parents, stands in the center.

MOTHERS, DADS FIND SANCTUARY FOR 100 CHILDREN

Develop Play Park at Elmdale, Greenview.

Approximately 100 small children without a place to play was reason enough for parents to band together and develop a park at the corner of Elmdale and Greenview avenues.

Four months of work was put into the Mary Schrup Children's park which recently was dedicated for children within the neighborhood, most of whom are of pre-school age and live in small apartments with neither a front nor back yard in which to play. Until the park was completed their nearest playground was the beach more than a mile away.

Has Variety in Equipment.

A community project, the parents have spent more than $800 in transforming the vacant lot, owned by Mary Schrup of Dubuque, Ia., into a safe playground for their children. They have graded, sodded, and fenced the lot. White crushed stone has been used as a base in the children's play area.

Playground equipment includes two sandboxes, a cement hop scotch court, swings and other iron equipment. The parents have built benches, provided a bulletin board to announce park events and a flag pole. In the center is a silver maple tree which was donated and planted by State Rep. George Willison [31st] at the recent dedication services.

Legion Post Raises Flag.

The park is to be operated on a membership basis. The children whose parents are members will have badges to wear. Organizers of the park are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abrahams, 1436 Thorndale avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Johnston, 1455 Elmdale avenue; Walter Grau, 1457 Elmdale avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Paul, 1446 Thorndale avenue; Ray Smutzer, 1417 Elmdale avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wysocki, 1451 Elmdale avenue.

Approximately 175 parents took part in the dedication ceremonies when the Rogers Park American Legion post raised the flag.

Evelyn Frazin.
[Bookman Photo.]

Evelyn Frazin, 10 year old violinist, of 6326 North Bell avenue, will be presented Saturday, Nov. 21, in one of a series of artists' concerts held monthly at the downtown public library. She also will appear in an Armistice day program at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Boguslawski college of music, 323 South Wabash avenue.

Appearing with her in the library concert will be Miss Norma Hatch, contralto, national winner in a voice contest sponsored by the Woman's Federation of Music Clubs.

Miss Frazin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Frazin, will be accompanied at the piano by Miss Noana Meyer. The violinist is a sixth grade student at Stone school where she is conductor of the school orchestra. She plays on a Kloz violin 200 years old.

QUALIFIED MEN MAY SEEK RATING, SAYS RECRUITER

Men having the proper qualifications are again being allowed to apply for naval ratings as storekeeper, second and third class, and yeoman, second and third class, according to Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson, chief recruiting officer here.

For a rating as storekeeper, applicants should have some knowledge of accounting and typewriting and be able to take complete charge of a ship's store, Comm. Goldenson said. Allied civilian jobs are stockroom manager, freight checker, or accountant. A storekeeper, second class, receives a base pay of $96 per month, and the third class rating carries a base pay of $78.

Applicants for a rating as yeoman need a business background, including typewriting and shorthand. They will be expected to take charge of a ship's office and correspondence. The pay is the same as that of storekeeper.

CHICAGO AREA'S DOGS OF WAR GO OFF TO BATTLE

Alert, Aggressive Canine Warriors Recruited.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

From every Chicagoland neighborhood the dogs of war are going to battle. Since Babylon dogs have joined their masters in struggle, but the modern war dog is different from any of his ancestors.

Unlike the dogs of Gaul, which were clad in armor and spiked collars for attacks enemy dogs and soldiers, the modern American war dog usually has a background of friendly companionship with the children of its neighborhood. The four-footed enlistees are almost uniformly alert, aggressive, intelligent, and friendly. Under army supervision they will retain their basic personalities, but be trained to use their keen senses to detect intruders while serving as sentry aids and in other capacities.

Volunteers Do Work.

The task of recruiting dogs for army service has been given to Dogs for Defense, a new material organization of volunteer dog owners and trainers which already has gained the confidence of the army and that of the public.

The Chicago office of Dogs for Defense, 228 North La Salle street, is receiving applications from patriotic dog owners from every section of the Chicago area each day. These dog owners are offering their pets to the army without pay and with the knowledge that the dogs may never be returned.

Gerald Murphy, 801 Harlem avenue, Glenview, regional director of Dogs for Defense, has the aid of more than 40 local breeders and trainers who serve as inspectors to test all dogs offered for service. Other voluntary helpers include veterinarians serving under the chairmanship of Dr. W. A. Young, 639 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, and members of the Dogs for Defense speakers bureau headed by Mrs. Tanyah Corday, 6014 North Broadway, Chicago.

Eager to List More.

Dogs for Defense is eager to list dogs of many types for army use. As dogs are offered, Dogs for Defense sends the owners an application blank on which is listed the canine's breed, size, age, sex, physical condition, traits, and other data. The army wants no dogs under 1 year old or over 5 years old.

The breeds already sent from Chicago have backgrounds of useful service to their masters: Collies and German shepherds for herding stock, Dobermanns, Dalmatians, and boxers for guard duty and airedales for vermin destruction. As the supply of these breeds diminishes the army will turn to other adaptable breeds.

The main objectives of the Chicago office of Dogs for Defense are twofold: Most important is that of recruiting the right dogs for the army and being organized to the degree that the required number of dogs can be shipped as soon as the army requests them; the second obective is that of gaining enough public support to maintain the service.

List District Recruits.

Among the 60 dogs already donated to the army thru Dogs for Defense are these from residents of the north section of Chicago and the north suburbs:

Airedale terrier, F. C. Rowley, 2427 Thayer street, Evanston; Airedale terrier, Maj. Harold Florsheim, Harham farm, Deerfield; German shepherd, William W. Davis, 978 Elm Ridge drive, Glencoe; Dobermann-Pinscher, Mrs. N. M. Percy, 2130 Lincoln Park West; Dobermann-Pinscher, George Mulford, 1415 Wesley avenue, Evanston; collie, M. A. MacDonald, 525 Cornelia avenue; Dobermann-Pinscher, Edward C. Isbruner, 6200 N. Maplewood avenue; airedale terrier, Arthur G. Holste, Northbrook; Dobermann-Pinscher, John Cutaia, 930 N. Wells street; German shepherd, Jacob Nadel, 1301 N. Wells street.

Saddle and Spurs Club.

The 40 members of the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club rode to Starved Rock this week-end to observe their fifth year as a riding club. They will return to Chicago tonight.

War Relics in Zion Scrap Drive

GET IN THE SCRAP

Relics of World War I. were prize items turned in during Zion's recent scrap drive. Frank Scaccia, director of the Zion gymnasium, receives a German helmet and sword from Wilfred Brownlow Jr. and Gail Brownlow as part of their admission price to the scrap skating party in the gymnasium staged in co-operation with the community's effort. The relics were given the youngsters by their uncle, Guy Campbell, who found them on the battefields of France while he was serving with a United States artillery division. Campbell formerly resided in Zion. Scaccia's drive netted more than a ton of metals.

Chinese Author Is on Forum Program.

Dr. No-Yong Park.

The Anshe Emet forum, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, will begin its 11th season Tuesday with a symposium on "How Can We Win the War?" Participating will be Walter Duranty, Moscow correspondent for the New York Times, and Dr. No-Yong Park, Harvard educated expert on Chinese and far eastern problems. Duranty has spent most of the last 20 years in Russia and has traveled extensively in the Balkans, Turkey, and Persia. Dr. Park is author of "Retreat of the West" and "Making a New China."

Rabbi Solmon Goldman will continue his Sunday morning course in the history and literature of the Jewish people at 11:30 o'clock this morning. He will speak on "The Jews at the Time of the Second Crusade."

At the regular open meeting of the Junior synagogue at 8:15 o'clock this evening, Dr. Leo Shapiro, director of discussion and debate at De Paul university, will speak on "Propaganda and Im-Propaganda." An ensemble of the Anshe Emet orchestra, directed by Max Sinzheimer, will present musical selections.

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held in the synagogue at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Members of the board of trustees will be elected. Hyman N. Kohn, president, will give his annual report, and William A. Nudelman, executive director, will summarize the year's activities.

Dr. A. L. Lassen of the Congregation B'nai Zion will discuss "Religious and Economic Intolerance" at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Temple library. The lecture is open to the public.

The Men's club of Temple Emanuel will hold its second meeting of the season at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Community hall of the Temple, 701 Buckingham place. Dr. Felix A. Levy will lead a short discussion of current events and Clem Lane, Chicago newspaper man, will talk on "A City Editor in Wartime." William M. Cooper is president of the group.

In his sermon at North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe at 11 o'clock this morning, Rabbi Charles E. Shulman will pay tribute to the "Unsung Heroes of the War."

MRS. KELSY'S DOGS WERE BARKING!

They weren't only barking, they were a-baying like a hound critter who'd just treed a bear! Mrs. Kelsy, recently devoid of any domestic help, had tried bravely to carry on with all the household duties.

She approached that first ironing of the family linens somewhat like a green recruit who'd just been told he was going on a little march of 30 miles with a 75-pound pack on his back. She approached it and ended up with about the same result. Her back ached. Her shoulders pained. Her arms felt like they had heavy pieces of lead tied to them. The arches of her feet sagged to a dangerous low. Her morale was about as stiff as a piece of freshly cut liver.

From the dust cloth, to the sweeper, to the sink, to the kitchen, to the laundry, to the ironing board, and Mrs. Kelsy was singing "Praise the Lord and pass the Sun-Glo!"

√WOOL BLANKETS washed soft as a baby's skin, mothproofed, and wrapped in mothproof bag.

QUEST OF PLANE LORE LEADS BOB TO PACIFIC WAR

PalwaukeeGreaseMonkey Is Marine Flyer.

Ten years ago a spindle-shanked youngster was sloshing water on planes in the Palwaukee airport every chance he got. A few years later pilots, pestered near to death by his persistency, were letting him taxi their planes and even handle the controls in the air.

Today the boy who preferred airplanes to baseball or football is flying for Uncle Sam in the South Pacific. He's traded his knickers for the uniform of a first lieutenant in the marine corps. His name—Bob Petersen, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Petersen, 5736 North Rockwell street.

And since the day he first soloed for the marines his life has been peppered with excitement, adventure, and, currently, with the exotic. There was "Pensy"—naval air base in Florida, palm surrounded and smack on the gulf; Miami, and then San Diego on California's beautiful southern coast. Now it's a strange, lush south sea island.

Tells His Story.

But that's Bob Petersen's story, and he's told it well in his biweekly letters home. Here's one of them.

". . . Last night I really had an experience! I think I've told you the natives here live in villages, not spread out all over the place. Everything is in the villages, and there are no fales [you pronounce it 'folly' and it means 'huts'] between them. Just jungle. Well, every Friday and Saturday some of the villages have dances for us. Somehow or other, a couple of weeks ago Mitch [one of the officers in my fale] went to one of these dances and happened to get into the fale of the chief of the village, and in there was the chief of the whole area—covers probably three or four villages.

Awed by Flyers.

"He had quite a talk with him thru an interpreter. What made him doubly excited was Mitch's being a flyer. They gaze with awe whenever we fly over their villages. That just set things up great, and when he left they made him promise to come back.

"Last night I went with Mitch. We bought a can of peanuts and a carton of cigarets to give them, took our photograph album along so they could see some pictures, and started off.

"We went to the village chief's fale first [his name's Dialolo—pronounced Toy-low-low], but he wasn't home. Then we went to the big chief's fale, and there was some sort of feast going on. We didn't walk in, but talked to one of the chief's sons. He said the chief was very busy and that we should come back. We'd just gotten down to the road when the boy came running, saying his father wanted us to come right in.

Honored at Feast.

"You can understand how we walked in kind of hesitantly. The chief motioned us to a seat [everybody sits on mats on the floor] next to him. There were four other chiefs and three women sitting around in the circle. In the middle were two young men sawing away on a barbecued pig—also on the floor. Imagine my surprise at seeing the pig's head there too! They'd just brought it from the fire.

"Instead of using plates, the natives use great big leaves. Incidentally, we had to eat with our fingers. No knives or forks. Pretty soon we were served with several big pieces of the pig [which, by the way, was very good], something which the natives were pleased to call cabbage, and something else that looked like a turnip and tasted something like a potato. O, yes, we also had big hunks of English corned beef.

Finger Bowl with Soap.

"After we waded thru all this with our bare hands, one of the natives brought around a big bowl of water and some soap, and we all washed.

"Then we had some hot cocoa water and some heavy, doughy cake. Incidentally, Mitch and I had the extra special cups and saucers. They were made of cheap American glass, but they were better than what any of the chiefs had.

"So much for the meal—or feast. Mitch and I sat right next to the big chief all the time. To make an analogy, our position was the equivalent of being the guests of honor of a governor back home.

Chief's Dogs Join In.

"One of the most amazing things were two dogs running around in the fale while we were eating. They'd sit right in front of us, just waiting for us to give them something. Every once in a while the big chief would toss them something.

"After the feast we gave the chief our peanuts, and he divided the can into four parts. Each of the chiefs got an equal share. Then, while Mitch was showing our photos, I talked to one of the chief's sons. He wants me to bring him some wood so he can make a box to keep his lava lavas [grass skirts] in, and in return he is going to give me a gift "for myself, for my parents, my brothers and sisters, and my country!"

Moonlight Song and Dance.

"After it was all over, we sat in the moonlight on a huge clearing and listened to a group of natives sing. Some girls started dancing, too. Each one has her own dance that she learns, and always does that one every time she's called on to dance.

"They're strange dances. Not at all like the ones in the movies. There's very little hip swinging, but at the same time there's lots of rhythm! I guess you have to see them to really get the picture.

"Anyhow, it was a bright, full moon, and it was all very beautiful. We hung around until almost 11 o'clock before starting back for our fale. All in all, it was quite an evening—one that I'll never forget!"

FARMHOUSE, 90 YEARS OLD, GETS THORO REPAIRING

Insulating Boards Add to Attractiveness.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Three miles southwest of Hinckley in De Kalb county there is a 90 year old farmhouse which has been finely repaired and insulated thruout. It is now ready for a new life, with each of its nine rooms, once drafty and dilapidated, now weather resistant and sound. The insulating boards which cover walls and ceilings have added greatly to the attractiveness of the entire house and likewise made possible definite fuel savings.

The story back of this reconstruction is interesting. The work included repair and insulation of farm buildings as well as farmhouse, and was motivated by a desire on the part of Marvin Christensen, the owner, to get the utmost out of his land and stock and work.

Poor Housing Farming Obstacle.

Poor housing is one of the biggest obstacles to profitable farming, according to our agricultural experts. This improved housing should yield increased production for wartime need.

Mr. Christensen was assisted in his improvement program by a group of nationally known manufacturers in insulation boards.

Full details on the entire project are now available in booklet form on request. Also this same group of manufacturers are offering free plans for a number of insulated farm buildings.

Use of Insulating Board.

These plans show how insulating board can be used to provide additional strength against weather extremes and include:

[1] Stationary brooder house.
[2] Shedtype poultry house.
[3] Fruit and vegetable storage; an insulated farrowing house, and also construction details for building insulation into a dairy barn.

[If you wish further information on this project and available plans, please send stamped addressed envelope to this department.]

But now we come to the old farm house itself, built back in 1852 by a homesteading family. Some 20 years later an addition was made, and the present home has nine rooms.

Exterior Gets Paint.

The exterior has not changed much in all its 90 years, except that it has now been newly painted white, but much has happened to the interior.

The Christensens for some time occupied only the four rooms on the first floor, leaving the five on the second floor untouched except for a single bedroom used in emergencies. The second story was cold and drafty in winter and hot in summer, and badly in need of repair and renovation.

Now since the improvement there are seven cheerful, well insulated rooms in the house, and a young son has a room, a bright little nursery all his own.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen made a careful survey of the house before deciding on what repairs to make. How the change was accomplished will be told in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

BLOCK CAPTAIN PLANS BULLETIN BOARD PROJECT

Victory Forum to Draw 2,000 Spectators.

Thomas Jacobs, 659 Grace street, is the newly elected captain of block 3, bounded by Pine Grove and Waveland avenues, Grace street and Lake Shore drive, in zone 1. Foremost in the many projects he is undertaking is the raising of funds for the erection of an official OCD bulletin board for the block.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow evening 2,000 persons are expected to rally in the Peoples church, 941 Lawrence, for a victory forum, sponsored by the Central Uptown Civilian Defense organization. Robert W. English, community training officer, will discuss "What You Can Do in an Air Raid." Mayor Kelly will speak as United States coördinator of civilian defense.

Women in block 4, zone 10, are contributing to the morale of the men in service by baking 15 cakes a week for the service men's center. Those who do not have the time for baking donate a small sum which is used in buying cakes.

Members of the Know Your Neighbor club of block 7, zone 25, will have an old-fashioned social next Sunday in the Army and Navy hall, 3346 North Damen avenue, to raise funds for Christmas bundles to be sent to block boys in the armed forces. Reservations for the afternoon and evening of entertainment should be made with Mrs. Edward O. Spitzer, 1321 Newport avenue, or Miss Marie Schmaus, 1331 Newport avenue.

G. O. P. FAR AHEAD IN CHICAGO AREA CONGRESS VOTE

Republican Count Exceeds Democratic Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans gained one Chicago district seat in Tuesday's congressional elections, but an analysis of the figures for the 11 districts in the area shows that the actual improvement in party strength was much greater than appears on the surface.

The study reveals that the Democrats' pluralities of 133,255 in 1938 and 33,249 in 1940 were wiped out completely and replaced in Tuesday's balloting by a G. O. P. margin of more than 76,500.

The total Republican vote in the 11 districts last week, with 25 precincts missing, was 956,218, a gain of 133,876 over the party total of 822,342 in the comparable by-election four years ago.

Democratic Vote Declines.

Here are Tuesday's unofficial results by district, complete except for the 25 missing precincts, which will not be reported until the official canvass is announced:

Candidate.	1942 Vote.	Plurality.
First District.
William L. Dawson [D.]	34,641	11,013
William E. King [R.]	23,628
Second District. [7 precincts missing.]
William A. Rowan [D.]	108,925	3,746
Thomas J. Downs [R.]	105,179
Third District. [6 precincts missing.]
Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D.]	107,639
Fred E. Busbey [R.]	113,477	5,838
Fourth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Martin Gorski [D.]	60,333	44,013
Arthur J. Rutshaw [R.]	16,320
Fifth District.
Rep. A. J. Sabath [D.]	29,265	18,067
Clem Graver [R.]	11,198
Sixth District. [5 precincts missing.]
Thomas J. O'Brien [D.]	151,917	41,045
Raymond J. Trafelet [R.]	110,872
Seventh District. [8 precincts missing.]
Rep. L. W. Schuetz [D.]	179,391	3,630
James C. Moreland [R.]	175,761
Eighth District.
Thomas S. Gordon [D.]	33,526	24,101
Rena E. Pikiel [R.]	9,425
Ninth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Irwin N. Walker [D.]	38,475
Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R.]	40,642	2,167
Tenth District. [2 precincts missing.]
Jack Bairstow [D.]	103,985
Ralph E. Church [R.]	148,049	44,054
Eleventh District. [1 precinct missing.]
Joseph Sam Perry [D.]	39,726
Rep. Chauncey W. Reed [R.]	97,682	57,956

Districts 1 to 10 are in Cook county, the 10th also including all of Lake county. The 11th district is made up of McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will counties.

The district recaptured by the Republicans was the 3d. The G. O. P. showed gains over their 1938 pluralities in all except the 4th and 8th districts. It registered advances over its 1940 margins in all but the 9th and 11th districts. The Republican gains since the last off year election in 1938 were especially large in the 2d and 7th districts.

MARSHALL STERN NAMED CHIEF OF AMUNDSEN ROTC

Marshall L. Stern, 2640 Eastwood avenue, has been advanced from captain to lieutenant-colonel and commander of the Reserve Officers Training corps at Amundsen High school.

Other new advancements at Amundsen include: Robert E. Benson advanced to cadet major, and Jack H. West to captain in the line officer staff. Arthur R. Glesner becomes captain, Frank R. Bloom first lieutenant, and George H. Vrooman, second lieutenant, among staff officers.

Three new second lieutenant appointments have been made at Waller High school, the places going to William Herring, Edward Lump, and Wil-

Complete Plans Tuesday for Senn High Concert

Plans for Senn High school's grand concert Friday, Nov. 20 will be completed Tuesday night at an 8 o'clock meeting of the Senn Band and Orchestra Parents' association in Green Briar fieldhouse, 2650 Peterson avenue. The business meeting will precede a musical recital, card, and bunco party.

Betrothal

Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Leif, 913 Agatite avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn Lee, to Marvin Himelstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Himelstein, 501 Surf street. The couple plan to be married Thanksgiving day.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Nov. 9

Bulk planting should be completed as soon as possible before severe freezing weather. Many bulbs were received from the growers late, which makes it imperative that they be procured and planted. It is not too late to pot up a good calla lily. Its tropical foliage is an asset to any window. Give it full sun and copious watering when once established.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

There still is time to prepare some flowering plants for display at Christmas. Keep the poinsettias growing by feeding and plenty of water with a warm location. Bulbs like the narcissus paperwhite can be started now for Christmas; begonias can be purchased in a well developed state and will prove attractive.

All foliage plants, such as coleus, screw pine [variegated], should be carefully watched and kept in the best condition by careful watering and given plenty of light.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

Plants of poison ivy can be moved without harm at this season. Those who are susceptible should wear gloves. Dig out all the roots and destroy. The lawn can be given a top dressing at this time by simply spreading a quarter inch layer of rich compost over it to fill depressions.

Do not neglect to protect young fruit trees by placing a collar of tar paper around them. Fine meshed wire may be used. Many trees, such as poplars, hawthorns, lilacs, and others, are likely to be attacked by San José scale, but an application or two of a soluble oil mixture will prove effective.

Thursday, Nov. 12

Vines can be cleaned up at this time and old diseased wood removed. Some pruning can be done: The hydrangea P. G. should be cut back to three or four buds to each shoot. The dwarf spireas, like the S. Anthony Waterer, should be severely cut back, halfway to almost to the ground, and it will start up again in springtime.

Friday, Nov. 13

Try sowing a row of sweet peas now. The seed must not grow sufficiently to penetrate the surface or the young growths will freeze. The seeds may germinate but remain in that condition until spring, when the plants flower much earlier than if spring sown. They should be given some protection.

There is no excuse for mealy bugs on house plants—with little effort they can be kept under control. Syringing with force will knock them off, and if any remain in the axils of the leaves, touch them up with a swab dipped in alcohol.

Saturday, Nov. 14

Keep chrysanthemum plants well watered, for they are closely rooted and require plenty of water. All flowering plants require the same attention. If they can be placed in a cool room during the night they will last longer.

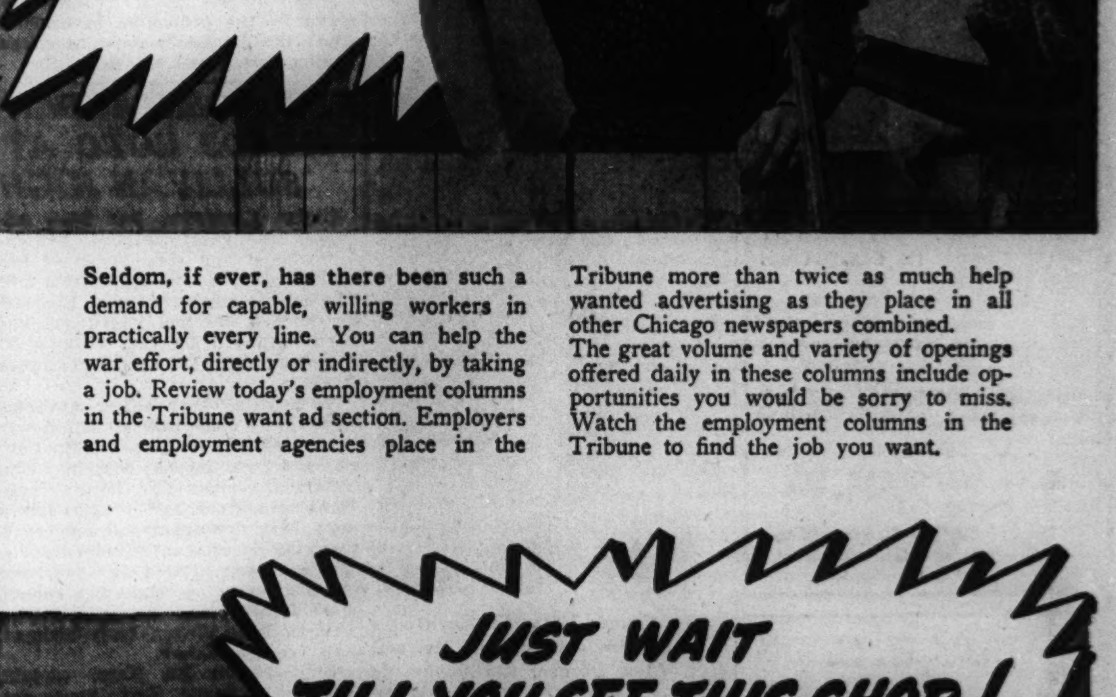
IT'S FUN TO COOK NOW!
"This apartment has the best stove I've ever used."

What is your pet desire in an apartment? A good stove? Venetian blinds? Nearness to schools? Cross ventilation? Whatever it is, you can find the apartment you want much more easily by consulting the rental columns of the Tribune, which prints more apartments to rent want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

For your convenience, the offers are arranged by locations in the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. Make a list of those which interest you before you start out to look. By doing so, you avoid useless stairclimbing to inspect apartments which do not appeal to you.

Choose your next apartment from Chicago's most comprehensive apartment guide—the Tribune want ad section.



I GOT A JOB TODAY!
"I've been watching the Tribune Help Wanted ads."

Seldom, if ever, has there been such a demand for capable, willing workers in practically every line. You can help the war effort, directly or indirectly, by taking a job. Review today's employment columns in the Tribune want ad section. Employers and employment agencies place in the Tribune more than twice as much help wanted advertising as they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

The great volume and variety of openings offered daily in these columns include opportunities you would be sorry to miss. Watch the employment columns in the Tribune to find the job you want.

JUST WAIT TILL YOU SEE THIS SHOP!
"It's a buy if I ever saw one and I'd have missed it sure if I hadn't watched the Tribune want ads."

Are you looking for a choice opportunity to get into some business of your own? Watch the Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section. It is Chicago's most active marketplace for going enterprises.

Partnerships, retail stores, hotels, distributorships, manufacturing plants—these are just a few of the types of businesses which are described and offered for your selection daily in this newsy, helpful column. Don't miss the chance you've been looking for by missing these offers. See today's Business Opportunities column in the Tribune want ad section now.

Because they get better results, want ad users place in the Tribune more total want advertising than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

LEGION LEADS ARMISTICE DAY RITES

CZECH CATHOLIC LODGE TO MARK 65TH BIRTHDAY

Bohemians to Honor 239 Fighters.

The Bohemian Catholic First Central union, oldest Czech Catholic fraternal society in America, today celebrates its 65th anniversary. On this occasion, 239 members serving in the armed forces will be given special recognition.

Theme of the evening festival at the Bohemian American hall will be expressed in a tableau, "We Honor Those Who Serve." It will be staged by junior members of the union, under direction of the Rev. Augustine Studeny, assistant pastor of St. Procopius church. Pilsen post of the American Legion and its auxiliary, with Commander Clarence Landt in charge, will open and close the civic celebration, highlighted by the award of a citation to the union by the war savings staff of the United States treasury.

Services at St. Procopius'.

The religious services will be held at St. Procopius church, 18th and Allport streets, at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Joseph Chvatal will be celebrant of high mass, assisted by the Rev. Augustine Studeny and the Rev. Marcellus Cikan. The Rev. Francis W. Jedlicka, grand chaplain of the society, will preach the sermon and the Rt. Rev. Abbot Procop Neuzil of St. Procopius abbey at Lisle will preside.

The civic celebration will be held at the Bohemian American hall, 1436 18th street, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The program will include a Czech speech by the Rev. Martin Kriska, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel church. Joseph J. Jaros, master in chancery of the Superior court of Cook county, also will speak. The Rev. Mr. Jedlicka will confer the order of St. Wenceslaus, an honor degree, upon several members of the union. Soloist will be Miss Mildred Musil, and Frank W. Cermak's orchestra will present several numbers.

Founded in St. Louis.

The Bohemian Catholic First Central union was founded in St. Louis in 1877, and the association has been active in social, religious, and fraternal work among the American citizens of Czech origin ever since.

Serving on the committee are Frank C. Cerveny Jr., president; W. B. Havel, chairman; Vladimir Peterek, vice chairman; Joseph Ruzek, secretary; August F. Ruda, treasurer; Joseph W. Cermak, John Kesner, Vladimir Moravec, M. V. Kandl, Joseph Skoudlil, Charles Adam, James Netolicky, Anton Benesh, John J. Kucera, John Kuratko, John Hanket, Charles F. Vavrik, Joseph Mach, and Frank Schima.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

ALICE MAE BRENNAN, 7, 3140 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, is working hard to do as much for her country as her brother Harvey, now in the marines. During a recent salvage drive, Alice Mae collected 5,006 tin cans and won the first prize of $7.50 in war savings stamps. Her mother added enough to buy Alice Mae a war bond, her fifth. Alice Mae is a 2A pupil at the Emerson school and studies tap and toe dancing for a hobby.

Alice Mae Brennan.

Charles Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hill, 15 Elm avenue, La Grange, is a senior at Duke university this year. He has made the dean's list at Duke university for three semesters, as a result of his exceptional scholastic average. He is a graduate of Lyons Township High school at La Grange.

The Oak Park-River Forest Aviation Cadet group of the Army Air force is planning a send off dance for their members who leave for the service late this month and early in December. The dance will be held on Saturday, Nov. 28, in the Elks club in Oak Park. W. W. Whiting, 641 Wesley avenue, Oak Park, is in charge of tickets, and Stuart O'Byrne is senior sponsor in charge.

Old-Fashioned Fun Pleases Moderns at Austin Town Hall Dances

"Ala-mende left, and a grand right and a grand left, and meet your honey and promenade home," chants Guy Colby at the extreme left, as dancers at Austin Town hall's Monday Night Square Dance club swing thru their dance. Colby, who has been calling dances in the Chicago vicinity for the last 20 years, gives out such instructions as, "Now step back and watch her smile, now step up and swing her awhile!" His red and white polka-dotted shirt, blue overalls, and straw hat have become a trademark to dancers from 16 to 60 who find in square dancing a wholesome, unsophisticated pleasure.

Just how to "promenade home" is demonstrated by George Gillispie, 5740 Ohio street, and his niece, Miss Mary Ann Gillispie, 557 North Waller avenue. The men attending the Austin dances generally come attired in overalls and plaid shirts, the girls in sports clothes. Occasionally there are costume parties, with hillbilly, cowboy, or gypsy costumes coloring the assembly.

Bright-eyed and ready for a strenuous evening, Ruth Colby and Edward Ringlund hurry into Austin Town hall. Ruth is the 17 year old daughter of Guy Colby, who calls the dances, and she has been square dancing since she was 11. There's just as much exercise and fun in the old-fashioned schottish, the rye waltz, Herr Schmidt, and finger polka as there is in jitter-bugging, these young people believe.

While they wait the "visiting couple around the ring," Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lyle of 435 Mitchell avenue, Elmhurst, tap out the time with their feet, and clap their hands in unison. Before the days of rationing, the Lyles thought little of traveling 60 or 75 miles for an evening's square dancing. The Austin dances draw many couples from Wheaton, La Grange, Monee, and other western suburbs.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Lieut. Robert H. Engstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Engstrom, 1019 Wheaton place, Wheaton, has been named assistant depot supply officer at the Enid army flying school, Enid, Okla. A graduate of Knox college, Galesburg, with the class of 1942, he was a member of Beta Theta Pi social fraternity and Scabbard and Blade, honorary ROTC fraternity. He attended supply school at the Oklahoma City air depot and maintenance engineering school at the San Antonio air depot. Before being assigned to the Enid field he was assistant depot supply officer at the Oklahoma City air depot.

Lieut. Engstrom.

Master Sergt. John Richard Bligh, son of Mrs. Clara Bligh, Elmhurst, has been admitted to officer candidate school, Miami Beach, Fla., from the air force basic training center at Kearns, Utah. He enlisted on Aug. 28, 1940. He is a graduate of Elmhurst High school.

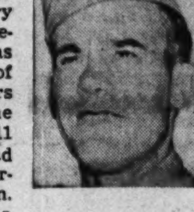
Sergt. Bligh.

Sheldon E. Perrine, son of Collyn E. Perrine, 839 Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, who is stationed at the Greenville, Tex., basic flying school, has recently been promoted to sergeant. Sergt. Perrin graduated from North Central college at Naperville with a B. A. degree and was order department clerk in Aurora before enlisting in the army air forces in March.

Lieut. L. R. Swartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Swartz of La Grange, was graduated recently from the refresher school at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Pvt. Frank Martin Levy, 1838 South Carpenter street, has been selected to attend an enlisted specialist school under the supervision of the war department.

Arthur F. Luther, 1832 Oak Park avenue, Berwyn, is now a second lieutenant in the provost marshal general's department, or military police. Until recently he was first sergeant of his headquarters battery. In the army for 11 years, Luther had been a first sergeant since Jan. 15, 1942. He is a 1930 graduate of Morton High school. He has been ordered to Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia.



Lieut. Luther.

Chester J. Kuta, 1140 Jackson boulevard, has successfully completed his air force advanced flying school training at Williams field, Chandler, Ariz. He received his silver wings and a second lieutenant's commission at the graduation ceremonies there recently.

Lieut. Kuta.

Joseph P. Reese, son of Mrs. Nellie Reese, 1404 South Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, who was inducted into the army seven months ago, was recently promoted to first lieutenant. He received his basic training at Camp Grant and attended officers' candidate school with the medical administrative corps at Carlisle barracks, Pennsylvania.

Edwin W. Anderman, son of Mrs. W. F. Anderman of Hinsdale, has been promoted to sergeant at Camp Croft, South Carolina.

Darrell Van Auken, Elmhurst, has been promoted to technician fourth grade at Chicago headquarters of the 6th service command. He is the son of Kenneth Van Auken, 136 Willow road, Elmhurst.

Sergt. Earl M. Grotke, 1428 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, and Technician Third Grade Richard Gaumond, 834 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, have entered officers' training school at Fort Washington, Maryland. Grotke is specializing in classification, Gaumond in administration.

HERO'S WELCOME AWAITS VETERAN OF FOUR BATTLES

Family and Neighbors to Honor Bianchi.

There's a hero's homecoming waiting for Corp. Tullio Bianchi of the United States marines this week when he gets the furlough he's been waiting for. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bianchi, 2428 Polk street, his brothers and sisters, and neighbors for blocks around will welcome him back with all the fanfare due a fighting man who's been thru four of the war's biggest battles with the Japs.

Corp. Tullio Bianchi.

Tullio was released only recently from the marine base hospital in San Diego, Cal. The weeks he spent there were the result of the calling card the Japs left him during their last encounter, in the Coral seas. He was struck in the face by a number of pieces of shrapnel—three of them as large as a quarter. His eyesight was saved, however, and now he's anxious to get back into the fight. As soon, that is, as he has a chance to see the folks at home.

Picture Hangs in School.

Corp. Bianchi has become a figure in his neighborhood. Over at King school, where he graduated not so many years ago, a large picture of him hangs in the principal's study, and the students dedicated the huge pile of scrap they collected to his honor.

It was exactly a month after his

GERALDINE JUSTIN, CICERO GIRL, NOW A MEMBER OF WAAC

Geraldine Justin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Justin, 1815 South 59th court, Cicero, recently went to Des Moines, Ia., to join Uncle Sam's army of WAACs. Miss Justin is a graduate of J. Sterling Morton High school and Morton Junior college. She has been an enthusiastic Girl Scout leader. Her last day at home was a busy one. She was maid-of-honor at the wedding of her sister, Lorraine, to Robert Kaiser, and made a trip to the county building to cast her absentee ballot.

MAYWOOD CLUB'S ART SHOW OPENS THIS AFTERNOON

The Maywood Art club will open its 15th annual exhibit with a tea from 2 to 6 o'clock this afternoon in the social rooms at Proviso High school.

In the receiving line will be Mrs. Walter Peterson [president of the club], Mrs. L. B. Joslyn, Mrs. M. B. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Donaldson, Mrs. Sidney Hicks, and the exhibiting men artists. Music for the tea will be furnished by Charlotte and Elizabeth Perry, and Danny Dowdakin.

The exhibit will be open to the public Monday evening, Tuesday afternoon and evening, Thursday afternoon, and Friday evening.

READING 9 BOOKS WEEKLY HELPS MAKE A QUIZ KID

Western Springs Girl, 14, Enjoys Radio Role.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Suppose you were a Quiz Kid and were asked on the night of the show, "How long was the siege of Troy?" and you remembered right away that Ulysses was 10 years getting back from Troy but you were not quite sure how long he was there. And when you got home and studied your Latin lesson for the next day you found almost in the very first line, "Annos x pugnant."

Margaret Merrick.

Margaret Merrick, 14, with the experience of 12 appearances on the famous Quiz Kid radio show, cites the coincidence, but insists that a successful evening before the microphone depends upon long range preparation rather than any night-before cramming which might be all very well for a high school exam.

An interesting performer because of her crisp expression of the many, many things she remembers from the books she has read, and a personality familiar to a nation-wide audience, Margaret is known to her schoolmates as a good natured sophomore. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Merrick, 1237 Walnut street, Western Springs, and is a student at Lyons Township High school, La Grange.

BIKE TRAILER SOLVES CARPENTER'S PROBLEM OF TRANSPORTATION

Tire shortage and gasoline rationing give no headaches to O. M. Hance, carpenter, residing at 124 Wesley avenue, Oak Park. The tools of Hance's trade are too heavy to be carried by hand from one job to another, but he has solved his transportation problem without either a truck or passenger car.

Last summer he looked ahead and sold his car while he could still get a good price for it. He bought a bicycle and started shopping around for a trailer. He ran into a dead-end street there, however, for such things weren't to be had.

So Mr. Hance built his own, a streamlined affair that serves him not only as a method of transporting his tools but also as an ad for his trade. These days he loads up the trailer with tools and equipment, hitches it on behind the bike, and pedals off to the job. The trailer stays on the location until the work is done, while Hance goes home and back on the bike. When the task is completed off he goes with the trailer to a new job.

The trailer is designed to hold 400 pounds, but he's never had occasion to pile it that full of equipment. He did carry a load of 300 pounds for four miles once. It was hard going, but he made it.

WPB Ruling Halts Erection of New Traffic Lights

Installation of traffic lights at Lake and Paulina streets and at Fulton and Paulina streets, ordered recently, has been indefinitely postponed, owing to a War Production board regulation restricting new stop and go lights to areas close to or vital to war production centers.

HOLD GARFIELD PARK MEMORIAL SERVICE TODAY

West Area Posts to Honor Hero Dead.

Observing Armistice day, American Legion posts of the 5th district, which takes in the west side and many west suburbs, will be represented this morning at services at Willard Memorial church, Oak Park, and this afternoon at the 24th annual community armistice memorial services at the doughboy monument in Garfield park.

"The day has new significance this year in that while we are celebrating the end of World War I. our thoughts and activities will be centered on the comrades now in the nation's armed forces fighting for the same principles that inspired our efforts in 1917-'18," said Elmer Pflug, 5th district commander.

Thru Commander Pflug, the Rev. George R. Keepin, department chaplain for Illinois, has invited the Legionnaires to attend services this morning at 10:40 o'clock at the Willard Memorial church. The Rev. Mr. Keepin, a member of Charles Roth post, Oak Park, was formerly chaplain of the 5th district.

At the invitation of Forges post, G. A. Gilliland, commander, 5th district posts will participate in afternoon at the 24th annual community memorial. First call for 12:45 p. m. has been issued to organizations for assembly at 1 o'clock in the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 Madison street.

Clamage to Preside.

Dr. Emmett R. Watts, past 5th district commander, will introduce Edward Clamage, past state commander, as master of ceremonies at the program in Garfield park. The national anthem will be played by the Illinois Reserve Militia band. Invocation will be by Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut of Washington Boulevard temple. The Rev. Clarence Frissette, O. S. M., of Our Lady of Sorrows church, will offer the closing prayer.

The Rev. Mr. Keepin, department chaplain, will give the address. Introduction will be made of decorated men. Col. Robert Wigglesworth will place a wreath on the monument.

There will be selections by the Sons of the American Legion drum and bugle corps of Chicago Truck Drivers post, the junior drum and bugle corps of 33d Division post, VFW, the SAL drum and fife corps of Norman J. Cornwall post, and the ROTC drum and bugle corps of John Marshall High school. The Forges post quartet will sing.

ROTC Squad to Fire Salute.

Salute will be fired by the ROTC squad of John Marshall High school. John B. House of Forges post will sound taps.

Members of the committee on arrangements are Peder M. Ness, past commander of Forges post, chairman; Col. Robert Wigglesworth, grand marshal; Edward Clamage, master of ceremonies; Dr. Emmett R. Watts, publicity; G. A. Gilliland, liaison officer; Leonard J. Sterling, park supervisor of recreation, park arrangements.

NEW BELLWOOD CHURCH FULFILLS PASTOR'S DREAM

Boyhood Aims Delayed for Many Years.

Dedication of the new Bellwood Presbyterian church and parish house last Sunday culminated a year of preparation since ground was broken, Sept. 7, 1341. The structure likewise fulfills dreams of the pastor, the Rev. Walter A. Reid, who left a farm in Wisconsin to become a preacher after he had reached his 46th year.

The Rev. W. A. Reid.

As a boy on his father's farm near Portage, Wis., Mr. Reid dreamed of being a preacher, but when he was 15, his father was crippled in a runaway team accident. The boy stayed on to look after his parents and the farm. The years went by, and then in 1930, his parents having died, Mr. Reid held a council with his wife and three daughters. They decided to move to Wheaton when the youngest of the three daughters had finished high school and was ready for college.

Whole Family Sacrifices.

Income from the sale of the farm was meager during the depression years. Mrs. Reid boarded college students and Mr. Reid took odd jobs. At 46, he started his studies at the Moody Bible institute where he graduated in 1933. He then attended the Presbyterian College of Christian Education. And in 1934, under the direction of the church extension board, he started a Sunday school in a small real estate office across the road from where the new church at 319 Morris avenue, Bellwood, now stands.

After a few weeks the Sunday school was moved to an empty store building at 305 Mannheim road. In April, 1935, under the direction of Henry Brown of the extension board, the church was reorganized as the Bellwood Presbyterian church. Mr. Reid was ordained by the Presbytery of Chicago on Sept. 24, 1940.

Ninety-two members have united with the church and the finances have increased accordingly. In 1938, it was decided to build a suitable place of worship. Members of the building committee were John Christopher, president; Benjamin Luthi, secretary; James Carr, treasurer; and Alfred Schroer, financial secretary. After many difficulties the church and manse last Sunday became a reality.

Originated in 1927.

History of the church goes back to 1927 when a Sunday school was started in the Jefferson school house in West Bellwood by the Rev. John Cochrane, pastor of the Berkeley Presbyterian church. Succeeding pastors were the Rev. William J. Du Bourdieu, Kenneth Hildebrand, and the Rev. Arthur H. Texter. The church was disbanded in 1933 for want of a suitable building.

Gratitude for their aid in making the building possible has been expressed toward the church extension board, contributing friends, those who donated labor and articles of furniture, and the Ladies' Bible class. Individuals paid tribute include Leo Rudbeck, architect; Carl Pearson for building the foundation, N. J. Boring for mason work and counsel, Frank Burkell for carpenter work, A. F. Kostlevy for plumbing, and Robert Tropf for the heating system. Appreciation also was expressed to the building committee and to Edward Backe and Alfred Schroer for their keeping of accounts.

The Rev. and Mrs. Reid's three daughters are in church work. Miss Dora Reid is secretary of the Christion Teachers' Fellowship in Chicago, Miss Alice Reid is now home on furlough after five years as a missionary in India, and Miss Elsie Ruth Reid teaches Bible in the rural schools near Port Huron, Mich.

CAROLIS NAMED COMMANDANT OF AUSTIN H. S. ROTC

James Corolis has been named lieutenant colonel and commandant of the Austin High school ROTC this fall. The list of 21 promotions was announced thru the office of Col. William F. Morrison, head of Chicago schools ROTC.

Other advancements: Majors, Charles Rigler and Robert Spitler; captains, Robert Zellmer, Paul Olson, Alvin Thurston, and William Waskow; first lieutenants, Garfield Anderson, John Bravos, Charles Craig, Leonard Donalson, Robert Grobner, Ore Michalec, and Frank Schneider. Second lieutenants, Edward Glenn, Stanley Marker, Henry Dehmer, Lester Larson, Milton Davidovitz, Rollin Hickman, and Robert Steinway.

READING 9 BOOKS WEEKLY HELPS MAKE A QUIZ KID

Western Springs Girl, 14, Enjoys Radio Role.

fore she was stricken with infantile paralysis during an epidemic in 1941. She was paralyzed from the waist down. She had liked sports equally well and had been an expert swimmer. With her brothers, John, 12, and Phil, 11, she had competed in track events. Confined to a hospital bed for six months, Margaret resumed her reading to such an extent that her quota of eight or nine books a week from the hospital library left her pleading for more.

When she came home on crutches, Margaret continued to read everything that came her way. Friends submitted her name to the Quiz Kids radio show and she was called for an audition.

After her first appearance, July 1 of this year, she has been recalled every week except when the program has been given over to special events.

Acts as Hospital Receptionist.

Along with her radio work, for which she has received $1,200 in war bonds, and her high school studies, Margaret frequently substitutes as a receptionist at her father's animal hospital in Brookfield.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrick accompany their daughter to the radio broadcasts. They assert that the radio opportunity has had much to do with a recovery which now permits her to walk without a cane. Margaret's success is more than the achievement of a bright mind. It is the mastery of spirit over physical ailment.

Radio fame, it is said, has not had the result of making either Margaret, her classmates, or her teachers, Quiz Kid conscious so far as her high school activities are concerned. Margaret smilingly admits that when she misses a question in class, there is a tendency of the teacher to take on a look that says "Didn't get that one, did you?"

Margaret reads the daily papers as well as books and magazines. Just now she is in the midst of "Outline of History." As to her ambition for the future, she says that changes every two days.

Asked which one of her answers on the Quiz Kid show made her the most pleased, Margaret said it was explaining "Why would a sailor take a tomato plant with him into a submarine?"

Monday, Nov. 9

Bulk planting should be completed as soon as possible before severe freezing weather. Many bulbs were received from the growers late, which makes it imperative that they be procured and planted. It is not too late to pot up a good calla lily. Its tropical foliage is an asset to any window. Give it full sun and copious watering when once established.

Pots of crocus, with the corms placed close together, flower readily and their showy flowers are desirable. The different narcissi are all excellent for pot culture and some few, such as King Alfred, Sir Watkins, Emperor, and Poeticus are fine for naturalizing outdoors.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

There still is time to prepare some flowering plants for display at Christmas. Keep the poinsettias growing by feeding and plenty of water with a warm location. Bulbs like the narcissus paperwhite can be started now for Christmas; begonias can be purchased in a well developed state and will prove attractive.

All foliage plants, such as coleus, screw pine [variegated], should be carefully watched and kept in the best condition by careful watering and given plenty of light.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

Plants of poison ivy can be moved without harm at this season. Those who are susceptible should wear gloves. Dig out all the roots and destroy. The lawn can be given a top dressing at this time by simply spreading a quarter inch layer of rich compost over it to fill depressions.

Thursday, Nov. 12

Vines can be cleaned up at this time and old diseased wood removed. Some pruning can be done: The hydrangea P. G. should be cut back to three or four buds to each shoot. The dwarf spireas, like the S. Anthony Waterer, should be severely cut back, halfway to almost to the ground, and it will start up again in springtime.

Cut out the old stems of the philadelphus or mock orange, for the wood made this season will produce the flowers next spring. The Rose of Sharon [Hibiscus syriacus] can be trimmed to shape.

Friday, Nov. 13

Try sowing a row of sweet peas now. The seed must not grow sufficiently to penetrate the surface or the young growths will freeze. The seeds may germinate but remain in that condition until spring, when the plants flower much earlier than if spring sown. They should be given some protection.

Saturday, Nov. 14

Keep chrysanthemum plants well watered, for they are closely rooted and require plenty of water. All flowering plants require the same attention. If they can be placed in a cool room during the night they will last longer.

Grape vines can be pruned now and material for cuttings collected. Grape cuttings should be tied in bundles and buried in sand in a cool basement and planted out in spring. Cuttings of other suitable shrubs can also be collected.

G. O. P. FAR AHEAD IN CHICAGO AREA CONGRESS VOTE

Republican Count Exceeds Democratic Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans gained one Chicago district seat in Tuesday's congressional elections, but an analysis of the figures for the 11 districts in the area shows that the actual improvement in party strength was much greater than appears on the surface.

The study reveals that the Democrats' pluralities of 133,255 in 1938 and 33,249 in 1940 were wiped out completely and replaced in Tuesday's balloting by a G. O. P. margin of more than 76,500.

The total Republican vote in the 11 districts last week, with 25 precincts missing, was 956,218, a gain of 133,876 over the party total of 822,342 in the comparable by-election four years ago.

Democratic Vote Declines.

Here are Tuesday's unofficial results by district, complete except for the 25 missing precincts, which will not be reported until the official canvass is announced:

Candidate.	1942 Vote.	Plurality.
First District.
William L. Dawson [D.]	34,641	11,013
William E. King [R.]	23,628
Second District. [7 precincts missing.]
William A. Rowan [D.]	108,925	3,746
Thomas J. Downs [R.]	105,179
Third District. [6 precincts missing.]
Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D.]	107,639
Fred E. Busbey [R.]	113,477	5,838
Fourth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Martin Gorski [D.]	60,333	44,013
Arthur J. Rutshaw [R.]	16,320
Fifth District.
Rep. A. J. Sabath [D.]	29,265	18,067
Clem Graver [R.]	11,198
Sixth District. [5 precincts missing.]
Thomas J. O'Brien [D.]	151,917	41,045
Raymond J. Trafelet [R.]	110,872
Seventh District. [8 precincts missing.]
Rep. L. W. Schuetz [D.]	179,391	3,630
James C. Moreland [R.]	175,761
Eighth District.
Thomas S. Gordon [D.]	33,526	24,101
Rena E. Pikiel [R.]	9,425
Ninth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Irwin N. Walker [D.]	38,475
Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R.]	40,642	2,167
Tenth District. [2 precincts missing.]
Jack Bairstow [D.]	103,985
Ralph E. Church [R.]	148,049	44,054
Eleventh District. [1 precinct missing.]
Joseph Sam Perry [D.]	39,726
Rep. Chauncey W. Reed [R.]	97,682	57,956

Districts 1 to 10 are in Cook county, the 10th also including all of Lake county. The 11th district is made up of McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will counties.

The district recaptured by the Republicans was the 3d. The G. O. P. showed gains over their 1938 pluralities in all except the 4th and 8th districts. It registered advances over its 1940 margins in all but the 9th and 11th districts. The Republican gains since the last off year election in 1938 were especially large in the 2d and 7th districts.

PROVISO PLANS OPEN HOUSE FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

An open house Tuesday night will highlight Proviso Township High school's observance of American Education week which has for its national theme this year "Education for Free Men."

Between the hours of 8 and 9:30 Tuesday night, parents will be honored guests at Proviso. All freshmen classes and certain classes which are important because of their special significance in Proviso's war effort will be in session.

An all-Proviso radio broadcast, "Proviso on the Air," will be presented at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning over station WMRO, Aurora. The same program will be presented at 4 o'clock over WHFC, Cicero.

Script for the broadcast was written by R. L. Daniels. Proviso's choir under the direction of R. Lee Osburn will sing four numbers including "The Ramparts We Watch." There will be selections by the school concert band and orchestra directed by J. Irving Tallmadge and Wallace Nelson, and an original radio skit written by William Skedd, '43.

During the week, Proviso will conduct its third annual book fair with Forward with Books as the theme. Miss Anna Harman is chairman. V. G. Catlin is general chairman of the Education week program.

DIVINITY INSTRUCTOR IS GIVING 7 LECTURES AT EPIPHANY CHURCH

The Church of the Epiphany, 201 South Ashland avenue, has begun a seven week course of lectures on "The Christian Doctrine of God," conducted by the Rev. Dr. William H. Dunphy, of the faculty of the Philadelphia Divinity school. The series started on Nov. 3 and will continue every Tuesday evening thru Dec. 15.

Dr. Dunphy.

Dr. Dunphy, who received his bachelor of arts degree from Harvard, and his degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Chicago Divinity school, studied at the Orthodox institute in Paris, and represented the Episcopal church at the Ecumenical conferences in Oxford and Edinburgh in 1937.

The subject of Dr. Dunphy's lecture on Tuesday is "The God of the Philosophers." The Rev. David E. Gibson, formerly of Cathedral Shelter mission, is priest in charge of the Church of the Epiphany.

FARMHOUSE, 90, YEARS OLD, GETS THORO REPAIRING

Insulating Boards Add to Attractiveness.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Three miles southwest of Hinckley in De Kalb county there is a 90 year old farmhouse which has been finely repaired and insulated thruout. It is now ready for a new life, with each of its nine rooms, once drafty and dilapidated, now weather resistant and sound. The insulating boards which cover walls and ceilings have added greatly to the attractiveness of the entire house and likewise made possible definite fuel savings.

The story back of this reconstruction is interesting. The work included repair and insulation of farm buildings as well as farmhouse, and was motivated by a desire on the part of Marvin Christensen, the owner, to get the utmost out of his land and stock and work.

Poor Housing Farming Obstacle.

Poor housing is one of the biggest obstacles to profitable farming, according to our agricultural experts. This improved housing should yield increased production for wartime need.

Mr. Christensen was assisted in his improvement program by a group of nationally known manufacturers in insulation boards.

Full details on the entire project are now available in booklet form on request. Also this same group of manufacturers are offering free plans for a number of insulated farm buildings.

Use of Insulating Board.

These plans show how insulating board can be used to provide additional strength against weather extremes and include:

[1] Stationary brooder house.

[2] Shedtype poultry house.

[3] Fruit and vegetable storage; an insulated farrowing house, and also construction details for building insulation into a dairy barn.

[If you wish further information on this project and available plans, please send stamped addressed envelope to this department.]

But now we come to the old farm house itself, built back in 1852 by a homesteading family. Some 20 years later an addition was made, and the present home has nine rooms.

Exterior Gets Paint.

The exterior has not changed much in all its 90 years, except that it has now been newly painted white, but much has happened to the interior.

The Christensens for some time occupied only the four rooms on the first floor, leaving the five on the second floor untouched except for a single bedroom used in emergencies. The second story was cold and drafty in winter and hot in summer, and badly in need of repair and renovation.

Now since the improvement there are seven cheerful, well insulated rooms in the house, and a young son has a room, a bright little nursery all his own.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen made a careful survey of the house before deciding on what repairs to make. How the change was accomplished will be told in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

HINSDALE HIGH SENIOR CLASS GIVING THREE PLAYS ON SATURDAY

HERO'S WELCOME AWAITS VETERAN OF FOUR BATTLES

Family and Neighbors to Honor Bianchi.

graduation from Crane Technical High school in June, 1941, that Tullio enlisted in the marines. His unit was on the way to Pearl Harbor when war was declared. In the months since, he has been in at the battle of Midway, the battle of the Marshall Islands, and then the battle of the Coral sea—which put him temporarily out of combat.

That Tullio's eyesight was not injured by the burst of shrapnel is understandable to his mother. Mrs. Bianchi, a devout Catholic, had arranged for a mass to be said for her boy on the very morning he was injured. At the hour when he was in the thick of the battle she was saying prayers for him at Our Lady of Sorrows church.

Met on West Coast.

After his injury, there was the long trip back to San Diego by hospital ship, a voyage which took a month—during which time his family didn't know whether he was dead or alive. As soon as the boat landed, Tullio's father, one brother, and one sister headed for the west coast to see him.

Behind the Front . . ,
If up-to-date windows and fixtures alone made a store our job would already be done.
While we are justly proud of the modern character of our store—inside and out—we have long since realized that it is the styles we choose, the values we give and the service we render that holds our customers.
Back of our up-to-date exterior stands 31 years of experience to assure you of the finest in men's wear at the lowest possible cost.
In short, we sincerely believe that if you will look behind the front you will find here exactly the kind of fashionability, dependability, efficiency, and friendliness you want in the store where you buy your clothes.

FOREST PARK TO USE NEW WATER PROJECT SOON

Amertorp Plant Needs Lead to Improvement.

Forest Park's new water system should be in operation by the end of November, Ben Berliner, commissioner of the department of public health and safety, estimated last week.

The village will have a modern system with capacity for pumping 4,000,000 gallons a day, compared with its former 1,500,000, and the Amertorp corporation naval ordnance works will receive up to 550,000 gallons a day.

Final approval of a contract with the city of Chicago was given at a city council meeting recently. By this contract, Forest Park will buy water from Chicago at 7.36 cents per 1,000 gallons, net. Pumpage losses and overhead will be borne by the village and water will be resold to Amertorp at 17 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Consumption Rises Sharply.

The new contract became necessary when the village was called on to serve Amertorp and the daily estimated consumption rose to nearly 2,000,000 gallons. The old contract permitted 1,500,000 gallons daily consumption.

The water improvement is only part of a million dollar program carried on this year in the village, with completion of the whole program expected early in 1943. The other part is construction of a storm sewer to relieve volume in sanitary sewers and to keep water from flooding basements, as officials said it has many times.

The whole program is costing the village $375,000, for which amount bonds were voted—$125,000 for the water and $250,000 for sewers. This is approximately 40 per cent of the total, with the balance paid by the federal government under its WPA program.

Mains 50 Years Old.

Establishment of the large Amertorp plant on ground formerly occupied by the old Harlem race track helped to bring the water problem to a head. Many of the village water mains were laid 50 years ago. The pumps were old, the mains inefficient and pressure low in some sections.

Chicago has insisted that both Amertorp and the village maintain 1,000,000 gallon storage tanks because of possibility of bomb damage to feeder lines. This would supply Amertop, at normal consumption, for about two days and the village for about 18 hours.

Three New Pumps Installed.

Chief items in the water renovation include installation of three new pumps, replacing three that were 35 to 40 years old, with one older pump to continue as a reserve; laying of a main feeder line 8,000 feet long thru the center of the village and installation of 12 new fire hydrants.

The new pumps are already in. The main line was finished last week.

The sewer program, approximately 60 per cent complete, was suspended when the [illegible] improvement was begun in August.

HOLD RED CROSS SHOW AT BRYANT PTA ON TUESDAY

Howland Group to Have Health Program.

Miss Alice Vandenbroucke.

Miss Audrey Eiselt, 3153 19th street, and Miss Alice Vandenbroucke, 818 South Eighth avenue, Maywood, have been inducted into the army nurses' corps, and will leave Nov. 16 for Camp Bowie, Brownwood, Texas. The nurses took their training together at Oak Park hospital, and with the nursing unit of Loyola university. Both served a year at Hines hospital. Miss Eiselt, a graduate of Harrison Technical High school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ladd Eiselt. Miss Vandenbroucke is a graduate of Proviso Township High school, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Remi Vandenbroucke.

QUALIFIED MEN MAY SEEK RATING, SAYS RECRUITER

Men having the proper qualifications are again being allowed to apply for naval ratings as storekeeper, second and third class, and yeoman, second and third class, according to Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson, chief recruiting officer here.

For a rating as storekeeper, applicants should have some knowledge of accounting and typewriting and be able to take complete charge of a ship's store, Comm. Goldenson said. Allied civilian jobs are stockroom manager, freight checker, or accountant. A storekeeper, second class, receives a base pay of $96 per month, and the third class rating carries a base pay of $78.

Applicants for a rating as yeoman need a business background, including typewriting and shorthand. They will be expected to take charge of a ship's office and correspondence. The pay is the same as that of storekeeper.

AIR MORE GOOD MUSIC THAN EVER FOR CHICAGOLAND

Added Classical Programs on Local Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A search thru the program schedules of Chicago stations and the national networks reveals that more good music than ever, particularly in symphonic, opera, operetta, and concert fields, is available to Chicagoland listeners this season.

Three outstanding symphony orchestras broadcast concerts each week. The Metropolitan opera will be back on the Blue network, starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 28. WLS will be the outlet here. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is heard from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Fridays on Mutual [W-G-N is not an outlet].

The NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Arturo Toscanini, broadcasts over WMAQ-NBC from 4 to 5 p. m. Sundays. The New York Philharmonic Symphony series is aired over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. The Theater of the Air operettas are broadcast regularly from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturdays over Saturdays over W-G-N and Mutual.

The last year has brought several added transcribed or recorded programs featuring classical music on Chicago stations.

Below appears a schedule of most of the notable musical programs heard thru Chicago stations:

Besides these there are many other programs in which both classical works and popular compositions are presented. Ralph Ginsburgh's concert ensemble is heard numerous times thruout the week on W-G-N. And for those who have frequency modulation receivers numerous high fidelity FM programs are available on the three Chicago stations.

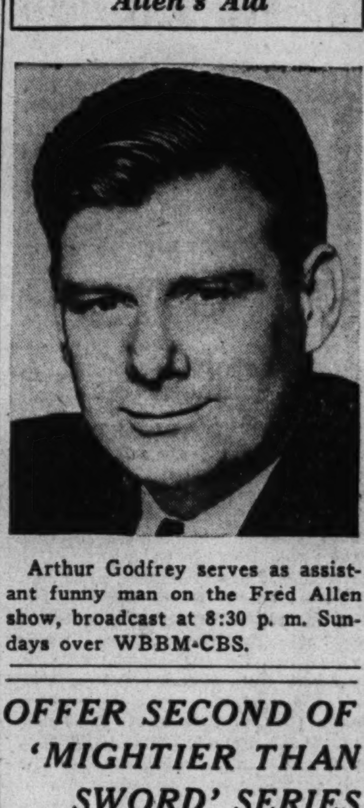
W. C. Fields Will Heckle Charlie McCarthy Tonight

W. C. Fields, screen comedian, will renew the feud between him and Edgar Bergen's knee partner, Charlie McCarthy, when he puts in a guest appearance at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ-NBC. Songs by Dale Evans and Don Ameche, and music by Ray Noble's orchestra will round out the program.

Mystery Murder Slated on First Nighter Today

Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy will be co-starred in a mystery murder by Anthony Wayne titled "The Allardice Case," from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and the Mutual network. The mystery will be produced as another in the "First Nighter" dramatic series.

Allen's Aid



Arthur Godfrey serves as assistant funny man on the Fred Allen show, broadcast at 8:30 p. m. Sundays over WBBM-CBS.

OFFER SECOND OF 'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' SERIES

Dramas Stress Freedom of the Press.

The second in the dramatic series, "Mightier than the Sword," based on the experiences of Stanley Johnston, famous CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, will be broadcast over W-G-N from 2:30 to 3 p. m. today. The central theme of these Sunday presentations is the American doctrine of the freedom of the press.

Johnston, whose stories of the battle of the Coral sea and the sinking of the Lexington have made history, will join in the broadcast.

Today's episode will unfold the story of Johnston's experiences aboard a decoy fishing boat used to pioneer a new transport route and to determine whether German submarines were patroling the proposed route. Johnston and his crew discover a U-boat cruising in the area and warn merchant and passenger ships. The skipper of a neutral refugee ship ignores the warning, having been duped by propaganda and exaggerated newspaper reports. His vessel is attacked and sunk.

In summarizing this narrative Johnston will emphasize the need for a free American press in which the public can place implicit trust. He will explain the need of printing factual news promptly, providing it does not interfere with military actions.

An all-star Chicago radio cast will provide dramatic background for the Johnston narration. The actors: Charles Penman, Sid Ellstrom, Forrest Lewis, Marvin Mueller, Murray Forbes, Hope Summers, Laurette Fillbrandt, Fred Howard, and Carl Kroenke.

Musical background will be provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Robert Trendler. Jack LaFrande is the writer.

SALUTE NILES HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' HOUR

Niles Township High school in Skokie will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. The program was transcribed at the school last Wednesday.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, youthful principal of Niles, will tell what the student body is doing in the war effort. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune editorial staff, master of ceremonies on the program.

The Niles choir, under the direction of Clara A. Klaus, will sing two numbers, "Rain and Water" by Fox, and "Pledge to the Flag" by Malotte. The student body of 1,000 will join the choir in singing the school song, "Gold and Blue," composed by C. W. Collins.

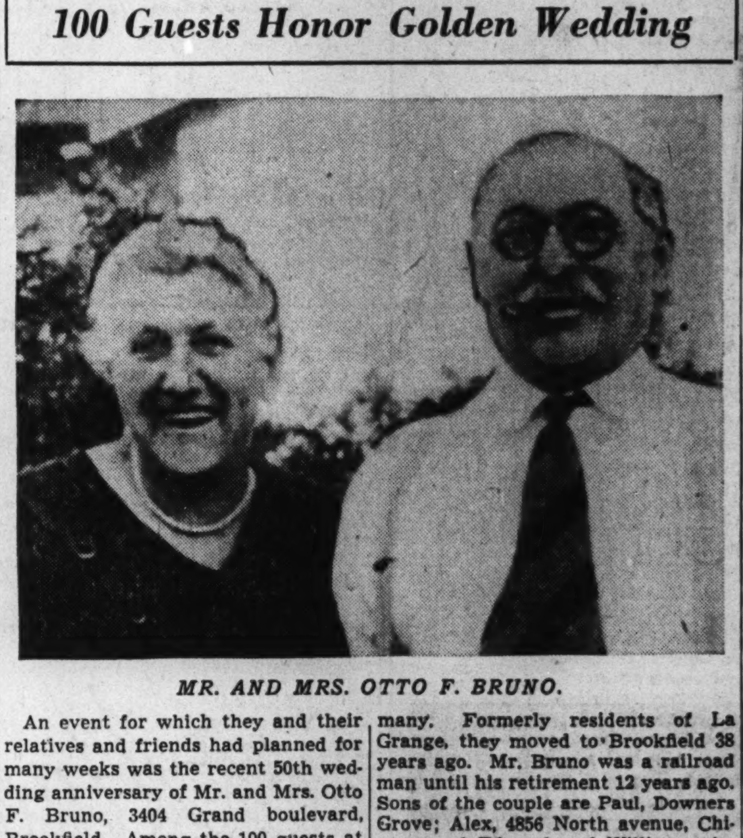
Two more high school students will be added to the program's Roll of Honor: Willard James Stockfish of Niles Township High and John Leon Iltis of Madison, Wis.

Bob Jellison and Beryl Vaughan will be back on the program in the rôles of Jimmy and Jerry. Jane Anderson provides piano accompaniment on the program and Holland Engle is the announcer.

Church Guild Dance.

The S. O. S. Guild of the River Forest Methodist church will give their annual Sweater hop at the Nineteenth Century club in Oak Park on Saturday evening.

100 Guests Honor Golden Wedding



MR. AND MRS. OTTO F. BRUNO.

An event for which they and their relatives and friends had planned for many weeks was the recent 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Otto F. Bruno, 3404 Grand boulevard, Brookfield. Among the 100 guests at the celebration were four sons, three daughters, five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. Mr. Bruno, 77, and Mrs. Bruno, 72, were born in Germany. Formerly residents of La Grange, they moved to Brookfield 38 years ago. Mr. Bruno was a railroad man until his retirement 12 years ago. Sons of the couple are Paul, Downers Grove; Alex, 4856 North avenue, Chicago, and Edward and William, who reside at home. Daughters are Mrs. Clara Reimer and Mrs. Elsa Whitney, who reside at home, and Mrs. Alvin Westerman, Montgomery, Minn.

'FORTUNE TELLER' ON THEATER OF AIR ON SATURDAY

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire, soprano, Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will be cast in the singing rôle of Musette, a gypsy fortune teller. Mr. Thomas will portray the rôle of Sandor, Musette's sweetheart, while Baggiore will be cast as Capt. Ladislas, a young soldier who is in love with Irma, a ballet student, who is a double for Musette.

The plot is built around the likeness of Irma and Musette whose suitors are confused by their identities. Many of Herbert's most beautiful tunes, taken from this operetta, will be heard. These include "The Song of the Gypsies," "Romany Trail," "Gypsy Love Song" and "Song of Romany."

Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus led by Robert Trendler. The program will be produced by Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production.

A full dramatic cast will portray the speaking rôles of the operetta and Marvin Mueller will be narrator.

WAR METAL DRIVE FOR ARMISTICE DAY

U. OF C. HOUSE OF PEACE WILL MARK 10TH YEAR

War Clouds Shadow Anniversary.

BY CHARLES WRIGHT.

Ten years ago, when Adolf Hitler was just a disappointed office seeker, the University of Chicago International house was dedicated. At 8 o'clock Tuesday evening the house will observe its anniversary in a world which is the opposite of the hopes upon which the institution was founded.

"The program will be a commemoration," said Charles A. Rovetta, acting director, "and not an anniversary celebration." The Chicago house, one of four, was founded by John D. Rockefeller Jr., "to promote international understanding and freindship." It was pointed out that for an organization with that objective there was little cause for celebration today.

Delay Observance Here.

While the anniversary date of International house is Oct. 5, the commemoration service was delayed to correspond with the observances of the house at Columbia university, New York City, and at the University of California, Berkeley. The fourth house is in Paris.

The program in the assembly hall of the house will open with musical selections by the choir of the Rockefeller Memorial chapel. Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel, will give a commemorative prayer. Four pianists, who live at the house, Dorothy Walters, John Jamrich, Mary Jane Cook, and Thyra Pliske, will play Polonnaise, by Chopin.

Walter T. Fisher, attorney and president of the board of governors of the house, will be the first speaker. Others who will make short talks include: Mrs. Stanley Read, vice president of the house alumni association, and Aaron J. Brumbaugh, dean of students at the university, who will discuss "Recent Developments in Higher Education." At 9 o'clock, following the service, newly elected members of the student council will be hosts at a reception.

Soldiers Moving In.

Tomorrow several hundred soldiers who are studying meteorology at the university are scheduled to move into the house, which was dedicated to the cause of peace. Residents are "doubling up" so that very few will have to leave, Mr. Rovetta reported.

The huge stone building cost $3,000,000 and normally houses 524 men and women. Ground was broken for the structure in 1930 at almost the same time the house in Berkeley was opened. The University of Columbia house was dedicated in 1923. The houses are designed to provide living quarters for students from other countries as well as American students. A student taking courses in any of the city's educational institutions is eligible to live at the house. The first year of the house there were representatives of 47 nationalities.

Japan Not Represented.

Every major belligerent, with the exception of Japan, is represented at the house now. There are 39 nationalities in all during the current quarter. China leads in the number of representatives, with 25, followed by Canada, with 11. There are 134 foreign students.

Other countries represented are: Argentina, 2; Austria, 4; Bolivia, 1; Brazil, 1; Chile, 2; Colombia, 4; Cuba, 2; Czecho-Slovakia, 2; Ecuador, 1; Egypt, 1; France, 4; Germany, 8; Great Britain, 1; Guatamala, 1; Hawaii, 15; Holland, 1; Hungary, 4; India, 1; Iran, 1; Italy, 2; Jamaica, 1; Java, 1; Jugo-Slavia, 2; Korea, 1; Nigeria, 2; Palestine, 4; Panama, 1; Persia, 1; Peru, 2; Philippine Islands, 6; Poland, 2; Puerto Rico, 9; Switzerland, 1; Thailand, 1; Turkey, 4; Russia, 1, and Venezuela, 1.

Succeeded Midway House.

Interest in providing foreign students a place to live at the University of Chicago dates back to World War I. In 1919 a campus building, Midway house, was used almost exclusively by foreign students. This house went out of existence in 1923. It was founded thru the efforts of Bruce W. Dickson, university advisor to foreign students, who since was a director of International house. Later Mr. Rockefeller conceived the International house idea for a building which might "provide living accommodations and facilities contributing to the social and educational welfare of students" and he "hoped that they will get a new vision of world customs and problems and will become powerful influences for better world understanding and international peace when they complete their training."

Notables who have lived at the Chicago International house include: W. Somerset Maugham, English novelist; Jan Masaryk, Czech leader; Lin Yutang, Chinese author; Carl Van Doren, author; Hu Shih, then Chinese ambassador; Dr. Lucius Potter of Yenching university, and Dr. Enrique Martinez Paz of the University of Cordoba, Argentina.

Service Men Flood Lawyers with Problems

BY JOHN WILHELM.

Possibility of military pay allotments has prompted a surprisingly large number of Chicago women to recall that somewhere they have a long forgotten spouse—and he might be in the army. If so, they are entitled to a monthly stipend.

Dragging their skeletons from the closet is one of the many duties encountered by the Chicago Bar association in fulfilling their offer of free legal aid to servicemen and dependents of servicemen.

"We receive about 75 telephone calls a day, plus as many letters, from service men and their families who are in some legal tangle," Charles E. Lind, bar association assistant executive secretary, relates. "Five hundred local attorneys have volunteered their services, and we refer the cases to them thru a military committee headed by Charles F. Hough."

Must Be in Service.

"Any man desiring to have legal help on problems arising from entrance into the armed forces can write to the military committee, Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street, Chicago. However, he must actually be in service before we can help him. Also, we do not touch divorce cases nor are we a collection agency. Aside from those exceptions, we will attempt to untangle anything presented.

"Pay allotment is the most common problem now. Many women have been shocked to find some stranger has already applied for a share of her husband's army pay. If she wishes to press her claim, she has to establish bigamy."

Each Case Stands Alone.

Typical of the problems that are brought to Lind's committee are the following, which, Lind notes have been changed to avoid any personal identification. He also cautions that no person should assume that an apparent similarity between cases can be used in applying the determination of one case to a second. It usually doesn't work that way.

Case A was the problem of the living room suite. A few weeks after having purchased furnishings for his home, a young married man received a notice he would be dratfed in 30 days. His wife didn't want to live alone in a large house. If they relinquished the rented home, storage plus payments would wreck the couple's lowered budget.

An attorney from Lind's bureau advised the furniture company that payments could be suspended for the duration, suggested instead they take the furniture back and after the war give the couple full credit on new furniture. This was done.

His Own Beneficiary.

Case B was a marine's insurance. The young man lost his life while effecting a landing on a Pacific isle. The boy's mother received notice of his death, but no word was received about his government insurance.

The attorney assigned by the bar association committee reached the proper Washington authorities, found the marine had made a error in filing out his enlistment papers. He had made himself his own beneficiary. By drawing up proper affidavits, the attorney secured the proper compensation for the mother.

Case C was the service man that wished to make his pay allotment to his minor child, but not to his wife. The child was staying with his parents. He consulted the association attorney and was assured that he could do so.

Rents Mortgaged Home.

A man going into the army, Case D in Lind's typical list, didn't see how he could continue payments on his mortgaged home. As he had no children, the attorneys arranged for him to rent the home for the duration and have the payments made from the rent. In other cases where men are paying for their home, payments have been suspended until after the war. They will be resumed at that time with little or no penalty, Lind said.

Case E concerned a free lance taxicab driver who had been inducted into the army. He wrote the association, saying that while he had assigned his license and cab number to his brother-in-law, a former partner of his was also using the same permit without authority. An association attorney determined the status of the permit, found it to be nontransferable.

Uncovering marriages of the multiple variety is only one of a series of legal trends resulting from the selective service program. When young men were called, the problem was half-paid-for autos. When older men were called the usual question was settling mortgages. Now the dependent's allotments it's a question of who gets what from the soldier's pay envelope.

Most Need Common Sense.

"Each man inducted into the army is advised that we can furnish him with free legal advice on any problem traceable to his military service," Lind explains. "On his induction papers a notice tells him who we are and how to get in touch with us. As a result we have a steady stream of jumbled affairs being brought to our attention for solution."

United Hyde Park Church to Observe Peace Sunday

The United Church of Hyde Park will observe Peace Sunday today. The Rev. George M. Gibson will speak on "Conditions of Peace" at the 11 o'clock service. At 7:45 before the Sunday evening discussion group Dr. Gibson will speak on the "Current News Omnibus." Next week at the same time and before the same group he will discuss "The World Tomorrow."

South Congregational Plans Bazar and Turkey Dinner

The annual bazar and turkey dinner given by the Woman's association of the South Congregational church will be held at the church house, 40th street and Drexel boulevard, Nov. 18. The bazar will last from 10 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock at night. The dinner will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Have Lots of Music—at a Small Cost

With small expense and much energy 15 children who use the South Chicago Community center, 9135 Brandon avenue, recently organized a rhythm band under the direction of Mrs. Otella Bouche McCord, music and drama director of the center. At the piano are Dorothy Vukovich and Lorraine Vukovich. Alice Orozco is the leader. Seated, front row: Esther Salas, Norbert Sanchez, and Mary Sanchez. Middle row: Belen Jacquez, Ralph Flores, John Orozco, and Lewis Orozco. Back row: Joseph Jacquez, Virgilio Sanchez, Arlene Sukowiecz, and Leonardo Martinez.

Mrs. Otella Bouche McCord points out the simple instruments which 15 children at the center use in their rhythm band. In all they cost about $6.

Music is where you find it, according to little Belen Jacquez, a member of the rhythm band of the South Chicago Community center. She plays the cymbals.

102 YEARS FIND MRS. PATTERSON ACTIVE AT PARTY

Recalls Release from Slavery as Girl.

It's been a long, long time since Mrs. Kate Patterson was sold as a slave. But the memory was still sharp in her mind as she celebrated her 102d birthday.

Mrs. Patterson, whose hair now is snow white, vividly recalls the auction block in Hallsville, Ky., and her sale as a field hand, away from her parents and brothers and sisters.

"My new master was nice to us the first day and gave us sticks of red candy," she said; "but we had to work awful hard in the fields. We sure didn't get much for the work either; maybe a pair of shoes every year or so. I guess I've seen plenty of trouble in my day, but I'm happy."

Freedom and Marriage.

The day she got her freedom was the happiest in her life, Mrs. Patterson says. Then she married and moved to a farm in Indiana where she spent the next 25 years. She now resides with her daughter, Mrs. Rose Adkins, in the Ida B. Wells homes at 504 East 38th street.

With a light in her eyes and an enthusiasm in her voice that belies her age, Mrs. Patterson still does her own cooking and household tasks. She distains the use of a cane and on her birthday spent the whole day at a party given for her by the members of Olivet Baptist church, 3101 South Park way.

Visits Son of 65.

She spent several weeks last summer visiting her youngest child—a mere youngster of 65—on his farm in Sunset Hills, Mich. She has one other daughter and son living, eight grandchildren, and so many great-grandchildren she says she has quit counting them.

FATHER LEARNS NEWS ABOUT SON LATE; WAS TOO BUSY WITH JAPS

William H. Dyer Jr., son of W. H. Dyer Sr. of 1713 East 79th street, was promoted to lieutenant, junior grade, last June. However, he was serving in the Pacific and news of the advancement only reached the father when he called the navy department to learn the fate of his son after the sinking of the U. S. S. Gregory, on which Lieut. Dyer was serving in the Solomons battle. Five days later Mr. Dyer received a letter from his son giving details of the promotion. Lieut. Dyer was commissioned an ensign at Annapolis, Md., in May, 1941. His father had dinner with him shortly afterwards aboard the Gregory.

TRAVELER PLANS TALKS ON WORLD NEED FOR CHRIST

Charles A. Wells, cartoonist, journalist, and traveler, will speak at a series of conferences on the general subject of "Christ and World Need" beginning at 7:45 o'clock next Sunday at the Woodlawn Baptist church, 62d street and Woodlawn avenue. The conferences will be held each day at the same hour until Nov. 20. Mr. Wells has faced execution in China; has been jailed in Russia; has helped Jewish friends out of Germany; was one of the few to survive a typhoon off the Hongkong coast, and has frequently encountered Japanese aggression.

SERVICE KIT FUND DRIVE GOES WELL IN CALUMET CITY

The 750 young men from Calumet City who are now in the armed forces of the nation will be assured service kits for Christmas if contributions continue to pour in at the present rate, officials of the women's division of the OCD have announced.

Thus far $249.26 has been collected from families of 36 blocks in the town. Officials estimated that $5 must be collected from each block if the purchase of the kits is to be accomplished.

Contributions of $5 each have been received from the Woman's club, the Garden club, and the League for Hard of Hearing.

BENEFIT TUESDAY TO AID CRIPPLES AT ST. EDMUND'S

The Social Service guild of St. Edmund's church will give its 10th annual benefit card party at 8 o'clock Tuesday at the Parkway Community center, 5120 South Park. Proceeds will be used to assist crippled children and needy young students within the church. Mrs. A. W. Beck is president of the guild. Mrs. Frazier T. Lane is general chairman of the party. Father Samuel J. Martin is rector of the parish.

WISCONSIN ALUMNAE TEA NEXT SUNDAY TO BENEFIT WAR WORK

Alumnae of the University of Wisconsin have been invited to a benefit tea next Sunday afternoon in the Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5016 Drexel boulevard. The program will be a book review by Miss Dorothy Posey, 2248 Lunt avenue.

Dorothy Posey.
[Carlos Photo.]

Each year Miss Ruth Sayre, alumnae and superintendent of the home, invites the Chicago Alumnae club to give the tea at home. Part of the proceeds, usually turned over to a scholarship fund, will be used for war work this year.

Mrs. Bernard McShane, president, will pour. She will be assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Todd, past president, and Miss Hida Iamison, program chairman.

Bryn Mawr Church.

Young Mother's club of Bryn Mawr Community church will sponsor a Chinese luncheon and bridge party at 12:30 o'clock Monday, Nov. 16, in the church club rooms.

With America's Fighters

Robert Henry Smith, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Smith of 10244 Avenue H, recently was assigned to the University of Minnesota for training as an electrician's mate in the navy. Enlisting two months ago, Smith was given boot training at the Great Lakes naval training station, where his father was stationed with the provost marshall's office in World War I. The senior Mr. Smith is OCD southeast district commander. Young Smith, who was graduated from Mount Carmel High school in 1938, will be at the university 16 weeks. Before entering the navy he was employed at Youngstown Sheet and Tube company where his father also works.

Robert H. Smith.

Ernest N. Rubel Jr., 33, son of E. N. Rubel Sr. of 5480 Ridgewood court, recently was promoted to major at Fort McClellan, Ala., where he is stationed with the field artillery. A graduate of Tilden Technical High school and the University of Illinois, Maj. Rubel has been in service since 1939. His wife, Mrs. Eileen Rubel, is at the fort with him. Before being assigned to Fort McClellan he served at Fort Sheridan, Camp Custer, and Fort Sill.

Major Rubel.

Charles Bradley Durling Jr., 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Durling of 7944 Ingleside avenue, recently was commissioned a second lieutenant in the air corps at the Roswell army flying school, Roswell, New Mexico. His mother and sister, Leitha, attended the ceremonies. He enlisted in the air corps in March and is being trained as a bomber pilot. He was born in 1918 while his father was serving with the army in France.

Pvt. Edward B. Kops, 7038 Paxton avenue, stationed in England, has been transferred to a headquarters detachment, it was announced recently. He enlisted last February and served for 10 months with an armored division and later requested a transfer to a bombardment squadron. He has been overseas for the last six months.

Walter D. Conner Jr., 5124 Dorchester avenue, recently was promoted to captain of artillery at Camp Lewis, Tacoma, Wash. Capt. Conner is 24 years old and attended Kenwood and Hyde Park High schools.

Sergt. Thomas McCann of the Woodlawn police station, recently left for San Diego, Cal., to become a chief petty officer in the naval aviation corps. McCann lives at 7850 Burnham avenue and is the 20th member of the Woodlawn force to enter the armed forces.

William B. Plummer, 6844 South Shore drive, manager of the development and patent department of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, recently was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the army for special duty in the office of the under-secretary of war. After seeing service in World War I. as a second lieutenant he was graduated in chemical engineering and took a master's degree in organic chemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has been head of his department since 1938 after starting with the company in 1930 as a chemical engineer.

Raphael Ahern, 7132 Eberhart avenue, recently was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the marine reserve corps. He attended Wilson Junior college and De Paul university. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ahern, Cresco, Ia.

50TH LA SALLE ALUMNI SESSION TO BE THURSDAY

The 50th anniversary of the founding of the De La Salle High School Alumni association will be celebrated next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the library building. The association was founded by the school's first graduating class in 1892.

After a ceremonial observance, the golden jubilee celebration will be marked by the induction of new officers and members of the executive committee.

The following men will take office: Walter F. Riley, '11, 6909 South Chappel avenue, president; John V. Katzmark, '02, 7312 South Eberhart, treasurer; executive committee members, Bartholomew O'Toole, '96, 7137 Luella avenue; William J. White, '01, 2315 East 68th street; Michael L. Igoe, '03, 5120 Hyde Park boulevard; Jack Stewart, '05, 7637 South Phillips avenue; Raymond S. McKeough, '05, 7815 South Euclid avenue; Charles F. Murphy, '06, 7333 Paxton avenue; James B. McCahey, '07, 4850 South Greenwood avenue; Michael F. Mulcahy, '15, 8000 South Langley avenue, and Arthur J. Ward, '17, 8229 South Evans avenue.

Plaque Lists Hyde Park Former Students in Service

A plaque which bears the names of those in military service from Hyde Park High school has been placed in Loomis hall of the school. Last June's graduating class and the ROTC unit donated funds for the plaque, which has space for 600 names. There are 96 on it now.

LEGION BACKS INTENSIVE ONE DAY CAMPAIGN

Some Groups to Hold 11 A. M. Rites.

South side residents on Wednesday will observe the 24th armistice, commemorating the end of World War I. with an intensive one day scrap metal drive to increase the supply of war materials for the united nations.

Altho the American Legion is sponsoring the scrap drive, various posts will hold their annual commemoration services at 11 o'clock in the morning. Short parades will be held in some communities. Programs at the schools will be held either the day before or after Armistice day, as it will be a school holiday. To the thousands of steel workers on the south side Armistice day will mean another day of hard work to speed the armistice of the present conflict.

350,000 to Participate.

The salvage drive, conducted under the official sponsorship of the American Legion, will place 108 OCD salvage chairmen in the city in charge of the roundup of metal, with the exception of tin cans. It is estimated that over the city there will be 350,000 participating in the drive, including school children.

Citizens have been asked to place all scrap on street corners where the trucks collecting the material may get it with the least delay. Some 1,400 trucks will canvass the 18,000 blocks of Chicago. They have been donated for the day by the city and trucking and delivery companies.

As the trucks accumulate the scrap metal they will take it to 26 large scrap dealers thruout the city. Proceeds from the sale of the scrap will be given to the service men's center. The hod carriers, teamsters, coal drivers, flat janitors, boilermakers, and other AFL, CIO, and railroad brotherhood affiliates are donating their services to make the drive a success.

Poffenberger in Charge.

Efforts of the OCD workers in division 1 on the south side will be directed by Clarence Poffenberger, 3944 Cottage Grove avenue. Community salvage chairmen who will assist him include: Ben Gordon, 7027 Merrill avenue; Stonewall Jackson Dobson, 3233 Wentworth avenue; James H. Saunders, 223 East 30th street; Clyde Ray, 424 East 40th street; Samuel Greenberg, 4000 Lake Park avenue; Mrs. Adeline Burns, 1022 East 46th street; John N. Harris, 6636 Marquette road; Mrs. Burt W. Marx, Windermere East hotel; Mrs. Lenore S. Lyden, 6150 Dorchester avenue; Roy Hammond, 508 East 70th street, and Leo Spira, 7034 Clyde avenue.

Most American Legion memorial services will be brief. Members of the Fort Dearborn post will fire a salute at their ceremony to be held at 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue. There also will be a short parade. Other posts of the community will participate.

Giles Post Ceremony.

The George L. Giles post will hold its annual ceremony at the monument, 35th street and South Park way, which honors those who gave their lives in World War I. The Rev. J. C. Austin of Pilgrim Baptist church will speak. A parade will form at the old 8th Regiment armory and will proceed to the site of the ceremony. The program will begin at 10 o'clock and other groups which will participate in the services include the John Marshall American Legion post, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the McDuffy Freeman post, Boy Scouts, Tanner camp, Spanish War Veterans, and Patent post, Disabled Veterans. An Armistice day party will be held at 10 o'clock in the evening at the post headquarters, 5745 State street.

A short parade, including the Hyde Park High school ROTC unit, and a service at 11 o'clock at 63d street and Woodlawn avenue will be the service of the Woodlawn American Legion post. Harry O'Hern, commander, and Thomas Merrigan, past commander, are making the arrangements.

Parade at Palmer Park.

A parade, beginning at Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue, will be part of the Roseland post's observation. The parade will go down Indiana avenue to 115th street, turn to Michigan avenue, proceed up Michigan avenue to 111th street, and back to the park, where the service will be held at 11 o'clock.

The south works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation will have a short program at 11 o'clock. The ceremony will be held at the 89th street entrance and B. M. Livezey, general superintendent, will speak. Legion posts in South Chicago and sailors from the naval training station at 87th street and Anthony avenue have been invited to assist. The Girls Glee club, under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, will sing.

Included in the school programs will be that of the Spaulding High School for Crippled Children, which will sponsor a "victory program" at 2 o'clock Tuesday. There will be 100 children in the chorus and 20 student speakers.

Johanna Juniors.

The Johanna Juniors' membership tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Morton Teller, 5121 Kenwood avenue, from 3 to 5 o'clock today.

G. O. P. FAR AHEAD IN CHICAGO AREA CONGRESS VOTE

Republican Count Exceeds Democratic Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans gained one Chicago district seat in Tuesday's congressional elections, but an analysis of the figures for the 11 districts in the area shows that the actual improvement in party strength was much greater than appears on the surface.

The study reveals that the Democrats' pluralities of 133,255 in 1938 and 33,249 in 1940 were wiped out completely and replaced in Tuesday's balloting by a G. O. P. margin of more than 76,500.

The total Republican vote in the 11 districts last week, with 25 precincts missing, was 956,218, a gain of 133,876 over the party total of 822,342 in the comparable by-election four years ago

Democratic Vote Declines.

The Democratic turnout on the basis of Tuesday's incomplete figures was only 879,775, a drop of 75,822 below 1938.

Here are Tuesday's unofficial results by district, complete except for the 25 missing precincts, which will not be reported until the official canvass is announced:

Candidate.	1942 Vote.	Plurality.
First District.
William L. Dawson [D.]	34,641	11,013
William E. King [R.]	23,628
Second District. [7 precincts missing.]
William A. Rowan [D.]	108,925	3,746
Thomas J. Downs [R.]	105,179
Third District. [6 precincts missing.]
Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D.]	107,639
Fred E. Busbey [R.]	113,477	5,838
Fourth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Martin Gorski [D.]	60,333	44,013
Arthur J. Rutshaw [R.]	16,320
Fifth District.
Rep. A. J. Sabath [D.]	29,265	18,067
Clem Graver [R.]	11,198
Sixth District. [5 precincts missing.]
Thomas J. O'Brien [D.]	151,917	41,045
Raymond J. Trafelet [R.]	110,872
Seventh District. [8 precincts missing.]
Rep. L. W. Schuetz [D.]	179,391	3,630

Eighth District.
Thomas S. Gordon [D.]	33,526	24,101
Rena E. Pikiel [R.]	9,425
Ninth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Irwin N. Walker [D.]	38,475
Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R.]	40,642	2,167
Tenth District. [2 precincts missing.]
Jack Bairstow [D.]	103,985
Ralph E. Church [R.]	148,049	44,054
Eleventh District. [1 precinct missing.]
Joseph Sam Perry [D.]	39,726
Rep. Chauncey W. Reed [R.]	97,682	57,956

Districts 1 to 10 are in Cook county, the 10th also including all of Lake county. The 11th district is made up of McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will counties.

The district recaptured by the Republicans was the 3d. The G. O. P. showed gains over their 1938 pluralities in all except the 4th and 8th districts. It registered advances over its 1940 margins in all but the 9th and 11th districts. The Republican gains since the last off year election in 1938 were especially large in the 2d and 7th districts.

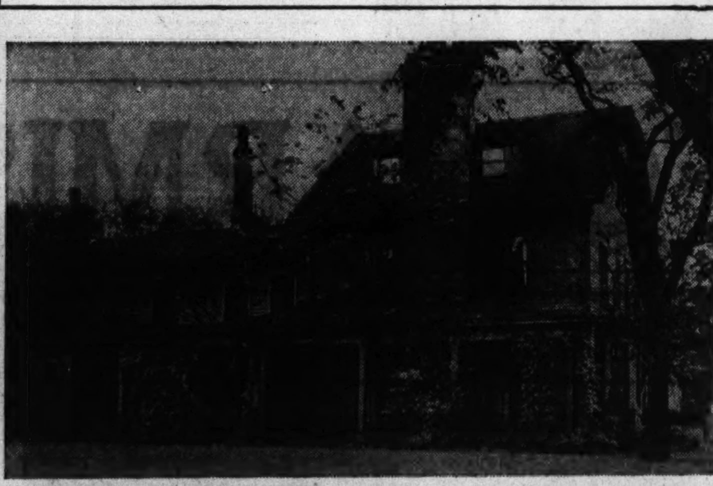
Hyde Park's Oldest House



Reputedly the oldest house in Hyde Park, the Morgan or Bockee house, built in 1857, now is used as a co-operative residence by 23 young business men and women. It is at 5152-5200 Hyde Park boulevard. The St. Paul's Episcopal church was founded in the parlor 87 years ago. The veranda, a rarity in Chicago residences, was built on when it was occupied by James Morgan, one of the first presidents of the south park board, at the request of his bride, who came from Maryland.

HYDE PARK HOME BUILT IN 1857 IS OCCUPIED BY 23

Students, Workers in Co-operative Venture.

Twenty-three young business men and women have met increasing living expenses brought on by the war by forming a residence coöperative in what is reputedly the oldest home in Hyde Park. The double house is at 5152-5200 Hyde Park boulevard and is called by old timers of the area either the Bockee or the Morgan home. Members of the coöperative have christened it Concord house.

Members of the coöperative moved in last March. Some of the residents are students at the University of Chicago. Many are of the Quaker faith. Recently a Quaker wedding was held in the parlor where St. Paul's Episcopal church was founded 85 years ago. Miss Miriam Kelly, a technician at Passavant hospital, became the bride of John Brush, son of a missionary to India. Since the coöperative was founded there have been one or two married couples in the huge double house, which now has three stories, 23 rooms, and 12 baths.

Students and Defense Workers.

A variety of professions are represented among the residents: Bert Hoselitz is at the University of Chicago on a fellowship; Miss Edna Tulane is an artist at the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago; Dr. Ellis Jump is a dentist; William Atlee works at the Buick plant; and Miss Lois La Croix is a research worker for an investment advisory concern.

There are three students from Antioch college who live at the coöperative while they work in Chicago. The three students change every three months as they go back to the college to continue study.

It is believed the house, then a single structure, was built in 1857. Its first resident apparently was Dr. Jacob Bockee, who came to Chicago from Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He was a lay reader in the Episcopal church. Records of St. Paul's Episcopal church show that the church was organized in the parlor of the Bockee home, then at what now is approximately 50th street and Cornell avenue, in 1857. The church was incorporated two years later. That was about the time Paul Cornell named this south side subdivision Hyde Park.

Moved Block Away.

After the Civil war the house was moved to its present site, a distance of about a block. It now faces East End park and when moved was much closer to the lake. It now is several hundred yards from the lake as a result of fills made in completing the park system.

Dr. Bockee returned to New York state and the house was acquired by James Morgan, a lumberman and the third president of the south park board, the parent organization of the present park system. Morgan built a verandah on the south side of the home for his bride, a Maryland belle. An addition to the rear housed the kitchen. One of the most beautiful pieces of work in the home is the walnut staircase.

Morgan added the north side of the house, doubling its size, when his daughter married Dr. H. H. Frothingham. It was sold soon after the turn of the century to George O. Clinch, vice president of a coal firm at the time of his death in 1930. Mrs. Clinch died about a year ago. Their daughter, Mrs. Charles P. Melcher, the wife of a minister, now resides in Wisconsin.

Typist Joins WAVES

Miss LaVerne Peterson, 20, of 8545 Burley avenue, recently became the first employe of the south works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation to join the WAVES. She was employed as a billing typist. More than 2,700 employes of south works are now serving in the armed forces.

MAN POWER TOPIC OF ROUND TABLE TOMORROW NIGHT

"Mobilization of Man Power" will be the subject of a round table discussion at the meeting of the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn at 8 o'clock tomorrow at the Woodlawn regional library, 6247 Kimbark avenue. Speakers who will participate include: Chester W. Hepler of the United States employment service; Henry P. Avery, chief of the occupational analysis division of the employment service, and Clifford A. Hollister, state clearance supervisor of the the employment service.

15 SOUTH SIDE CHILDREN FORM RHYTHM BAND

Instruments Inexpensive; Plan Concert Nov. 29.

Music is hardly a matter of expensive equipment, according to the experience of 15 south side children at the South Chicago Community center, 9135 Brandon avenue. Instruments for the rhythm band which they recently organized cost a total of $6.

Most of the instruments are of the percussion variety. They include clogs, tambourines, cymbals, triangles, castanets, bazoos, and a xylophone. Mrs. Otella Bouché McCord, music and drama director at the center, organized the band which rehearses on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Rehearse Twice Weekly.

After tryouts several weeks ago 15 children were chosen for the band. Rehearsals are held on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Children who are members of the band are of Mexican and Slavic descent. The first concert of the band will be given at a program at the center Sunday, Nov. 29. They also will play during the Christmas season at various programs at the center.

Alice Orozco will direct the band when it is completely organized. So far they have mastered "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "Yankee Doodle," "The Bells of St. Mary's," which is principally played by the bazoo section; "Down the Street," and "Jingle Bells." They are learning "Home on the Range" and "When Santa Claus Comes." Mrs. McCord plans to add other instruments, including toy cornets and washboards.

Other Music Groups.

Members of the band also sing and take piano instruction and dramatics. Other phases of the music program at the center include a Mexican women's chorus; the Othello club, a glee club of women from 19 to 30 years old which has representatives of 11 nationalities, and the Junior Girls' Glee club, composed of girls from 10 to 14 years old. There was a men's glee club, but with one exception, all members are now in the armed forces.

DR. B. I. BELL TO OPEN TEACHING MISSION IN PARISH ON SOUTH SIDE

Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell of Providence, R. I., today will begin a six day teaching mission at Christ church, 65th street and Woodlawn avenue. A former Chicagoan, he once served as assistant rector of the south side parish. Dr. Bell was ordained in 1910 after being graduated from the University of Chicago in 1907. He has written more than 15 books on theological and social subjects and is a contributor to magazines. At one time he was a professor of religion at Columbia university. The services will be held nightly beginning at 8 o'clock.

EXPECT HUNDRED FOR CHILD CARE TRAINING CLASS

Volunteer OCD Planning to Aid Mothers.

Classes to train volunteers for work in child care centers will begin at 9 o'clock Wednesday in Ida Noyes hall at the University of Chicago.

The court is sponsored by the Volunteer Office of Civilian Defense and Council of Social Agencies.

These classes, held over the city, are designed to meet the child care problem brought about by an increasing number of women being drawn into industry. Trainees will work in established centers and new nursery schools which are planned for the south side within the next few months.

Course at U. of C.

Applications to enroll in the course are being accepted at the Volunteer Office of civilian Defense and the Council of Social Agencies, 111 West Jackson boulevard. The course at the University of Chicago will be under the direction of Dr. Cyril Houle. Officials expect approximately 100 in the first course. Others will be trained as the need increases.

The course will include 18 hours of lectures which will be followed by 54 hours of supervised participation in the care of children in day nurseries and nursery schools. After the volunteers have completed their training they will be placed in nursery schools, in many cases the schools at which they received their practice training.

Work Six Hours.

Classes will meet from 9 o'clock to noon on Wednesdays and Fridays. There is no expense in taking the course but volunteers must pledge to give a minimum of six hours of work a week and one hour of conference in child care centers. Edna Dean Baker is in charge of the training committee, which includes representatives from the University of Chicago, Chicago Teachers college, St. Xavier's college, DePaul university, Northwestern university, National College of Education, Graduate Teachers college of Winnetka, and of the public schools of Cook county, Winnetka, and Glencoe, the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund, and the Child Protection program of the WPA.

In addition to classes at the University of Chicago the course will be given at the following centers: Volunteer office of Civilian Defense and the Council of Social Agencies, 111 West Jackson boulevard; National college of Education, Evanston; and Community house, Winnetka.

AIR MORE GOOD MUSIC THAN EVER FOR CHICAGOLAND

Added Classical Programs on Local Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A search thru the program schedules of Chicago stations and the national networks reveals that more good music than ever, particularly in symphonic, opera, operetta, and concert fields, is available to Chicagoland listeners this season.

Three outstanding symphony orchestras broadcast concerts each week. The Metropolitan opera will be back on the Blue network, starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 28. WLS will be the outlet here. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is heard from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Fridays on Mutual [W-G-N is not an outlet].

The NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Arturo Toscanini, broadcasts over WMAQ-NBC from 4 to 5 p. m. Sundays. The New York Philharmonic Symphony series is aired over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. The Theater of the Air operettas are broadcast regularly from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and Mutual.

The last year has brought several added transcribed or recorded programs featuring classical music on Chicago stations.

8:00-9 p. m.—W-G-N—Theater of the Air operettas, starring Marion Claire with guest male singers.

Besides these there are many other programs in which both classical works and popular compositions are presented. Ralph Ginsburgh's concert ensemble is heard numerous times thruout the week on W-G-N. And for those who have frequency modulation receivers numerous high fidelity FM programs are available on the three Chicago stations.

SALUTE NILES HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' HOUR

Niles Township High school in Skokie will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. The program was transcribed at the school last Wednesday.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, youthful principal of Niles, will tell what the student body is doing in the war effort. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune editorial staff, master of ceremonies on the program.

The Niles choir, under the direction of Clara A. Klaus, will sing two numbers, "Rain and Water" by Fox, and "Pledge to the Flag" by Malotte. The student body of 1,000 will join the choir in singing the school song, "Gold and Blue," composed by C. W. Collins.

Two more high school students will be added to the program's Roll of Honor: Willard James Stockfish of Niles Township High and John Leon Iltis of Madison, Wis.

Bob Jellison and Beryl Vaughan will be back on the program in the rôles of Jimmy and Jerry. Jane Anderson provides piano accompaniment on the program and Holland Engle is the announcer.

La Marre on Victory Show.

George La Marre, former middleweight champion in the United States marines, will be interviewed on the "Victory Is Our Business" program on W-G-N from 12:30 to 12:45 p. m. today. He is a subassembler of navy engines at the General Motors electromotive plant here.

CHICAGO AREA'S DOGS OF WAR GO OFF TO BATTLE

Alert, Aggressive Canine Warriors Recruited.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

From every Chicagoland neighborhood the dogs of war are going to battle. Since Babylon dogs have joined their masters in struggle, but the modern war dog is different from any of his ancestors.

Unlike the dogs of Gaul, which were clad in armor and spiked collars for attacks enemy dogs and soldiers, the modern American war dog usually has a background of friendly companionship with the children of its neighborhood. The four-footed enlistees are almost uniformly alert, aggressive, intelligent, and friendly. Under army supervision they will retain their basic personalities, but be trained to use their keen senses to detect intruders while serving as sentry aids and in other capacities.

Volunteers Do Work.

The task of recruiting dogs for army service has been given to Dogs for Defense, a new material organization of volunteer dog owners and trainers which already has gained the confidence of the army and that of the public.

The Chicago office of Dogs for Defense, 228 North La Salle street, is receiving applications from patriotic dog owners from every section of the Chicago area each day. These dog owners are offering their pets to the army without pay and with the knowledge that the dogs may never be returned.

Gerald Murphy, 801 Harlem avenue, Glenview, regional director of Dogs for Defense, has the aid of more than 40 local breeders and trainers who serve as inspectors to test all dogs offered for service. Other voluntary helpers include veterinarians serving under the chairmanship of Dr. W. A. Young, 639 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, and members of the Dogs for Defense speakers bureau headed by Mrs. Tanyah Corday, 6014 North Broadway, Chicago.

Eager to List More.

Dogs for Defense is eager to list dogs of many types for army use. As dogs are offered, Dogs for Defense sends the owners an application blank on which is listed the canine's breed, size, age, sex, physical condition, traits, and other data. The army wants no dogs under 1 year old or over 5 years old.

The breeds already sent from Chicago have backgrounds of useful service to their masters: Collies and German shepherds for herding stock, Dobermanns, Dalmatians, and boxers for guard duty and airedales for vermin destruction. As the supply of these breeds diminishes the army will turn to other adaptable breeds.

Two Main Objectives.

The main objectives of the Chicago office of Dogs for Defense are twofold: Most important is that of recruiting the right dogs for the army and being organized to the degree that the required number of dogs can be shipped as soon as the army requests them; the second obective is that of gaining enough public support to maintain the service. Like the Red Cross, Dogs for Defense is given no subsidy by the army or the government. Civic groups wishing speakers on this subject may write to Dogs for Defense, room 1660, 228 North La Salle street.

List District Recruits.

Among the 60 dogs already donated to the army thru Dogs for Defense are these from residents of the south section of Chicago:

Doberman pinscher, William R. Allen, 4170 Drexel boulevard; Doberman pinscher, Mrs. L. Johnson, 2247 East 75th street; collie, Mrs. John Cooper, 941 East 52d street; German shepherd, J. H. Margulis, 8427 Crandon avenue; German shepherd, Mrs. J. F. McGillivray, 7637 Ridgeland avenue; Doberman pinscher, Leo L. Balensi, 5408 University avenue; German shepherd, Julius Moses, 2448 East 75th street; German shepherd, Maude Weil, Chicago Beach hotel.

AQUINAS SCHOOL MOTHERS' CLUB TO SEE DRAMA

Members of the Aquinas High School Mother's club will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday at the school, 72d street and Clyde avenue. The program will include a dramatic sketch by the junior class under direction of Louise Dwyer French. Mrs. Kenneth E. Wolcott, junior vice president, will be hostess, assisted by Mrs. Walter Dunmore, Mrs. Anthony O'Gallagher, Mrs. William J. La Voie, and Mrs. Charles Henricks. Mrs. Edward J. Donnellan is president.

Kathleen Dunn Weds Lieutenant

Miss Kathleen Jane Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Dunn of 7717 Clyde avenue, was married recently to Lieut. Louis F. Riegel Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Riegel of Beaumont, Tex. The bride was graduated from St. Mary's of Notre Dame and Lieut. Riegel was graduated from Notre Dame university. They are making their home at Baltimore, Md., where Lieut. Riegel is stationed at an ordnance school.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 9

Bulk planting should be completed as soon as possible before severe freezing weather. Many bulbs were received from the growers late, which makes it imperative that they be procured and planted. It is not too late to pot up a good calla lily. Its tropical foliage is an asset to any window. Give it full sun and copious watering when once established.

Pots of crocus, with the corms placed close together, flower readily and their showy flowers are desirable. The different narcissi are all excellent for pot culture and some few, such as King Alfred, Sir Watkins, Emperor, and Poeticus are fine for naturalizing outdoors.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

There still is time to prepare some flowering plants for display at Christmas. Keep the poinsettias growing by feeding and plenty of water with a warm location. Bulbs like the narcissus paperwhite can be started now for Christmas; begonias can be purchased in a well developed state and will prove attractive.

All foliage plants, such as coleus, screw pine [variegated], should be carefully watched and kept in the best condition by careful watering and given plenty of light.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

Plants of poison ivy can be moved without harm at this season. Those who are susceptible should wear gloves. Dig out all the roots and destroy. The lawn can be given a top dressing at this time by simply spreading a quarter inch layer of rich compost over it to fill depressions.

Thursday, Nov. 12

Vines can be cleaned up at this time and old diseased wood removed. Some pruning can be done: The hydrangea P. G. should be cut back to three or four buds to each shoot. The dwarf spireas, like the S. Anthony Waterer, should be severely cut back, halfway to almost to the ground, and it will start up again in springtime.

Cut out the old stems of the philadelphus or mock orange, for the wood made this season will produce the flowers next spring. The Rose of Sharon [Hibiscus syriacus] can be trimmed to shape.

Friday, Nov. 13

Try sowing a row of sweet peas now. The seed must not grow sufficiently to penetrate the surface or the young growths will freeze. The seeds may germinate but remain in that condition until spring, when the plants flower much earlier than if spring sown. They should be given some protection.

Saturday, Nov. 14

Keep chrysanthemum plants well watered, for they are closely rooted and require plenty of water. All flowering plants require the same attention. If they can be placed in a cool room during the night they will last longer.

Grape vines can be pruned now and material for cuttings collected. Grape cuttings should be tied in bundles and buried in sand in a cool basement and planted out in spring. Cuttings of other suitable shrubs can also be collected.

[Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.]

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

MRS. RUDOLPH VERGOTH, who as Marjorie Ennis, toured England and France as a dancer with the Abbott troupe, returned home Friday with a new son, Nicholas. He was born last week at Little Company of Mary hospital, and named after her father, Nicholas Ennis, 7300 South Shore drive.

Among the sculpture work on exhibit in the Club Woman's bureau at Mandel brothers are 11 pieces by Katherine Eckstein. She is, in private life, Mrs. David Goldberg of the Shoreland hotel.

FLORENCE SRMAK, 3059 South Springfield avenue, 9 year old pupil at the Gary elementary school, 3000 South Ridgeway avenue, has sold an article to a national magazine for $100. His subject was "The In-Between Age," and dealt with the problems of a young lady who is making the psychological shift from dolls to boy friends. She also wrote the speech of the school's mayor, Joseph Karpalek, 2808 South Hamlin avenue, when he presented a flag to the army aviation cadet examining board. When the school learned that the officials were using a small flag, they turned over the money from their scrap drive and purchased the new flag and standard. The Gary school has been designated as leader in the scrap drive by the board of education.

WHEN Martin P. O'Connell, 9237 Bishop street, accepted the appointment of letter carrier at the main postoffice, he hoped the job would prove steady. He retired last week at the age of 65, after 40 years and four months' service. "It really did prove permanent," he said. His last assignment was as a clerk at the Chicago Lawn station.

LOCATIONS, NEW RATIONING BOARD MEMBERS SHOWN

Mulcahy Appoints 9 Men on South Side.

The appointment of nine additional members of war price and rationing boards on the south side of the city was announced last week by Michael F. Mulcahy, area rationing administrator. The membership of all the south side boards is now complete, altho additional men may be appointed if needed in future rationing programs, Mulcahy said.

Each ward has a rationing board of from three to six men who administer the rationing of fuel oil, bicycles, automobiles, tires and tubes, sugar, and typewriters. They also will handle the gasoline rationing program and any future rationing of other commodities.

Two in First Ward.

The locations of boards serving south side wards and the names of new members are:

First ward, 228 North La Salle street, Kenneth W. Moore, 69 West Washington street, and William A. Lee, 1427 Clinton place, River Forest; 2d ward, 3443 South Indiana avenue; 3d ward, 5056 South State street; 4th ward, 1009 East 47th street, Mervin Michaelis, 7300 South Bennett avenue; 5th ward, 6219 South Cottage Grove avenue, Milton Fish of 5555 Everett avenue; Frank Rodgers of 5466 Woodlawn avenue, and Virgil Cooke, 70 East 49th street.

Biety, Sorocco Named.

JUNIORS OF PARK MANOR TO FETE DISTRICT HEADS

Federation night will be observed by members of the Park Manor Junior Woman's club at 8 o'clock Tuesday at the Park Manor Congregational church, 7000 South Park avenue. Guests will include officers of the 2d district federation.

Several pantomimes, directed and narrated by Mrs. W. K. Hellenbrand, 6810 South Park avenue, will be presented by the following members: Miss Grace Minot, 7218 Vernon avenue; Mrs. L. A. Strauss, 9628 Hamilton avenue; Mrs. J. E. Folks, 7200 Greenwood avenue, and Mrs. J. P. Sundeen, 7366 South Park avenue.

Door hostesses will be Mrs. Sundeen and Mrs. B. A. Dixber, 8034 Vernon avenue, both past presidents. Mrs. D. K. Stephens, president, will introduce 2d district officers. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. F. W. Brinkman, Mrs. F. H. Mathews, Mrs. June Glickley, Mrs. R. F. Kruse, and Mrs. Folks. A second part of the program will be selections by the club toy band, which is directed by Mrs. Juliet Scholz.

Woodlawn Woman's Junior Club.

Mrs. Seymour Shane will speak on "Services to the Armed Forces" at a meeting of the Woodlawn Woman's Junior club at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. A. Brown, 7110 Clyde avenue. Members of the club and their friends will have a dinner and home demonstration at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue, at 6:30 o'clock Friday, Nov. 20. OFFER SECOND OF 'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' SERIES

Dramas Stress Freedom of the Press.

The second in the dramatic series, "Mightier than the Sword," based on the experiences of Stanley Johnston, famous CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, will be broadcast over W-G-N from 2:30 to 3 p. m. today. The central theme of these Sunday presentations is the American doctrine of the freedom of the press.

Johnston, whose stories of the battle of the Coral sea and the sinking of the Lexington have made history, will join in the broadcast.

Today's episode will unfold the story of Johnston's experiences aboard a decoy fishing boat used to pioneer a new transport route and to determine whether German submarines were patroling the proposed route. Johnston and his crew discover a U-boat cruising in the area and warn merchant and passenger ships. The skipper of a neutral refugee ship ignores the warning, having been duped by propaganda and exaggerated newspaper reports. His vessel is attacked and sunk.

In summarizing this narrative Johnston will emphasize the need for a free American press in which the public can place implicit trust. He will explain the need of printing factual news promptly, providing it does not interfere with military actions.

An all-star Chicago radio cast will provide dramatic background for the Johnston narration. The actors: Charles Penman, Sid Ellstrom, Forrest Lewis, Marvin Mueller, Murray Forbes, Hope Summers, Laurette Fillbrandt, Fred Howard, and Carl Kroenke.

Musical background will be provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Robert Trendler. Jack LaFrande is the writer.

South Side Block to Raise Service Flag of 60 Stars

A service flag carrying 60 stars, representing 57 men and three women in the armed forces, will be dedicated today by residents of the block bounded by Woodlawn and Lake Park avenues, 45th place and 46th street. The ceremonies will take place at 3 o'clock at Woodlawn and Lake avenues. H. P. Barker, acting commander of the Oakland-Kenwood American Legion post, will be in charge of the program.

Wed at Quantico

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Raymond Hester of 5221 Ellis avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Mary, to Marine Lieut. Francis J. Blanchfield. The ceremony took place in the Catholic chapel of the marine base at Quantico, Va. The bride is a graduate of Rosary college, River Forest, and Lieut. Blanchfield attended Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass.

CANTEEN CORPS WORKERS ASKED FOR RED CROSS

Volunteers are urgently needed for the Red Cross emergency canteen corps in division 2 of the OCD, Mrs. Henrique Crawford, chairman of the corps, announced. The primary purpose of the canteen corps is that of emergency mass feeding in the event of disaster. Mrs. Bernadette Cara, 11361 Calumet avenue, is captain of the corps in division 2. Applications may be made with the Red Cross headquarters, 529 South Wabash avenue, or with Mrs. Cara. Requirements for service in the corps are that the applicant be between 18 and 50 years old and has completed the Red Cross standard and advanced first aid courses, the Red Cross and the Red Cross canteen course. Both night and day workers are needed.

FARMHOUSE, 90, YEARS OLD, GETS THORO REPAIRING

Insulating Boards Add to Attractiveness.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Three miles southwest of Hinckley in De Kalb county there is a 90 year old farmhouse which has been finely repaired and insulated thruout. It is now ready for a new life, with each of its nine rooms, once drafty and dilapidated, now weather resistant and sound. The insulating boards which cover walls and ceilings have added greatly to the attractiveness of the entire house and likewise made possible definite fuel savings.

The story back of this reconstruction is interesting. The work included repair and insulation of farm buildings as well as farmhouse, and was motivated by a desire on the part of Marvin Christensen, the owner, to get the utmost out of his land and stock and work.

Mr. Christensen was assisted in his improvement program by a group of nationally known manufacturers in insulation boards.

Full details on the entire project are now available in booklet form on request. Also this same group of manufacturers are offering free plans for a number of insulated farm buildings.

Use of Insulating Board.

These plans show how insulating board can be used to provide additional strength against weather extremes and include:

[1] Stationary brooder house.

[2] Shedtype poultry house.

[3] Fruit and vegetable storage; an insulated farrowing house, and also construction details for building insulation into a dairy barn.

But now we come to the old farm house itself, built back in 1852 by a homesteading family. Some 20 years later an addition was made, and the present home has nine rooms.

Exterior Gets Paint.

The exterior has not changed much in all its 90 years, except that it has now been newly painted white, but much has happened to the interior.

The Christensens for some time occupied only the four rooms on the first floor, leaving the five on the second floor untouched except for a single bedroom used in emergencies. The second story was cold and drafty in winter and hot in summer, and badly in need of repair and renovation.

Now since the improvement there are seven cheerful, well insulated rooms in the house, and a young son has a room, a bright little nursery all his own.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen made a careful survey of the house before deciding on what repairs to make. How the change was accomplished will be told in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

'FORTUNE TELLER' ON THEATER OF AIR ON SATURDAY

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire, soprano, Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will be cast in the singing rôle of Musette, a gypsy fortune teller. Mr. Thomas will portray the rôle of Sandor, Musette's sweetheart, while Baggiore will be cast as Capt. Ladislas, a young soldier who is in love with Irma, a ballet student, who is a double for Musette.

The plot is built around the likeness of Irma and Musette whose suitors are confused by their identities. Many of Herbert's most beautiful tunes, taken from this operetta, will be heard. These include "The Song of the Gypsies," "Romany Trail," "Gypsy Love Song" and "Song of Romany."

Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus led by Robert Trendler. The program will be produced by Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production.

A full dramatic cast will portray the speaking rôles of the operetta and Marvin Mueller will be narrator.

District School Leader Is St. Felicitas Speaker

Douglas F. Van Bramer, district superintendent of schools, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Saint Felicitas Mothers' club Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The subject will be "Your Child's Equipment and its Possibilities."

NEGROES TO HEAR FIVE POINT PLAN TO BENEFIT RACE

Anti-Lynch Law, Ration Questions Raised.

Postelection plans of Negroes will be outlined at a mass meeting at 3 o'clock today at Olivet Baptist church, 3100 South Park way. The meeting is sponsored by the National Negro council, of which Edgar G. Brown is director.

Speakers, in addition to Brown, will include the Rev. J. H. Jackson, pastor of the church; Dr. H. B. Hawkins, president of the Chicago Baptist conference; the Rev. W. A. Griffin, the Rev. A. J. Carey Jr., and the Rev. Joseph Evans. There are 500,000 Negroes in Illinois and 13,000,000 in the nation.

Five Points Named.

The five point program, as outlined by Brown, includes a request for representation for Negroes on the 8,000 OPA rationing boards thruout the nation and, specifically, in the 4th, 5th, 6th, 14th, 16th, 19th, 20th, 28th, 42d, and 43d wards in the city. The program also asks for lower rents, requesting that the OPA ceiling be set at the January, 1941, level, as has been done in Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, O., and Birmingham, Ala., instead of the level of March 1, 1942, now the standard here.

Immediate construction of $10,000,000 of war housing units from the $600,000,000 federal appropriations authorized for Chicago and New York City will be asked. Brown said it was imperative that this point of the program be carried out if epidemics of disease and crime were forestalled.

Ask Anti-Lynch Law.

The 4th point of the program proposes that labor unions which bar Negroes to membership be prohibited the right of collective bargaining. This point also asks the extension of the social security law and provision for old age pensions for ministers, domestics, and farm laborers.

The final point urges public demand to congress for the immediate passage of the anti-lynching bill which is sponsored by Rep. U. S. Guyer [Kas.]. The signatures of 218 members of the house are required to remove the measure from further consideration of the judiciary committee and to assure it of a vote before the expiration of the present session of congress.

OPERA SINGERS IN ST. MARK EVENT TOMORROW NIGHT

Several opera singers now appearing at the Civic Opera house will feature the music appreciation program to be given tomorrow night under auspices of the St. Mark Methodist church.

Artists scheduled to appear are Frankie Fambro, Helen Penn, Napoleon Reed, William Franklin, Ethel Minns-Lucas, Oland Gaston, who won first prize at the annual music festival of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and the Henrietta Douglas string ensemble.

The program will be held in the auditorium of the Wendell Phillips High school and the public is invited. The Rev. M. W. Clair Jr. is pastor of the church.

Faulkner School Marks American Education Week

The Faulkner school will observe American Education week starting tomorrow with a series of daily talks centered around the theme "Education for Free Men," according to an announcement by Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, the principal. Tomorrow Dr. F. C. B. Belliss will speak on "Serving Wartime Needs"; on Tuesday Miss Elvera Skubic will discuss "Building Strong Bodies"; Wednesday Dr. Alfred L. Wilson will talk on "Developing Loyal Citizens"; Thursday Dr. Louis L. Mann will discuss "What Then Is Education?"; and on Friday Dr. William T. Travis will speak on "Establishing Sturdy Character."

Drexel Park Church Plans Armistice Rites Tonight

At the 11 o'clock morning service today at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, the Rev. Clinton C. Cox will speak on "Giving for Show, by Custom or Habit."

At 8 p. m. in the course of an Armistice Sunday observance, Dr. Cox will address a church group on the subject, "An Enjoyed Life or an Invested Life; Which?"

At the evening service Dr. Cox will be assisted by officers of the American Legion and the Ladies auxiliary. The vested choir will sing.

Woman's City Club.

Gage Park community branch of the Woman's City club will convene Wednesday, Nov. 18 at the Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue. A display of Christmas cookery will be shown.

Half Century Together

[Hoffman Photos.]

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ball, 2514 East 73d street, who have lived in Chicago almost 50 years, recently observed their golden wedding. Until two years ago, when he retired, Mr. Ball was a park district engineer. He helped lay out the Outer drive and Garfield park conservatory. He came to Chicago in 1893 as engineer on the drainage canal after work on American and Canadian railroads. He and Mrs. Ball were married in Prince Edward Island Oct. 26, 1892. Mr. Ball was born at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and Mrs. Ball was born at St. John's, Newfoundland. Both are 77 years old. There are five children: George M. Ball, 545 East 80th street; Mrs. Alice Singer, San Diego, Cal.; Mrs. Estelle Kuhl, Pasadena, Cal.; Russell C. Ball, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Cecil E. Ball, 8549 Rhodes avenue.

TUSKEGEE CLUB OF CHICAGO AIDS NEGRO AIR FIELD

Col. Robinson.

Much of the work in getting the airport at Tuskegee, Ala., at which the 99th pursuit squadron, first all-Negro air unit, was trained, was done by the Chicago Tuskegee club, according to Daniel J. Faulkner, publicity director of the club. They began their campaign in early 1940 at the request of G. L. Washington, director of mechanical industries at Tuskegee Institute. Percy R. Hines, then president, appointed Faulkner head of an airport committee, with Col. John C. Robinson, Negro flyer and later president of the club, as advisor. Other members were Dr. G. N. Adamson and Miss E. A. Clemmons. This committee obtained Brig. Gen. S. C. Dickerson, former commander of the 8th regiment, to head a citizen's committee composed of Claude A. Barnett, William Sewell, Faulkner, Dr. Roscoe C. Giles, Col. Lewis E. Johnson, Dr. M. O. Bousfield; Jeanet H. Waterford, first Negro woman in Chicago to buy a plane; Mrs. Maude R. George, John V. Clinnin, and Col. Robinson. Faulkner said this committee publicized the need of an airport and added that their efforts did much in obtaining an air unit for the Negroes.

CHICAGO KIN SEE SONS IN TRIBUNE WAR AREA PHOTOS

Pvt. Frame.

Two Chicago families have reported that they recently recognized their sons in pictures of the Solomon Islands battle area which were published in THE TRIBUNE. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Frame, 7208 Langley avenue, reported they recognized their son, Pvt. William J. Frame, 21, a marine, in a picture showing marines taking communion. A graduate of Parker High school, he enlisted last January. Mrs. George Wind, 6418 Justine avenue, recently received a letter from her brother, Pvt. Cyril M. Jenca, confirming their belief that he was in a picture in THE TRIBUNE in September. The picture showed American soldiers in New Caledonia reading a copy of THE TRIBUNE. He has six sisters and was graduated from Austin High school.

Auxiliary of Dorothy Kahn Club to Plan Annual Party

BIG SCRAP ROUNDUP ARMISTICE DAY

SERVICE MEN FLOOD LAWYERS WITH PROBLEMS

500 Attorneys Give Free Advice.

BY JOHN WILHELM.

Possibility of military pay allotments has prompted a surprisingly large number of Chicago women to recall that somewhere they have a long forgotten spouse—and he might be in the army. If so, they are entitled to a monthly stipend.

Dragging their skeletons from the closet is one of the many duties encountered by the Chicago Bar association in fulfilling their offer of free legal aid to servicemen and dependents of servicemen.

"We receive about 75 telephone calls a day, plus as many letters, from service men and their families who are in some legal tangle," Charles E. Lind, bar association assistant executive secretary, relates. "Five hundred local attorneys have volunteered their services, and we refer the cases to them thru a military committee headed by Charles F. Hough."

Must Be in Service.

"Any man desiring to have legal help on problems arising from entrance into the armed forces can write to the military committee, Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street, Chicago. However, he must actually be in service before we can help him. Also, we do not touch divorce cases nor are we a collection agency. Aside from those exceptions, we will attempt to untangle anything presented.

"Pay allotment is the most common problem now. Many women have been shocked to find some stranger has already applied for a share of her husband's army pay. If she wishes to press her claim, she has to establish bigamy."

Each Case Stands Alone.

Typical of the problems that are brought to Lind's committee are the following, which, Lind notes have been changed to avoid any personal identification. He also cautions that no person should assume that an apparent similarity between cases can be used in applying the determination of one case to a second. It usually doesn't work that way.

Case A was the problem of the living room suite. A few weeks after having purchased furnishings for his home, a young married man received a notice he would be dratfed in 30 days. His wife didn't want to live alone in a large house. If they relinquished the rented home, storage plus payments would wreck the couple's lowered budget.

An attorney from Lind's bureau advised the furniture company that payments could be suspended for the duration, suggested instead they take the furniture back and after the war give the couple full credit on new furniture. This was done.

His Own Beneficiary.

Case B was a marine's insurance. The young man lost his life while effecting a landing on a Pacific isle. The boy's mother received notice of his death, but no word was received about his government insurance.

The attorney assigned by the bar association committee reached the proper Washington authorities, found the marine had made a error in filing out his enlistment papers. He had made himself his own beneficiary. By drawing up proper affidavits, the attorney secured the proper compensation for the mother.

Case C was the service man that wished to make his pay allotment to his minor child, but not to his wife. The child was staying with his parents. He consulted the association attorney and was assured that he could do so.

Rents Mortgaged Home.

A man going into the army, Case D in Lind's typical list, didn't see how he could continue payments on his mortgaged home. As he had no children, the attorneys arranged for him to rent the home for the duration and have the payments made from the rent. In other cases where men are paying for their home, payments have been suspended until after the war. They will be resumed at that time with little or no penalty, Lind said.

Case E concerned a free lance taxicab driver who had been inducted into the army. He wrote the association, saying that while he had assigned his license and cab number to his brother-in-law, a former partner of his was also using the same permit without authority. An association attorney determined the status of the permit, found it to be nontransferable.

Uncovering marriages of the multiple variety is only one of a series of legal trends resulting from the selective service program. When young men were called, the problem was half-paid-for autos. When older men were called the usual question was settling mortgages. Now the dependent's allotments it's a question of who gets what from the soldier's pay envelope.

Most Need Common Sense.

"Each man inducted into the army is advised that we can furnish him with free legal advice on any problem traceable to his military service," Lind explains. "On his induction papers a notice tells him who we are and how to get in touch with us. As a result we have a steady stream of jumbled affairs being brought to our attention for solution."

Calumet High School Girls Remember the Boys in American Uniforms

The packages in the hands of these Calumet High school students will go to the school's 200 alumni in the country's armed forces. The young women are members of the Calumet Girls' Service league, which devotes itself to the welfare of Calumet's fighting men. Sixty-five of the packages have already been mailed to soldiers, sailors and marines on overseas duty. The sailor is Bob Scott, a Calumet alumnus, home on furlough. He inspected and approved the packages, but the girls are making him wait until Christmas for his. (Story on page 2.)

Mary Ann Gilbert, Gertrude Donahue, and Jean Clark are active members of the service league. Besides the items displayed here, they packed crossword puzzles, with the answers pasted on the back. It's all right with them if the boys cheat a bit.

The packing of the boxes was accomplished by members of the league during free periods, shortened lunch hours, and after school. These workers are Ann Breen, Marie Gilmore, and Eileen Casey.

Each boy's name was checked as the packages were readied for mailing. This determined that no one was left out. Dorothy Harmon, Gladys Harran, and Mary Clare O'Connor devoted most of their free time to this procedure.

The funds for the purchase of presents for Calumet's soldiers came from several sources, but the most lucrative of them was the school's scrap. This car, owned by a group of students, swelled the fund considerably. From left to right are Bill Durant, Antoinette Wood, Carl Lam, and Ernie Lee. Lam, a Chinese, was one of the largest single contributors.

2 Brothers Fight Japs Side by Side

The Lambert brothers, Ray P. and Ben III., are together in war as they were in peace. They're fighting side by side in the Solomons, members of the gallant marines defending the vital Guadalcanal island. In peace they were together at 12117 Princeton avenue, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lambert Jr.

Ray P. Lambert.

Ray, 24, is a sergeant in the marine corps. Before his induction a year ago he worked in the Pullman shops. His father is now rounding out his 45th year as a Pullman employé. Ben is 28 and a private first class. He's been in the marines six months, and before that worked at the Riverdale works of the Acme Steel company.

"Getting Fat as a Hog."

Ben is the more prolific letter writer. In a note penciled Sept. 22 he wrote gaily that he was "still going strong, getting fat as a hog." He wrote the note, he said, on some Japanese stationery he picked up in his travels around the island, and inclosed some Japanese money so the folks back home could see what it looked like.

"I live," he said, "with three other fellows in a tent in the jungle. We have parrots and 3 foot lizards to keep us company at night. We are dug in very well and the only thing that can hit us is a direct hit. So don't worry about the marines on the Solomons."

Hard Tack Hard on Teeth.

He said that he's lost five of his fillings from eating hard tack. "We have a dentist here, tho, that is the best," he added, "and he has done a better job than they had before."

The boys on the island were greatly surprised that the St. Louis Cardinals won the world series, Ben said. He added that some of the boys might be home for Christmas, but not him, because he hadn't been in long enough. He closed with the report that a Jap bomber had been shot down on the field. "The Jap ships are made like toys," he said.

SOUTHWEST SIDE SALVAGE TO AID WORLD WAR II.

Legion Honors Hero Dead Wednesday.

The 24th anniversary of the armistice that ended World War I. will be observed Wednesday. A nation at war in a world at war will pause briefly to pay tribute to the soldier dead of World Wars I. and II., and to the men who have lived to fight again, in the first wartime observance of the 1918 armistice.

Legion posts thruout southwest Chicago will mark the occasion with taps and volleys. The day's thoughts, then, will focus on the living, as the greatest scrap roundup in the city's history is staged. The 108 salvage chairmen thruout the city, aided by the entire civilian defense personnel of 350,000, are seeking to complete collection of loose scrap from the city's homes and garages. The scrap is needed to keep the furnaces in blast and the Bessemers in blow in the nation's steel mills.

Citizens are being asked, as an Armistice day contribution, to place all scrap on street corners or on the curbstones fronting their homes Tuesday evening for Armistice day collection. Boy Scouts, civilian defense personnel, the newspapers and movies, are carrying the message. A total of 1,400 trucks will cover the city's 18,000 blocks.

Groups Donate Trucks.

For collection purposes, the blocks have been zoned into 892 sections, with a truck assigned to each section. The others will stand by to answer complaint or emergency calls. The trucks have been donated for the drive by the city, trucking, and delivery groups, newspapers, and other organizations. They will distribute the scrap to 26 large scrap dealers thruout the city. The funds from the sale will go to the Chicago Service Men's centers.

The services of the hod carriers, teamsters, coal drivers, flat janitors, boilermakers, and other AFL, CIO, and railroad brotherhood affiliates also are being donated. Civilian defense, division 3, encompassing 20 communities in southwest Chicago, is participating under leadership of Salvage Chairman John E. Egan, 5908 South Kedzie avenue. Among his workers are William Lamb, Mrs. Stanley Benben, Dan Farrell, Thomas Kotlarski, Mrs. Frank L. Kesler, and R. T. Cupiss.

Legion Taking Part.

The Legion, too, is participating in the collection. In addition, Southtown chapter, Disabled Veterans of World War I. and II., will gather in memory of departed comrades at a smorgasbord tonight at Lundquist hall, 61st and Morgan streets. The 79 south side members will be on hand, and so, too, will the post's first disabled veteran of World War II. He is Sergt. Casimir Beres, 10811 Sangamon street, who received an honorable discharge for disability after 21 months and 15 days' service in the army. Sergt. Beres is 23.

The commander of the post is Fred E. Bushnell, 7745 South Marshfield avenue, who was wounded in France. The post was founded in 1933 by Dr. Fred Jeths, who also was wounded in action in France.

Square post, American Legion, one of the largest in the state, will observe Armistice day Wednesday evening at post headquarters, 70th and Elizabeth streets. The post has 832 members, and 50 fathers and sons now in service. Clinton Dillon is the commander.

Rites at Military Academy.

At 2:15 o'clock today Beverly Hills post, American Legion, will participate in armistice ceremonies at Abells field, Morgan Park Military academy. The academy's cadets, the Morgan Park Woman's club, Morgan Park High school ROTC and drum and bugle corps will participate. Wednesday the post will gather at 95th street and Ashland avenue to sound taps. This is an annual practice. Ralph W. Gruenwald, 11333 Longwood drive, is commander. The post has 415 members.

The Paul Schmidt and Three Links posts, American Legion, will fire an armistice salute at 11 o'clock Wednesday at 63d street and Ashland avenue. Hugh B. Moran, 3919 West 64th place, heads Schmidt post. The commander of Three Links is Fred C. Resner, 1446 West 73d street.

Anniversary of Post.

Armistice day and the 10th anniversary of Darius Girenas post, American Legion, will be observed today with patriotic ceremonies and a party at 4416 South Western avenue. Joseph A. Kibort, 6436 Blackstone avenue, is commander. Leroy McCullough post, American Legion, joined by another American Legion unit, O'Donnell Eddy, and Auburn Park post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will stage a parade and program, terminating at 79th and Halsted streets, at 11 o'clock Wednesday. Frank Shannon is the commander of McCullough post. The ROTC and band from Calumet High school will participate, too.

Yarmo Devere post, American Legion, will hold services today at 11 o'clock at Roosevelt road and Kedzie avenue. Taps and volleys will be sounded. Harry Dicker is commander.

CALUMET GIRLS' LEAGUE AID TO MEN IN SERVICE

Write to School Alumni, Send Yule Boxes.

BY JEANNE McCARTHY.

Last May, Mary Ann Gilbert, 9135 Laflin street, a Calumet High school student, decided it might be a good idea to form a club which would write and send school papers to Calumet alumni in service. She mentioned it to some of the other girls, and they received the suggestion enthusiastically. They mentioned it then to Principal Glenn C. Worst, who said it would be all right with him if a petition were presented requesting approval.

In less than a half day, 115 names were signed to the petition and Mr. Worst gave his approval. Thus, the Calumet Girls' Service league was formed. Mary Ann is president; Jean Clark, 8801 Bishop street, vice president; Marie Gilmore, 1054 West 81st street, treasurer, nad Gertrude Donahue, 8052 Elizabeth street, secretary.

Has Limited Membership.

The league has 150 members. Membership is limited to third and fourth year girls with a G average and good reputation. Immediately after the organization, the league began the collection of Calumet soldiers' addresses. Last June it had 100. Now it has 200.

Each member of the club has adopted one or more men, to whom she writes regularly. Mary Ann said the first letters the girls write usually deal with such essential information as the man's marital status. "It's more fun to write to a single man," she explained. They sometimes exchange pictures, and when the boys come home on furlough they usually look up the girls to whom they have been writing. Frequently, too, they take them to movies, and one man took the girl home to meet his mother. Mrs. Frances R. Donovan, English teacher at Calumet for 19 years and sponsor of the league, pointed out that is wasn't formed to promote romances. "If any develop, it's all right, tho," she said.

Christmas Project Large.

The club's largest project to date has been the packaging of Christmas gifts for the 200 Calumet soldiers. They go back as far as the class of 1912. Some of them, too, are boys who left last year to enlist.

The packages included mystery books, stationery and envelopes, four packages of cigarets, three packages of gum, shoe laces, combs, razor blades, pencils, caramels, hard candies, shaving cream, wash cloths, soap, tooth powder and crossword puzzles. The puzzles were clipped from newspapers, and the answers pasted on the back in the event the boys wish to cheat.

The total of this project was $450. The league raised money thru initiation and monthly dues fees, and a Buddy button day which netted $150. The school paper and year book each contributed $100, and the largest donations came from the school's scrap drive. Edmund B. Daly, science teacher, heads it. It has netted the league more than $300, already.

Overseas Gifts Mailed.

Sixty-five packages have been mailed, because these are to boys in overseas service. The rest will be sent later this month.

Among those overseas are Merle L. Anderson, Alexander C. Axell, John W. Berry, Donald A. Booth, Michael F. Brennen, Jack Brisnahan, Gail Butler, Robert L. Capman, Charles L. Cawley, William H. Cook, Albert H. Dahm, Thomas Diggins, Herbert F. Ellgstrom, Joe Fennell, Leo Formanek, Gordon V. Franke, Frank Fredericksen, James A. Fulton, Harry F. Goulding, Joseph F. Greenberg, J. J. Guselman, Robert J. Follis, Kenneth Hall, A. B. Hochgesang, J. E. Holloway, Edward Holtsburg, Warren Iffland, Edmund R. Jantz, Richard C. Johnston, Leonard R. Keane, William J. Keehn, Robert E. King, John Knol, and Alfred J. Knize.

Others are Emil Kralik, Alvin R. Lipke, John McGowan, John Lee McNamara, Robert J. Maher, Lawrence J. Mooney, Earl W. Miller, L. R. Mulcahy, Robert Nieses, King Peyton, Arnold E. Roble, Kenneth Rancine, O. J. Reamer, T. L. Roeder, Richard Ryan, J. J. Schillo, Arnold Schnitzer, Clayton Schoenstedt, Ted Sedlack, K. D. Sjogren, William L. Stowe, Lloyd Stranulbery, Carl Swanson, Roy H. Swanson, Thomas C. Trowbridge. They are in all branches of the service, scattered thruout the world. Both Schillo and Sedlack were ROTC lieutenants during their high school days.

230 BOYS ENTER ATHLETIC EVENTS AT ENGLEWOOD Y

The Englewood YMCA, 6545 South Union avenue, is conducting a 1,000 point achievement contest, open to all Y boys. More than 230 are participating.

Events in which the competitors must excell are the 50, 75, and 100 yard dashes, the 2 and 3 lap and the 4 and 5 lap potato races, standing and running broad jumps, double standing broad jump, high jump, chinning, rope climb, and medicine ball toss. CAP UNIT LOSES 20 TO U.S., BUT 100 AID AT HOME

Squadron Keeps Active at Chicago Heights.

Squadron 4, group 3 of the Illinois wing of the Civil Air patrol has lost 20 of its members to various branches of government service. The 100 members still at home meet Tuesday evenings at the American Legion hall in Chicago Heights to drill, study radio code, camouflage, navigation, and meteorology. They fly at sun up on Sundays in practice formation and carry out government missions. They speak, too, a little wistfully, of their former flying associates who have gone into more exciting branches of aerial activity.

The squadron lost its adjutant, William W. Ward, Victoria hotel, Chicago Heights. He's a civilian instructor in army aviation stationed in Florida. Franklin C. Barber, Flossmoor, took over his job as adjutant.

Three of the squadron's women flyers have gone into the war effort. Miss Gerry Truesdell, 7945 Drexel avenue, a past president of the Chicago Girls' Flying club, has gone to Georgia, where she is learning to be an instructor in the Link blind flying trainer. Miss Barbara Willis, 5629 Dorchester avenue, another squadron member, is taking the same course with her. Mrs. Florence Mall of Flossmoor is taking the course at Municipal airport here.

Several in Air Corps Training.

John De Jong, 182d street, South Holland, is an air corps cadet awaiting assignment. Don Cameron, 35 Illinois street, Chicago Heights, is also an air corps cadet awaiting assignment. Eugene Trimpe, 10th and Ashland, Chicago Heights, is a civilian instructor at McChesney field, Rockford. The civil aeronautics authorities have claimed Howard Lare, 187 West 13th street, Chicago Heights. Ray Rosenberg, Hammond, is with the army air corps in California.

William G. Bryant, 4060 Oakenwald avenue, has been commissioned a lieutenant in the air corps, and assigned as an instructor to the base at Victoria, Tex. Bud Womack, 1320 Franklin street, Chicago Heights, is a lieutenant in the navy's aviation corps. He has been assigned to Corpus Christi, Tex.

Navy aviation has claimed George Harding, 14518 Wallace street, Riverdale, too. He's assigned to South Bend, where he's a lieutenant, junior grade. Harold Urban, 14th and Western, Chicago Heights, is in California, doing coastal patrol for the army.

Instructor at Navy Pier.

Instructing on engines at Navy pier is Floyd Hefner, Flossmoor. Hefner is a technical sergeant. A Harvey member, Frank Petruszak, is in the air corps as a mechanic. One of the squadron's physicians, Dr. Thomas Bonnick, 1410 Vincennes avenue, Chicago Heights, is in service at Salt Lake City as a flight surgeon in the army air corps. Ed Muzinski is in the army, but the members haven't heard where he is stationed. John Bryant is in the air corps as a cadet. Their last report was from Ohio. Sidney Watt, another Harvey resident, is in Texas as an army mechanic. Harold Boswell, Griffith, Ind., has become associated with the American Airlines.

Walter Thielman, 1530 Sunnyside avenue, is the squadron's commander. He is president of the Midwest Aircraft sales and manager of the Chicago Heights airport, from which the members fly. Mayor Joseph Gannon of Chicago Heights is its executive officer, and Dr. Edward L. Masterton, public relations. The Civil Air patrol is a branch of the Office of Civilian Defense. Robert K. Belt is the Illinois wing commander.

Married

[H. Du Bois Photo.]

Miss Margaret Toomey, niece of Mrs. Ann Casey, 1117 West 76th street, was married recently to John William Rapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rapp, 1507 East 69th street, in St. Sabina's rectory.

B. M. T. Woman's Club.

CHICAGO AREA'S DOGS OF WAR GO OFF TO BATTLE

Alert, Aggressive Canine Warriors Recruited.

BY BEN MARKLAND.

From every Chicagoland neighborhood the dogs of war are going to battle. Since Babylon dogs have joined their masters in struggle, but the modern war dog is different from any of his ancestors.

Unlike the dogs of Gaul, which were clad in armor and spiked collars for attacks enemy dogs and soldiers, the modern American war dog usually has a background of friendly companionship with the children of its neighborhood. The four-footed enlistees are almost uniformly alert, aggressive, intelligent, and friendly. Under army supervision they will retain their basic personalities, but be trained to use their keen senses to detect intruders while serving as sentry aids and in other capacities.

Volunteers Do Work.

The task of recruiting dogs for army service has been given to Dogs for Defense, a new material organization of volunteer dog owners and trainers which already has gained the confidence of the army and that of the public.

The Chicago office of Dogs for Defense, 228 North La Salle street, is receiving applications from patriotic dog owners from every section of the Chicago area each day. These dog owners are offering their pets to the army without pay and with the knowledge that the dogs may never be returned.

Gerald Murphy, 801 Harlem avenue, Glenview, regional director of Dogs for Defense, has the aid of more than 40 local breeders and trainers who serve as inspectors to test all dogs offered for service. Other voluntary helpers include veterinarians serving under the chairmanship of Dr. W. A. Young, 639 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, and members of the Dogs for Defense speakers bureau headed by Mrs. Tanyah Corday, 6014 North Broadway, Chicago.

Eager to List More.

Dogs for Defense is eager to list dogs of many types for army use. As dogs are offered, Dogs for Defense sends the owners an application blank on which is listed the canine's breed, size, age, sex, physical condition, traits, and other data. The army wants no dogs under 1 year old or over 5 years old.

The breeds already sent from Chicago have backgrounds of useful service to their masters: Collies and German shepherds for herding stock, Dobermanns, Dalmatians, and boxers for guard duty and airedales for vermin destruction. As the supply of these breeds diminishes the army will turn to other adaptable breeds.

The main objectives of the Chicago office of Dogs for Defense are twofold: Most important is that of recruiting the right dogs for the army and being organized to the degree that the required number of dogs can be shipped as soon as the army requests them; the second obective is that of gaining enough public support to maintain the service.

List District Recruits.

Among the 60 dogs already donated to the army thru Dogs for Defense are these from residents of the southwest section of Chicago and the southwest suburbs:

Airedale terrier, William W. Huggett, 907 Park drive, Flossmoor; German shepherd, Mrs. Charles R. Finney, 953 W. 111th street; German shepherd, H. E. Crebs, 9832 Southwest highway, Oak Lawn; German shepherd, Julia H. Hall, LaSalle, Ill.; Doberman pinscher, Dr. C. E. Folkers, 12754 Maple avenue, Blue Island; German shepherd, Martin Hagen, 649 W. 61st street; collie, Bror Astrom, 8924 S. Laflin street; German shepherd, Paul Sims, 6735 S. Carpenter street; German shepherd, Mrs. M. Eiredam, 131st street and 83d avenue, Orland Park; Doberman pinscher, Dr. and Mrs. O. W. Schreiner, 1315 W. Garfield boulevard; German shepherd, John C. Shaw, 6034 S. Hermitage avenue; Doberman pinscher, Roy B. Howard, 12355 81st avenue, Palos Park; Doberman pinscher, Frank E. Ungar, 167th and Wood street, Hazel Crest; German shepherd, Walter Thrane, 715 W. 43d street; German shepherd, C. W. Silvernail, 12209 S. Princeton avenue.

BOHEMIAN UNION RITES TODAY TO MARK 65TH YEAR

Czech Fraternity Will Honor 239 Fighters.

The Bohemian Catholic First Central union, oldest Czech Catholic fraternal society in America, today celebrates its 65th anniversary. On this occasion, 239 members serving in the armed forces will be given special recognition.

Theme of the evening festival at the Bohemian American hall will be expressed in a tableau, "We Honor Those Who Serve." It will be staged by junior members of the union, under direction of the Rev. Augustine Studeny, assistant pastor of St. Procopius church. Pilsen post of the American Legion and its auxiliary, with Commander Clarence Landt in charge, will open and close the civic celebration, highlighted by the award of a citation to the union by the war savings staff of the United States treasury.

Services at St. Procopius'.

The religious services will be held at St. Procopius church, 18th and Allport streets, at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Joseph Chvatal will be celebrant of high mass, assisted by the Rev. Augustine Studeny and the Rev. Marcellus Cikan. The Rev. Francis W. Jedlicka, grand chaplain of the society, will preach the sermon and the Rt. Rev. Abbot Procop Neuzil of St. Procopius abbey at Lisle will preside.

The civic celebration will be held at the Bohemian American hall, 1436 18th street, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The program will include a Czech speech by the Rev. Martin Kriska, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel church. Joseph J. Jaros, master in chancery of the Superior court of Cook county, also will speak. The Rev. Mr. Jedlicka will confer the order of St. Wenceslaus, an honor degree, upon several members of the union. Soloist will be Miss Mildred Musil, and Frank W. Cermak's orchestra will present several numbers.

Founded in St. Louis.

The Bohemian Catholic First Central union was founded in St. Louis in 1877, and the association has been active in social, religious, and fraternal work among the American citizens of Czech origin ever since.

Serving on the committee are Frank C. Cerveny Jr., president; W. B. Havel, chairman; Vladimir Peterek, vice chairman; Joseph Ruzek, secretary; August F. Ruda, treasurer; Joseph W. Cermak, John Kesner, Vladimir Moravec, M. V. Kandl, Joseph Skoudlil, Charles Adam, James Netolicky, Anton Benesh, John J. Kucera, John Kuratko, John Hanket, Charles F. Vavrik, Joseph Mach, and Frank Schima.

Among clubs sponsoring the conference are: Englewood Outdoor club, Chatham Park Outdoor club, Fort Dearborn Hiking club, Mary McDowell Hiking club, Grub and Pack club, North Shore Outing club, Outing Associates of E. V. Manuel, Outing Club of Chicago Park district, Physical Fitness Club of Oak Park.

G. O. P. FAR AHEAD IN CHICAGO AREA CONGRESS VOTE

Republican Count Exceeds Democratic Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Republicans gained one Chicago district seat in Tuesday's congressional elections, but an analysis of the figures for the 11 districts in the area shows that the actual improvement in party strength was much greater than appears on the surface.

The study reveals that the Democrats' pluralities of 133,255 in 1938 and 33,249 in 1940 were wiped out completely and replaced in Tuesday's balloting by a G. O. P. margin of more than 76,500.

The total Republican vote in the 11 districts last week, with 25 precincts missing, was 956,218, a gain of 133,876 over the party total of 822,342 in the comparable by-election four years ago.

Democratic Vote Declines.

The Democratic turnout on the basis of Tuesday's incomplete figures was only 879,775, a drop of 75,822 below 1938.

Here are Tuesday's unofficial results by district, complete except for the 25 missing precincts, which will not be reported until the official canvass is announced:

Candidate.	1942 Vote.	Plurality.
First District.
William L. Dawson [D.]	34,641	11,013
William E. King [R.]	23,628
Second District. [7 precincts missing.]
William A. Rowan [D.]	108,925	3,746
Thomas J. Downs [R.]	105,179
Third District. [6 precincts missing.]
Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D.]	107,639
Fred E. Busbey [R.]	113,477	5,838
Fourth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Martin Gorski [D.]	60,333	44,013
Arthur J. Rutshaw [R.]	16,320
Fifth District.
Rep. A. J. Sabath [D.]	29,265	18,067
Clem Graver [R.]	11,198
Sixth District. [5 precincts missing.]
Thomas J. O'Brien [D.]	151,917	41,045
Raymond J. Trafelet [R.]	110,872
Seventh District. [8 precincts missing.]
Rep. L. W. Schuetz [D.]	179,391	3,630
James C. Moreland [R.]	175,761
Eighth District.
Thomas S. Gordon [D.]	33,526	24,101
Rena E. Pikiel [R.]	9,425
Ninth District. [1 precinct missing.]
Irwin N. Walker [D.]	38,475
Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R.]	40,642	2,167
Tenth District. [2 precincts missing.]
Jack Bairstow [D.]	103,985
Ralph E. Church [R.]	148,049	44,054
Eleventh District. [1 precinct missing.]
Joseph Sam Perry [D.]	39,726
Rep. Chauncey W. Reed [R.]	97,682	57,956

Districts 1 to 10 are in Cook county, the 10th also including all of Lake county. The 11th district is made up of McHenry, Du Page, Kane and Will counties.

The district recaptured by the Republicans was the 3d. The G. O. P. showed gains over their 1938 pluralities in all except the 4th and 8th districts. It registered advances over its 1940 margins in all but the 9th and 11th districts. The Republican gains since the last off year election in 1938 were especially large in the 2d and 7th districts.

80 YOUNG VOICES ENLIVEN LAFLIN STREET BLOCK

Big Families Fill Small Neighborhood Area.

When old timers back of the yards speak of the "street of children," the reference is to Laflin. For in Laflin street, between 4500 and 4510, in a small concentration of frame and brick, live nearly 80 children. They are the sons and daughters of stockyards workers, who study at Seward and Hamline, and play when school is thru in the shadows of the Bansfield cinder yard that brings Laflin to a dead end at 45th street.

Six families with 27 children share the building at 4502-06. Carmen Ramirez, her husband and two children, occupy one unit. The family of Leo Hernandez, which includes six children, inhabits another. Primo Bernal has six too. Antionette and Sam Sovinski have two, while the Silvas have three and the Paul Migas' eight.

Mother and Eight.

At 4508, Mrs. Helen Morales lives with her eight children. In the same building is the family of Encarnacion Chico, which numbers four sons. There are three children in Manuel Gonzales' household.

Two boys and three girls are members of the Lopez clan at 4510. At 4501, Mr. and Mrs. John Wanenista live with their two children. Next door, at 4503, Jesse Juarez's four children may be found. Another unit in the same building is occupied by Pasqual Sanchez and his three children.

Residents Are Old Timers.

The building at 4509 has 22 children. Five are those of Reyes and Conrado Gonzalez. Seven belong to Mr. and Mrs. Sosteney Alva. The José Mercados have five, and Innocente Agir has four. Louis and Maria Eredia have one.

Most of the residents are old timers, who have lived in Laflin street for years. Their homes are old timers, too, that have been divided and subdivided many times.

AIR MORE GOOD MUSIC THAN EVER FOR CHICAGOLAND

Added Classical Programs on Local Stations.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A search thru the program schedules of Chicago stations and the national networks reveals that more good music than ever, particularly in symphonic, opera, operetta, and concert fields, is available to Chicagoland listeners this season.

Three outstanding symphony orchestras broadcast concerts each week. The Metropolitan opera will be back on the Blue network, starting at 1 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 28. WLS will be the outlet here. The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra is heard from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Fridays on Mutual [W-G-N is not an outlet].

The NBC Symphony orchestra, directed by Arturo Toscanini, broadcasts over WMAQ-NBC from 4 to 5 p. m. Sundays. The New York Philharmonic Symphony series is aired over WBBM-CBS from 2 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. The Theater of the Air operettas are broadcast regularly from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and Mutual.

The last year has brought several added transcribed or recorded programs featuring classical music on Chicago stations.

Below appears a schedule of most of the notable musical programs heard thru Chicago stations:

WEEKDAYS.

8:30-9:30 a. m.—WJJD—Concert hall.

10:00-11:00 p. m. — WEDC — Symphonic hour.

MONDAY.

8:00-8:30 p. m.—WMAQ—Telephone hour with notable guests.
9:30-10:00 p. m.—W-G-N—Music That Endures, with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, Henry Weber and guest soloists.

WEDNESDAY.

7:00-7:30 p. m.—WBBM—Nelson Eddy, Irene Manning, and orchestra.
9:00-9:30 — WBBM — Great Moments in Music, excerpts from operas.

THURSDAY.

7:00-7:30 p. m.—W-G-N—Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta.
11:15-11:45 p. m.—WMAQ—Inter-American Univ. NBC Symphony orchestra.

SATURDAY.

8:00-9 a. m.—WILL—Masterworks.
10:30-11 a. m.—WBBM—New York Philharmonic Symphony's Children's concert.
1:00-4:00 p. m.—WLS—Metropolitan Opera company [Nov. 28].
8:00-9 p. m.—W-G-N—Theater of the Air operettas, starring Marion Claire with guest male singers.

Besides these there are many other programs in which both classical works and popular compositions are presented. Ralph Ginsburgh's concert ensemble is heard numerous times thruout the week on W-G-N. And for those who have frequency modulation receivers numerous high fidelity FM programs are available on the three Chicago stations.

Barlow Returns to Conduct New York Philharmonic

The New York Philharmonic Symphony gets a new conductor today when Howard Barlow begins directing a series of these concerts presented at 2 o'clock Sundays over WBBM-CBS. Arthur Rubinstein, Polish-born pianist, will be heard in the Second Concerto for piano and orchestra in B-flat major by Brahms. Among the works will be: Paine's "Oedipus Tyrannus" overture and Miaskovsky's Symphony No. 21. Deems Taylor is intermission commentator.

W. C. Fields Will Heckle Charlie McCarthy Tonight

W. C. Fields, screen comedian, will renew the feud between him and Edgar Bergen's knee partner, Charlie McCarthy, when he puts in a guest appearance at 7 o'clock tonight over WMAQ-NBC. Songs by Dale Evans and Don Ameche, and music by Ray Noble's orchestra will round out the program.

Dorothy Maynor to Sing with Kostelanetz Today

Dorothy Maynor, noted Negro soprano, will make a guest appearance on the Andre Kostelanetz-Albert Spalding program at 3:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. Miss Maynor will sing "The Old Refrain," and the spiritual "Swing Low," Sweet Chariot."

OFFER SECOND OF 'MIGHTIER THAN SWORD' SERIES

Dramas Stress Freedom of the Press.

The second in the dramatic series, "Mightier than the Sword," based on the experiences of Stanley Johnston, famous CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent, will be broadcast over W-G-N from 2:30 to 3 p. m. today. The central theme of these Sunday presentations is the American doctrine of the freedom of the press.

Johnston, whose stories of the battle of the Coral sea and the sinking of the Lexington have made history, will join in the broadcast.

Today's episode will unfold the story of Johnston's experiences aboard a decoy fishing boat used to pioneer a new transport route and to determine whether German submarines were patroling the proposed route. Johnston and his crew discover a U-boat cruising in the area and warn merchant and passenger ships. The skipper of a neutral refugee ship ignores the warning, having been duped by propaganda and exaggerated newspaper reports. His vessel is attacked and sunk.

In summarizing this narrative Johnston will emphasize the need for a free American press in which the public can place implicit trust. He will explain the need of printing factual news promptly, providing it does not interfere with military actions.

An all-star Chicago radio cast will provide dramatic background for the Johnston narration. The actors: Charles Penman, Sid Ellstrom, Forrest Lewis, Marvin Mueller, Murray Forbes, Hope Summers, Laurette Fillbrandt, Fred Howard, and Carl Kroenke.

Musical background will be provided by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Robert Trendler. Jack LaFrande is the writer.

SALUTE NILES HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' HOUR

Niles Township High school in Skokie will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program on W-G-N from 1 to 1:30 p. m. today. The program was transcribed at the school last Wednesday.

Dr. A. L. Biehn, youthful principal of Niles, will tell what the student body is doing in the war effort. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune editorial staff, master of ceremonies on the program.

The Niles choir, under the direction of Clara A. Klaus, will sing two numbers, "Rain and Water" by Fox, and "Pledge to the Flag" by Malotte. The student body of 1,000 will join the choir in singing the school song, "Gold and Blue," composed by C. W. Collins.

Two more high school students will be added to the program's Roll of Honor: Willard James Stockfish of Niles Township High and John Leon Iltis of Madison, Wis.

Bob Jellison and Beryl Vaughan will be back on the program in the rôles of Jimmy and Jerry. Jane Anderson provides piano accompaniment on the program and Holland Engle is the announcer.

Barton PTA to Hear Judge.

An address on "The Child, America's Future," will be given by Municipal Judge Gibson E. Gorman when the Barton PTA holds parents' night at 7:30 o'clock Thursday.

Alec Templeton Guest on Telephone Hour Tomorrow

Alec Templeton, pianist and impressionist, will make a guest appearance on the Telephone hour over WMAQ-NBC at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Templeton's offering will be his impression in music of a Telephone hour rehearsal. Other numbers he has scheduled include Chopin's Prelude No. 1 and 7, and the last movement of Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto.

RECTORY WINDOW BARS RECALL OLD REFORM SCHOOL

Bridgeport Edifice Once Held State Wards.

The Rev. Thomas Glynn.
[Wolk Photo.]

The prison bars that cross the kitchen and basement windows at St. Bridget's rectory, 2928 Archer avenue, are last reminders of the original Chicago Reform and Industrial school. The other vestiges of reform were removed in 1901, when the building became St. Bridget's rectory.

It was built in 1859 at the direction of the state legislature, adjoining St. Bridget's church. The Christian Brothers were placed in charge and the school served both as a reform institution and as a parish school for Bridgeport until 1871.

Wards Attended School.

Old timers in Bridgeport recall that about 10 state wards were confined regularly to the building. They attended school with the Bridgeport day students. The rectory is now the home of the Rev. Joseph Glynn, pastor, and his assistant, the Rev. Joseph McCarthy. Father Glynn has been in charge since 1937.

The parish they serve was organized in 1847 as a mission of old St. Patrick's, then located at Randolph and Des Plaines streets. Services were held in the homes of parishioners. It wasn't until 1850 that the first chapel was established in what was known as the Scanlon house, at the south branch of the Chicago river and Archer avenue. James McKenna donated the house for this purpose, and the Rev. Michael Donahue became the first resident pastor. He purchased the grounds on which the present St. Bridget buildings stand some years later.

Permanent Church Built.

The first permanent church was built in 1855 during the pastorate of the Rev. Thomas Kelly. It was a brick structure, seating 800 persons. The existing church was built in 1905, dedicated in 1906. It was erected at a cost of $95,000 and has a seating capacity of 1,400. It follows the architectural trend originated by the Irish monks, who migrated to Europe and into Italy, where they built the first church of Lombardic style. In 1925 St. Bridget celebrated a triple jubilee commemorating the diamond jubilee of the parish, the golden jubilee of the Sisters of Charity, in charge of the school, and the silver jubilee of the then pastor, the Rev. Michael O'Sullivan.

6 SOLDIER ACTS SLATED ON W-G-N AMATEUR SHOW

"Stars of Tomorrow," W-G-N's amateur show, will present six soldier acts on W-G-N from 8 to 8:30 tonight. The winning amateur on this program, ninth in the series, will complete the cast for the program of Nov. 15, when a $500 war bond will be awarded to the best of the nine all-star amateurs of previous programs.

Appearing tonight will be Sergt. Gordon Suits, Dallas, Tex.; Pvt. B. Russell, Philadelphia, Pa.; Pvt. John MacAdams of Seattle, Wash.; Pvt. Arthur Nyckelmo, Chicago; Pvt. Thomas Williams, Detroit, Mich., and a quartet composed of Sergt. Robert Shepfer, Defiiance, O.; P. F. C. Arthur Nasion, Death Valley, Cal.; Pvt. Marvin Fogt, Dayton, O., and Pvt. Sam Freeman, New York City.

Wed in Church Nuptials

The wedding of Miss Dolores Stack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stack, 559 West 42d street, and Eugene Downey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenney, was solemnized recently at St. Gabriel's church.

NORTHERNERS TO AIR SALUTE TO ARMISTICE DAY

A salute to Armistice day will highlight The Northerners program on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday. Leading off the salute to Armistice day will be a medley, "Long, Long Trail," "Smiles," "A Song of Peace," and Guy Savage's new tune, "Wait at the Gate for Me, Katie," and "American Prayer."

Lois Wallner, soprano, will sing "The Magic Song," by Helmund. The all-male octet will offer four numbers: Horlich's "Two Guitars;" "Core 'Ngrato," by Cardillo; "Nut Brown Maiden," and Beethoven's "Praise the Father."

Barlow Returns to Conduct New York Philharmonic

The New York Philharmonic Symphony gets a new conductor today when Howard Barlow begins directing a series of these concerts presented at 2 o'clock Sundays over WBBM-CBS. Arthur Rubinstein, Polish-born pianist, will be heard in the Second Concerto for piano and orchestra in B-flat major by Brahms. Among the works will be: Paine's "Oedipus Tyrannus" overture and Miaskovsky's Symphony No. 21. Deems Taylor is intermission commentator.

Orson Welles to Start Two Broadcast Series

Orson Welles is to begin two new radio series. His "Ceiling Unlimited" series, devoted to the story of American aviation, will be introduced over WBBM-CBS at 6:15 p. m. tomorrow. His other program, "Hello Americans," will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Sundays, starting next Sunday.

D. A. R. Hostess

Members of the Dewalt Mechlin chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will gather at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. H. F. Wood, 10502 Seeley avenue, for their annual reception and tea.

'FORTUNE TELLER' ON THEATER OF AIR ON SATURDAY

Show Stars Miss Claire, Thomas, Baggiore.

Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. Saturday on W-G-N and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air, starring Marion Claire, soprano, Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will be cast in the singing rôle of Musette, a gypsy fortune teller. Mr. Thomas will portray the rôle of Sandor, Musette's sweetheart, while Baggiore will be cast as Capt. Ladislas, a young soldier who is in love with Irma, a ballet student, who is a double for Musette.

The plot is built around the likeness of Irma and Musette whose suitors are confused by their identities. Many of Herbert's most beautiful tunes, taken from this operetta, will be heard. These include "The Song of the Gypsies," "Romany Trail," "Gypsy Love Song" and "Song of Romany."

Musical background for the operetta will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and by the chorus led by Robert Trendler. The program will be produced by Kenneth MacGregor, W-G-N chief of production.

A full dramatic cast will portray the speaking rôles of the operetta and Marvin Mueller will be narrator.

Toscanini Conducts Works by Rossini, Mendelssohn

Arturo Toscanini, distinguished conductor, has selected works of two old masters and one contemporary composer for his concert at 4 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. Opening the program will be the Overture to "Il Signor Bruschino" by Rossini, followed by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy "Reformation" Symphony No. 5 in D minor. The last works will be Symphony No. 11, Opus 19 by Dmitri Kabalevsky, 37 year old Russian.

'Accidents in Industry' Is Subject of Reviewing Stand

Industrial accidents will be the theme of the broadcast of the Northwestern Reviewing stand on W-G-N from 10 to 10:30 a. m. today. The formal subject is "Save Man Power for War Power"; the participants: Ned H. Dearborn, director, National Safety council; Dr. David G. Monroe of the Northwestern staff and Harry Guilbert, safety expert. This broadcast which originates in W-G-N's main studio is open to visitors.

Salute Marine Corps on 167th Birthday Tomorrow

A salute to the 167th anniversary of the founding of the United States Marine corps will be aired on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 12:45 to 1 p. m. tomorrow when a program titled, "They've Landed" is presented. A highlight of the broadcast will be the Quantico Marine Corps chorus.

Lieutenant's Bride

Miss Patricia Anne Thomas, who recently was married to Lieut. Francis B. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Kennedy of 8141 Drexel avenue, is making her home with her husband at Tampa, Fla., where he is stationed with the signal corps. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thomas, 7656 Ingleside avenue. Lieut. Kennedy attended the University of Notre Dame.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

MRS. RUDOLPH VERGOTH, who as Marjorie Ennis, toured England and France as a dancer with the Abbott troupe, returned home Friday with a new son, Nicholas. He was born last week at Little Company of Mary hospital, and named after her father, Nicholas Ennis, 7300 South Shore drive.

Among the sculpture work on exhibit in the Club Woman's bureau at Mandel brothers are 11 pieces by Katherine Eckstein. She is, in private life, Mrs. David Goldberg of the Shoreland hotel.

FLORENCE SRMAK, 3059 South Springfield avenue, 9 year old pupil at the Gary elementary school, 3000 South Ridgeway avenue, has sold an article to a national magazine for $100. His subject was "The In-Between Age," and dealt with the problems of a young lady who is making the psychological shift from dolls to boy friends. She also wrote the speech of the school's mayor, Joseph Karpalek, 2808 South Hamlin avenue, when he presented a flag to the army aviation cadet examining board. When the school learned that the officials were using a small flag, they turned over the money from their scrap drive and purchased the new flag and standard. The Gary school has been designated as leader in the scrap drive by the board of education.

WHEN Martin P. O'Connell, 9237 Bishop street, accepted the appointment of letter carrier at the main postoffice, he hoped the job would prove steady. He retired last week at the age of 65, after 40 years and four months' service. "It really did prove permanent," he said. His last assignment was as a clerk at the Chicago Lawn station.

SAMMY THOMAS SLICKS UP FOR VICTORY PLEDGE

Typical Boys' Club Boy Is Given Honor Position.

Sammy Thomas.

Sammy Thomas' towsled hair was pushed back slick. His freckled face shone. He stood on the stage in the Valentine Boys' club auditorium, tense and expectant. His voice quivered a little as he repeated the victory pledge that made him the first Valentine club member of the Victory Volunteers, a project of the Boys' Clubs of America. Ray Welsh, Bridgeport's community commander of civilian defense, administered the pledge.

Sammy is 12 and lives with his grandmother at 2724 South Wallace street. He was one of the first of 125 Valentine boys to enlist in the victory corps, and he was singled out for the first induction because he is considered a typical boys' club boy.

Pledge to Help Win.

The volunteers operate on the basis that it's the boys of yesterday and today who will win the war. In an application for membership, they pledge they will do all they can to help win. This includes guarding health and developing the body, learning with mind and hand, being honest and mindful of the rights of others, obedient to those in authority, reverent and faithful in religion, giving service and being loyal to the United States.

Boys between the ages of 7 and 14 are accepted into membership, upon the approval of their parents. Stewart W. Knarr, director of the Valentine Boys' club, 3400 Emerald avenue, is chairman of the Victory Volunteers for the eight branch Chicago Boys' clubs. A program of physical fitness is being stressed. The volunteers have begun activity in the collection of scrap, and will be trained for messenger and other services.

Several Clubs Enroll.

The program has started off well. Several clubs within the Valentine unit have enrolled. This includes the Racine Rangers, which has Robert Rodeo, 3213 Racine avenue, as president; the Foxes, headed by Julio Munoz, 249 West 24th place; Junior Yankees, headed by Robert Boege, 725 West 34th street; Tiger Sharks, Fred Fischer, 316 West 42d place; Commandos, Stanley Kolodziski, 3113 Halsted street; Panthers, Michael Mason, 3408 Lituanica avenue; Blackhawks, James O'Malley, 918 West 36th street.

ATTILIO BAGGIORE GUEST ON MUSIC THAT ENDURES

The "Prize Ring," from Wagner's "Meistersinger," will be sung by Attilio Baggiore as a highlight of the Music That Endures program from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Baggiore also will sing Wood's "I Look Into Your Garden." Henry Weber, W-G-N musical director, will conduct the symphony orchestra. Selections by the orchestra will be Saint-Saëns' "Dance Macabre," "Promenade," "and "The Downs," from Carlton Cooley's "Eastbourne Sketches," and a Grieg medley of his "String Quartet in G Minor" and "Norwegian Dance No. 1."

Mystery Murder Slated on First Nighter Today

Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy will be co-starred in a mystery murder by Anthony Wayne titled "The Allardice Case," from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today on W-G-N and the Mutual network. The mystery will be produced as another in the "First Nighter" dramatic series.

5 BAD CORNERS TO GET NEW TYPE OF STREET LIGHT

Plan to Install 65 Units by Early December.

A new type of street light which throws more light on the pavements and silhouettes people and objects is to be tried out at the five most dangerous intersections in the Chicago street system this winter. Three are on Ashland avenue and two on Western avenue.

Delivery of the 65 units needed for the five crossings is expected within two weeks, Floyd Johnson of the city commission of streets and electricity, said. They will be installed early in December.

92 Accidents Reported.

The most dangerous intersections were named in a survey conducted by Johnson, with coöperation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The record showed 92 accidents in 1941 at these crossings:

Ashland avenue and 47th streets—11 night and 13 day accidents.

Ashland and Chicago avenues—10 night accidents, including one fatal, and 7 day accidents.

Ashland avenue and Lake street—11 night and 3 day accidents.

Western avenue and Division street—10 night and 4 day accidents.

Western avenue and 63d street—14 night and 8 day accidents.

Cost Is $3,106.

The finance committee of the city council recently authorized purchase of the lights at a cost of $3,106.

They will be distributed as follows: Eight at Ashland and Chicago, where seven are now used; five at Ashland and Lake, instead of three; 16 at Ashland, McDowell avenue, and 47th street, where there are nine; 12 at Western and Division, where seven are now used, and 12 at Western and 63d, where 12 are now in use.

This will give 53 lights instead of 38 now in use. Extras will be held for replacements.

Addition of 15 lighting units will help, but the greatest advantage of the new system is in lighting science and engineering, Leslie Sorenson, traffic engineer, reported. Regular incandescent electric bulbs will be used, but the globes over them will be different. They are designed for their reflection, refraction and deflection values to get the most light possible to the pavement.

Full lighting on the pavement, over the traffic lane, contrasts people and objects against the pavement background, Sorenson explained.

Placed 25 Feet High.

To get full advantage of reflection, refraction and deflection, the lights must be at least 25 feet above the street, Sorenson said. To get them over traffic lanes, they will be on arms eight feet long. Simple brackets will be erected on present standards in most cases.

Many of the present brackets are only two feet long. Many lights are placed only 12 to 14 feet high, but altho they are nearer the street, they still are not so effective as the new type fixture, Sorenson said.

Light effectiveness is measured by "foot candles" of illumination on the street. The new lights are to give two foot candles of light at each intersection. Various amounts have been measured at various intersections, but all were short of two foot candles. At Ashland and Lake, for instance, only .002 foot candles were found.

Ald. George D. Kells, chairman of the council traffic committee, is among those pushing for early installation of the new lights.

WED 65 YEARS, COUPLE TO MARK DAY WITH MASS

The 65th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pocanowski will be observed today with a 10:30 o'clock mass at St. Mary of Perpetual Help church and a reception this evening at the New National auditorium. They are the first couple in the parish's history to celebrate a 65th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Pocanowski is 87 years old; her husband, 89. They have made their home for the last 52 years at 1014 West 32d street. Eight of their 12 children survive. They will be on hand with 21 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren to celebrate the occasion. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pocanowski were born in Poland, and married there.

EUTERPEAN UNIT, 42 YEARS OLD, TO SING 'MESSIAH'

The Euterpean Oratorio chorus, under the direction of Mark Hallett, has begun rehearsals for its annual presentation of "The Messiah," scheduled for next month. This is the chorus' 42d season, and the only original member still singing with the group is Dr. Franklin B. Clemmer. Officers for the year are Robert Hayden, 3260 West 109th street, president; Mrs. Robert Meany and G. G. Bergloff, vice presidents; E. P. Cole, arrangements; Lois Ludwig, secretary, and Charles Huet, treasurer. Rehearsals are held on Mondays in the Morgan Park Baptist church Sunday school rooms.

Other newly announced advancements: Calvin Wittenkeller, second lieutenant and publicity officer; Edward Basil, Howard Baum, and Robert Rebeck, second lieutenants; Robert Tumasonis, first sergeant, company B, and Jack Uhrig, first sergeant, company A.

Valerie Fink Is Recent Bride

FARMHOUSE, 90 YEARS OLD, GETS THORO REPAIRING

Insulating Boards Add to Attractiveness.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Three miles southwest of Hinckley in De Kalb county there is a 90 year old farmhouse which has been finely repaired and insulated thruout. It is now ready for a new life, with each of its nine rooms, once drafty and dilapidated, now weather resistant and sound. The insulating boards which cover walls and ceilings have added greatly to the attractiveness of the entire house and likewise made possible definite fuel savings.

The story back of this reconstruction is interesting. The work included repair and insulation of farm buildings as well as farmhouse, and was motivated by a desire on the part of Marvin Christensen, the owner, to get the utmost out of his land and stock and work.

Poor Housing Farming Obstacle.

Poor housing is one of the biggest obstacles to profitable farming, according to our agricultural experts. This improved housing should yield increased production for wartime need.

Mr. Christensen was assisted in his improvement program by a group of nationally known manufacturers in insulation boards.

Full details on the entire project are now available in booklet form on request. Also this same group of manufacturers are offering free plans for a number of insulated farm buildings.

Use of Insulating Board.

These plans show how insulating board can be used to provide additional strength against weather extremes and include:

[1] Stationary brooder house.
[2] Shedtype poultry house.
[3] Fruit and vegetable storage; an insulated farrowing house, and also construction details for building insulation into a dairy barn.

[If you wish further information on this project and available plans, please send stamped addressed envelope to this department.]

But now we come to the old farm house itself, built back in 1852 by a homesteading family. Some 20 years later an addition was made, and the present home has nine rooms.

Exterior Gets Paint.

The exterior has not changed much in all its 90 years, except that it has now been newly painted white, but much has happened to the interior.

The Christensens for some time occupied only the four rooms on the first floor, leaving the five on the second floor untouched except for a single bedroom used in emergencies. The second story was cold and drafty in winter and hot in summer, and badly in need of repair and renovation.

Now since the improvement there are seven cheerful, well insulated rooms in the house, and a young son has a room, a bright little nursery all his own.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen made a careful survey of the house before deciding on what repairs to make. How the change was accomplished will be told in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

QUALIFIED MEN MAY SEEK RATING, SAYS RECRUITER

Men having the proper qualifications are again being allowed to apply for naval ratings as storekeeper, second and third class, and yeoman, second and third class, according to Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson, chief recruiting officer here.

For a rating as storekeeper, applicants should have some knowledge of accounting and typewriting and be able to take complete charge of a ship's store, Comm. Goldenson said. Allied civilian jobs are stockroom manager, freight checker, or accountant. A storekeeper, second class, receives a base pay of $96 per month, and the third class rating carries a base pay of $78.

Applicants for a rating as yeoman need a business background, including typewriting and shorthand. They will be expected to take charge of a ship's office and correspondence. The pay is the same as that of storekeeper.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Nov. 9

Bulk planting should be completed as soon as possible before severe freezing weather. Many bulbs were received from the growers late, which makes it imperative that they be procured and planted. It is not too late to pot up a good calla lily. Its tropical foliage is an asset to any window. Give it full sun and copious watering when once established.

Pots of crocus, with the corms placed close together, flower readily and their showy flowers are desirable. The different narcissi are all excellent for pot culture and some few, such as King Alfred, Sir Watkins, Emperor, and Poeticus are fine for naturalizing outdoors.

Tuesday, Nov. 10

There still is time to prepare some flowering plants for display at Christmas. Keep the poinsettias growing by feeding and plenty of water with a warm location. Bulbs like the narcissus paperwhite can be started now for Christmas; begonias can be purchased in a well developed state and will prove attractive.

All foliage plants, such as coleus, screw pine [variegated], should be carefully watched and kept in the best condition by careful watering and given plenty of light.

Wednesday, Nov. 11

Plants of poison ivy can be moved without harm at this season. Those who are susceptible should wear gloves. Dig out all the roots and destroy. The lawn can be given a top dressing at this time by simply spreading a quarter inch layer of rich compost over it to fill depressions.

Do not neglect to protect young fruit trees by placing a collar of tar paper around them. Fine meshed wire may be used. Many trees, such as poplars, hawthorns, lilacs, and others, are likely to be attacked by San José scale, but an application or two of a soluble oil mixture will prove effective.

Thursday, Nov. 12

Vines can be cleaned up at this time and old diseased wood removed. Some pruning can be done: The hydrangea P. G. should be cut back to three or four buds to each shoot. The dwarf spireas, like the S. Anthony Waterer, should be severely cut back, halfway to almost to the ground, and it will start up again in springtime.

Cut out the old stems of the philadelphus or mock orange, for the wood made this season will produce the flowers next spring. The Rose of Sharon [Hibiscus syriacus] can be trimmed to shape.

Friday, Nov. 13

Try sowing a row of sweet peas now. The seed must not grow sufficiently to penetrate the surface or the young growths will freeze. The seeds may germinate but remain in that condition until spring, when the plants flower much earlier than if spring sown. They should be given some protection.

There is no excuse for mealy bugs on house plants—with little effort they can be kept under control. Syringing with force will knock them off, and if any remain in the axils of the leaves, touch them up with a swab dipped in alcohol.

Saturday, Nov. 14

Keep chrysanthemum plants well watered, for they are closely rooted and require plenty of water. All flowering plants require the same attention. If they can be placed in a cool room during the night they will last longer.

Grape vines can be pruned now and material for cuttings collected. Grape cuttings should be tied in bundles and buried in sand in a cool basement and planted out in spring. Cuttings of other suitable shrubs can also be collected.

[Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.]

Block to Dedicate Flags in Rites This Afternoon

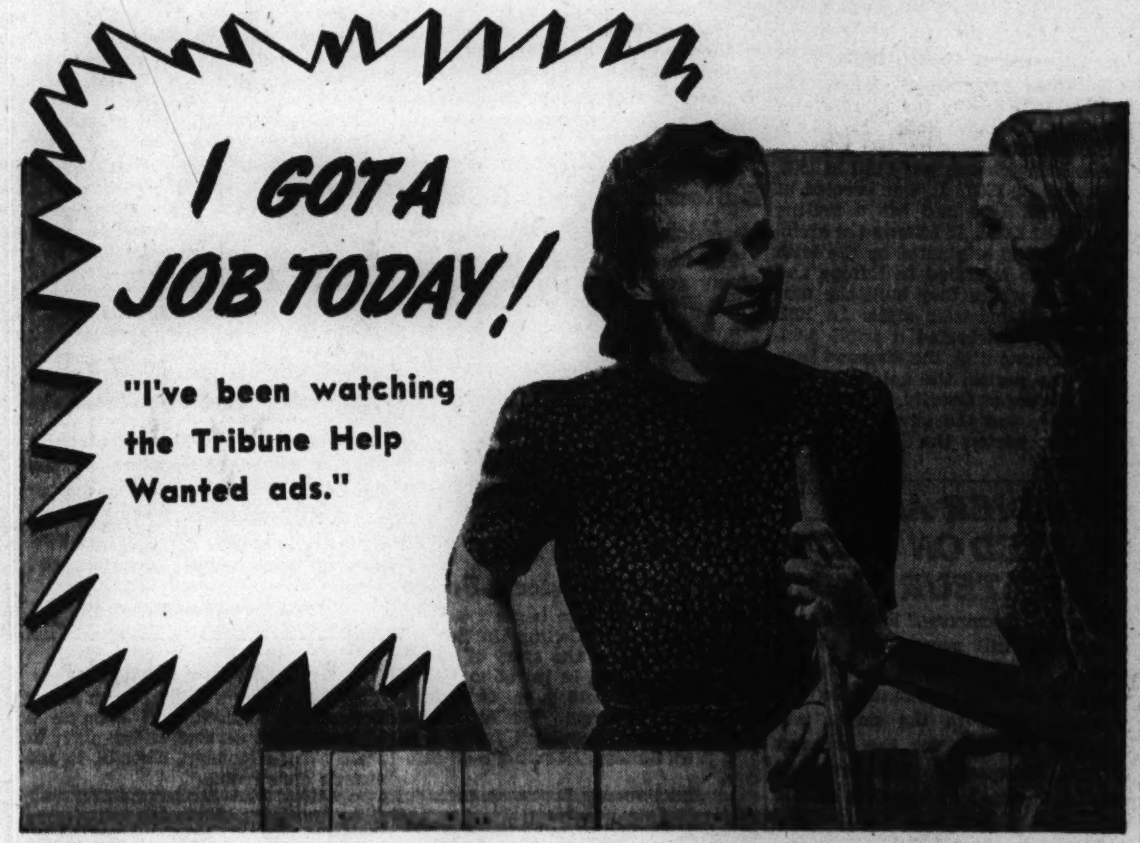
Service and American flags will be dedicated at 4 o'clock today by residents in the block bounded by 62d and 63d streets, Francisco and Richmond avenues. O. G. Frank is the block captain. Thomas Blazina will deliver the afternoon's address on "What America Means to a Foreigner." The Kilty mand of Stockyards post, American Legion, will participate. George Hewitt is the post commander.

IT'S FUN TO COOK NOW!
"This apartment has the best stove I've ever used."

What is your pet desire in an apartment? A good stove? Venetian blinds? Nearness to schools? Cross ventilation? Whatever it is, you can find the apartment you want much more easily by consulting the rental columns of the Tribune, which prints more apartments to rent want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

For your convenience, the offers are arranged by locations in the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. Make a list of those which interest you before you start out to look. By doing so, you avoid useless stairclimbing to inspect apartments which do not appeal to you.

Choose your next apartment from Chicago's most comprehensive apartment guide—the Tribune want ad section.



I GOT A JOB TODAY!

RACHEL . . . who avenged France because of just one German kiss too many!

FREE—this great novel that is astounding readers everywhere—of a strange woman whom the world knew as an angel, but whom eight men—her father, husbands, sons, lovers—knew as a she-devil!

JENNY HAGER was so fascinating to all men that when she was only four years old she caused dashing Lt. Carruthers to elope with her mother. She drove her father, Big Tim Hager, to drown himself in rum, in fear of his own unholy desire for her! But as a child-bride, she brought banker Isaiah Poster a new zest for living —for all his seventy years!

A strange excitement shone in Jenny's eyes whenever she saw pain inflicted—a passion which drove her to do strange things under its impulse. For why would she taunt Ephraim Poster to kill his father —then jeer at him when he accidentally caused the old man's death?

What was the TRUTH about her?

Yes, she was more than a match for Ephraim, who had once boasted to his friend John Evered that "he saw a wanton in every pretty woman he met!" Eph tried to tell John the truth about Jenny. But the truth was beyond belief—and John, too, fell under her witch-like spell. Who wouldn't—after he had spent a bitter winter's night under a Cape Cod haystack with her?

But John, tall and strong as one of his stout Maine pines, was different. Jenny loved him and their four sons—until she deceived even him with pious Elder Pittridge, to whom she whispered, "You're really good, aren't you? I like making you do things you think are wicked. It torments you so."

In The Strange Woman you'll meet an utterly amazing, human character at the heart of a rich, gaudy, full-bodied novel—and a character you'll long remember!

ALSO FREE—Nearly 100 of the World's Most Daring Short Stories!

In addition to receiving free THE STRANGE WOMAN, you ALSO get—on this special offer—the 502-page SHORT STORIES OF DE MAUPASSANT; complete, unexpurgated. Nearly 100 stories of love, hate, intrigue, passion, madness, jealousy—the frankest, most daring stories of their kind ever written! Ball-of-Fat, The Diamond Necklace, Love, The Piece of String, The Mad Woman, Mademoiselle Fifi, Story of a Farm Girl, Bed No. 29, Wedding Night, all the best works that made de Maupassant "father of the modern short story."

Each month ONE of the Book League's selections is a modern best-seller by a famous author like Sinclair Lewis, John Steinbeck, Vicki Baum, Nevil Shute, Somerset Maugham, Daphne du Maurier—a book selling everywhere for $2, $2.50, $3.00. The OTHER book is the collected works of a great writer, such as this de Maupassant volume.

The volumes of Collected Works issued by The Book League month-by-month are uniformly bound in durable cloth, stamped to simulate the beauty and brilliance of genuine gold. They grow into a handsome, life-time matched library. Other great authors whose collected works appear in this series include: Shakespeare, Poe, Oscar Wilde, Zola, Hugo, Dumas, etc.

The Best of the New—AND of the Old

Here is how the new best-seller is chosen: Every month our Editors study the announcement lists of the newly-published books—and select ONE which they consider particularly outstanding. Then we contract for a large, special Book League Edition, and print it from the same plates as the publisher's original $2.00 to $3.00 edition. In these ways, we effect great savings, pass them on to subscribers. All selections are attractively bound in cloth with stamping to simulate genuine gold.

The Book League is the ONLY book club that builds for you a library containing the best of the new best-sellers AND the best of the older masterpieces. The TWO books sent you each month are valued at $3 to $4. But—by subscribing to "America's Biggest Bargain Book Club"—you get BOTH for only $1.39.

Renee de Marco's Dancing at Blackstone Superb

Sophie Tucker Headlines New Revue at Chez

By Will Davidson.

Once upon a warm spring day a beautiful little girl sat on the front porch steps, chin in cupped hands, and let the breeze stir up dreams of a fairy land in which she was the reigning princess. She started to dance, and soon handsome princes appeared. Sometimes they danced with her. Sometimes they sang to her. And on and on she danced, in a formless expression of nothing more intricate than her joy of living.

Once upon a cold November night a beautiful little girl came down the terraced steps of the Mayfair room, and swept into a formless, graceful dance in which handsome young men took occasional part. Sometimes these handsome young men sang to her. And as she danced, the part of the world that was then encompassed by the dubonet walls of the Blackstone's smart supper room danced in spirit with her.

Watching Renee de Marco dance is like nothing so much as watching a graceful and naturally talented child express her sheer joy at being alive. Renee is a superb technician, as her years in teamwork with Tony de Marco attest. But Renee has taken a long step forward, now that she is on her own. She has left to others the intellectual interpretation of native dance forms. She has discarded the theory that every facet of a routine must add luster to the star.

Renee de Marco.
[Bruno of Hollywood photo.]

Instead, she has created a mood, many moods, in which the attendance of the three young men has an integral—sometimes almost eclipsing—part. Renee's interpretation of Cole Porter is little different in technical form from her analysis of Tchaikowsky, yet the effect is vastly different, and in each case superbly right. She is a refreshing force in the dance world, even tho her weakness lies in the fact that perhaps not all her future audiences will get the full significance of her dance form. They may not be in the mood.

And speaking of "In the Mood"—Renee's dance to that favorite swing tune is great fun.

Credit Miss De Marco with superb taste in dresses, too. Credit her also with finding three likeable chaps named Jody Hutchison, Norman Lawrence, and Randy Simonette, who do so much for the production.

Gallant, cagey, and friendly Sophie Tucker came back to the Chez Paree last week for her greatest opening night ovation in nearly all of her thirty odd years in show business. It was a handsome tribute to a woman who has succeeded over far more than the normal span because of two things. She found a formula that the public liked, and she has been able to adapt it year by year to our very changeable taste in entertainment. Sophie of today is the Sophie of White City years ago, and at the same time she is both. That's why those who knew her then love her now, and those who only know her now feel sure they would have loved her then.

Sophie's supporting cast includes the pert and fast developing Callahan sisters, who dance attractively and do some surprising work in production numbers; Mata and Hari, two straight faced satirists of everything from ballet to news reels; Paul Winchell, an up and coming ventriloquist, and, of course, Fred Evans' ever presentable Adorables. Lou Breese has a new band, built in the old, reliable, excellent style. More about this fast revue another week.

I have seen Dr. Giovani work many times, and altho I know exactly what he's going to do, I never tire of watching him pick pockets. He is an expert handler of crowds, and never fails to get many laughs out of the precarious gag of inducing customers to work with him on the floor. Camellia house patrons in the Drake enjoy him, and respond well to having their wallets and cash and even suspenders lifted. For the first time, however, the good doctor included me in his attentions on opening night. He had me test the baton he uses in a startling ring trick. When he returned to the floor I had sudden cause to repeat that famous curtain line from "The Front Page":

"The so and so stole my watch!"

Boswelling the Bistros:

Arnold Kirkeby of the Drake and Blackstone hotels announces happily that Dwight Fiske maintained the highest weekly average of business of any star in the brief history of the new Mayfair room. It's a tribute to Fiske, and to the hotels' new policy of promoting their cafés. Dwight will be back Feb. 3 for his third engagement in 12 months. . . . The new place in which to eat happily on the near north side is the Casserole, artistic new dining room in the Seneca hotel. . . . Hank Moeller, "Louie" to patrons of the Eitel restaurant, has just celebrated his eighth anniversary there. . . . Jimmie Lunceford did a one weeker at the Regal theater last week—his only Chicago appearance this season. . . . Charlie Wright has opened in Camelia house. . . . Gay Claridge couldn't pass his army or navy physical, so he's back helping morale. . . . That Nov. 1 liquor tax was a boon to morale. Every one's spirits are higher.

CHICAGO PLAYBILLS

OPENING:

"Arsenic and Old Lace," comedy by Joseph Kesselring; return engagement with different cast, including Boris Karloff, Josephine Hull, Jean Adair, John Alexander and Edgar Stehli; Selwyn theater; opens tomorrow for three weeks.

CONTINUING:

"Maid in the Ozarks," mountain comedy by Claire Parrish; Great Northern theater; ninth week.

"Junior Miss," comedy by Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields, with Lenore Thomas, Lois Wilson, Harry Ellerbe and Eddie Nugent; Harris theater; eighth week.

"Porgy and Bess," folk opera by George and Ira Gershwin and Du Bose Heyward, with Todd Duncan and Etta Moten; Studebaker theater; second week.

"Priorities of 1942," variety show, with Argentinita, Lou Holtz, Willie Howard, Hank Ladd and Bert Wheeler; Erlanger theater; second week.

COMING:

"Claudia," comedy by Rose Franken; return engagement with different cast, including Dorothy McGuire, Frances Starr, Donald Cook and Olga Baclanova; Selwyn theater; opens Nov. 30 for four weeks.

"The Eve of St. Mark," drama by Maxwell Anderson; coming in December.

FAVORITE AT L'AIGLON

L'Aiglon is noted for its food, but an integral part of the atmosphere is the entertainment. Isobel De Marco, accordionist, is one of the perennial favorites there.

Dance Notes

The Chicago Dance Council will hold its next meeting Friday night at Curtiss hall, starting at 8 o'clock. The program features dances by the "Dance for Victory" committee headed by Tanya Andrieff, Frances Piper, and Sara Barr. Meanwhile, the council is sponsoring an exhibition of action photographs of the dance taken by the Albanian photographer, Gjon Mili. Included are pictures of Martha Graham, Paul Draper, and Ray Bolger.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which opens its Chicago season at the Civic Opera house Christmas night, started its tour at Trenton, N. J., last Monday night. The program, staged at the war memorial auditorium, offered "Magic Swan," "Gaite Parisienne," and "Chopin Concerto," the latter a new work by Nijinska.

Ballet Theater has restored Antony Tudor's "Dark Elegies" to the active repertory. It is choreographed to Mahler's "Kindertotenlieder." Meanwhile, David Lichine's restaging of Fokine's "Helen of Troy" is scheduled for a Detroit première Nov. 29.

Piquant Film Is Prelude to Opera Season

By Claudia Cassidy.

Those last few nights before the opera opens take on a tang of vanishing freedom which can't be entirely unlike the groom's enjoyment of his bachelor dinner—an occasion when he must suddenly cherish the charms of being footloose, and feel a touch claustrophobic.

So before the Civic Opera house claimed my allegiance for the duration I charged downtown in a moviegoing foray which focused on the touted "Tales of Manhattan," that set of more and less juicy vignettes which make up Julien Duvivier's tale of a tailcoat. As I never could cope with a movie credit list, I remember only Ben Hecht and Sam ["Poems in praise of practically nothing"] Hoffenstein from its sprawling cries of "Author! Author!"

But whatever was written probably was considerably rewritten by the director, a scenario writer doubly responsible for "Un Carnet de Bal." Written, or rewritten, it adds up to a piquant picture bursting at the seams with stars, given a continental twist or two and, for my money, a tantalizing sense of familiarity with one of the tales, which I remember, but can't place.

• • •

This plagiaristic specter crops up in the episode where Edward G. Robinson, playing a down and out ex-big shot, goes to a class reunion wearing the ubiquitous tailcoat over a striped shirt neatly hidden by a dickey, and can't remove that coat when the business of searching for a lost wallet ceases to be a joke. This caustic comment on pride and prejudice is a classic story revised, but not improved. Mr. Robinson plays the rôle with his usual pugnacious skill, and with that white look around the gills that is the ineradicable calling card of the quick sobering up process. He is deftly aided by Jimmy Gleason as the untyped host of a Chinatown settlement—an unmusical fellow who automatically shushes a bird of passage who rarely gets past the whistled opening bars of "M'appari."

That fragmentary whistle is a kind of Gallic theme song, just as the leaning tenement towers and the surrealist décor of the Negro episode are signatures in French. That being the key, it isn't surprising that M. Duvivier originally hands his tailcoat, immaculately tailored, to Charles Boyer, who wears it gallantly in an amorous episode of double dealing.

The Ginger Rogers episode is reasonably gay, tho the girl can't yet carry a love scene. Given a female to talk to and her hair piled marquise fashion on top of her head, she is lovely to look at and the warmth of her mouth is reason for the close-up. Given Henry Fonda and a formidable pompadour, she does all right until she has to match him with murmurous excursion into rapture. Then it's like when she started to dance with Fred Astaire and you felt he was pulling her. But the girl learns.

• • •

Did you lose the tailcoat? Well, it showed up in that scene, still reasonably stylish, to change a girl's mind at the altar. But its adventures aren't over by a long shot. Charles Laughton wears it in a scene twitched out of farce by a pricking of bathos, and in the end a scarecrow wears it with a dignity as gently radiant as anything theater has known since "The Green Pastures."

Laughton, always a ham and sometimes succulent, squeezes into the battered coat to conduct his own composition by courtesy of the great Bellini, a conductor who looks like Alexander Smallens, but happens to be Victor Francen. The bulging coat gives way under arm waving and splits at the seams. The audience splits its sides. Laughton, in heartbroken rage, tears off the ruined coat. Bellini, on the host's theory that the guest is always right, takes off his own coat and sits majestically, shirtsleeved, in a box. One by one the men in the audience follow his example. The concert turns out to be a wow.

• • •

But I don't quite trust it, or M. Duvivier, who may have his tongue tucked gently in his cheek. Once I heard an opera debut where the audience broke down and roared when a soprano's hat fell off. Rude? No, just relieved. That audience had wanted to howl all evening at the soprano's singing, but was rigid, practically paralyzed, with politeness. From what I heard of Mr. Laughton's composition, the coat was the least of his troubles.

But M. Duvivier had me right back in the palm of his plan when he got to that last yarn of all, the surrealist spiritual in which the coat, crammed with stolen bills, tumbles like manna from heaven into a poverty stricken Negro community where Ethel Waters decides each man, woman, and child is to be given enough money to buy what he prayed for.

This is magnificent make-believe, with the translucent sheen of innocence. Paul Robeson's great voice gives it depth and not even Rochester can spoil it. When, at the end, they come to the crusty patriarch who really had prayed for a scarecrow, the ultimate bestowal of that tattered tailcoat is an accolade. It reaches out of the screen the way a poignant climax thrusts over the footlights. When a show does that it's good in any medium.

Notes of the Theater

The return of "Porgy and Bess" to the Studebaker theater has brought forth many questions about the earlier engagement of the George Gershwin-Du Bose Heyward folk opera. Here are a few statistics: In its original production, presented by the Theater guild, "Porgy and Bess" first came to the Erlanger theater on Monday, Feb. 17, 1936. The performance was directed by Rouben Mamoulian, who shortly thereafter began to devote his entire energy to moving picture direction. The settings were designed by Sergei Soudekine, and the costumes were conceived by Lydia Idelson. Alexander Steinert conducted the orchestra. In the current revival at the Studebaker the credits are as follows: Robert Ross, director; Herbert Andrews, scenic designer; Paul du Pont, costume designer; Alexander Smallens, conductor. In both performances Eva Jessye trained and directed the choir.

Alexander Smallens.

Six principal members of the present cast of singing actors were also in the earlier production—Todd Duncan as Porgy, Edward Matthews as Jake, Georgette Harvey as Maria, Ruby Elzy as Serena, Warren Coleman as Crown, and J. Rosamond Johnson as Frazier. The three most important changes are Etta Moten, now cast as Bess, instead of Anne Brown; Avon Long as Sportin' Life, instead of John W. Bubbles, and Harriett Jackson as Clara, instead of Abbie Mitchell.

Milwaukee may see another venture in stock production in December, despite the poor response to the three week season presented earlier this fall. If Russell Brice's plans go thru, the project will be initiated Dec. 11.

• • •

"This Is the Army" may not reach Chicago on Jan. 4 after all. At the moment the fate of the tour hangs in a precarious balance. Army officials who saw the soldier musical show in Washington were so swept away by enthusiasm for its morale-building value that they began to propose immediate filming of it, in order to get it before millions of Americans as quickly as possible. It is possible, therefore, that the tour may be curtailed soon, in order to ship the cast of 300 to Hollywood. If this happens, the Chicago visit of the stage company will presumably be postponed, and not canceled.

The Goodman theater continues to give James Bridie's "The Black Eye" for two more weeks. This comedy is the work of a Scotch author whose plays are not known in America. The Goodman is presenting the first American performances of "The Black Eye." At the Children's theater of the Goodman, Saturday afternoon performances of Charlotte Chorpenning's "Alice's New Wonderland" will be abandoned after this week.

LITTLE TOWN

the luncheon and fashion show for Greek relief had the strongest call upon Mrs. Starrett's time. She was needed to put the finger of approval on any promising models.

At the hotel, she was at once surrounded by the most important people. She smiled icily at two or three women and nodded to one of the males scattered sparsely over the scene. Ben Salto was recognized with just the right degree of warmth reserved for a valued executive of the Superba-Salto Productions on which her husband held the check-rein. Her nod inquired the reason of his presence and he joined her at once to explain.

The models were nearly all beauty prize winners, Mr. Salto said, instead of the debutantes who usually took on this chore. The custom of using fashionable young girls was becoming unpopular with the makers of clothes. It was thought that the Greeks would have a better chance with just beauty to recommend the show.

The models were lovely young creatures adorning the pretty frocks they wore with faultless teeth, lustrous eyes and the latest in hairdos. They knew they were beautiful and it was their business to be like that. In the audience might be opportunity and they extended their beauty to win it for them. One after another they appeared against the beige carpeted runway; blonde, brunette, redhead here and there for color. A beautifully staged show but it left Mrs. Jefferson Starrett cold.

She Sees a Shy, Charming Girl

She heard the ductile voice of Mr. Salto beside her, the voice that was the unerring arbiter of success when it approved for where it pointed the wheel of fortune stopped and a star was made as well as a few million dollars for Superba. Now it spoke in Mrs. Starrett's ear. "There's a girl I wish you'd look at her. I've promised her a test."

Bored, Mrs. Starrett allowed her glance to wander to the runway. A girl was coming down and she was the one. Ben Salto was never wrong. This girl had something that made you look at her, and when you did it once, you couldn't stop. She was about 20 and was made of milk and honey with a dash of violets. Shy, too, which was a charm of its own. They had given her boudoir clothes to wear and while she had never worn the like before, she knew quite well what to do with them. Her soft, dark eyes sent a swimming glance at the row of faces that came to meet her; then they were veiled and the toes of her feathered mules minced over beige velvet. She approached within a few yards of Mrs. Starrett, seemingly by design, and for a second the eyes were again unveiled in a look of intimate pleading. Then she turned slowly, retreating to the boudoir which existed only in the imagination. It was beautifully done.

"What do you think of her?" Ben Salto asked as if the girl had been made to order. "I was thinking of a tryout. She looks like a natural to me. Just notice the way she uses her eyes."

"Pretty," agreed Mrs. Starrett with a faint enthusiasm. She was more interested in good works than in pretty girls but she was just. "Who is she?"

"A contest winner from the hinterlands," her companion explained. "Runner up for Miss St. Louis who, believe me, I wouldn't give a ticket to bank nite for looks. This one comes from a little burg. Her title's Miss Bethany. Same state but a different number of votes."

"What did you call her?" Mrs. Starrett was looking straight in front of her.

"Miss Bethany. I may let her keep the name. It's pretty good."

"I'm afraid I don't care for the name," Mrs. Starrett said after a deliberate pause. "Or the young person. Or the way she uses her eyes."

Mr. Salton was deflated. "Well, maybe she ain't such a good bet. I wanted the woman's angle and you give it to me. Women are the customers."

"Wait," said Mrs. Starrett after a second pause. "After all, I hardly saw her. Perhaps if I heard her speak——"

Miss Bethany came as if she were walking right into heaven. She had a manner of her own tho she was so shy, a manner compounded of assurance and a bland certainty that with others of her kind she had overstepped all the years which older people have used to learn their lessons. She accepted an offered chair as if she had every right to sit in the presence of a patroness and talk about herself, her plans and the ladder of success she was so sure was under her feet.

It was the simple, typical little story of the contest winner whose next move was to win the big world after conquering her own little town.

"I just had to win," said Miss Bethany in a throaty little voice, "to get away from my home town to bigger things." The lashes lifted and clear, dark eyes looked into Mrs. Starrett's eyes. She waited, but nothing happened. She went on in a passionate whisper "My grandmother wanted to be an actress but she never had the chance, so she's living it over again in me. And O, Mrs. Starrett, I'm almost sure they're going to take me on at Superba. That nice Mr. Salto talked about a test just now. They want to see me——"

"Your grandmother," said Mrs. Starrett in a voice that was almost harsh. "Who—is your grandmother, child?"

"She is Mrs. Chester Burgess of Bethany, Mo. She was Emily Adkinson."

Mr. Salto appeared like a genii, who might have seen a lifted finger. They were waiting for Miss Bethany, he said, to take part in the winter sports display. When she had fluttered away he lifted an inquiring eyebrow.

Mrs. Starrett was pulling on her gloves. She was thru with Greek relief and the fashion show. "I'm sorry," she told Ben Salto, "but I don't think she has anything."

It was most brutal, decisive, but it is the way things are done in their world. You look facts in the face when it comes to investing money in a girl. Superba, with the Starrett money bolstering its morale, could not afford to see opposite from Mrs. Jefferson Starrett.

The Starrett limousine departed. The fashion show broke into scintillating particles that dissolved with the ices left among the ash trays. Dresses were folded into boxes and very soon the big dining room of the Worth-Devonshire was being readied for dinner and all the beautiful young cygnets who had paraded there were erased like chalk marks on a wall.

But Mrs. Starrett carried the image of one cygnet with her and installed it in her cyclamen and gray sitting room where her best thoughts were born. She spent a long time looking at it and the background to which it belonged.

"Emily," her thoughts ran. "Emily grown old, as you age in little towns, where the years are monuments."

Yesterday was as plain as the walls of her room. Emily in pigtails, walking home from school, arms tucked in with Daisy Balzer's arms, whispering. Emily in the barn loft giving a one woman show while Daisy took in the pins. Emily waving a furtive hand behind her mother's back, ducking her head, afraid she would be caught at it. And long afterward, Emily sitting in a big hay wagon beside a boy named Burgess, not looking at all but maybe covering her ears when somebody screamed and screamed and couldn't stop.

Mrs. Starrett found that she could remember very well for a person who lived such a complete life. A little practice and it was like opening a book of snapshots, each a little story in itself. Small things she hadn't thought of for years came back to her now and she knew that these pictures had been just below the surface of her mind, waiting, like submerged leaves, dead under the water.

That silly young thing who thought she would win because she was pretty, who thought herself welcome everywhere, so sure was she of herself! She would know better now. She would know defeat. When she went back home, she would tell Emily how, thru no fault of her own, she had found doors shut against her. She had been shut into the outer darkness when all she wanted was to be young and happy.

Mrs. Starrett asked a question of Ben Salto. "What becomes of all these young little faces that have nothing behind them?"

He made the familiar Hollywood gesture, mouth turned down at the corners, shoulders lifted.

"They stick around for awhile losing their looks. A youngster can't be hungry and hopeless and stay starry-eyed."

Of course she knew that.

"But it isn't always like that," he went on. "Some of 'em have what it takes. There are kids with iron in their backbones. They can starve and, freeze and owe room rent and you'd never guess to look at 'em. That's when they've got something, they couldn't lose if they tried. They never ask for help. They just go out and get what they want."

Time passed and Mrs. Jefferson Starrett was invited to be patroness of the Winter Fashion show for the benefit of French children who needed canned milk.

She threw herself into Bundles for Britain and entertained important political persons who wanted to get laws changed from one bad thing to another, but now and then she had an hour to herself and in one of these the butler announced with disapproval that a young woman had called for the third time and was urgent about seeing Mrs. Starrett. "She walked up from the bus, madam, and she has no card. The name is Burgess."

"Bethany is the name," said Mrs. Starrett ignoring his stare. "Not Burgess. You are wrong."

It was Miss Bethany, a little shabby, much thinner from so much waiting outside gates and missing lunch, but with the same starry brightness in her eyes. She began at once.

"I hope you won't mind my coming, Mrs. Starrett." There was the same swift eagerness. "But I wanted so much to see you before I went away."

"Are you going away? Then you haven't met with the success you expect." Mrs. Starrett moistened her lips which were suddenly dry.

That was true. "It takes a long time," said Miss Bethany with a sigh behind her words. "Longer than I knew. It's not simple at all. But it will come right. I'm sure of that."

"Do you think it will find you in Bethany?" Mrs. Starrett's laughter was not laughter at all. "How will you find success there? By marrying one of the local swains?" She meant to be cruel, and she was, but the barb did not strike home. The girl merely blushed.

"I won't be married for a long time," she said. "My sweetheart is in the army and we will have to wait. We want to wait until we've both done something to try out life." She looked down at her small folded hands. "I'm going home because I can get work there and save money and come back to try again. You see, they may change their minds about me, the studios, I mean. It looked so safe and sure and then something happened and they wouldn't see me again. They were all against me like a solid stone wall. I don't know what I did to make them that way."

"No, it isn't easy when every one is against you," Mrs. Starrett agreed. "And the worst is not knowing why or how you have failed. It happens to people sometimes and they go on, all thru their lives, wondering why and never finding out."

Memories of Her Former Years

Miss Bethany lifted shy eyes.

"But you don't have to give up. You didn't. You lived in a little town, but you made a success of your life."

Mrs. Starrett said, "What do you know of my life?"

"I know what my grandmother told me. You were little girls together. I suppose you've forgotten with all that has filled your life since then, but she hasn't, and that's why I came today. I thought if you would send her a little message, just a word, to show that you hadn't forgotten her—quite—she mightn't feel so badly about me."

Mrs. Starrett's pulse beat against her wrist watch and lifted it a little in measured rhythm. Miss Bethany watched, frightened, but going bravely on.

"No, I have not forgotten." Mrs. Starrett found her voice. "Not any of it. Not a day. Not any one."

"I'll tell them you said that and they'll be so happy. I don't like reminding you and I wouldn't, except for granny. She has so little to be happy about and when I wrote and told her about seeing you and speaking to you that time she was so excited she could hardly answer my letter. She seems so much older than you. I can hardly believe you grew up together. All of my life she's told me about you, how clever you were, how bright. How you always won prizes at school."

"Not all of them," said Mrs. Starrett. "She won some, too. The prize for recitation." She caught herself back from this and spoke coldly again. "You don't forget the place you were born or the first people you knew, no matter how old you get to be. I remember everything—" Her voice hardened. "Everything that ever happened in Bethany. Every one who lived there—then."

Miss Bethany leaned back in her chair looking very happy in spite of being thinner and shabbier and having to give up and go home.

"As they remember you," she said gaily. "You must remember my grandfather, too. I wish I did, but he died so long ago. He never did anything like—like—Mr. Starrett. He was just sweet and gentle. He wasn't made to be rich and successful, so grandmother wasn't either. They just lived on and on in Bethany. And you live there, too, tho you may not know it." Her rushing words overwhelmed Mrs. Starrett with their bewildering truth.

"When some one mentions how rich you are, how important; and when there are pieces in the paper about the good you've done and the people you've helped, the older ones, the ones who knew you, tell about how pretty and smart you were. There was never a girl in town so pretty, they say, nor so gay and sweet."

"Do you remember my father and mother?" Mrs. Starrett asked. "What does Miss Minnett—and Emily—remember about them?"

Miss Bethany looked puzzled. "That they were honest people and paid their debts," she said. She got up to go, pulling on her worn little gloves. Then her eyes met the older woman's firmly. "They say that your father paid his taxes willingly and met half the mortgage on the town hall, and that he gave the preacher a cow when the one he had, died. Little towns are like that. What you really do, lives a long time after you."

The door opened and Jefferson Starrett came in. He was a fine figure with a great white shock of hair and black eyes that danced admiration and apology at his wife. He had been playing golf against the doctor's orders and expected a scolding. "Now, Daisy—" he began before he saw that she was not alone.

Mrs. Starrett went over and kissed him. "Never mind that now," she told him. "Bucky, dear, I want you to meet a young friend of mine, Miss Bethany." She watched them shake hands.

"Bethany?" Mr. Starrett repeated. "How are you, my dear? The name is familiar. I've heard it somewhere."

"There's a little town in Missouri by that name," said Mrs. Starrett.

Mr. Starrett had to shake Miss Bethany's hand again, this time more warmly. "Sure, sure. Bethany, of course. Why, I used to own a Morgan mare——"

"Miss Bethany's going to stay with us for a while," his wife said. For a moment she looked her real age, yet somehow it only made her handsomer, because there was no strain of trying in her eyes, only a rare softness. "We'll take her around a bit and let people see her. She won a beauty prize in Bethany and she might as well keep the name. It belongs to her, somehow. Ben Salto might be interested, don't you think? We'll ask him for dinner tonight. Shall we?"

HILLS OF FEAR

and this sudden awakening, Bolivar was thoroly enraged. He was dead set on reprisals and he understood his business.

There was a rug beside the bed and he had landed upon it when he first struck at her. With its clinging fabric beneath him, he had got a quick start. But as soon as he left it, he was on the linoleum with which the room was covered. It was as slippery as glass and the big scales on his belly found no traction now. Even with this loss he was making fast time. There was something uncanny in the way his coils slithered on the smooth surface, so that every skid that he took made him gain on her.

She was within two strides of the opposite wall when she realized the significance of something which she had been seeing all this time and should have noted. The entrances to the kitchen and the shower were curtained by portieres, and there was no out-of-doors exit from the former room. It was the usual cubicle which one finds in these tourist cabins, with barely space enough to turn around in. If she went into it, she would be trapped.

The front door of the cabin offered the only chance for escape and the snake had her cut off from it. He was less than two yards behind her. She turned at a right angle to her former course, keeping parallel with the partition wall. The suddenness of the maneuver caught Bolivar unaware, she heard his head thud against the baseboard, and the slight gain probably saved her life, for if it hadn't been for that she would not have reached the one and only bedroom chair.

She had changed direction once more, just before she came upon it, and she was heading for the cabin entrance. She didn't see the chair, she happened to lay her hand upon it, just in time. The fer de lance had slid into a tight coil when it fetched up against the wall. The horny tip of its tail found leverage against the baseboard, and the coil dissolved immediately. The black body straightened like a whip again.

She had reached the junction of the partition and the outer wall before she turned toward the front door, and she was still in the corner when the snake struck. The chair to which she was clinging was one of those stuffed affairs which are designed for ease. Ordinarily she wouldn't have been able to lift it from the floor. But she lifted it now and she swung it.

It was a clumsy weapon at the best, and it would have missed its mark if the snake had not been in the act of striking. As it was, her blow was a glancing one, but it deflected the ugly head, and before the creature was able to coil itself for another thrust at her, she was running toward the front door.

She reached the door and grasped the knob; she turned it and pulled hard. It was a long time afterward when she remembered that the catch on the Yale lock had snapped shut when she entered the room. Now she was only aware that the door would not come open. She was pulling at the knob in a blind panic; she heard a slight sound behind her; a faint rustle of thin scales on the smooth linoleum. It was very close. She leaped upon the bed.

Marian Screams a Second Time

Alighting she fell upon her face. She raised herself on hands and knees just as the big triangular black head appeared above the spread. That was the second time she screamed.

. . . .

Herbert Billings was sitting in his swivel chair, staring against the white glare of afternoon sunlight which poured thru the front window. He had started up from his seat when Marian screamed the first time. And, as he stood there, leaning forward with both hands on his desk, he saw Red Warrington vault over the door of his topless car. Billings snatched his hat and clapped it upon his head.

But old habits are hard to break. He had been playing the game of safety first for a long time, and he was unblest with that lack of imagination which frees some men from the inhibitions of physical cowardice.

The thought of what might take place if he were to find himself again confronted by this red-haired youth—and this time in the presence of witnesses—made him resume his chair.

The processes of panic which transform a coward to a man who has forgotten all caution were beginning to work on him in earnest now. There were moments while he sat there when he was on the verge of leaping from his seat and racing to the auto camp. There was one moment when the impulse became so strong that he opened the top drawer of his desk and took a flat automatic pistol from it, but he never got as far as putting the weapon into his pocket. He had restored it to its place and was closing the drawer when Marian screamed the second time.

He was out of the office and half way across the street before he realized what he was doing. The shortest route to the back street was by way of the service station and across the vacant lot. He was passing the gasoline pump when he caught sight of the proprietor. He paused here long enough to ask:

"That fellow you were talking with just now? What did he want?"

"Not knowing, can't say." There was something in the man's face that confirmed Billings' worst suspicions. And as he went on, he had the feeling which comes to one unable to swim, who is about to plunge into deep waters.

Red Warrington had not come to a halt until he was in front of Mrs. Piper's cabin and now he was standing there, looking about him for some sign of trouble. So far as he could see, there wasn't any.

HILLS OF FEAR

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

Bolivar was lying beneath the covers, and he was coiled in a tight black circle.

What Has Gone Before

Marian Farley is driving out to Gold Center, Nev., to settle the estate of her brother Bill, who had written her he was about to strike it rich, just before she got news he was killed in an auto accident. From her hotel window in Tonopah she sees Red Warrington in the street below. She doesn't know him, but he looks up and blows her a kiss. Then she hears voices of three men, plotting a robbery, floating up from the floor below. As she leaves she meets the three men in the elevator, recognizing them by their voices. One is a soft-spoken older man, the other two are young men whom she hears called Bennie and Oscar. Continuing on to Gold Center, she stops by Beulah's tavern and encounters Red again. Just as she is explaining her trip to Beulah, the owner, Bennie and Oscar hold up the place and steal the mail sack with its $20,000 pay roll. Red leaves immediately after the robbery. At Gold Center she meets Herbert Billings, crooked promoter, justice of the peace, and administrator of Bill's estate. He tells Marian Bill's property at Contact hill is worthless, tho it once yielded gold and afterward tungsten. But he offers to buy it from her for $500 to help her get back home. She refuses, and doesn't believe him when he tells her her brother was drunk when he was killed in the auto wreck. He directs her to an auto camp run by Henry Piper and his wife. Piper turns out to be the older man she heard plotting the robbery. He is deputy sheriff, and he and his wife run a snake farm as well as the auto camp. He had intercepted Bennie and Oscar on their flight from the robbery, and with the aid of his wife, without their knowing it, he had switched sacks on them, the Pipers getting the one with the pay roll money. Billings, anxious to get rid of Marian, takes a dangerous snake from the farm and puts it in a sack. But he doesn't know Piper is watching him. He gets Piper to show Marian thru the snake farm.

INSTALMENT IV.

MARIAN noticed that Piper was shod in rawhide sandals and she shut her teeth tightly. She wanted to avert her eyes but she could not. He was, she realized, not unlike the snakes: slow in his movements and smooth, with the same blankness in his eyes.

And whether he talked or was silent, he held the same intensely disagreeable fascination that they held. She gripped the two by four railing tightly in both hands and leaned over it.

"These," Piper said, "are Arizona rattlesnakes. There isn't one of them less than six feet long and some reach eight. These smaller ones are from Nevada. Their bite is just as dangerous. People have given the rattlesnake a bad name, but he minds his own business."

He lingered beside the big heap of rocks for a few moments, describing the habits of the reptiles, paying no more attention to them—apparently—than he did to the boulders over which they had draped themselves to bask in the late afternoon sunshine.

Then he walked back toward the fence, and when he was midway to it something happened. He was passing a granite boulder on which a huge mottled rattlesnake was coiled. Another, paler serpent which was lying stretched out within a few feet of the rock, began to curl its body into coils just as he came by. Marian heard the peculiar dry buzzing which is unmistakable even to one who has never listened to it before. The two snakes had raised their heads. Piper had stopped between them. He stood there motionless, his big face was expressionless. It lasted for perhaps half a minute, then the snakes lowered their heads and he walked on.

"If that had been me or you," Billings said, "we'd be swelling up and turning black inside of half an hour."

Piper Tells How to Catch a Snake

Piper went on to the fence and returned with a long bamboo rod. There was a slender cord running along it, held by wire loops as a fishing line is held, and—at the end of the rod—was a slip noose of wire.

"This is what we use to catch a snake," Piper regarded Billings in silence for a moment, then he swept the rod downward. When he raised it again the noose held a six foot diamond back. Its mouth was wide open. He explained briefly how he milked the fangs of venom and released the captive.

"The poison is used in certain medicines," he said. "The rattlesnake has helped humanity, and it does not want to hurt us. Even after you have stirred him up, he will crawl away if you give him a chance. All snakes are anxious to be left alone, but some are more resentful at intrusion. There's one breed down in southern Mexico and South America — the fer de lance. I have two specimens here."

He crossed the pit slowly and halted near the opposite fence. He pointed to a snake. It was lying stretched out in the sunshine and it was all of six feet long, a dead dull black. Its head was as large as a man's fist. Piper said, "This is the female. Her mate isn't in sight now." He took two steps forward. He was poised on the balls of his feet like a sprinter. The big snake coiled so suddenly that Marian could not follow the movement. Piper sprang back, he turned swiftly and kept on retreating. The fer de lance followed him a few yards. Marian heard its dry hissing and turned pale.

"If I had come a step closer," Piper went on, "she would have chased me clear across the pit." He glanced back at the snake and when he looked around again he was smiling. "I call her mate Bolivar. After the great liberator. He's savager than she is. He stands up for his rights."

That ended the exhibition and when Marion went to Mrs. Piper's office for supper, she found herself giving every little bush a wide berth, scanning every foot of the bare ground ahead of her.

Mrs. Piper hadn't done badly with afternoon tea. It was a much better meal than many Marian had eaten during her journey, and she lingered over it longer than she had intended. It was getting on toward sundown when she returned to her cabin. She was sure that she had left the door shut when she had left it, but it was open a few inches now. She looked around the room as she entered. Apparently nothing had been disturbed. Afterward she remembered that the Yale lock was on, for it clicked home when she shut the door behind her. Then she saw the bed. There wasn't any doubt about that.

It had been made up like all beds in hotels and auto camps, with the covers tucked tightly beneath the mattress and the counterpane smoothed neatly. The only sign of disturbance which had been there when she went away to supper was a barely perceptible wrinkling on the spot where she and Mrs. Piper had sat down. Now the overlap of the sheet was awry and the pillows weren't straight, and — as Marian looked more closely, this became apparent — there was a lump beneath the covers. She went to the bed and jerked the covers back. Then she learned where the missing fer de lance had gone.

Bolivar was lying beneath the covers, and he was coiled in a tight black circle. Probably he was sleeping soundly, but his awakening was swift. The circle dissolved in a flash. The cabin was filled with the dry sibilance of the snake's angered hiss as he struck.

The office of Southwestern Tin, Incorporated, was on the sunny side of the street during the afternoon and the shade was always drawn before the window when the sun was getting low if Herbert Billings happened to be within. This particular afternoon, however, was an exception to the rule. The white hot glare which streamed into the room and raised its temperature to oven heat fell fairly on the wide desk and the little man was sitting behind it. He was not only perspiring freely, but he was, as the old saying puts it, sweating blood.

Like a good many men, who have embarked into similar projects, he had deluded himself with the idea that the going would be easy after he had made one bold stroke. It was a little more than two weeks now since the opportunity for riches had confronted him. The knowledge that a stranger from the east had got hold of property which promised to yield more than a million dollars right under his own nose, had angered him at first.

The apparent accident to Bill Farley had been astonishingly simple. Billings recalled the inquest that followed Farley's death.

That evening was a little more than two weeks behind him, but its closing incident had confronted him a good many times, and whenever he reënacted it in his memory he broke into a cold sweat. By virtue of his office as justice of the peace, he had been acting coroner. Also he had taken the rôle of witness. After the inquiry was completed by a verdict of accidental death, the jury and spectators had dispersed and Billings had found himself facing Red Warrington.

"You lied when you told them that," Red spoke between clenched teeth. "You know as well as I do that Bill Farley never took a drink. I had a hunch there might be something phony when I heard of this smash. That's the reason I drove over here tonight, and now I'm sure of it."

Listening to those words had been like hearkening to a judgment. And, just as time was beginning to restore his shaken sense of security, on the very day when he had received assurance of backing to develop the riches which were awaiting him at Contact Hill, Marian had appeared in his office with the calm announcement that she proposed to take hold of things.

Billings Faces Frightening Facts

Billings now was badly frightened, desperate with the discovery that, instead of solving his problems, Bill Farley's death was confronting him with new ones.

He was sitting behind his desk, trying to reassure himself with the thought that this second accident which he had planned was sure to go according to schedule. And if his attempt to frighten that girl away from here this afternoon should, by any mischance, result in tragedy, his own position would be even more secure. But the reassurance wouldn't come.

There were some things in the cabin which wouldn't look exactly right in case of official investigation. That was the trouble when you had to act in a hurry; you were bound to make at least one little slip. Like stowing away that fer de lance in the bed. That wouldn't look so good if it were to be told to a coroner's jury. And there was no telling how many persons might be on hand to bear witness to the disordered covers—or of the girl's statement.

There was, of course, the chance that if she were bitten she wouldn't be in shape to talk. The venom of the fer de lance works swiftly.

So he was waiting, watching the street, hearkening for the alarm. It seemed as if he had been here for a long time.

The street looked peaceful enough. Aside from the butcher's dog, which was industriously biting fleas in the strip of shade cast by the shop wall, and the lank proprietor of the service station, who was lounging in the rear seat of his battered sedan with his heels cocked up on the back of the front seat, reading a magazine, there wasn't a sign of life from one end of the block to the other.

As Billings waited a topless car shot into his field of vision. The car swerved into the graveled space before the service pump. The lank proprietor withdrew his feet from their perch and slid out of the old sedan to attend upon the wants of this new customer. Billings' eyes were riveted upon the shock of red curls above the steering wheel. He passed his tongue over his dry lips before he was able to part them.

To Red, impatient, it seemed as if the service station man were never going to get to work at the pump. His impatience turned to dismay when the other suspended operations after the first turn of the crank and remarked:

"By Julius Caesar, I knew I'd seen you som'ers."

Red shrugged his shoulders by way of reply and fixed his eyes upon the pump, but this attempt at hypnotism was unsuccessful.

"Couldn't forget a head of hair like that." The service station proprietor chuckled and withdrew his hand from the crank. He stepped over to the car and laid his arms upon the door. "You're the bird at the inquest. I heard you bawl out our justice of the peace."

Red was on the point of telling this lank nuisance that he would see him later, when the latter winked and looked around to make sure that no one else was within hearing.

"What you told him about Bill Farley was dead right. I could of testified to Bill's being sober as a judge that evenin', and Billings knows it too." Red straightened up in his seat at that.

"How come?' he demanded.

"My name," the service station man extended a well lubricated hand, "is Rand. Skeet Rand." Red took the proffered hand and said:

"Mine's Warrington. Shoot."

"Bill and Billings had some words that night before Bill drove away," Skeet said. "I happened to be there to hear what they was saying. That's how come."

"Quarrel?" Red's heart was beating faster when he spoke.

"It was on account of Piper," Skeet said. "You see, Bill's car was in my shop, and Piper had fetched it there. That was because Bill had parked in front of the fire house." He suspended his narration to guffaw. "The one and only traffic arrest we ever had in all the history of Gold Center. Piper says that Billings instructed him to take the car and put it where he did. And nacherly Bill was burned up about it.

"Me, I had been eating supper and I had come back to the shop because a couple of prospectors had brought in a pickup truck that needed a new main bearing. They wanted to get it out first thing in the morning. So I was figuring on finishing the job. But when I showed up, Bill's car was on the pit, and Bill come in right behind me. And just as we got inside the door, Billings clumb out of the pit. So Bill says,

"'Whut in hell are you up to with that car of mine?' And Billings, he says,

"'Up to nothing. I dropped my fountain pen into the pit and went down after it.' He was as red as a turkey, all steamed up. And the two of them went at it hot and heavy. It seems like Bill had seen Piper and Piper had laid the blame for what he'd done on Billings. So Bill declared himself. And Billings come right back at him, said he'd show Bill there was sech a thing as law and order in Gold Center, and that no tenderfoot from back east was going to get away with anything as long as he was jestice of the peace. He says,

"'I'm leavin' you drive your car out of here this time. But let it be a lesson to you.' And Bill got into the car and druv off." Skeet nodded. "That's how come I could of testified."

Red was silent for some moments. Then he asked,

"You were working on the pickup truck before you went to supper?"

"Sure was," Skeet said.

"Then how did it happen that Bill's car was over the pit when you came back?"

"I asked Billings that myself after Bill had left," Skeet said. "He tol' me he didn't know. Piper must of left it there. I never did ask Piper."

"Okay." Red managed to repress his feelings. "That settles it then. Bill wasn't drunk." And, he was thinking, it settles some other things too: how it happened that Bill was speeding downgrade around that turn for one.

A Secret Between Red and Skeet

This particular angle hadn't occurred to him before. He had been working on another, and, with the latter in mind, his desire to get thru Gold Center unobserved by Piper or Billings, had come very close to making him miss some vital information. He said,

"Okay. Fill her up, Skeet. We'll keep this to ourselves."

"Dumb as a clam, that's me," Skeet told him and went to work at the hand pump. He had the second gallon in the tank when the stillness of Gold Center was broken by a scream. Before he had straightened his back, his customer had vaulted over the car door and was racing across lots toward the back street.

. . . .

At the outside, it was perhaps two minutes before Marian's entrance until that affair in the auto camp cabin was over. It might have lasted only half that time. There was not much action and all of it was swift. But it seemed to Marian, when she looked back on it afterward, as if it had been going on for hours.

She never did know why she retreated so abruptly after she had drawn back the bed covers. The snake lashed out and came very close to getting her. If she hadn't started back so suddenly it would have.

That was when she screamed. Her mind must have been working queerly, for she did not know she was uttering the cry. The only thing she was aware of was the snake. For she recognized it then. She was horribly conscious of it: the head was shaped precisely like an ace of spades. That head was an ugly thing, almost as big as a man's clenched fist, and it was within a foot of her; there were two projections above the eyes, they looked like a pair of budding horns. The body tapered from the thickness of a strong man's wrist to a sharp point of horn at the tail, and it was over six feet long.

The room was square, it was not more than 15 feet from wall to wall. The front door and the bed were on one side of it, and, directly opposite them, there were two doorways, one of which led into the shower and the other into the kitchen. Marian was running toward the latter. The only sounds in the place were her footsteps and the hissing of the big snake.

What, with the mishandling to which Billings had subjected him,

Memorial Concerts to Aid Stock Scholarship Fund

PLAYS ANNUAL RECITAL

Patricia Travers, 14 year old violinist, who plays her annual recital at Orchestra hall this afternoon. She returns as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra March 18 and 19.

Strauss' Work 'Heldenleben' to Be Offered

By Claudia Cassidy.

Memorial concerts dedicated to the memory of Frederick Stock will be played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under direction of Hans Lange at Orchestra hall Tuesday afternoon, Thursday night and Friday afternoon. The program holds Stock's transcription for modern orchestra of Bach's Passacaglia and Fugue, C minor, his symphonic variations on an original theme, and Richard Strauss' tone poem, "Ein Heldenleben." Proceeds from the sale of tickets for all three concerts will be given to the Frederick Stock scholarship fund for young musicians.

The choice of the Strauss score is sound to the point of the inevitable. It was one of Stock's great triumphs, a masterwork of his lifelong friend, and the music he often chose to honor the memory of Theodore Thomas, founder of the orchestra and the first American conductor to list the tone poem on one of his programs. In the sense of musical struggle and eventual triumph, few will doubt that Stock's was truly the life of a hero.

Strauss himself said that he wrote "Ein Heldenleben" as a companion piece to "Don Quixote," to express "that heroism which describes the inward battle of life, and which aspires thru effort and renouncement towards the elevation of the soul."

The score also has particular interest for Mr. Lange, who conducts it for the first time in Chicago. Lange worked for seasons, both as concertmaster and as assistant conductor, under Willem Mengelberg, to whom the score is dedicated. This was during Mengelberg's association with the New York Philharmonic symphony, back in the '20s.

Mr. Lange also will conduct Saturday night's popular concert at Orchestra hall, featuring this program:

Overture to "Oberon"............Weber
Symphony No. 2, D major......Sibelius
"Peer Gynt" suite, No. 1.........Grieg
Scherzo and Nocturne from music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream"...............Mendelssohn
Symphonic Poem, "Les Preludes"..Liszt

Launched at long last by "Aïda," which took its traditional first night place when "Lakmé" was postponed because of Lily Pons' laryngitis, the Chicago Opera company has completed plans for the second week of Civic Opera house performances.

Jarmila Novotna, the beautiful Czech heard here in 1940 as Violetta in "La Traviata," returns in the same opera Monday night, Nov. 16. James Melton will be the tenor and Lawrence Tibbett will sing the elder Germont for the first time in Chicago.

Wednesday night, Nov. 18, revives Thomas' "Mignon," with Gladys Swarthout singing the title rôle for the first time here since 1939 when there was a minor uproar because she was dropped on the stage. Incidentally, Miss Swarthout has a forgiving disposition. A week from Saturday afternoon, which will be Nov. 21, Miss Swarthout will sing Carmen to Jan Kiepura's Don José. Only last summer at Soldiers' field this same opera was given new gusto when Mr. Kiepura inadvertently knocked Miss Swarthout out of breath and, temporarily, out of the performance.

With the handsome mezzo in "Mignon" will be Virginia Haskins as Filina, Richard Crooks as Wilhelm Meister [his first in Chicago] and Virgilio Lazzari as Lothario. With her in "Carmen," in addition to Mr. Kiepura, will be Licia Albanese as Micaela [she sang this rôle at Soldiers' field] and George Czaplicki, the Polish baritone, newly restored to the company, as Escamillo.

Friday night, Nov. 20, brings Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" in the usual Italian, despite earlier listing with the operas to be sung in English. Josephine Tuminia returns to sing Rosina, with Nino Martini, John Charles Thomas, Ada Paggi, and the veteran basso, beloved Vittorio Trevisan. Saturday night, Nov. 21, offers Verdi's "Il Trovatore," with Rose Bampton and Kerstin Thorborg, the latter singing her first Azucena in Chicago.

The operatic calendar for this week follows:

Monday at 8: "Rigoletto," with Josephine Antoine, Jan Kiepura, John Charles Thomas [who has not sung the title rôle here since 1935], Anna Kaskas and Nicola Moscona [debut]. Carlo Peroni conducting.

Wednesday at 8: "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lily Pons, James Melton, Richard Bonelli, Virgilio Lazzari. Pietro Cimara [debut] conducting.

Friday at 8: Board of education series—"Martha," in English, with Josephine Antoine, Coe Glade, James Melton, Douglas Beattie, Stefan Kozakevich. Ballet. Jerzy Bojanowski conducting.

Saturday at 2: "Lakmé," with Lily Pons, Anna Kaskas, Raoul Jobin, Alexander Kipnis. Ballet with Page, Mirova, Bowman. Carlo Peroni conducting.

Saturday at 8: "Faust," with Licia Albanese, Margery Mayer, Richard Crooks, John Charles Thomas, Nicola Moscona, Ballet. Fausto Cleva [debut] conducting.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Nicolai Malko, with Manuel and Williamson, duo harpsichordists, will give its second concert of the Orchestra hall season Wednesday evening, starting at 8:15. The program follows:

Suite, "Aus Holberg's Zeit," for string orchestra...............Grieg
Concerto, C major, for two harpsichords and strings.............Bach
Entr'acte from "Lady Macbeth of Mzensk"..............Shostakovich
Symphony No. 6, G major ["Surprise"]........................Haydn
Suite from the opera, "The Legend of the Invisible City of Kitej"...........Rimsky-Korsakoff

Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, the soloists, are too well known to need more than the usual welcome. Distinguished Chicagoans with a deep interest in ancient music, they own one of the more admired collections of instruments created for that music. Their harpsichords are Pleyel reproductions of the finest of Bach's instruments.

So far as I know, the entr'acte from Shostakovich's controversial opera is new on Chicago programs. Unidentified in advance, it may even turn out to be the celebrated interlude of trombone glissandos, considered in its time even more scandalous than the Straußian overture to "Der Rosenkavalier." This interlude was withdrawn from Russian performance even before Pravda attacked the work so bitterly the article was recognized as an official stop light warning the young composer. Nowadays, Shostakovich is back in high favor at home and he is page one news abroad.

The Grieg suite, "From Holberg's Time," certainly comes as unhackneyed, and the Rimsky-Korsakoff suite is listed as a first Chicago performance. Apparently Mr. Malko is holding out lures to balance Lily Pons' Lucia, which will be across town on the same night.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

Nathan Milstein is not scheduled to appear with orchestra during the Chicago season, but at least partial consolation is to be found in his new recording of Bruch's Concerto No. 1, G minor, played with the New York Philharmonic symphony under the direction of John Barbirolli [Columbia M-517, $3.50]. The brilliant Russian is in top form, with the round, glowing tone and pungency of line that make his playing unique, and Barbirolli's Italian lyricism delights in the fruity sentiment of the score. Passages of the slow movement and of the luxuriant finale are almost of concert hall caliber.

Nathan Milstein.

Egon Petri has recorded a distinguished Columbia album [M-523, $4.50] of the set of 24 Chopin preludes, opus 28, which were the moodily fascinating outcome of the composer's not too romantic excursion to Majorca with the lustrous and ruthless George Sand. During the trip, Chopin not only was so ill he was asked to move, but the landlord made him pay for having the rooms disinfected. Out of this alternately rosy and glum situation sprang the preludes, ranging in mood from the one made extra famous by "Les Sylphides" [No. 7, A major] to the mercurial dexterity of No. 18, F minor, in which Petri sounds like Rubinstein. The scholarly Dutchman plays them magnificently and the recording is generally good, altho not all the piano magic is captured.

Gladys Swarthout's newest album holds four arias from French operas, sung with the Victor Symphony orchestra, Wilfred Pelletier conducting [Victor M-925, $2.50]. Three reflect the boyish masquerade beloved of the mezzo soprano in opera—Gounod's Flower Song of Siebel in "Faust," the taunting serenade of Stefano in "Romeo and Juliet," and the flashing Styrienne from Thomas' "Mignon," while the fourth is Mignon's inevitable plaint of homesickness, "Connais-tu le pays?" Miss Swarthout sings them expertly, handling her voice with a skill that permits flexibility without loss of color or luster.

Orchestra at Harvard Opens Its 135th Season

The Harvard University orchestra recently opened its 135th season with a concert at Cambridge, when Malcolm Holmes began his 11th year as conductor. The orchestra has 93 members chosen from the faculty and from students at Harvard, Radcliffe, Wellesley, and the Boston preparatory school.

Stock's Music Is Silenced by War Hysteria

[This is the third in a series of four articles about Frederick August Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, who died on Oct. 20.]

By Cecil Smith.

The first years of Frederick Stock's service as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, after Theodore Thomas' death in 1905, were busy and fruitful. The ensemble and virtuosity of the orchestra improved constantly. The repertory expanded, under the influence of Mr. Stock's catholic and progressive taste. Public understanding of symphonic music grew by leaps and bounds, until in 1914 most of the inconsequential pot boilers which had kept earlier audiences happy could be transferred into a newly established series of low priced popular concerts.

• • •

By the time of the outbreak of the first World war, the Chicago Symphony orchestra had climbed to top position among American orchestras, a rank it shared only with the Boston Symphony orchestra, which was then directed by Karl Muck. Our orchestra dominated the musical life of the middle west, upholding and giving solidarity to musical standards such as had never been known before in this region.

But then came America's entry into the war. If anyone doubts Chicago's psychological and artistic growth toward maturity during the 25 years since that world catastrophe, let him examine the history of that strange, overwrought time. Somehow poor Beethoven and Wagner got mixed up in the public mind with Germany's responsibility for the military conflict. Standard German works slid rapidly out of the repertory, just as German operas disappeared from the Auditorium stage.

• • •

Upon Mr. Stock's undeserving shoulders fell the harshest blow dealt by this chauvinistic attitude to any prominent musician in America. During the course of the war two German conductors, Dr. Muck of Boston and Ernst Kunwald of Cincinnati, were sent to Atlanta penitentiary on charges of espionage.

Altho no charge of disloyalty was ever leveled at Mr. Stock, for the simple reason that he was never disloyal, the hysteria created by these arrests had its inevitable effect. When various citizens, whose motives were undoubtedly thoroly patriotic, found that Mr. Stock had neglected to obtain his final citizenship papers—altho he had taken out his first papers a number of years before—life became uncomfortable for the conductor.

In the fall of 1918 he retired from his position. Not even the signing of the armistice put an end to the nonsense; he had to wait several months to finish the formalities of naturalization before he was able to return to the orchestra.

If Mr. Stock's inner resources or his zeal for the advancement of music had been scantier, this ignoble incident in the orchestra's noble history might have had destructive results. But he picked up where he had left off, and the orchestra moved on upward. When Mr. Stock and the orchestra went east in the early '20s, the ensemble was widely hailed as the finest in the country. With the Boston Symphony orchestra in a state of post-Muck collapse, the New York Philharmonic in the dilettante hands of Josef Stransky, and the Philadelphia orchestra not yet fully molded into the Stokowski pattern, it was apparent to all observers that the Chicago Symphony orchestra alone had preserved the finest symphonic traditions thru and beyond the chaotic wartime years.

• • •

Thruout the decade of the '20s, with Mr. Stock at the zenith of his powers, the orchestra maintained its preeminence. The depression of the '30s, however, opened a new and less flattering chapter in the orchestra's history. Worried over declining income, the management instituted a regimen of sharp economy.

As a candid chronicler of Mr. Stock's professional life it is not my privilege to gloss over the destructive results of the penny counting economy of the last decade. The conductor submitted to a more cramped rehearsal schedule than has ever been allotted to any of the country's other major orchestras. Often there was not adequate time to prepare new and difficult works thoroly, and even the music of the standard repertory, which always needs pointing up, frequently had to be presented in public with little or no rehearsal.

Under these circumstances a good many of the concerts inevitably became workaday affairs, instead of exciting occasions marked by brilliance and polish. In his last years the uniqueness of Mr. Stock lay in his ability to compromise successfully with a managerial policy of such determined economy, keeping musical values constantly alive even in shaky performances, and even at frequent intervals providing interpretations of burning inspiration.

And so, during the closing years of a great career, Mr. Stock habitually had to ask himself not "How valuable will it be artistically?" but "How much will it cost in dollars and cents?" He was consistently urged to refrain from scheduling new compositions, even very important ones by composers like Hindemith and Shostakovich, in order to save royalty fees. Except during the 50th anniversary season, Mr. Stock found it impossible to continue his earlier policy of keeping his audience well abreast of vital new musical developments.

Sometimes, also, budget paring was practiced when assisting artists were hired. Who will forget Mr. Stock's superbly conceived concert version of "Tristan and Isolde," in which the Isolde sounded like an air raid alarm and the Brangaene made the magical warning music seem to be the utterance of a ghoul?

The orchestra's public has never fully understood Mr. Stock's crowning achievement, nor should it have been expected to. With an operating budget and a rehearsal schedule notably less generous than those of the three major eastern orchestras, he always kept the Chicago Symphony orchestra one of the big four. It was not in him to become temperamental, or to let the Chicago public down.

[The fourth and last article in this series about Dr. Stock will appear in this section next Sunday.]

'Die Fledermaus' Revived, This Time as 'Rosalinda'

But Critic Still Thinks It Is Stupid

By Burns Mantle.

Mrs. Lytle Hull.

NEW YORK—[Special]. —Someone is always reviving "Die Fledermaus." Know why? Because the Johann Strauss music is lovely, even tho the story is as soggy as a dunked doughnut. Because, too, the solos, duets, trios, and ensemble numbers offer fine opportunities to a variety of ambitious singing voices.

The newest revival in these parts is one made last week by the new opera company, which is Mrs. Lytle Hull's absorbing hobby of the moment, and a highly deserving enterprise. Mrs. Hull [who was Mrs. Vincent Astor, and before that a daughter of the Huntingtons] organized the new opera company a year ago with the announced intention of giving new singers and new composers a chance to show their wares and exhibit their talents.

• • •

Her first season was an artistic success and a financial liability. Less a liability, however, than many similar enterprises have proved. The subscribers were loyal, and this season the company has taken on two enterprises: First, this revival of "Die Fledermaus," now called "Rosalinda," and, second, another season of the new opera company itself, which starts next week with a first production of a new opera by the veteran Walter Damrosch, called "The Opera Cloak," and Moussorgsky's "The Fair at Sorochinsk."

This "Rosalinda" is another rewritten version of "Die Fledermaus," so far as the book is concerned, but no matter how often it is rewritten it always turns out to be extravagantly stupid. The only time I recall its having better than average wit is when Lawrence Langner did it as "Champagne Sec" for Peggy Wood and Helen Ford in 1933.

It wasn't much good when it was done over as "A Wonderful Night," or as "The Merry Countess," or as "Night Birds." The "Rosalinda" book adds a good line here and there, and what might be called a pinch of humor whenever any of the amorous males in the cast get close to Adele, who is the flirtatious maid. Max Reinhardt's son, Gottfried, and John Meehan Jr., wrote the new book, after a version staged by the elder Reinhardt in Berlin, before Hitler.

The chief charms of the new opera company revival are in its production, which is handsome [she is a generous patroness, this Mrs. Hull], and in the orchestral rendering of the score, which is under the direction of Dr. Erich Wolfgang Korngold, who came to America some years ago from Vienna and has written the scores of many musical films in Hollywood.

The cast presents a combination of super-amateurs and refugee professionals. The natives are led by Dorothy Sarnoff, niece of the NBC executive, who has a Metropolitan Opera audition to her credit and seems pretty sure to be singing in grand opera in another year or two.

Virginia MacWatters of Philadelphia has the soubrette rôle of Adele, and adds a pleasant coloratura soprano that wins her encores. Everett West of Chicago contributes one of those sweetly lyric tenors that has a way of fading into thin air, and Ernest McChesney of New Jersey will be singing the Von Eisenstein rôle as soon as his voice returns. Laryngitis robbed him of a debut opening night.

If you ask me, Barbara Bel Geddes is the best excuse for a new comedy called "Little Darling." Barbara is playing the heroine, tho she is not the lead in a strict sense. That rôle falls to Karen Morley, also an attractive young woman and a good actress. Barbara is the heroine because it is her adolescent problem around which the slim story circles. She is also the heroine because if it were not for her I don't believe there would be much interest in "Little Darling" as a play. Eric Hatch, a script man from Hollywood, wrote it.

Karen Morley.

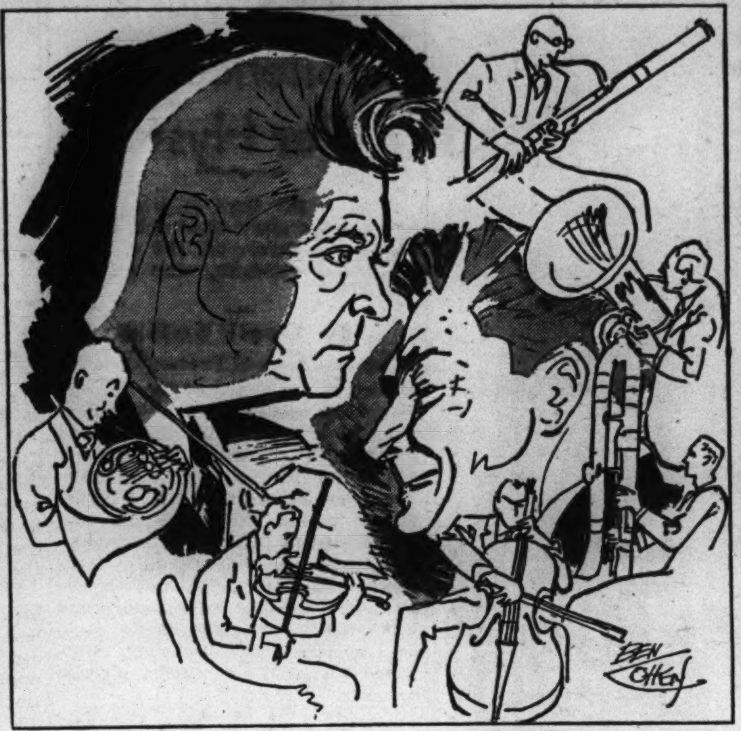
In the play Barbara is the daughter of Leon Ames, a writing man who comes to live with her father after her mother, who had divorced him, dies. Conditioned by the mother's reports, Barbara doesn't like her father. Especially she doesn't like him because he is a stodgy, unimaginative, puritanical prig. To some extent Miss Morley, who is father's secretary, agrees with Barbara.

Between them they convince father that he is rather a dull person. When Barbara's school chum, that would be Phyllis Avery, comes to visit, and turns out to be a very lively young person eager for adventure, father accepts the opportunity to have a fling. In no time at all he has dug up a risque farce he had written on the sly and had it produced. Immediately he and Phyllis become regular attendants at all the swankier night clubs and the despair of the family.

It is only when Phyllis' fiancé arrives from Milwaukee intent upon punching Barbara's father in the nose, and ends by taking Phyllis home, that father decides to quiet down and marry Miss Morley. Then the foolishness comes to an end.

Miss Geddes determined to leave the Putney school in Vermont and become an actress after a summer hanging around Alexander Kirkland's Connecticut stock company. She came to Broadway to play a part in "Out of the Frying Pan" and never went back to school. But Barbara in those days was just a fat and friendly young person with a small talent. Now she has become slim and lovely, a poised and knowing young actress who is quite sure to be going places on the stage and screen.

MUSIC MEN AT WORK



Rehearsals at Orchestra Hall are serious business. Here are two character sketches of Hans Lange and of several orchestra members at work in the Chicago Symphony rehearsal room.

[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Drama Notes

Lou Holtz, the suave master of ceremonies in "Priorities of 1942" at the Erlanger theater, was discovered by Elsie Janis, who heard him sing in a San Francisco night club. Miss Janis encouraged him to go to New York, but her advice bore no fruit until she herself returned to Broadway and booked him in the Elsie Janis trio, along with Val Harris and Rita Boland. After this contract expired, he continued in vaudeville, first with Miss Boland, and later alone. At that time he wore blackface and sang "O sole mio" to his own accompaniment on the ukulele. His first big time chance came when the Shuberts signed him for a Winter Garden extravaganza, "The World of Pleasure." Shortly afterward George White engaged him for the first "Scandals," and retained his services thru three subsequent editions. Among other musicals in which Holtz has appeared may be listed "Manhattan Mary," in which he was co-starred with Ed Wynn, "The Dancing Girl," "Tell Me More," "Anatole," and "You Said It." In recent seasons he has kept busy in night clubs and on the radio.

There is a Chicago girl in the cast of "Good Night, Ladies," at the Blackstone. She is Jean McDonald, daughter of the late actor Eugene McDonald and Dorothy Day McDonald, known in Chicago radio. Jean began acting at the age of 3 in "Why Men Leave Home," and since that time has developed her career principally in the field of radio, until Al Rosen's offer for "Good Night, Ladies" came along.

"Letters to Lucerne," Allen Vincent's and Fritz Rotter's touching drama of school girls in Switzerland at the outbreak of the war, seems to be the great favorite of the autumn with school and amateur groups. Northwestern has just finished presenting it; the University players of the University of Chicago, directed by Norma Evans and Frank H. Grover, schedule performances of it on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week, and the Little Theater of Western Springs, under the direction of Mary Cattell, will present it from Thursday, Nov. 19 thru Sunday, Nov. 22.

Three of the plays contained in Chicago's autumn list of attractions are included in the list of entertainments to be sent to army camps and naval stations by USO-Camp Shows. They are "Junior Miss," "Arsenic and Old Lace," and "Claudia." In each case the authors and producers have waived all royalty rights. John Golden has gone a bit farther than the other producers, for he has donated an original setting by Donald Oenslager and a full set of costumes. The other plays to be shown to the service men are "You Can't Take It With You," "The Male Animal," and "Room Service."

Theater guild subscribers have the privilege of buying admissions to "Porgy and Bess," at the Studebaker, at reduced rates. The opera is not a subscription play, however, inasmuch as the original production in 1936 was presented under Theater guild auspices.

LITTLE TOWN

By EVELYN MURRAY CAMPBELL

(Copyright: 1942: By Evelyn Murray Campbell.)

DAISY did not know until she was 16 that there were social stratas in Bethany and that her place was at the bottom.

The knowledge may have been coming to her little by little, seeping thru her pores, breathed in the slightly miasmic night air of the town, but if that were so, she had not recognized the truth and the lesson was no less shocking over a period of months when it was driven home and nailed firmly with the hammers and tongues of the Ladies of Bethany guild and similar organizations.

The beginnings of Daisy had been better than common. At 18 months she had taken the baby prize at the Gentry county fair.

As a real little girl Daisy was freely admitted to be the prettiest child in Bethany. Bright, too. She appeared in starched ruffles at all the Sunday school entertainments and had once been taken by a proud father to an Odd Fellows banquet where she spoke a piece from the middle of the table, very badly, too, for Daisy had no talent for the stage.

She grew up in innocence, accepting kindness and friendship as her right. She had the dear, darling comrades of adolescence, never doubting their loyalty, loving Emily Adkinson best of all, so that at 9, they planned in whispers to marry twin brothers and never be separated.

Emily was the one who was to have been a great actress except for the clause of the twins. She could make up whole plays out of her head and have them acted according to her will but she could never make an actress of Daisy, who preferred to take the pins at the box office.

Strolls Together in Village Paths

They walked home from school together, arms intertwined and planned their full futures, trustingly sure that it would all come to pass but at the big oak tree a block from the depot they would separate reluctantly, Emily's way leading her along a quiet, tree bordered street where white houses sat back in grassy yards in summer full of bleeding hearts and fuchsias; in winter with rose bushes trussed in straw like old ladies going to church in bonnets and capes.

Emily lived in the largest and nicest white house with lace curtains at the windows and when she entered the gate she left all play acting behind as well as intimate friendships. Her mama, Mrs. Adkinson, was president of the Ladies of Bethany guild and was strict with her family. Emily had to practice the piano one-half hour every day even if the skies fell.

But there was no need for Daisy to hurry home. She lived near the yard where the trains waited or shifted about and it was noisy and disagreeable there. Daisy's mother, Mrs. Balzer, was a handsome, dark, and defiant woman, always buttoned into a tight fitting dress that showed off her fine hips and a bosom adorned by the heavy gold jewelry Mr. Balzer had given her from time to time. She wore pins, watch, bracelet with an air of inviting Bethany women to show something better. Sometimes she took Daisy's hand and paraded the length of Main street, inviting them to show a prettier child. But it never came to anything. Jewelry and child met with no competition. When Mrs. Balzer came face to face with one of the guild ladies there would be a stiffening of spines, a tight smile or two, and perhaps a murmured greeting, "O, good evening, Mrs. Balzer," but no conversation.

Mr. Balzer kept the saloon. The location by the yards was a good one for the business and the railroad men found it pleasant and convenient to foregather there. A two story house was attached to the saloon and Mrs. Balzer kept a hired girl and had her parlor furnished in red plush with ball fringe, a room seldom opened because no one ever came to the house to call. If possessions make for happiness the Balzers should have done very well, but there were times when they struggled against a feeling of doubt.

Mr. Balzer would rub his smooth pink head and look troubled.

"I say, when Daisy is a little older she must go away to boarding school and we move into a house in another part of town, a stylish house, so she won't remember about my business. I think I might sell it out and buy a share in the mill."

They looked fearfully at each other and all of Mrs. Balzer's boldness vanished and she became simply a mother. "She's growing up fast," she whispered. "Don't wait too long, Herman."

Daisy's graduation from grade school was the peak of her parents' happiness and pride. She led her class, a slim, solemn young girl who had written her essay with an oddly prophetic title, "What We Owe to One Another." And when Herman Balzer saw his child receive a scroll tied with blue ribbon he must have felt that it was nearly enough glory for any man.

It was a little too much for other Bethany parents, for when the time came for Daisy to pick a boarding school it was discovered that the seminaries chosen by the Amblers, the Parkers, the Adkinsons, were all full. There was no place for Daisy Balzer.

It was bitter disappointment for Daisy and her Emily, too. They had looked forward for years to that climactic year at boarding school and if Emily's reaction was less acute and she was reluctant to speak of their imminent separation, Daisy never suspected the real reason. She saw her friend less often, but there was the new school outfit to be prepared.

She didn't learn the truth for a long time, almost a year. Mr. Balzer died of a sudden sickness before he had time to be refused by two other seminaries for young ladies he had been about to write to, and when it was all over and Daisy had become used to missing him, she found that for her the town was empty as well as his chair at the table.

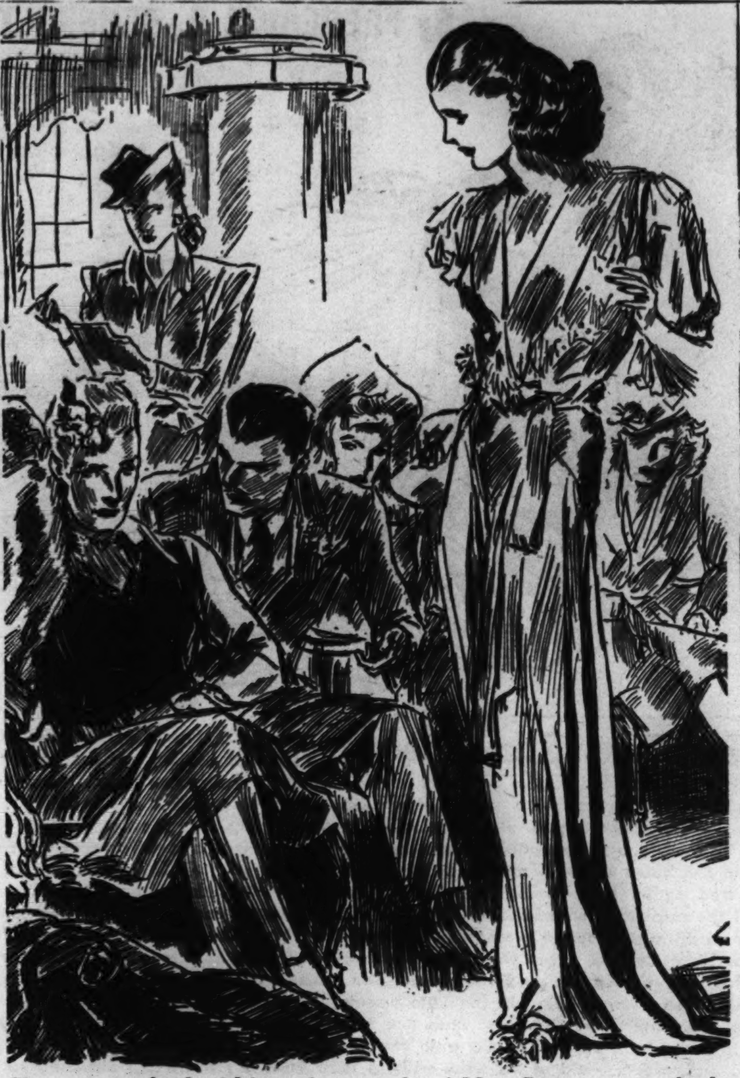
That was a dull time with Emily gone and only a letter now and then, stiff little letters that stopped with a Christmas card. But Daisy waited for the end of the term when the girls she had always known would be coming home from the boarding school year. There would be no second. One year put the patina of culture on the young ladies of Bethany.

Mrs. Balzer sold the business and opened a boarding house. She had to make a living and that was the only way it could be done in a small town. She was a good cook and when she got over losing Herman she took a lively interest in life and presided over a table always full of railroaders who stopped at her house between runs.

There were others who came there to eat her good dinners. The Starrett boys always came when they were in town and sometimes it was a little too noisy at the brown house by the yard and the sheriff would look in for a moment.

They were four brothers as alike as Airedales. Big, hulking fellows with identical shocks of ink black hair and scowling brows over black eyes. They carried chips on their shoulders and made no friends, for they were enough of themselves. It was no uncommon thing for two of them to battle fiercely while the others looked on with indifference. Or they would drink together and make flashing, slashing music on their instruments which they played by ear or instinct.

They were stock farmers and their place teemed with cattle and other stock. They raised corn for their animals to eat and bought the crops of other farmers who lost money on the deals. Usually they came riding in on Sunday afternoon and were beginning to get pretty high when they stopped at Balzers for steak and hot biscuit.



She approached within a few yards of Mrs. Starrett, seemingly by design.

The ladies of Bethany never went out on Saturday and the Starrett boys were four reasons. No woman would risk meeting them face to face and only the most daring peeped from behind Nottingham curtains as the four black Morgan horses trotted thru the town.

The Starretts knew that they were looked down upon by the townspeople, and sent fiery dark glances from side to side as they rode to the Balzer house and hitched their nags outside. But they did not think of how the townspeople regarded Mrs. Balzer, who received them and gave them the best cuts of steak and pieces of pie. They paid well, but nobody thought of that as a reason.

Buck Starrett was one of the middle four and a shade better and worse of the quartet. He rode in front and was first in all the deviltry and he had his eye on Daisy from the first time he saw her.

First Frightening Word of Marriage

Once he said to her, "When you and me get married we'll leave this place and never come back. I don't like it any better than you do."

She answered passionately: "It's my home. I love it. I was born here."

He looked at her. "Sho', honey, what difference does it make where you were born? It's all in how you grow up."

Marry! The word frightened her. She hadn't expected it to come to her so soon. She wasn't ready even to talk about it.

The winter was long and lonely, and once Daisy went for a sleigh ride with Buck Starrett behind two of the Morgans, and once they skated on the pond, pretending not to notice that they were left alone in the center where the ice was the very best and when they went to the bonfire the others walked away. Daisy wouldn't go again and Buck swore in front of her.

But summer was coming. . . . It was there. In June, the young ladies' seminaries were all out and the young ladies themselves, in cross-barred muslin, in summer silks and flower hats were at home, bursting over Bethany like a cloud of butterflies. And the parties and socials began.

Daisy waited for Emily, but Emily did not come. There was a tacit understanding about Mrs. Adkinson and one less tacit about Mrs. Balzer, and for years the two girls had met under the big oak and gone for a walk instead of visiting indoors. The oak was still there that summer and so was Daisy, lingering with her parasol and wearing her leghorn hat with the wreath of pink roses, but Emily never came. Once the Adkinson surrey passed and a hand waved furtively behind Mrs. Adkinson's spare back.

They did meet, tho. Emily stood on one foot and rubbed her ankle, while the customers in Curry's Dry Goods emporium pricked their ears.

"Why don't you like me any more, Emily?" Daisy asked. "What have I done to you?"

Emily forgot all her acting. "Nothing," she quavered, disgracefully near tears. "O, Daisy, I don't know why. If I did I'd tell you."

Daisy stood without saying a word. She gave Emily one look before she walked away with her head held high. For it was a curious thing that the moment she asked the question she knew the answer. She had known it all along. They had shut her out. She and Emily would never be friends again, not as they had been. The year at boarding school had changed that.

Daisy fell in love with a boy she had never spoken to—a little in love because her heart had to have something. His name was Chester Burgess and he was only spending the summer in Bethany. He looked at Daisy when they passed on Main street and she blushed and dropped her lashes but she knew. Then the next time when she had made up her mind to return his glance he was different and she knew about that, too.

. . . .

No Bethany girl ever missed the hayride. To be left out of that meant being an old maid or something equally disastrous. When the August moon was at its full was always the time. The largest dray in town, double teamed, was filled with new straw, baskets of jelly cake and fried chicken and the current crop of young people with two chaperons, set off for Old Mill pond and a moonlight picnic.

There was a crowd at Mrs. Balzer's last night. The four Starretts had ridden in from their farm and their dust filmed the house and the porch steps and the dying flowers along the path. Claud, the oldest Starrett had been drinking and was ugly and quarrelsome and Mrs. Balzer had trouble keeping the peace between the brothers and her regular boarders.

Old Mrs. Minnett from her position on the front porch was able to describe everything as it occurred. Daisy Balzer had been sitting on her porch steps for a long time. She was dressed and her face made a white blot as she watched the street. She did not seem to hear the noise in the house behind her.

Then from as far as Main street you could hear the ride coming, the double team trotting in the thick dust and the creak of the wagon, but most of all the singing. The young people had just begun on "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground—" when the wagon turned the corner and was in front of the Balzer house and their voices were drowned by an outburst from there, men shouting and swearing and scuffling and Mrs. Balzer trying to make peace. The driver whipped up his horses and the big dray rolled across the tracks to the Old Mill road.

And then, said old Mrs. Minnett, taking a long breath, what did she see but Daisy Balzer come running down from her porch full tilt, her white dress swishing around in the dust, all dressed up as if she was going somewhere, the moon showing her up as plain as day. She stood in the middle of the road looking after the wagon. Dust rose in a blinding cloud, after the wheels and thru it the girls and boys stared back at her as she started running, running after the wagon. Mind you, they hadn't made a sign but she was running after them. She looked like a ghost in her white dress and it was scary to see her. But not so scary as when she started to scream. Mrs. Minnett had never heard anythink like that, she said. Scream after scream. And finally making out what she said. "Come back! Come back! Let me go with you. Don't leave me!" Mrs. Minnett would declare to her last day those were the words.

Buck Starrett Comes to Rescue

But the wagon didn't turn back. Perhaps they hadn't heard. The wheels jolted over the tracks and the switching engine drowned out all the sounds. Daisy Balzer fell down in the dust and lay there, and Buck Starrett came out of the house and found her and carried her in his arms, into the house where the noise had stopped. Old Mrs. Minnett went into her own parlor and drew the blinds in spite of the heat.

Next day Buck and Daisy drove over to Albany and got a marriage license and the preacher married them in the church the same as if they had been members. But they didn't come back to Bethany. It was years before Bethany heard what had become of them.

. . . .

Mrs. Jefferson Starrett, wife of the well known financier and executive, patroness of charities and arts, directress of many organizations for the betterment of humanity, sat in the morning room of her Bel Air chateau and considered her engagements for the day. In case some one might not know, Bel Air is a rarefied portion of southern California, situated between the Pacific ocean and one of the largest motion picture studios.

Mrs. Starrett fretted her firm lip. It was not possible that there could be so many projects that wouldn't go on without her help and prestige. Reliefs were on the list by scores and the pressure of their sponsors was continuous.

She was a handsome woman of 58, looking younger because of classically arranged hair and an irreproachable dentine. Her husband was an asset, having interests that embraced nearly everything local that paid handsome dividends, from a major studio to a hand in state government. The Starrett nod had broken and blessed more than one cause, but so long as there are yes-men and women it will be like that.

With the aid of a secretary, poor Miss Hendricks, it was decided that

Karloff to Appear in "Arsenic and Old Lace"

Homicide Haha Play at Selwyn for a Brief Stay

By Cecil Smith.

"Arsenic and Old Lace," the comedy which makes a revel out of two elderly Brooklyn sisters' penchant for murdering lonely middle-aged men, will be back in Chicago tomorrow evening, for a stay at the Selwyn theater sternly limited to three weeks. When "Arsenic and Old Lace" spent 12 weeks at the Grand Opera house in the spring and early summer of 1941, Laura Hope Crews and Effie Shannon were the sweetly appealing murderesses, and Erich von Stroheim was their brother, a bad egg whose record of homicides around the world provided stiff competition [ouch! what a pun!] for the sisters.

Josephine Hull.

This time Boris Karloff, who created the part in the original New York production, appears as the international killer. Josephine Hull and Jean Adair, also members of the first company, play the rôles in which we saw Miss Crews and Miss Shannon 19 months ago.

The rest of the company arriving at the Selwyn tomorrow is passed off lightly as the "New York cast," tho this should not be taken to mean that every one of the players took part in the New York première in January, 1941. John Alexander and Edgar Stehli did, but for the sake of statistics it should be pointed out that Clinton Sundberg, who impersonates a dramatic critic, first functioned as a member of the earlier Chicago company, while Margaret Joyce, his vis-à-vis in the romantic subplot, started out with the now nonexistent third, or Boston company.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" is one of the sturdiest theatrical hits of the 1940s. In two more months the company at the Fulton theater in New York, which has already given its 750th performance, will round out its second uninterrupted year. This statement is a little misleading, however, for the cast has changed completely; the present Fulton theater company consists partly of players from the original Chicago cast, who took over when the troupe we are to see tomorrow departed for the Pacific coast in August.

The smashing success of the play in New York led to the formation of the second company, which, after a few break-in performances, opened in Chicago on April 6, 1941. This company had the misfortune to arrive at the Grand Opera house just as the managerial troubles of that theater were approaching a climax. Seemingly every one around the theater was deeply concerned with such intramural difficulties as the question of who would get his hands on the day's box office takings first, and who was going to manage the theater after June 30. Naturally this preoccupation did not make for effective exploitation of the show, and its run of 12 weeks was far shorter than its intrinsic popular appeal seemed to warrant. When the theater reverted from Sam Gerson's control to that of the Hamlin estate the management of "Arsenic and Old Lace," not wishing to become embroiled in a purely local jurisdictional matter, withdrew the play.

Because of this peculiar history, "Arsenic and Old Lace" by no means exhausted its potential public here, and the return engagement is especially to the point. Then, too, while Chicagoans were of different minds about Mr. von Stroheim's performance, nobody anywhere has had any words except those of high praise for Mr. Karloff's. The finished and effortless acting of Miss Hull and Miss Adair will also, I daresay, win approval, even tho Miss Crews and Miss Shannon were the pets of the public in 1941. [Laura Hope Crews, by the way, is slowly recovering from a serious operation which required her to leave her part in New York some weeks ago.]

Nobody has wholly explained the phenomenal popularity of "Arsenic and Old Lace." It is a freak among plays, for it succeeds in making both murder and insanity seem hugely amusing. Certainly neither subject has ordinarily been considered comic material. But the exaggeration of it all—no fewer than 24 corpses come under discussion during the evening—and the fairy tale unreality of the prevailing mood conspire to eliminate any trace of offensiveness. The spoofing attitude is carried thru to the final curtain calls, in which a group of the corpses, who have been buried in the basement, appear to take a bow. Then, too, it is hard to put too much realistic faith in a play which has a lunatic who thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt, charging up the front stairs under the impression that they are San Juan hill, and digging graves in the basement because he thinks he is constructing locks in the Panama canal.

Joseph Kesselring is the author of "Arsenic and Old Lace." A newcomer to the bright lights, it is safe to assume that he received invaluable aid from his producers. They are the pair who earned the money they invested by writing the stage version of "Life with Father"—Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay.

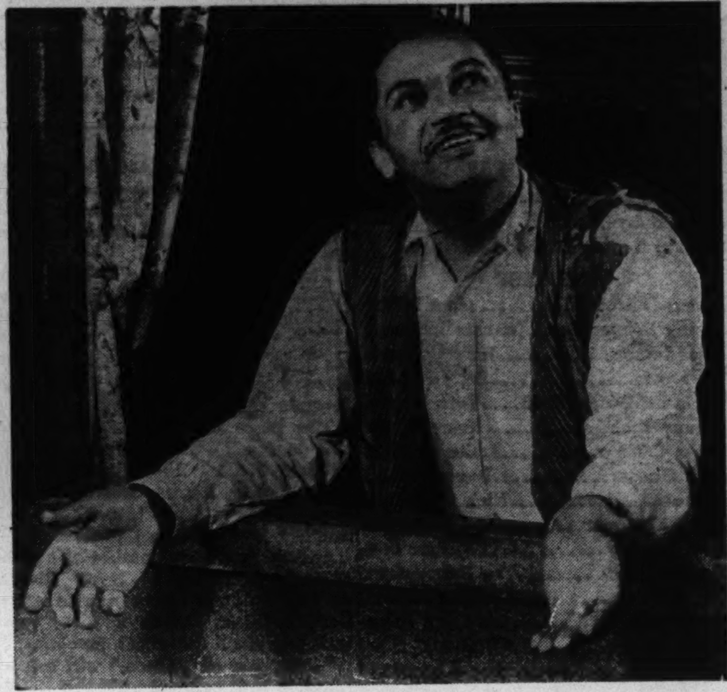
Perhaps it is a little late to talk about Gypsy Rose Lee's second mystery novel, "Mother Finds a Body," inasmuch as it was published a month ago. But since Gypola, as she likes to call herself, sought to imply in her inscription of my gift copy that she never dreamed I would write about it, I feel impelled to surprise her. What she said, to be exact, was "If this were 'Mother Finds a Body in A Flat' maybe you could review it." Was that a hint? I don't know. Clever girl.

Well, anyhow, "Mother Finds a Body" isn't as good as "The G String Murders," but it is pretty salty reading, just the same. The plot is even more trifling, and the book depends upon Gypsy's photographic—I suppose—reproduction of the vocabulary and mental approach, if any, of small time burlesque performers. This time it all happens in Ysleta, Texas, instead of backstage in a New York burleycue house. Did you know they went for burlesque in Ysleta? Neither did I. Read and learn; you'll never be bored for an instant, for there was never a dull moment in the Ysleta trailer camp, or in The Happy Hour saloon.

"I GOT PLENTY O' NUTTIN'"



The appealingly acted and superbly sung performance of Todd Duncan, as the crippled Porgy, is one of the good reasons for attending "Porgy and Bess" at the Studebaker theater.

Chicago Boy in One Scene of New Film

Cadet Sergt. E. Charles Upton of St. John's Military academy, son of Elmer C. Upton, comptroller of Balaban & Katz corporation in Chicago, may be seen, if only for the briefest of glimpses, in "The Major and the Minor," soon to be seen on the screen of the Chicago theater. The film's setting is laid at a mythical military academy, and to lend authenticity to it. St. John's was used for background. A camera crew from the Paramount studio spent several days at the academy late last spring "shooting" background and parade scenes. Most of this footage was left on the cutting room floor, except for one abbreviated sequence, which fortunately for the Uptons, shows E. Charles proudly on parade.

Cadet Sergt.
E. Charles Upton.

Reported Cadet Sergt. Upton to his father: "I still wish they had used the 'take' where I made the funny face."

750th Time for 'Arsenic.'

The New York run of "Arsenic and Old Lace" has now passed the 750th performance mark. It will continue at the Fulton theater indefinitely, or at least until the motion picture version is released on Feb. 6.

Anne Shirley Makes a Movie, but Not Without Some Trouble

HOLLYWOOD (AP).—How movies get made:

Anne Shirley, on location at Albuquerque, N. M., for "Bombardier," was supposed to run after a taxiing bomber in the dust of the prop wash. She was also supposed to fall down backward.

The prop man, one of those boys who thinks of everything, gave her a pair of heavy gloves to protect her hands from the sharp little thorns on the field.

"You'll have to wear these, too, Miss Shirley," he said, blushingly holding up a pair of thorn-proof pants.

Annie blushed, too. Then she replied that she thought she could do without protection from one direction.

After the first take, however, she came limping in, grabbed the thorn-proof undies, and summoned her maid.

"Bring some tweezers," she called.

Anne Shirley.

Good Morning!

This is kinda cute!

The background is an aircraft factory. The story is about the patriotic workers and a jive "seven unit" band that comes to entertain—for money—and whose members remain to work with the workers—and divert them on the side. For NUTTIN'.

That is—they all do excepting their blonde singer and dancer, who deserts them temporarily for a night club job. . . . While she's away, Johnnie Draper, leader of the band, gets all tangled up with a lady welder—quite as charming as the singer—and with a voice of her own. . . . She is quite willing to fill the place left vacant by Donna in the band—and, in Johnnie's heart. . . . Hot music builds up morale and production soars at the Eagle plant.

The band gets a lot of publicity and rumor has it that a company show, featuring Johnnie and Lee, the welder, is to be visited by certain big time radio bookers. . . . Donna comes back. . . . Guess which maid Johnnie picks for keeps?

The piece has some catchy songs and dances. . . . Featured is the Hit Parade's No. 1 song—"Conchita, Marquita, Lolita, Pepita, Rosita, Juanita Lopez." . . . The "Machine Age" number is swell—and different!

Acting is all acceptable tho none of it is remarkable. Betty Rhodes as the welding sugar merits attention, I think. With a little more training she'll be right smooth.

"Priorities on Parade" will sell because it is cheery, casual, and brief.

See you tomorrow.

Makes Career in Films by Being an Undertaker

Hollywood, Cal.—Lon Poff has made a career out of being perhaps filmland's busiest undertaker. In pictures since 1917, he has played 202 undertakers and has also appeared in 100 rôles as a priest. Al Hall, who rose to become a movie director, made his first professional appearance when 10 years old, portraying a gnome carrying a whisky keg up an artificial mountain in the stage version of "Rip Van Winkle."

'WHO DONE IT'

"Who Done It?" a comedy detective movie, has as its stars Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. Here's Little Lou a-peekin'. (Palace.)

Keeping Up with Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

In the Satevepost, first instalment of the story on Bing Crosby noted with the proper degree of awe that Bing made $1,000,000 a year. . . . That story underlines and points up The Great Freeze which cuts all salaries to $25,000 net, and thus hits Broadway and Hollywood right on the chin. . . . Bizarre things resulted: the plight of playwright Maxwell Anderson, who has been holding out for $250,000 for the movie rights to his "The Eve of St. Mark" . . . Movie companies will not make any big purchases of material until this new order is clarified. . . . Luckier was Quent Reynolds, biggest earner of the war correspondents, who sold his "Only the Stars Are Neutral" for a cool $100,000 to 20th Century-Fox about six weeks ago. . . . Unluckier: Jack Pearl, just starting a new radio series at big dough which now reduces to $500 a week net. . . . Last laughers will be Lieut. Clark Gable, Lieut. Hank Greenberg, Sergt. Joe Louis, Corp. Billy Conn, Lieut. Jimmy Stewart, Lieut. Doug Fairbanks Jr., and other fabulous earners.

• • •

Hardest hit of the movie crowd is Louis B. Mayer, paid as high as $705,000 in 1941. . . . Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Kate Smith, Edgar Bergen, and Fred Allen are a few of the radio stars who can be considered major casualties. . . . Bands like Harry James' crew, the brothers Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Guy Lombardo, Vaughn Monroe, Fred Waring, Phil Spitalny, and Horace Heidt must revamp their entire structures. . . . They got between $7,500 and $15,000 a week. . . . Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Jerome Kern are some of the top bracketed songwriters who will have to go back to single slices. . . . Only legit stage stars hit, I imagine, are Katharine Cornell, Helen Hayes, and Lunt and Fontanne. . . . In the night club field, affected are Billy Rose, Sherman Billingsley, and Leon & Eddie's. . . . So will be Orson Welles, Charlie Chaplin, Abbott and Costello, Bette Davis, Paulette Goddard, Lee Shubert, J. J. Shubert, Spencer Tracy, Gary Cooper, Claudette Colbert, Irene Dunne, Ginger Rogers, Katharine Hepburn. . . . The Great Freeze revolutionizes show business.

Cecil Brown's Clashes with the Censors

"SUEZ TO SINGAPORE," by Cecil Brown. [Random House, $3.50.]

Reviewed by William Shinnick.

Cecil Brown.

Cecil Brown's book is filled with high adventure. His travels as a radio reporter for the Columbia Broadcasting system took him to and thru Nazi occupied Europe and the middle east, always with danger close and closing in, before his bosses sent him to Singapore. He was aboard the Repulse when that British warship and the Prince of Wales were sunk off the Malay coast by Jap airplanes, and lived to tell a vivid tale only by swimming thru the oil covered sea to a rubber raft. Later he escaped death by a narrow margin in Jap bombed Java. Of such things he writes clearly, dramatically, and modestly.

But the greatest value of "Suez to Singapore" lies in the field of interpretation. Brown saw and understood the passing of an era—the era of the superior white man ruling the yellow and brown races of the orient. You do not have to read between the lines to realize how tenuous was the hold that the superior race nad upon its great possessions in the western Pacific with the war going on in Europe, or how little was the weight of arms assigned to those who had the task of defending Malaya, the Dutch Indies, and Burma. Brown tells you in direct words.

• • •

He has discussed adequately what he calls the Singapore mentality, expressed by the well dressed, prosperous European ruling caste dining and dancing and telling each other that it was unthinkable the Japanese would dare attack. "We are too strong, you know," was their theme, at a time when Singapore was a naval base without a navy and, as it developed later, without anything like a good defense against the land attack that came.

Correspondent Brown doesn't spare colonial British officialdom. He describes by name and position as good a collection of stuffed shirts as were ever hung on a line. And the line is a long one, reaching from Palestine to Australia by way of Egypt, Singapore, and a string of islands.

His most forceful complaints are about censorship. Time after time he relates how he begged to be allowed to tell his radio listeners some part of the truth about the territory he was covering—things that could be of no military value to an enemy; and of how officials of small position and no knowledge of journalism compelled him to change the meaning of his stories when they didn't refuse him the facilities to broadcast.

• • •

Brown makes it plain that he was trying to get over to the United States the truth that the Japanese were preparing to attack months before Pearl Harbor, and that the forces needed to stem simply were not there. His diary showed that he was urging truth telling so that the people of the United States would understand the precarious conditions and cease underestimating one of the great military peoples of the world.

The censorship barred "pessimism" and America continued to believe that Singapore was impregnable. The author believes—and his ideas were directly opposed to American isolationism — that great damage was done the allied nations' cause by this sort of whistling in the dark. And he also believes that the traditional British approach to the war—and possibly the American—is too sporty; that good, sound hate for dirty enemies is not only desirable but imperative if we are to win.

His case against a too rigid censoring of news dispatches is made on factual grounds. He quotes what he wanted to say and what the censors finally let him say. One of his conclusions is: "Petty, uniformed censorship is one of the prime saboteurs of morale."

For British and American fighting men on ships and on land Brown has utter admiration. For the British military leadership, with some notable exceptions, he has only critical words.

"Suez to Singapore" is a grand story of action. It is hard, two fisted reporting. It is a lesson in geography, in space and time, and in the supreme value of free speech. It is ruthless. And it reads as if it were completely authentic.

Swift Wit Flies from the Pen of a Contest Winner

"I CAME OUT OF THE 18TH CENTURY," by John Andrew Rice. [Harper's, $3.]

Reviewed by Marcia Winn.

John Andrew Rice was born on a plantation near Charleston, S. C., in 1888. The rest of South Carolina at that time was 19th century, but Charleston and its environs were 18th century. It had violence tinged with grace, the catholic view but a near escape from Catholicism, a passionate belief that the world could be better even tho Yankees must always come into it socially naked, a simple faith in simple words and long, clockless days.

Forty-one years later, because of chance curiosity as to the significance of some marginal notes in an 18th century book, Mr. Rice went to England on a Guggenheim fellowship. There, after 15 months, he discovered he was living in another century, the 18th, his own. "Swift was my author," he writes of that, "and Swift was one-half of the 18th century. Dr. Johnson was the other—and Swift was half, or more than half, of me. The trouble was, that I was both of them—minimum editions—and they were enemies."

• • •

With Julian Green, Mr. Rice is co-winner of the Harper $12,500 nonfiction contest for this, his autobiography. He has taken his 18th century background deep into his being, for he writes with the vinegar wit of Swift and the amiable cosmicism of Dr. Johnson. The combination makes for one of the memorable books of this time.

Mr. Rice does not consider himself a gentleman born. A gentleman in South Carolina is one born an Episcopalian, and Mr. Rice was the son of a Methodist man of God. His forebears on either side were cotton planters, but of the lesser gentry, and he has learned to be grateful for this omission of a kindly God, for he feels it gave him one less handicap to overcome.

As a motherless child he was sent to the plantation of his maternal grandmother. Here he learned to know too well his uncle, Ellison Smith, better known in the marble halls of Washington as Sen. Cotton Ed Smith, and one may safely assume that Cotton Ed from now on will disown kinship with his nephew, for Mr. Rice devotes many pages to displaying that elder statesman as a "persuasive model of irresponsibility" who fooled every one except his mother. Once, when the children appealed to her for denial of one of his stories, with a "Tell him it ain't so, Ma," she responded blandly, "Well, you know Ellie always sets his colors with lye."

• • •

To his kinsman Cotton Ed was one helped by his neighbors to "corrupt a brilliant mind and turn a gay and charming nature to devious ends." Once able to think, he ended up an evangelical politician, and "at some point in every speech the Lord's will got mixed up with the boys in gray storming an impregnable height, the purity of southern womanhood, Yankees, the glorious past, the still more glorious future, including the white man's sacred right to lynch . . ."

Mr. Rice seems to hold no brief for his native South, either the old South or the new South. He terms the old South a technicolor production of Thomas Nelson Page and Stark Young, whom he damns definitely by saying, "The pink cloud of memory held, no doubt, a drop or two of fact, and that is enough to water a myth."

• • •

Altho Mr. Rice contends that higher education, as practiced in the United States, can blunt even the brightest intelligence, he seems to have survived a good deal of it. He went to the Webb school in Tennessee, where he learned to think; to Tulane university, which he disposed of briefly [in his chronicle] as an introduction to numerology, and later, as a Rhodes scholar, to Oxford, which he found to be a state of mind. Altho his fellow Rhodians included Elmer Davis, whom he considered the one brilliant man there, Christopher Morley, and Edwin Hubbel, now a celebrated astronomer, the British eyed them all with the unseeing indifference they would give to "cannibals hopping about their pots."

He then settled down to teaching and wandered from Webb school to the University of Nebraska to Rollins college with its faculty of "golden personalities," to Black Mountain college, which he founded in abject dismay at higher education. He concludes of it, too: "That college education in America is not education in democracy needs no demonstration. Its model is European."

• • •

After a Diogenian search for democracy, Mr. Rice ends up thoroly disillusioned at people who, thinking they want freedom, "really want old things changed enough to make them feel comfortable," even in their 1942 war aims. "When Thomas Mann speaks about democracy," he says, "I do not listen. I have read his books, and I know what he wants—another sick Europe." In his 54 years he has found only one man completely fit and fitted to live in a democracy: John Dewey.

"I Came Out of the 18th Century" is caustic, provocative, critical, and still genial. It is 18th century Swift and Johnson without either a rime or a Boswell.

Family Welcomes Arrival of Baby

to soothe us; look hard at life, and tell us what you see.

Fourthly, the novelist might have studied his subject in the light of modern freudeolatry [that Fascism of the spirit]. Not that one should quarrel with the sound and excellent research of Freud. But one may quarrel with the theatricalities of the little freudlings, who find in psychological deviations the center of their work.

Finally, the novelist could have written a mere novel of escape, an "Anthony Adverse" or a "Gone with the Wind," full of puppets who whirl serene and dazzling thru the inconsequences of improbable adventure. Diverting books, useful perhaps—they pass the time while supper cooks and spare us for a while the pain of thinking. But no one is likely to regard as serious literature these brilliant ephemera.

• • •

"Summer After Summer" makes no concession to the cheap appeal of the sentimental, the didactic, the morbid, or the spectacular. This austere rightness is likely to disappoint the slovenly reader who confuses the function of literature with that of marshmallows, pulpits, or firecrackers. This is a rich, strong, profound realization of the most significant aspect of that world which the God of Genesis looked on and found good. Even in these days it is a theme deeper than war or politics; a study of that human process to which the great men of the world, even the generals and the Marxist critics, owe their being.

But serious as the subject is, it is handled not with cold grandeur, but with the most intimate awareness of the thousand trivial, humorous, ridiculous, and heartbreaking detours of life: The broken lawn mowers, the crochety neighbors, the embarrassing illnesses, the tyrannous children, the circuses, the hospitals, and the pitiful doxies.

• • •

Many of Mr. Sullivan's characters are memorable: Julie, the demon little girl; Aunt Eva, old Chard, and several others. Some who make only a brief appearance often remind us of those of Dickens or of Thomas Wolfe. In theme the analysis of apparent simplicity suggests "A la Recherche du Temps Perdu," but while Proust is interested in the finesse of the delicate psyche, Sullivan is interested in the less neurotic troubles of blood and sunlight, health, and quiet breathing.

For a first novel this is a work of unusual integrity and distinction, and one should not fail to see in it the beginning of a literary career that our generation can look forward to with the expectation of novels even stronger and richer than "Summer After Summer."

Tale of Roman Officer Told in "The Robe"

"THE ROBE," by Lloyd C. Douglas. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan.

If good intentions made great novels Lloyd C. Douglas' latest book would unquestionably rank very high. As it is, "The Robe" will surely be a popular book; it will richly satisfy some readers and will doubtless do many readers much good. But this should not be confused with intrinsic excellence. "The Robe" really represents the strange triumph of story over story telling, of subject matter and idea over craftsmanship.

It is the long, essentially dramatic [but actually rather slow moving] story of the Roman officer who at Calvary gambles for and wins the seamless robe of Christ, and who later, after a period of doubt and anquish and spiritual exploration, himself becomes a Christian.

• • •

The idea is, of course, magnificent; the material, perhaps the most important a writer can deal with, is charged full of dynamic narrative possibilities and shot thru with vital spiritual implications. Further, the parallels which the author perhaps too constantly stresses between the early Christian era and our own, while not new, are pertinent and will give the novel an added meaning for many readers of today.

But a good novel consists in the concrete embodiment in living characters and credible situations of its dominant theme. "The Robe" suffers as a work of fiction, not thru any defect of intention or material, but thru defects of execution which seem all the more regrettable when one considers the possibilities of the subject.

• • •

It is a long book—695 pages—and, altho the subject warrants great length, it does not justify the waste motion—the slack and diffuse writing—which one may detect on many of the pages. Nor does it justify the simplification and sweetness which here serve the purposes of wisdom and genuine feeling.

The historical novelist has always the basic creative problem of making the past come alive, and one of the traditional devices aimed at the solution of this problem is that of letting the characters speak in contemporary idiom. Mr. Douglas' success in using this device is debatable. For some readers his references to things of the past in terms of today may add an air of conviction to the whole book, for other readers they will no doubt prove cumbersome and distracting.

• • •

Still, the proof of the pudding lies in the eating. Whatever the defects of "The Robe" as a novel, they will do little to spoil it for those many readers who will happily be able to give themselves over fully to its inspirational story.

St. Lawrence River's Stern History Told

"THE ST. LAWRENCE," by Henry Beston. [Farrar and Rinehart, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst.

Ever since Henry Beston chronicled, in "The Outermost House," a year of life on the great beach of Cape Cod, readers have wondered when he would find another theme as suitable to his careful, kindling eye and his meditative mind. Now he has found his subject in the St. Lawrence, the great and timeless river of the north, and about it he has written a deeply satisfying book.

There are various ways to approach the life of a river valley. One may use the thread of time, or the sequence of topography, or a selection of men whose lives have mingled with the river's currents. Mr. Beston has found his own method, and it is right. Instead of attempting a chronology or a collection of historic episodes, he has selected the scenes, events, and persons, past and present, which have a living relation to the St. Lawrence.

The result is a richly varied and surprisingly unified picture, which includes the fabulous canoeman of three centuries ago and the patient pulpwood cutter, the bûcheron of today, and a number of other conditions of men and society in between. The picture is unified because Mr. Beston never loses the stern, elemental quality of that northern land.

• • •

Many figures appear beside the St. Lawrence. Some of them have long been familiar—the devout and philosophic Montcalm, the soldierly Lewis, the weary and tenacious Wolfe. Others are new. Here is the story of Esther Wheelwright, a Puritan child, who after six years of captivity among the Indians, left their noisy villages for the quiet of a convent, and was finally elected Superior of the Ursulines of Quebec. More poignant is the tale of Eunice Williams, daughter of the Deerfield minister, who grew up among the Mohawks and would not leave that life for the ways of her own people. When she was a mother of dusky Indian children she came to camp in the orchard behind the Deerfield manse, receiving her brothers and sisters of New England in that smoky wigwam.

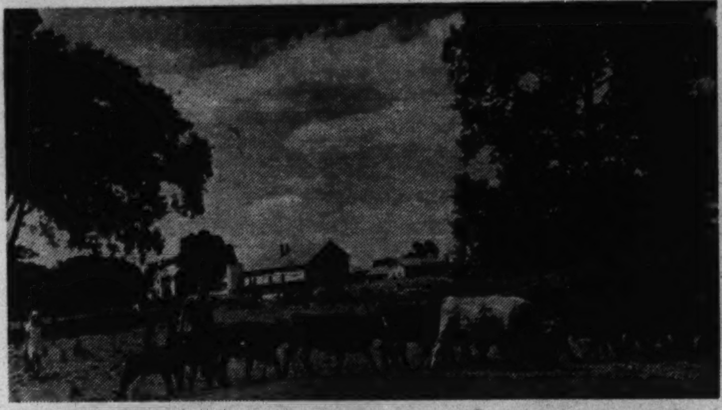
But the figure of most interest and the central character of this rich book, is the simple French habitant, "the man on the hillside, the woman at the window blurred with snow." How he lives, how he works and worships, his beliefs and superstitions and the legends he repeats on a winter night—all this Mr. Beston tells with unfailing warmth and understanding.

• • •

Over the St. Lawrence, history has moved with more color and dignity than elsewhere on this continent. Mr. Beston sees the landscape in the light of its past, and he conveys this to the reader with a sustained fullness of feeling. So one is made to see Quebec standing on its rock as on the prow of a ship, the sunlit cataract of Montmorency, a village gathered about the church with its coldly silvered spire, the annual flight of snow geese over the Laurentians, the ragged forests above the Côte Nord, and the repeated picture, in many moods but always with one spirit, of the vastly flowing river.

Thruout the book that spirit predominates. The great, cold river, grandly merging into the sea, becomes a presence amid the lives it has shaped and dignified. This is the achievement of a richly reflective mind and of a measured prose—both suited to the St. Lawrence with its lonely distances and austere light, its silence, its aloofness, its grave and cadenced history.

The book contains a number of sympathetic drawings, large and small, by A. Y. Jackson, and a well made index.



Louis Bromfield and his daughter look after the cattle on this 1,000 acre farm, "Malabar," in his native state, Ohio. The author was one of the many Americans fleeing France at the time of the Nazi invasion.

First Novel: Small Family Greets Baby

By John Frederick Nims.

"SUMMER AFTER SUMMER," by Richard Sullivan. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Richard Sullivan is already known as a short story writer of distinction. His work has appeared in the New Yorker, the New Republic, the Atlantic Monthly, the Yale Review, Scribners, Mademoiselle, Accent. and other magazines. And now his first novel, "Summer After Summer," is one that we of the middle west should be especially interested in and especially proud of. It is a good sign that his book is rooted in the region which he knows, but more important than any regional claim is the solid excellence of the story itself.

On the level of event, this story is a profoundly simple one. Mr. Sullivan assumes in his reader maturity, candor, and a high intelligence. His novel is about the happenings [for they can hardly be called events] in the home of a middle class family in the months before the birth of a second child. The little worries and reluctances, the distractions and the calculations are worked together into a crescendo of tension that is resolved only in the happiness that follows the birth of the child—a happiness based on a realization that "out of dead branches buds and then blossoms: Summer after summer after summer."

• • •

Given this simple material, there are a number of things a novelist might have done. A consideration of these possibilities will help to show the excellence of Mr. Sullivan's method.

First of all, the whole story could have been soaked in the sirup of sentimentality, everything could have been sweetened, doted on, and gloated over. There could have been much gurgling about sacred motherhood and innocent babyhood, much melodramatizing of the poor but honest family giving its all to bring the little fellow into the world. This kind of dishonesty, this pandering to the readiest emotions of the reader, Mr. Sullivan is scrupulous to avoid.

Or the novelist might have fastened on the reader's lapel and shouted forth a sermon novel, extoling the sanctity of the home or the love of husband and wife. He might have written a sanctimonious harangue, urging his readers to increase and multiply and populate the earth. But the wise and honest novelist is not concerned to vociferate morality. These things need not be said in words: Cor ad cor loquitur.

• • •

In the third place, the novelist might have written a propaganda novel, exalting the proletariat or the American way of life. These would be laudable purposes, but they are the purposes of the propagandist and the statistician, not the novelist, who is neither a time server nor a purpose server. Our request to the novelist should be this: Do not flatter us; do not try

The Inquiring Camera Girl

By Freida Zylstra.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each question on books submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Dorothy Johnson, 4512 North Paulina street.]

THE QUESTION.

What character in fiction is your favorite?

WHERE ASKED.

Pure Oil building, 35 East Wacker drive.

THE ANSWERS.

Robert H. Booth, chief building electrician, 2709 East 75th place—Detective stories comprise most of my fiction, so my favorite character is in that field. I admire Sherlock Holmes more than any other detective because he's just shrewd enough to be real. I like him, too, because I had to do similar work during the last war and I like to think we had a lot in common.

Josephine Messineo, secretary, 1422 Jonquil terrace—Some of the heroes and heroines of the classics have been my favorites, but when Scarlet O'Hara came along the others faded out of the picture. I liked her because she was so full of pep and energy and lived such an eventful life.

Eileen Tully, stenographer, 1330 South 59th avenue, Cicero—I like characters who are an inspiration to me. One of my latest favorites was a lovable, honest on that account is Randy Monahan in "Kings Row." She tomboy when she was young, and when she was older I think she was remarkably courageous.

Richard L. Brown, writer, 2304 Grey avenue, Evanston—If a character can be everything a woman is I consider it a masterpiece of creation. In "Vanity Fair" my favorite character lives and breathes in the form of Becky Sharp. I like her because she is such a beautiful portrayal of the true feline nature of woman.

Russell M. Trogman, salesman, 3252 Argyle avenue—Years ago I was one of Tom Sawyer's worshipers. Tho I have been temporarily infatuated with others, he's still my first choice. I admired him when I was younger and now I like him because he recalls my own pleasant boyhood days.

Helen Atmore, apprentice druggist, 7726 North Haskins avenue—Whenever a book is written in the first person I always feel so much better acquainted with the characters. That's one reason why Ellery Queen is one of my favorites. He's an aggressive young detective and always manages to get himself into such interesting situations.

Poet Finds Thrill in Cold Science and isolated phenomena fall into their places in a universal pattern, once their laws are comprehended. "Any one having these desires will make these researches"—yes, any man can do what I, Willard Gibbs, have done, if he has my desires. But, unfortunately for the human race, not one man in a hundred million possesses the cold implacable passion for creative research which drove this man to supreme achievement.

In this passion many a Yale legend had its origin. There is, for example, the report of an alumnus who visited one of his classes: "There were four students sitting with far away looks like angels on their faces while Gibbs stood at the blackboard, drawing circles with tears streaming down his face." On another occasion Gibbs, after a challenge to explain why a cat always lands on all four feet at once, filled his blackboards with figures so impressive that the Mathematical club was especially summoned to see the demonstration—but the cat, it is recorded, got away from them.

• • •

The disastrous cleavage between Gibbs, master of profound reasoning and extreme generalization, and contemporary inventors, practical scientists, and academic specialists is sharply pointed up in this narrative. Scientists are the men, one would assume, who should write the present biography; it was the indifference of some and the unwillingness of others to popularize the mysteries of science that drove this young poet to undertake the task.

Modestly but pungently she writes: "I was aware from the beginning of my limitations, and as I went more deeply into the material, of course I became even more deeply aware of them. I knew, too, that there were people alive who seemed to be eminently qualified to set down what they knew of the life and work of Willard Gibbs. . . . They were academic persons, they had personal knowledge of Gibbs and backgrounds of training rigid enough to be equal to what I could never have: namely, a critical knowledge of the details of his most complicated achievements and influence. However, eager as they were to acknowledge their qualifications, it was clear that they did not mean to write this book; indeed, in the mandarin tradition, they set themselves against even the thought of such a book."

• • •

Thus the scientists have, at least for the moment, lost Gibbs by default, and he has become the property of a poet. And the poet has written a very moving book—which will, of course, anger the men who did not write it. Muriel Rukeyser's enthusiasm should, in the main, be shared by her nonscientific public.

Angel in Top Hat Led Anti-Cruelty Drive

"ANGEL IN TOP HAT," by Zulma Steele. [Harper's, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly.

Here is the story of a fanatic angel as paradoxical as the New York he lived in. While sleek New Yorkers with gold headed canes grew fat on paté de foi gras and imported turtle soup, and Tenth avenue babies turned blue on swill milk, Henry Bergh, founder of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and one time dilettante, paraded the street in top hat, with his heart soft with sympathy and his eye alert for cruelty. He was quite capable of using mercilessly on the driver the same whip the driver had a moment before been using on the horse.

Conversion came late in life to Mr. Bergh—son of a wealthy shipbuilder—whose early manhood was devoted to the accomplishments of a neat polka and a little gentlemanly tippling. It was in Russia that he was first stirred toward his great movement by the sight of a tired peasant beating his tired horse. His sense of compassion overcame his sense of diplomacy and shortly afterward, tiring of the diplomatic life, he returned to his home town. Not long afterward New York began to hear from him.

• • •

His fight for kindness to animals was a long, tiring affair against the odds of ridiculing cartoonists, sharp penned journalists, and irate cabbies who cursed Bergh as he left them horseless in the snow. His hatred of the unnecessary blood and suffering at the bullfights of Seville prompted him to curb the American sport of rat and dog fights that flourished in the Bowery.

Bergh preached the doctrine that a man who would beat his horse is a man cruel in everything. And some of his most important action was taken on behalf of the overworked streetcar horses in New York. He had legislation passed to prevent the overloading of cars and the working of horses, sick or lame.

Many is the time the tall angel in the top hat was seen in the midst of a traffic jam, arms akimbo, cane in hand, waiting firmly while a crippled horse was led away or a fresh horse was brought to make a team to pull a heavily loaded car. His critics often berated him because he would dislodge a whole carload of tired women into the winter slush to take one tired horse back to its stables.

• • •

Mr. Bergh, his top hat never losing its gleam, shunted off the journalistic barbs and withstood the cartoonists' lampooning that followed his every move until he emerged one of the giants of achievement of the nineteenth century. His story is told with an accuracy and a graphic detail that makes this book an outstanding piece of biography and establishes Henry Bergh as one of America's dauntless and colorful crusaders.

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

IN NEW FILM

Don't tell anybody—but it's Fred MacMurray at whom Paulette Goddard is smiling so dazzlingly in the film "The Forest Rangers." (Chicago.)

Here's Your Movie Shopping List

By Mae Tinee

Well, let's see what we have coming up in the near future:

You might like to see "Here We Go Again" . . . . This features Fibber McGee and Molly, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy . . . . The McGees still live in Wistful Vista and have had invitations to their twentieth wedding anniversary turned down by the crème de la crème of that town . . . . They go away from there for two weeks by themselves, land in a bridal suite that's beyond their means, meet up with Bergen and McCarthy who are camped nearby on the trail of a pair of silk producing moths and from then on the four have times for themselves, to the tune of blackmail, pretty girls, romance [Edgar loves Jean Gildersleeve!] and a DISCOVERY that brings riches and happiness.

• • •

Then—another George Sanders movie is headed this way. It's titled "The Falcon's Brother" and depicts a new episode in the life of Gay Lawrence, the "Falcon" . . . . This being a mystery thriller, it wouldn't be fair of me to give away the plot, but there are murder and German espionage to complicate matters . . . . The ending I know will surprise you . . . . Featured with the popular Mr. Sanders are Jane Randolph and Tom Conway. The latter is George Sanders' real life brother and you will recognize him as that appealing actor you've been yearning to see in bigger and better rôles.

• • •

"Springtime in the Rockies" also will be around, with Betty Grable, John Payne and Carmen Miranda to keep your interest buzzing. It's in technicolor, and has a theater background . . . . Betty and John play co-stars who break up, separate and, eventually, come together again. . . . Between breakup and the grand finale are many happenings that present Carmen, Harry James and his Music Makers, Charlotte Greenwood, Edward Everett Horton and others entertaining.

• • •

Another item is "Flying Tigers"—dealing with the exploits of the American Volunteer Group, who originally joined the Burma Road patrol as soldiers of fortune . . . . The cast is headed by John Wayne, John Carroll, Anna Lee and Paul Kelly . . . . And remember Mae Clarke? She's there, too.

Think any of these coming films might appeal to you?

This Town Called Hollywood . . . . By Phil Scheuer

John Farrow.

John Farrow stood in a downpour of rain shouting orders to a milling, bedrangled throng of Chinese refugees on the road to Shanghai. A couple of white men were discernible beside a stalled truck, and upon closer observation they proved to be two actors named Alan Ladd and William Bendix. They were soaked to the skin and looked miserable. Farrow wore a raincoat and boots, but he was wet, too.

He didn't mind. This was child's play to him.

The war has made John Farrow Hollywood's leading director of pictures about the war. Before "Wake Island" he never turned out a really distinguished work. Since that one he's completed "The Commandos Come at Dawn," with Paul Muni, and is now well launched into a Paramount super—"China." The reason for all this is that some one in town had a brainstorm and decided to let a man who had seen actual combat make movies dealing with same. Unprecedented, you'll agree — but it worked.

• • •

Between the windup of his contract with R. K. O. in 1940 and his return for "Wake Island," Farrow was a lieutenant commander in the royal Canadian navy. Part of the time he served on a corvette, in charge of depth bombs, fire hose, and the operation necessary to abandoning ship. He says little of his actual activities beyond this, but he came back with some definite ideas on what and what not to do in films about World War II.

"I found two glaring faults in our movie setup," he says. "Nearly all our soldier types were old men, veterans of the last war and the Foreign Legion. This is a young man's war!

"In the second place, I couldn't find a worn German uniform. Especially the officers'. They were all spotless, so help me! For years Hollywood has unconsciously been the best propagandist for German efficiency, picturing the typical Prussian as a strutting martinet bedecked in monocles and medals." He shook his head. "I've seen prisoners. . . ."

The male players are always coming to Farrow with the same question:

How do men react under fire—but really, now, on the level? Farrow's sardonic answer is to subject them to conditions as close to those on the battlefield as he can without actually killing them. When he filmed "Wake Island" he lined up one actor with every three marines—and no favoritism shown. "I told them it would be tough and that any one who wanted to quit had better do it now. Only one did."

The explosions were carefully planted, but they were real. "I think the boys found out there was no time for heroics," he grinned. "When they were killed they were dead—and quick."

Farrow shot "The Commandos Come at Dawn" around Vancouver Island and Victoria, B. C., with Canadian troops training as Commandos. The officers on the cruiser he used played themselves. So did several Norwegian boy flyers who had escaped the Nazis. "And we all got peppered impartially with shrapnel—including the camera crew," he added grimly.

Well, how do men react under fire? "Off the record, and speaking for myself alone," Farrow confided, "my worst fear was that I wouldn't behave well. I suppose a good many chaps feel the same way.

Maureen O'Sullivan.

"Once, after an attack, one of my superior officers remarked that I was a 'cold fish.' Maybe I was just a better actor."

Farrow spent three weeks on a gun battery at sea. "One day a raider sent some shells across," he said. "We were called to our action stations. One kid, an officers' steward, had hysterics. An older member of the crew promptly clouted him one. The danger, you see, was that the hysteria might spread.

"The British have a smart trick of changing the men's positions on the battery after every three salvos. This keeps every one so busy—to say nothing of yelling at every one else—that there's no time for inaction and the fear that comes with thinking. The yelling lets off steam."

Farrow warns that war pictures don't fool audiences for long today. "We have a big army and there are bound to be servicemen in every theater. Not only that, every mother's son has a mother—and you can bet she knows what it's all about, too! As far as I'm concerned, when I decide to make a picture about anything—no matter what—I feel it should be truthful."

Director Orders a Parade in Manila; Here's What He Got

HOLLYWOOD, (AP). — This is the way they do it in pictures:

To film a bunch of leathernecks parading thru Manila for MGM's "Salute to the Marines," the director ordered the following:

Eight assorted mongrel dogs.

One hundred and sixty young extras dressed in marine battle garb.

Two hundred and fifty Filipino men and women to be part of a cheering crowd.

One peanut vendor with cart.

Three villainous Japs.

Two hacks and drivers.

An assortment of 35 street signs.

A 60 piece band.

P. S.: The order was filled exactly except for two items. The Marine extras were on the "married-men-with-dependents" side. And the villainous "Japs" were born in China.

Powell Picks a Crew and It's Professional

Hollywood, Cal.—Dick Powell isn't too sorry his regular crew, Humphrey Bogart and Jascha Heifetz, couldn't join him for a Sunday sailing race. Powell spotted a couple of sailors and, with their aid, won his race. Later when he learned they were just back from a South Pacific battle, Powell took them to his home and had them as his guests at a studio next day.

Tale of Subs at War Packs Heavy Punch

"WE DIVE AT DAWN," by Lieut. Comm. Kenneth Edwards, R. N. [Ret.] [Reilly & Lee, $3].

Reviewed by Lieut. W. C. Eddy.

It is seldom that a writer as well qualified as Lieut. Comm. Kenneth Edwards has available the wealth of material on a subject such as that covered in "We Dive at Dawn." This story, based on the development and growth of the submarine service of the royal navy, could only have been written by one who himself had been a part of the "trade."

Having access to the documentary history of the operations of the submarine divisions of World War I., the writer has spun a yarn that beggars description. To the layman, his chronological descriptions of the operations of the "pigboat fleet" against Germany during 1914-'18 would be sheer fantasy except for the authenticity of the course. To the submarine officers and men alike, his restrained treatment of the so-called "hazardous service" comes as a welcome relief to those from the pens of less qualified writers.

Commander Edwards opens his story with a quick but satisfactory glimpse below decks in an operating submarine. From then on to the end the story gathers momentum and interest as in true sailor style the yarn is told. Altho presumably compiled previous to the present conflict, a chapter covering the use and effectiveness of the submarine strength of both the allies and the axis is timely and instructive. Likewise, his commentary on the strategical and tactical effectiveness of this branch of the service is one that presents the facts in concise and deliberate arrangement.

• • •

Humor abounds in the naïve descriptions of incidents that were anything but funny at the time. There is the story of the G-11 patroling off the coast of Germany in May, 1918. Sighting a barrage balloon which had broken loose and was drifting on the sea, the G-11 set out in pursuit—intent on salvaging the bag. Shortly before the submarine overtook it, the starboard screw stopped dead. Immediately the floating balloon kited skyward. Investigation revealed that the mooring cable had fouled the submarine's screw and the sudden arrest of the drifting had caused the inflated ballon to fly like a kite. Amusing as it was to picture a submarine anchored to a barrage balloon, the situation was anything but laughable to the crew in these destroyer infested waters. Luckily, the condition was rectified before inquisitive enemy ships could carry out their investigation.

• • •

The book tells of submarine battles with submerged nets, mine fields, and surface craft. One cannot help but marvel at the dogged attempts of the E-boats to force the passage of the Dardanelles or their infrequent nosey trips into the mouths of the German sea ports.

Lieut. Comm. Edwards does not attempt to sell the heroism of the submarine service, but limits himself to a raconteur's berth in connecting the series of incidents that go to make up the rich history of this infant service.

Lieut. Comm. Edwards knows his submarines. None but a "pigboat sailor" could have written a book that rings with such accuracy and still holds the nonseagoing reader in its power from cover to cover. It is not a light book but a story as compressed with essentials of interest and stark drama as the boats themselves.

A "well done" to Lieut. Comm. Edwards for a book that tells the story of the "submarines" as he wants it to be told!

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By CHARLES COLLINS.

IF you think you are an up to date humorist when you say, "Maybe he's got something there," listen to this: In 1794 a young French poet and patriot, sentenced to the guillotine because he had objected to the Reign of Terror, said as he was led to the scaffold: "Pourtant j'avais quelque chose là." ["Nevertheless, I had something there"—in the head he was about to lose.] His name was André Chenier. Giordano's opera based on his career is occasionally sung in Chicago.

* *

When careless literary historians traduce one's friends, indignation is in order. So this column rises to defend Gene Markey, described by Ben Hecht as wearing dinner jackets with velvet collars in the bright years of Chicago's literary renaissance, circa 1925. This charge against his perfect taste in dress will make Lieut. Comm. Markey mad enough to run amuck thru the entire Japanese navy.

* *

In that Hechtic period Chicago's minor literati babbled a magic name over their gin and water at studio parties. If you did not speak it with reverence, you were a gate-crasher, a boob, a philistine, and a Babbitt. The name was Remy de Gourmont, a French essayist and novelist who ran to fantasies of learning. "His novels," according to Nitze and Dargan in their history of French literature, "contain a good deal of thought—chiefly about sex."

* *

De Gourmont is fairly well forgotten now, and Chicago's cultural chatterers have a new shibboleth—Shostakovich, the Russian composer.

* *

Howard Vincent O'Brien, who carries a card in the Chicago columnists' union, is taking bows among the book buyers this week. His contribution to the holiday trade is "Memoirs of a Guinea Pig, or Eight Years in a Doctor's Waiting Room" [Putnam]. Thus he joins the group of philosophers who have found humor in contacts with the medical profession. Molière started the game; Bernard Shaw took a hand in it, and Sam Blythe, the magazinist, made this vein of humor almost a profession. We will take Mr. O'Brien's book along whenever we head for Tucson to get rid of a sinus.

Anthologies of verse are no novelty to us, but Franklin P. Adams' "Innocent Merriment" [Whittlesey House] is something to celebrate. The veteran New York columnist, who is also an early alumnus of THE TRIBUNE's Line o' Type or Two, has collected into a stalwart and well printed volume his favorite items in humorous and satirical rhyme. It is a book that can be used for reference during a lifetime, or read with pleasure from pages 1 to 502 in two or three sittings. Mr. Adams writes his own review in the preface, and we will not attempt to improve upon him. We particularly indorse his remarks on the book reviewing phrase, "light verse," in which he observes that no critic ever speaks of any one as a "heavy verse" writer.

Long before Pearl Harbor we asked a librarian how many books had been published in the United States in the preceding year. He told us. "My, O my," we exclaimed, "that must be the world's championship." "Not at all," he answered. "Twice as many volumes were published in Japan." The only way we can figure it out is that one volume in English print requires six volumes in Japanese ideographs.

He Tried to Save Life of Austria

"BETWEEN HITLER AND MUSSOLINI." [Harper's, $3.]

Ernst Rudiger Prince Starhemberg, son of an old Austrian family in which the army was the traditional career of a gentleman, was barely old enough to see service in the first World war. Shocked and stunned by the disintegration of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, he sought for ways to save his country—what was left of it—from complete oblivion.

He organized the Heimatschutz—"home guard"—and became a leader in the political developments which kept Austria in a turmoil from 1930 till Hitler's occupation. He knew Hitler and Mussolini, Dollfuss, and Schuschnigg, von Papen and Emil Fey. Nazi agents tried to bribe him. Mussolini tried to aid him. Some of his party wanted to make him king. Few men of his age have had such an important rôle in the politics of middle Europe.

His memoirs can hardly be neglected by future historians, when it comes time to put together the story of this frenzied age. The experience he records embraces events of tremendous dramatic power. But he has not, unhappily, the gift of writing about them dramatically.

Poet Thrills Over Life of a Scientist

"WILLARD GIBBS: AMERICAN GENIUS," by Muriel Rukeyser. [Doubleday, Doran. $3.50.]

Reviewed by Tremaine McDowell.

Of the notable services which Muriel Rukeyser here performs for the reading public, perhaps the most spectacular is her demonstration that Einstein was right when he said concerning a man whose name the majority of us have never heard: "Willard Gibbs is, in my opinion, one of the most original and important minds in the field of science America has produced." And many readers will be convinced that there is justice even in the unqualified superlative employed by J. McKeen Cattell, editor of American Men of Science: "I regard Willard Gibbs as the greatest American man of science."

Altho adequate recognition did not come to Gibbs during his lifetime [he died in 1903] or in the years which followed, the tremendous influence on native and on foreign scientific thought of his Phase Rule and the literally incalculable results, both present and future, of its application to industry make it clear that here is an American about whom the future will have much to say.

• • •

For this seemingly incredible neglect there were powerful causes. Gibbs recognized the significance of his own work, but he was at once a reticent Yankee and an austere scholar, unwilling to make the slightest gesture toward self-salesmanship. He was content to publish his early papers in the obscure "Transactions of the Connecticut Academy." Provincialism in his college, Yale, prevented that institution from recognizing his genius until President Arthur Hadley inaugurated a new era at New Haven. The overwhelming majority of his contemporaries in science prided themselves on their own rationality and damned him, if they knew that he existed, as a madman attempting to break down the unalterable laws of their little world. Finally, the articles in which he announced his momentous findings were all but incomprehensible to 19th century scientists, save for the enlightened few who found them superbly lucid and illuminating.

Franz Werfel Couldn't Help Writing Novel

By Tom Lewis.
Los Angeles, Cal.

When you meet Franz Werfel you know without asking why he wrote "The Song of Bernadette." He could not help writing it, any more than he can help writing the story of America which he loves. He has not done it yet. But he will do it. He surely must—out of pure gratitude and understanding.

After you have been with him an hour, during which he does most of the talking, you suddenly realize what you have already suspected. This man is more than a mere novelist. He is a poet—an outrageous poet.

"My father," he says, chuckling a little, "wanted me to be a glovemaker." Then, proudly: "And I am. I can make the gloves. I have the—" Here the expressive eyes widen behind their thick lenses, the artistic hands take up their ceaseless gesturing. "I have the—."

"Certificate?" you suggest gently.

"Yes. Kept it. This is the proof that I can make the gloves." He chuckles again. The man does not laugh much. He cannot readily forget the unspeakable cruelties of the Nazis he has condemned for many years. "But I did not stay with it."

• • •

Of course not. Poems begged to be written. Plays were clamoring for expression. "My father thought I was crazy. A poet! But is there a place for gloves, and no place for the poet?" At 15 he was selling. Then he had the laugh on his father.

"The Song of Bernadette," the grim fulfilment of a sacred vow, is, in very truth, a poem. But, as Werfel explains: "In our epoch an epic poem can take no form but that of the novel." You have many questions for this rotund little man of 52. But he fears you will not understand him—apologizes for his broken English.

"You have difficulty following me?" Certainly not. Not many Americans speak much better. How does he write? Is there a conscious plot? Does he draw up an elaborate scenario? No. That is Hollywood; that is synthetic. His people are living, glowing entities; he lives and glows with them. They shoulder their way into his consciousness, sit down with him, amuse him no end. They come to a road. they go down that road, they see a by-path, they take that by-path. Is that all right? Yes. That is as it should be. But if they wander too far afield? The artist will see to that.

• • •

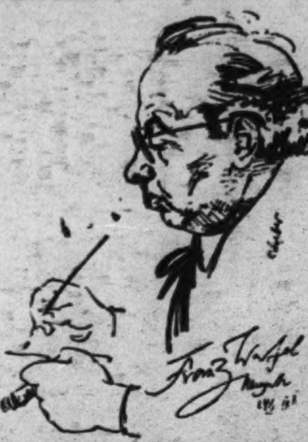
"I listen as they talk. Sometimes they talk a great deal. But I want them to surprise me, I expect them to do so. Yet they must not bore me. If they bore me they bore my readers." You gather, after an hour with Werfel, that there can be no legitimate excuse for boredom.

Does he hammer out copy on a typewriter? No. He writes rapidly, with a pen in copy books, the script slanting slightly upwards. He does the entire first draft like that. Sometimes he writes 9 or 10 thousand words at a sitting. Is that the end? No. That is the beginning. Then he does it all over again. In those books? Yes. With a pen. It is more intimate that way. How long did it take him to do "Bernadette?" Three months.

What—the man writes in German, in penscript, and completes 575 pages in 90 days? Twice that much, he says quickly—"for I threw away half." The finished draft is handled by a typist. He dictates, from his own script, directly to the stenographer. Is it, then, final? No. There remains revision. Is a work ever truly finished?

• • •

Translation gripes him. Not that he hates translators. He loves them. In fact, you gather that this courteous Jewish refugee loves everybody. He hates tyranny, evil conditions, not men. "In translation," he says, "we lose so much that is precious. In our own consciousness we ring the delicate nuances. The tongue and the ear—they try them, test them."



Franz Werfel, author of "THE SONG OF BERNADETTE."

He regrets he cannot swing the English, but for the present, at least, he must follow the old method. "I project my characters as well as I can, but what you get is a paraphrase."

You ask him: "What of our American writers—is there hope for them, despite all this commercialism?" Yes, of course; your true artists always will remain true to his trust. You have men who are fast becoming articulate. Dos Passos, Hemingway, Steinbeck, Faulkner. Hemingway was great in "A Farewell to Arms"; not so great "For Whom the Bell Tolls." Faulkner will achieve greatness despite the fog, despite the exasperating mysticism.

We all pass thru the fog, do we not? It is like the piano. Keep up the practice. Finally, there is lucidity, perhaps perfection. And yet, paradoxically, when we reach the ultimate form, we will surely know that there was something besides practice behind it all. That is when we reach the full and understandable dimension.

• • •

The war? It may end sooner than most expect. The fall of 1943 may see the crack-up of Mussolini. Hitler? Doubtless his own henchmen will kill him when the tide begins to turn. Is there an Atlantic charter sufficiently broad to encompass the whole world? Assuredly.

And America? Here the man's eyes fill with tears. Here he has found peace and sanctuary. America, he says, must lead the world. Can she? Yes. But hers must be a true, spiritual leadership. The old world must become the new world.

Hands turn constantly inward toward his heart. You know he is singing the song of America. "I shall gladly become an American," he says softly, "for here is peace, here is freedom for the soul." There is a trace of tears. In your own throat there is a lump.

The hour draws to its close. As you prepare to leave him, you realize your pencil, idle for the hour, has not made a single notation. Yet the man has told you many things—has left many things untold.

• • •

Suddenly you recall it was like that before. With Galsworthy; with Conrad; with Hemingway; even Faulkner. They wrote, they talked, they made you feel. Abruptly, as he is curiously silent for a moment, you ask Werfel about this.

Yes, he confirms at once, an artist must be like that. He writes out of his own vast experience, observations, and clairvoyance, and if he feels intensely he can transfer this feeling. He can project his thought. He can safely leave out many things—and yet the discerning reader will surely see, and know, and thoroly understand. All this is truly within the province of the real creative artist.

• • •

Driving slowly thru the Beverly Hills twilight, you are assailed by a sudden thought: This man came to America a decade ago to supervise a play—then, being in love, returned to Europe. Suppose he had remained in America? Then, there would have been no "Song of Bernadette"—for this moving story emerged from his own great tribulation under Hitler. He came out of his terrible baptism of fire to keep a sacred vow. He landed in America, the land of boundless opportunity, to write and magnify the divine mystery and the inate holiness of man. This is his simple, eloquent hymn of praise.

Author Gives War Drama's All Star Cast

"MEN BEHIND THE WAR: A Who's Who of Our Time," by Johannes Steel. [Sheridan House, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Ferdinand Schevill.

This volume will be welcomed by every one in need of a handy reference book covering the names in the war headlines.

They are not all of them here by any means. The leaders in both of the Americas, for instance, are purposely omitted, possibly because the author plans to treat them in a succeeding volume. And no more than a limited selection of big names is presented from the remaining continents and peoples. Grouped by countries, they come to 14 for England, to 10 for Germany, to 9 for Russia, and so on in diminishing numbers thru the list, winding up with a division of leftovers entitled Friends and Quislings.

• • •

While every informed reader will lament the absence of some special favorite or pet aversion, it will have to be conceded that we have here a fairly representative roster of the momentarily outstanding personalities of the areas embraced in the survey.

Abundant detail and skilful artistry contribute to the readableness of the sketches.

Apart from a few men, such as Wavell, Brauchitsch, and Timoshenko, who classify as soldiers, Steel writes of politicians of every conceivable outlook, himself a politician or rather political observer of a single, inalterable outlook. Every page proclaims him to be a Democrat, a Socialist, and an internationalist, and he holds to his triple faith with such fervor that he would fain make the whole world over in his image. It follows that while he takes his stand without reservation with the allies, he is obliged to admit that some of the leaders on his side do not measure up to requirements. Among them are Churchill, Halifax, and Chiang Kai-shek, and it is a credit to his sincerity that he does not hesitate to balance good with evil in their case.

Happily there are a few contemporary figures to whom he can give a practically unqualified indorsement. Such are Mohandas Gandhi and the dean of Canterbury. But as his considerable ironic powers are held in abeyance for all save his Fascist enemies, it is in his sketches of them that he achieves his greatest vigor and picturesqueness.

• • •

It is an interesting fact that, serviceable as this volume is as a guidebook among present day celebrities, it throws as good as no light on the character of the revolution thru which we are all aware we are passing. Not only does the paper jacket make a contrary claim but it goes so far as to declare that the men portrayed are shaping the future of the world. Here, surely, is a monumental misunderstanding of the nature of historical change. Change is, it cannot be conceived to be other than the resultant of an enormous complex of forces reaching back for generations and centuries. While the political spokesmen treated in this book owe their importance to their having identified themselves with some of these forces, they have in no case created them. Moreover, there are vast categories of forces tied up with religious movements, scientific discovery, industrial technique and class conflict that are not even honored with mention. This is, of course, no flaw in a work that has not made the world revolution its theme.

ward and guileless about them which attracted me."

• • •

If the author was uneasy with men his age, he must have been terrified in the presence of women, for outside of his own family not one woman is mentioned. How unreal the world of the author was may be emphasized by that fact. And how different from the youth and young manhood of Americans in this country, even of our writers. The almost embarrassing frankness with which Theodore Dreiser and Sherwood Anderson have written of their own lives is in strict contrast to the inability or unwillingness of Green to admit the more intimate and revealing aspects of his life. This is his right, but it does make the book both less interesting and less valuable.

Some of the writing is remarkably trite. This may be due to the fact that this is Julian Green's first book to be written in English. Yet this is not the kind of travel book writing one would expect from an original writer of reputation. "To see Venice for the first time at the age of 17—well, whatever dreams I had, and I lived much in my dreams, this surpassed them all." Most of the book is not like that, but fluent, quick, and full of the feeling of a life utterly different from anything possible in America.

Folk of Hills Exposed to New Learnin'

"CLOUD WALKING," by Marie Campbell. [Farrar and Rinehart, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Delbert W. Hamilton.

Marie Campbell, educated at Southern Illinois Normal university and George Peabody college, Nashville, Tenn., became interested in the folklore of the southern mountain people while teaching at a small settlement school in the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky. She collected folk ballads, legends, and bits of dialog, and made notes of her experience among the mountaineers.

From this material Miss Campbell has written a fascinating narrative of life in the mountains. The book contains a series of stories and sketches which have the continuity and intensity of a novel. The chapters are centered around the Tollivers, Nelt and Sary, and their children. Nelt is the generous and humble father who "hankers" to educate his children—"many a time Nelt misput hisself for learning because he favored it so strong."

• • •

Sary is the dependable mother who keeps a "tidy house and cooks good victuals," and "has a sleight at taking care of sick folks." The appearance of two "furrin" teachers is a cause for excitement in the community. On opening day the entire community fills the little four room schoolhouse which Nelt and the others had built. At first the people are suspicious of "furrin learning," but the teachers are patient and tactful. They visit Sary and stay to "set down for victuals" at the Tollivers. Gradually the "level country women" are accepted and the school grows.

This is not one of the local color books which pays lip service to the native speech by merely tossing a few colloquial phrases into the dialog. The whole narrative is written in the idiom of the mountaineers.

• • •

The influence of the teachers and doctors on the Kentuckians' life is great, but in the long run the mountain folk do not change much. Sary sums it up in her defense of the new learning: "It's a heap like weaving. You keep the old pattern but you put in some different threads and change it up a mite."

A short interpretative introduction for the book is written by Alice V. Keliher. There are a number of excellent illustrations by John A. Spelman III.

Many Jobs Open to Help Students Thru College

Plants Accept Part Time or Full Time Men

By the Rev. John Evans.

The passing effects of war are not all in terms of military sacrifices, high taxes, and rationing for civilians. Take the matter of going to college, young women especially. Economically, it never was as easy as now. Dorothy Dockstader, vocational director of De Paul university, points out the situation.

She displayed her file of hundreds of part time jobs awaiting takers and explained that nearly every kind of firm in town, unable to get suitable full time workers, have turned in part to part time student workers to keep wheels turning.

"Salaries will vary from a dollar an hour down to 40 cents," said Miss Dockstader. "The need is so great that employers often will take student workers at any hour of day or night. For instance, I had one call recently which requested a number of young men to work as messengers from 6 to 9 each morning.

"Students can find work at practically any kind of a job from stenography to ushering. Those who can type or take shorthand are at a premium. We also have calls for accountants, bookkeepers, billers, office clerks, receptionists, credit investigators, game room supervisors, delivery men, store clerks, radio repair men, copy boys, switchboard operators, soda dispensers, and canvassers.

"On the student side of the question is the desire of many men students for heavy work to condition them for eventual service in the country's fighting forces. In other cases, students make use of part time employment as preparation for later full time employment, thus joining practical experience with a good education. Women who have only a part of their college work to do before graduation have the greatest opportunity to return to college and complete their work and earn their way."

Not only was an honorary degree of doctor of laws conferred in absentia on Mme. Chiang, but a permanent fund was set up for the cultivation at Wellesley of interest in China and the far east. The fund stands at $21,388 at the present time, but predictions are made for its growth thru the years.

Simplicity Is Theme of Thanksgiving Dinner

Digestion and Rationing Effect Variety

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

For years home economists have campaigned for simpler, more healthful, less wasteful Thanksgiving dinners. But we campaigned in the face of a tradition of heavily laden harvest tables and the memory of mother and grandmother bustling about a kitchen fragrant with mince pies, rich puddings, roasting turkey, and heavy dressing.

As long as there was no reason for streamlining the Thanksgiving menu other than consideration for digestion, nobody was much impressed by all this talk about less food and better nutrition.

Now there are definite reasons why we must cut our holiday dinners in size and variety. Some of our foods are rationed, others may be soon, but more important than that is the knowledge that it is gross misbehavior on our part to eat lavishly when whole nations are dying of starvation.

• • •

Let's dress the Thanksgiving table beautifully with our best linens, china, silver, and glassware. Let's make a lovely centerpiece of flowers or a bowlful of shiny red apples, and nuts. Let's do our best cooking and serving on this day, but let's not prepare too much food nor too many kinds of it.

A fruit juice cocktail may be served in the living room, a graceful custom which is convenient for the woman who has little help or none at all. Let the coffee be demitasse, if you have the little cups and saucers, and serve it in the living room, too. If you haven't coffee, serve a cereal beverage, either with dessert, or demi-tasse, in the living room. See that milk is provided as a beverage for all children, and for those adults who take part of their pint-a-day at dinner.

As much as possible of meal preparation should be done ahead of time, especially when a woman must get a company meal such as this by herself. It helps greatly to have linens ready, needed dishes assembled and clean, silver polished.

Dessert often can be prepared ahead of time, dressing can be made and the fowl stuffed the night before. Greens may be prepared early in the morning, on Thanksgiving day, but dressing should not be added before serving time. Fresh vegetables never should be cooked ahead of time. They lose vitamins and flavor and usually color upon reheating. Refrigerator dough for rolls is a help. It may be mixed several days early.

Roast that Thanksgiving turkey at a low, even temperature of 300-325 degrees if you want it to be plump, tender and juicy. Next Sunday's food page will give detailed directions for turkey, goose,

Next Sunday's column will contain detailed instructions for preparing and cooking the Thanksgiving turkey, duck, chicken, and goose, and some good recipes for stuffing.

I think that most women are catching on to the modern method of roasting poultry uncovered, with the exception of goose, which takes a cover for at least part of the cooking. A covered roaster produces steam, which cooks out excess fat in a goose. We want no steam for dry meated turkey and chicken.

The Stamp Collector

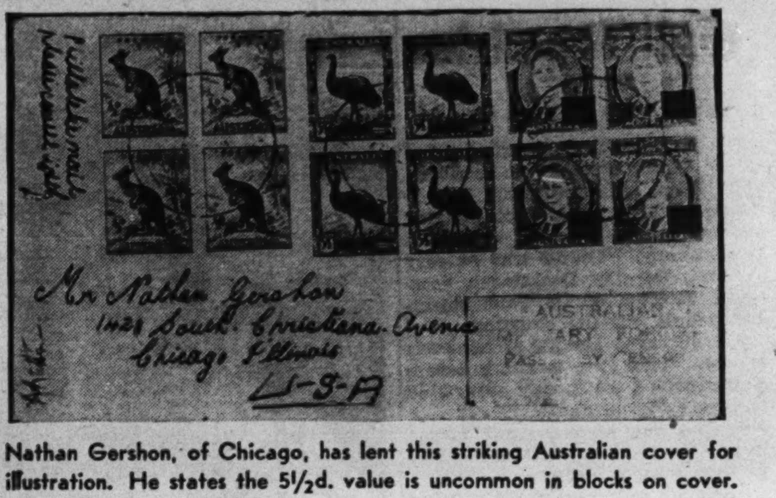
By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

An article in a recent issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE listed the postmarks of philatelic postal stations up to and including 1934. During the following year only one such station was established. This was at St. Louis, Mo., in connection with the S. P. A. convention, Aug. 18-25. The short bar handstamps used at this station were of two varieties, one of which has the words "S. P. A. Convention Sta." enclosed by brackets while the other omits the brackets.

Three stations were set up at exhibitions and conventions during 1936. The first of these was in connection with the Third International Philatelic exposition known as TIPEX which was held at New York, May 9-17. Machine cancellations and long and short bar handstamps were used during this period. The second station was at Cincinnati, O., Aug. 20-22, at the S. P. A. convention and this was equipped with a machine only. The third station was at Omaha, Neb., from Sept. 24-26, at the A. P. S. convention, and this was equipped with a canceling machine as well as long and short bar handstamps.

There were likewise three stations during 1937, all in connection with society conventions. The first was for the American Air Mail society which met at Springfield, Mass., July 1-2. This station made use of a short bar handstamp only. The second station was set up at Asheville, N. C., Aug. 26-28, at the convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans. In this case a canceling machine as well as a long bar handstamp was provided. The third station was at Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31-Sept. 2, at the American Philatelic Society convention, and this made use of handstamps only but was equipped with long and short bar varieties.



Nathan Gershon, of Chicago, has lent this striking Australian cover for illustration. He states the 5½d. value is uncommon in blocks on cover.

No special stamp was issued at the St. Louis station in 1935. However, the New York station of 1935 more than made up for any previous lack for here a souvenir sheet of four stamps, known to collectors as the TIPEX sheet made its appearance. This sheet, unique among United States stamps, contains four different varieties of stamps with appropriate lettering on the margins. The stamps were the Connecticut, California, Michigan, and Texas issues of 1935. It might be here stated that the long bar handstamps were devised to cancel such blocks as well as normal blocks of four. If covers bearing blocks are passed thru the canceling machines the postmark will fall on the top stamps only. With the long handstamp it is possible to center the mark on the block of stamps.

The only other special issue at a philatelic station during the years covered by this article was the Smoky Mountain souvenir pane issued at the S. P. A. convention in Asheville in 1937. This pane was made from the die of the 10 cent National Parks stamp and was provided with an inscription in the margins. The pane contained a single stamp which was printed in green altho the original stamp had been issued in a grayish black shade.

Trays Make Array of Perfumes Attractive

To enhance the beauty of perfume and cologne bottles and to make them doubly decorative, arrange them on a mirrored tray on dressing table or bureau. The trays may be purchased in a variety of shapes and sizes and there are some particularly attractive ones that have designs traced on them. Others are of tinted glass to harmonize with room furnishings.

[ADVERTISMENT]

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Writers Divided on Question of Building Up More Hatred

By HARRY HANSEN.

New York.

THE middle west came in for special attention this week, what with Otto Eisenschiml's reminiscences, "Without Fame," reaching the bookstores and Alfred Kazin's account of American prose in "On Native Grounds" getting an enthusiastic reception everywhere. You can't write American literary history without leaning pretty heavily on the midwestern movement, which had influential representatives in Sherwood Anderson, Theodore Dreiser, Hamlin Garland, Zona Gale, Ring Lardner, Floyd Dell, and dozens of others. The epigrammatic sparkle of Kazin's spirited comment makes this book especially good reading. Kazin did not overlook Stuart Sherman's short but important career as a critic. Sherman's early death by drowning deprived the middle west of a friend at court.

More Hatred Needed?

Not everything cheers the artistic spirit nowadays. The war creates issues and antagonisms, and frayed nerves are in evidence. Dissatisfaction with war propaganda flared up at the first dinner of the P. E. N., [Association of poets playwrights, editors, essayists, and novelists], where Rex Stout and Clifton Fadiman appeared on behalf of the Writers' War board to advocate more intensive hatred of our enemies. Writers as a whole are reflective men. They lend themselves poorly to hate campaigns even tho they see the horror of the Nazi persecutions.

The Writers' War board has been instrumental in making Lidice a symbol for Nazi fury, but when Mr. Fadiman urged greater efforts at hating and expressing hatred, Henry S. Canby and others opposed his view. The debate got noisy and acrimonious, which is startling for the P. E. N., where I usually fall asleep. Robert Nathan, who is a calm and deliberate chairman, had trouble keeping the speakers in order.

It appears that writers are dividing into little groups. The idealists, who want the United States to help the oppressed everywhere, are the largest; this is a natural attitude for authors to take. The haters are the noisiest — as always. The radicals also make use of authors for their purposes. Perhaps the most outlandish statement yet recorded is in Ernest Hemingway's calm declaration in "Men at War," that the Germans ought to be mutilated. This led John Chamberlain to reply that if America did this it would not have a clear conscience for many years. The trouble with these recommendations is that one man outdoes the other in suggestions of violent action, yet no one can carry them out.

Mathematics as Popular Reading

Few admirers of the late Alice Duer Miller are aware that she was once a teacher of mathematics. The author of "The Charm School" and "Gowns by Roberta," whose poem about the white cliffs of Dover unexpectedly crystalized our nostalgia for England, had always intended to write something about mathematics. Her son, Denning Miller, a business man, consulted her frequently on this subject. Now he has written a book, "Popular Mathematics," which will appear this month.

This sounds prosaic, but isn't. There are literally thousands of people all over the country who are inspired by mathematics as others are inspired by symphonic music. When W. W. Norton published "Mathematics for the Million" a few years ago he expected the usual exclusive circle to read it, and suddenly learned that book stores were clamoring for it. It is still selling. Mr. Miller had intended calling his book "No Head for Figures." But the key word, which appeals to addicts, is "mathematics." Hence the simple title for his book. He has been associated with the American Radiator company and the Aerocrete company, and his book will appeal primarily to business men.

Just to prove that mathematics is a live issue, W. W. Norton will issue another, "Mathematical Recreations," by Maurice Kraitchik, in December. The author is one of our talented exiles; he was professor of mathematics at the University of Brussels until 1941.

Cecil Brown Wants No Censorship

Cecil Brown is fighting mad because one of the reviewers called him a "typewriter strategist." He had no sooner read the reviews of his book, "Suez to Singapore," when he boiled over. Then he went to the luncheon of the Overseas Press club and declared he had something to say about "your war and our war" that ought to bring it home to swivel-chair artists.

But the big issue in Brown's mind is censorship, and he lashed out against that most emphatically. He said the citizens of this country are entitled to a reasonable and honest report of what is going on abroad, and while it is fresh. He could not understand a government that sent its sons to fight and die and then didn't trust the citizens to have the courage to hear a reasonable report. He denounced the denial of a chance to know why and how we are fighting.

Brown's is not a still, small voice. It is loud and vociferous. When you read "Suez to Singapore" you will observe that he fought the censors to a standstill. Their only defense was to invite him to leave town.

Brown's audience included many who sympathized with him. I observed Otto Tolischus, William L. Shirer, Frederick Opper, Hugh Byas, Valentine Williams, Cecil Cairns, Johannes Steel, and many others present. Henry J. Taylor, just back from Turkey, was there. Allen Cranston of the foreign section of the OWI also. And — of all people — Adolphe Menjou. I had the pleasure of seeing Stefan Heym, author of "Hostages." He is going to be in Chicago Nov. 14 to meet his friends at Field's book department.

Fiction vs. Non-fiction

Altho Lloyd C. Douglas' novel, "The Robe," moved quickly into best seller lists this week, fiction as a whole has been lagging behind books of fact. One reason: Books about the war have been too interesting. Moreover, it takes the average customer two weeks to digest such heavy, comprehensive novels as "The Prodigal Women" and "The Valley of Decision." And yet publishers favor them, on the ground that customers don't like to pay $2 and more for a slim volume.

Putnam's gave a party in honor of Ladd Haystead, author of "Preacher's Kid." As Haystead is fighting abroad, Putnam's provided in his stead a large mounted photograph of the author. The chances are that many who attended for the martinis learned more about him than if he had been present in person. Putnam's had invited a number of "preachers' kids." They included Dorothy Thompson, Bruce Barton, William Seabrook, Erskine Caldwell, and Lewis Gannett. They didn't all show up, but they appreciated the gesture.

Boyhood and Adulthood of Julian Green

"MEMORIES OF HAPPY DAYS," by Julian Green. [Harper's, $3.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle.

This is the autobiography, from 1900 to 1927, of an American born in Paris of a Virginia father and a Georgia mother. The complications of living almost a dual life were countless. The American Civil war was fought over at the family dinner table, with the Confederate Papers, bound in calf, at hand to support or disprove any argument.

Yet at school and elsewhere the confused boy learned to have an equally intense feeling for the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. Investigation into his ancestry disclosed that he came neither from Red Indians nor from primitive Gauls. It was not comforting to be told by his sister that he was descended from Lowland Scotch who made a living stealing cattle from the English. Finally he decided on those ancient inhabitants of Britain called Picts, and he immediately informed his friends at school. This was an unhappy choice since, as he says, "no one seemed ever to have heard of the Picts, and when I said that their national trait was to paint their bodies black and blue, it was plain to see that my audience considered this pointless, barbarous, and disgusting."

• • •

Of all books professing to be true accounts of a man's life it is proper to ask one plain question—with what reality, with what livingness, does the author himself come thru the dead words of the book? In "Memories of Happy Days" it is the childhood of Julian Green which has the strongest sense of completeness and intensity. In the later chapters, which deal with his first efforts to become a novelist, the sense, not so much of a real person, but of a revealing person, becomes much slighter. The early chapters are full of the sharp, overwhelming experiences of childhood, such as the sorrowful Sunday morning when he sat down on his father's high hat in church. There is a constant wealth of detail to give the quality of a boy's life in a Paris school. One brief paragraph will show the texture both of the life described and of the author's prose:

"On the first foggy days of September . . . when a fire had to be lit in the dining room and the bottle of red wine was placed on the floor at exactly the correct distance from the hearth, so that the flavor of the Medoc would be brought out to the full; when last year's shrunken flannels were sternly handed to us at the first sneeze and we had to struggle into this scratchy underwear, then was the time to feel sad and wonder at the flight of summer."

• • •

As Julian Green grows up, the book becomes more and more reticent until, when the memories are largely literary, of writing, of publishing, of writers, the presence of the author is less definite, less interesting, less believable. Green many times speaks of himself as exceptionally shy, even with men of his own interests and tastes. It is probably this unfortunate [altho no doubt, to his friends, attractive] shyness which explains the superficial air of the last half of the book. It is as if the writer was afraid of giving himself away, of revealing the essential man behind the books and the talk of art. He describes his first meeting with a group of American boys attached to his ambulance unit during the last war:

"They were all a trifle older than I; how different from the type of humanity I was accustomed to is well nigh impossible to convey. . . . never before had I looked in the face of an American college man. Being absurdly shy at that age, I was tongue-tied when my new comrades asked me questions about myself. . . . There was something absolutely straightfor-

Colors, Lines \re Quaint but Practical

By Rea Seeger.

Story book dresses for your small daughter, newly designed for small fry rebelling against dull, unimaginative fashions or the ditto models made in the exact duplicate of grown-ups, will bring back nostalgic memories of your own childhood. For these clever new clothes for little girls have been inspired by the fascinating pinafores, costumes of all the heroines in "Little Women" or the intriguing dresses right out of the old family albums. They are not to be confused with any masquerade costumes, but are realistically designed models for everyday and party wear right now.

A clever designer of children's clothes, inspired by the fetching "toilettes" featured in Godey's "Lady's Book," old family albums and the somewhat dusty daguerrotypes, has launched a successful idea about dressing little sister like an individual, not like a carbon copy of a grown-up.

• • •

The collection stars daytime woolens, sturdy pinafore frocks, enchanting afternoon costumes, and frilly taffeta party dresses, all redolent of a not forgotten era when well brought-up little girls curtsied to their elders; were seen, not heard; laughed and cried with "Alice in Wonderland," "Little Women," and similar books of green memories.

Of course these 1942 versions are not the complicated models of way back when, for they have been cut, fitted, and modified to suit the modern manner of living. And with the prospect of reduced temperatures both at home and school the wool frocks assure a winter of comfort. All the charming accents of braid and double ruched ruffles, the demure little high, round necklines, the long bell sleeves gathered into microscopic band cuffs, the lovely old-time plaids and colors have been retained with the result that these new fashions for small girls are unbelievably wearable and flattering.

There are small "toilettes" of jacket and skirt to be worn as a daytime dress, also small puffed sleeved models copied from the dresses illustrated in "Alice in Wonderland," with a tiny little high waisted bodice, a very full gathered skirt, and a very effective braided design accenting the skirt and the tight little bodice. Flat braid trims a plaid wool costume and double ruched ruffles another. What thrills both small daughter and doting mother are the unusual colors, bright yellow, old fashioned pink and blue, soft rose and soft blue checks, plaids, and some sturdy browns.

• • •

Some of the costumes have hats especially designed to complete the outfit, tiny flat pancake berets with dangling ribbon streamers down the back and bonnet effects streamlined for 1942. The pinafores rate special attention, for these are the tailored affairs of sturdy, wide-waled piqué, cut and fashioned to virtually cover the entire frock, with bib and side trimmed with the outlined edge of scalloped piqué. They are utterly feminine and devastatingly effective for all small girls in pigtails or with curly bobs. You must see these new fashions to properly appreciate their romantic charm and their tested wearability for these modern days.

Sketched . . . five story book dresses for your small moppets. All are featured in this new collection of little girl fashions available in one of Chicago's smartest shops for women. Sizes range from three to six and from seven to thirteen.

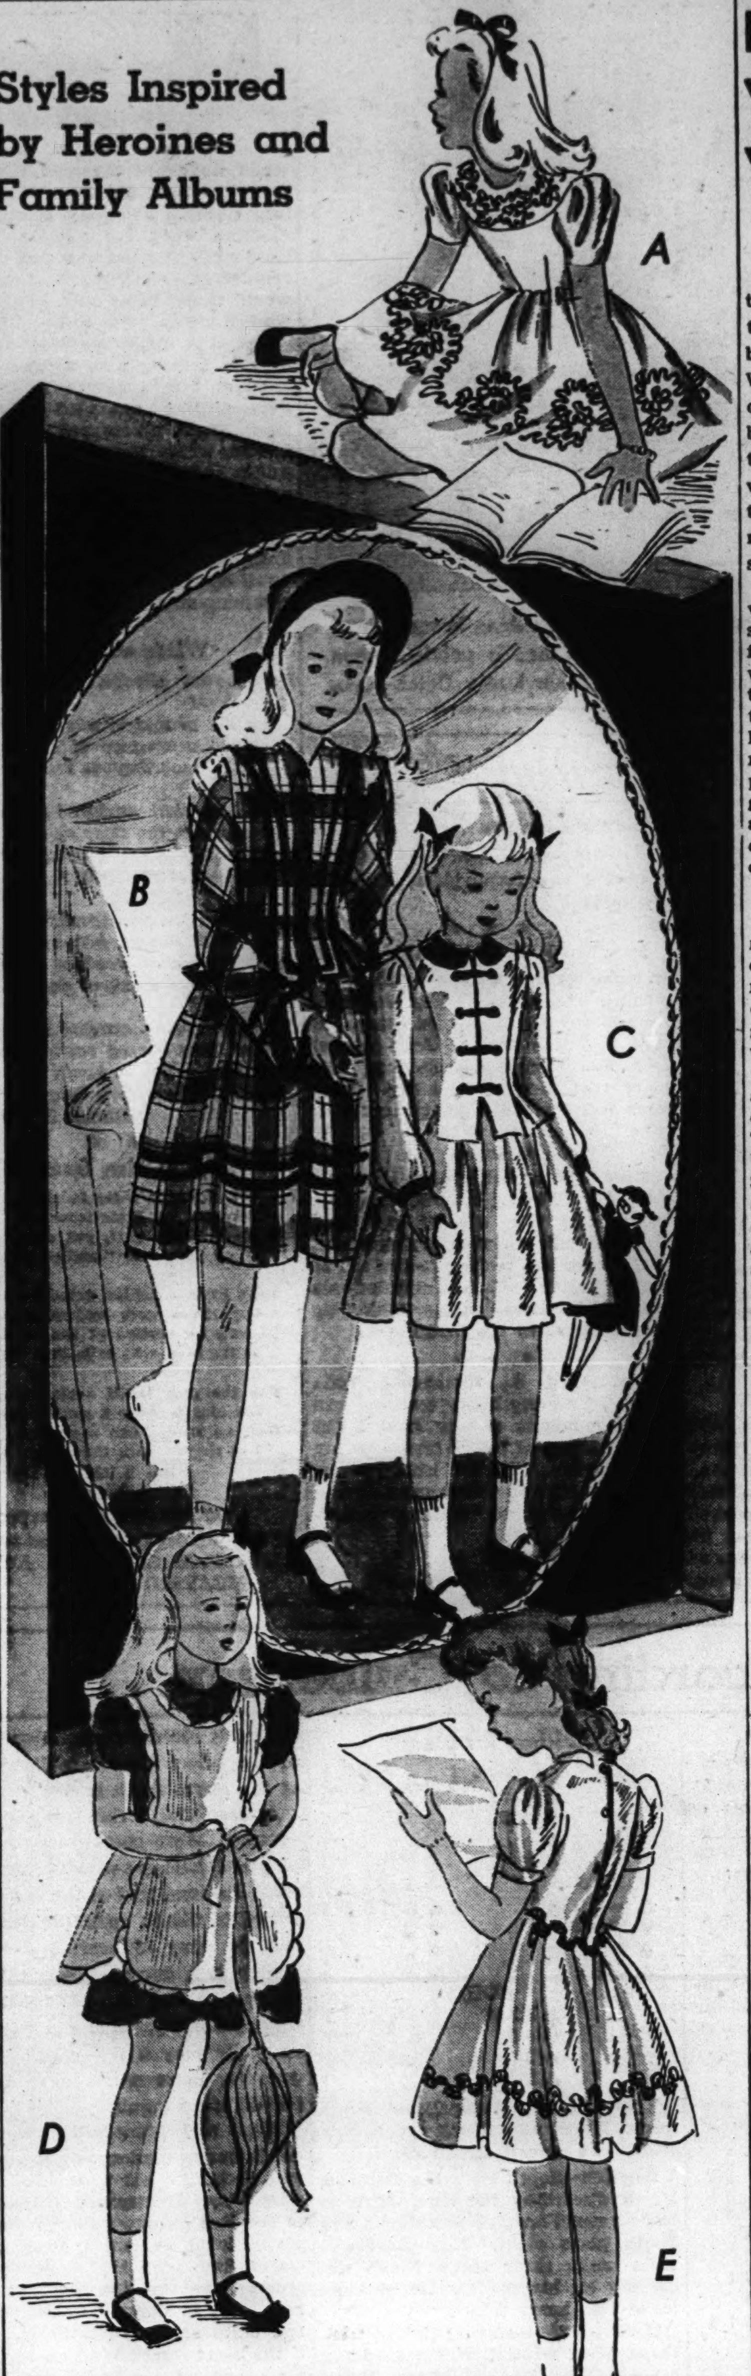
Pickles Keep Better if Jars Are Filled

For best keeping qualities fill jars of pickles to overflowing. Then quickly adjust the lids. Store in cool, dark, dry place. To preserve the color of pickles it often is advisable to wrap each jar in paper, and tie in place with cord.

Vinegar's Use in Pickling.

Vinegar makes pickles crisp, but too strong a vinegar makes the pickles shrivel.

Styles Inspired by Heroines and Family Albums



A . . . Afternoon dress lavishly trimmed with soutache braid along the full gathered skirt and prim bodice. Colors include blue, pink and yellow. ● B . . . Right out of the family album comes this rose and Scotch plaid costume. A quaint fitted sacque jacket has rows of black velvet braid. Sleeves are long, the skirt is full and gathered. Old-fashioned pancake beret repeats the colors of the plaid. ● C . . . Another two-piece costume of long sleeved jacket and gathered skirt is made of gay, yellow, sheer wool and is trimmed effectively with dark braid. Tiny cuffs accent full sleeves. ● D . . . Yellow or blue pinafore is of wide wale pique. Fashioned with a flared apron skirt and shallow scalloped edges, it can be worn over contrasting frocks. ● E . . . Party dress of changeable taffeta has short sleeves and full skirt. Trimming is double ruched taffeta ruffles attached to skirt and bodice.

Bride-Elect Is Wise to Budget Wedding Costs

By Helen Bartlett.

It has been mentioned before, many times, but may we bring up again the subject of the advisability of budgeting the wedding expenses? Whether you like budgets or not, you cannot deny that there are some brides who blow their whole "fortune" on wedding gown and veil, with nothing left over for the essentials of the new home, such as the numerous articles of the linen trousseau.

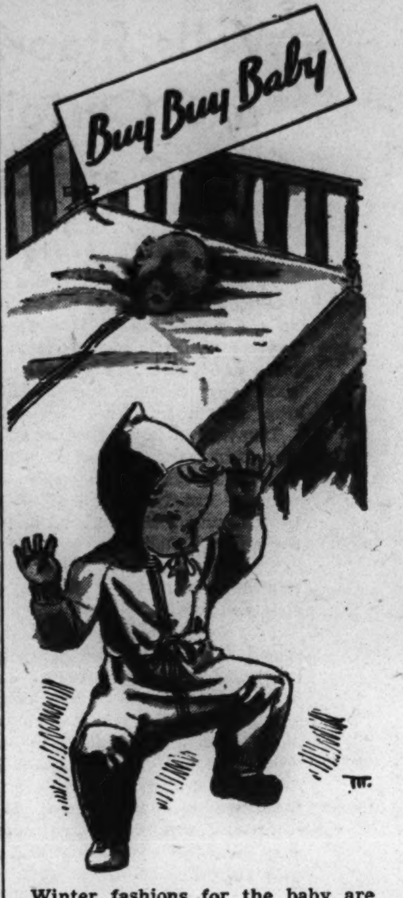
There are those who know exactly what they are doing, however, and still claim they would rather starve for food than starve for a luxurious wedding. We have no quarrel with them. It is with the girls who haven't thought it out carefully enough to know whether they are making sacrifices and what they are, girls who plunge into a buying spree of engraving, flowers, wedding gown, etc., and then wonder why they haven't enough money left to buy an adequate supply of linens, or a wardrobe.

• • •

Many weddings these days are hurriedly planned. Boys in the service or those ready to leave on 10 days' notice make it necessary to cut down on the planning time. Our mimeographed sheet of budget suggestions will help you save a few hours of mental gymnastics. It tells you how to allocate funds when a limited amount of money is available. Write for it. There are three budgets for both the bride and the bridegroom at the $300, $600, and $1,000 levels. And if these are not absolutely applicable to your own personal requirements, they will, at least, serve as a foundation. With a little maneuvering of a few dollars here and there one budget or another could be made to fit your needs exactly. Just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

• • •

It is our contention that if your allowance for wedding expenses is $1,000 or less, that it should be carefully planned, and that if you want to be practical and have to cut down the expenses, the best thing to shave is the amount allowed for the ceremony and reception, the things that doubtless make a beautiful show, but have little lasting, permanent value. You can't cut up the wedding veil for window curtains or the wedding dress for dish towels.



Winter fashions for the baby are warm and cuddly.

And bedtime fashions include a crib cover which can be tied firmly in place and zipped up to his double chin so that he can't possibly thrash around and squirm out of the covers. This is a flannelette cover, washable, of course, and can be purchased in pink, blue or white. With a cover like this for the baby's bed there's no need to worry about whether he's cold. Under $3.

The snow suit for babies up to 18 months old has numerous things about it which should be pointed out. It is made of a regular ski suit cloth rather than the bulky fleecy wool. This means that it is a cotton poplin, wind proof and water repellent. The colors, which are a light soft rose, blue, or dark green are fast. Being a wind breaker isn't enough, of course, so it is lined with a fleecy flannel. Additional features are the reinforced knees, the knitted cuffs to keep out the breezes, the easy to put on raglan sleeves, the drawstring tie at the waistline to nip it in snugly. There's a zip-out crotch which means that the infant can be packed in comfortably instead of having to poke his wobbly legs into the long trousers. Included in the same price ticket is the snug cap with the elfin peak at the top and with elastic at the back of the neck to insure a close warm fit. Under $6.—A. P.

HOME OWNERS' QUERIES

Chicago—[To the Home Owners' Editor]: How can I smooth down a plastered wall that has been finished with a very rough texture?

Harold G.

Answer: Wrap coarse sandpaper around a block of wood and rub the rough finish until it is smooth. Where the finish is only fairly coarse make a mixture of glue size thickened with powdered whiting, take a trowel, and fill the light depressions with this mixture.

Milwaukee, Wis.—[To the Home Owners' Editor]: Can we lay a new roof over our old wood shingle roof, even tho some of shingles are rotted and some are curled?—J. K.

Answer: Before laying new roof remove the rotted shingles and split the old curled shingles with a hatchet, nailing the corners down firmly.

• • •

Chicago—[To the Home Owners' Editor]: [1] How can I brighten some tarnished brass? It is only tarnished slightly. [2] How can we improve the appearance of our automobile's upholstery which is pile fabric that has flattened?—Minnie M.

Answer: You can spread a damp cloth over upholstery and then go over it very lightly with an iron.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Women Have Definite Part in Saving Fuel

Draperies, Warm Clothes Help Save Heat

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Heat escapes thru windows during cold weather, you're told. And pulling the shades down when the sun is not shining directly on the pane is one way to keep it from escaping. At night, heavy shades, usable for black-out purposes, drawn across the windows not only help hold heat but have a definite psychological effect. They make a room look warmer and cozier so that the subject of lower temperature is not paramount.

Heat escapes thru the fireplace. Paper can be stuffed into the chimney, open between fires. Heat escaping thru open doorways found between main halls and adjoining rooms can be saved by restoring to use the old-fashioned heavy portières, especially, if they're long enough to drag slightly on the floor and wide enough to cover the open space between the rooms. Heat is lessened if the walls of a room are cold. When walls feel cold to the touch they are cold enough to cool the air of the room. But they can be made warmer by hanging decorative rugs or tapestries on them.

Supplementary heating can be obtained if the kitchen has a coal or wood stove, by keeping the door open between the kitchen and the rest of the house so that some of the stove heat will circulate into other rooms. Or, if the kitchen has a gas stove, keep the kitchen door open when the oven is being used, as much heat is generated by the oven. [Incidentally, it is pointed out, as every economical housewife knows, meals planned so that several dishes can be cooked in the oven at one time help to conserve some of that much needed for war production gas.]

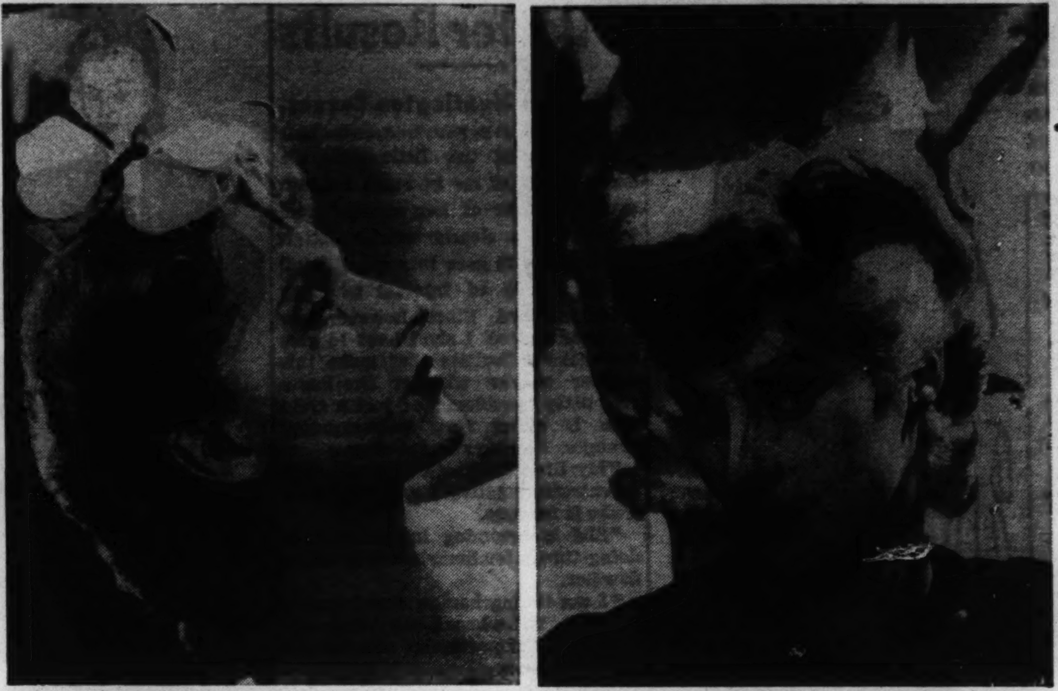
Supplementary heat can be obtained from electric heaters but it must be remembered that electricity also is becoming scarce, for in most places it is produced by using coal or fuel oil. Therefore, electric heaters should be used efficiently and economically. However, these heaters are not to be relied upon to heat an entire room. They're good for taking the chill off a small room, as the bathroom or sewing room. And an electric heater, the Electric Institute of Washington warns, should never be used with any other heating device on the same electric circuit, with the possible exception of a percolator. When planning to use an electric heater for supplementary heat, arm yourself with a chart showing exactly what light fixtures and outlets are on each circuit, so that no circuit ever will be overloaded accidentally.

• • •

Then, of course, proper clothing helps enormously toward offsetting lower temperatures. To wear around the house, the bureau of home economics, United States department of agriculture, votes for slacks as warmer than skirts, with blouses or shirts of outing flannel, long sleeved and buttoned at the cuffs. Ribbed cotton stockings are suggested, since ribbing tends to increase warmth.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle



Two "convertible" coiffures which can be utterly practical in their daytime version and charmingly glamorous by night. The hairdress on the left, adaptable to longish hair or short, calls for a diagonal part, with the hair coiled from one side to the other in a loose roll. For evening, tuck in a fluttery feather ornament or an orchid. For the second coiffure the hair is parted in the middle of the back and turned into soft curls from the crown to the back of the neck. Front hair is brought forward to make a flattering fringe. For evening, a chignon can be worn at the nape of the neck or the curls can be fluffed out. The base of both these is a good permanent, with hair healthy and expertly shaped. (For information telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200, or write her care of the Chicago Tribune. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for written reply.)

Book Details Helpful Ideas on Decoration

For brides, for teen-age girls with frills in their bedrooms, for women who think their home is their castle, but like to arrange the chintz and chairs themselves—"Designs for Living," by Effa Brown [Halcyon House], is a decorator's delight. It is a genuinely helpful pictorial handbook of practical suggestions for home decoration.

It is a guide to how to make the best of what you have, a verbal-pictorial course in home camouflage. It contains suggestions for everything—from decorating your house for holidays to the rehabilitation of broom closets.

If there is a room in your house that is too bare in the middle, dark in the corners or high in the ceiling, this book will give you specific ideas for improvement. If your furniture is old, your rugs worn, and the drapes frayed, Miss Brown has outlined the ideas to make your room like new. She gives a new outlook on color, quality, and arrangement from cellar to ceiling.

To give yourself and your house a new lift and freshness, to take the droop out of your draperies and add the proper dash of color in the right place—here is a simple and convenient guide, with inexpensive solutions to home improvement without professional help or large expenditure.

There is room for improvement in every house. There is opportunity for utilizing, harmonizing, and personalizing your world in four walls. Here is a book that will promote "happier" housekeeping and act as a guide in improving your personal design for living.

Because of the war, many of us are inclined to forget previous charitable activities and devote all our time and financial aid to services concerned with military and naval welfare. We are likely to believe that any one can now find work, and that a good pay check solves all problems.

This is not always true. Relief rolls of the city have dropped sharply, but there are still more than 41,000 people dependent upon public aid.

There are still children who have been abandoned, who are crippled, who are motherless or fatherless, and there are still thousands of ill and lonely and needy old people. Such persons can have no active part in the war, but the care and attention which they need and should have will undoubtedly be affected by it, if wartime activities and charities take all financial assistance from the agencies created to assist them.

Of course, Red Cross and USO and similar activities must have our support in their timely and greatly necessary work, but we must all make an extra effort, and double our energies, in order that we may also supply the needs of the private citizens of our own communities. We must give to both, because we can't permit our children to be undernourished or neglected while our men are shedding their blood to preserve the American way of life.

• • •

Because of wartime changes in industry, and perhaps because of our scrap drive, articles which were formerly easy to purchase or to obtain as donations are becoming more and more difficult to locate. The case which Dr. X brought to my attention is a typical one. If the item the physician seeks were purchasable he himself would have provided it for the small patient long ago, but he has been unable to locate it, and turned to this department for help. We are presenting his plea to our readers in the hope that some one can provide a sturdy walker of the old fashioned type, which is circular with a wide base so it does not tip easily. He requests it for a 2 year old child whose ailment was not noticeable or perhaps did not develop to any extent until the child was 6 months old. The arms and legs, and also the head, are affected. The mother has three other children, but devotes much time to exercising the youngster and trying to help her to walk. Doctor X feels that a walker of the type mentioned would be helpful, and if any reader has one to offer he will be happy to arrange transportation.

The Difficult Child Needs Understanding

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

There's no denying the fact that life in this war era has its sober side. We're doing as much war work as we can cram into days busy with office routine or classroom duties. But the silver lining is the social side, which often is tied in with war work, such as hostessing at service men's centers and serving doughnuts and coffee at the USO. Then there are the furlough dates, too, and we busy women must look feminine. For the purpose, a soft little dress, such as my latest concoction, illustrated, is just the thing.

I made my version in ruby red velveteen [a patriotic fabric, by the way] and trimmed it with grosgrain ribbon in bowknots on the bodice. I really preened myself about this model! Here, I said, is a wonderful little bow frock to serve as beau-bait!

Style No. T-8796 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material with 1½ yards of ribbon.

A Sympathetic Mother Gets Better Results

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A mother of two little girls, 2½ and 4½, writes me in much concern over the older of her small daughters. It is a clearly written letter, and because it goes into some detail should prove of interest to many other mothers. Since, however, our space is limited, I shall have to give the main difficulties that make this mother wonder whether she has a real little "problem" or just a child who is going thru to-be-expected changes. She says in substance:

"My little Elizabeth [the older] is so extremely active I am wondering if she is nervous.

"She is becoming independent in doing things for herself, but is also a dawdler.

"I am timing her on dressing, eating, etc., but when I call 'time up' and stop that particular activity she has a tantrum.

"Elizabeth used to be orderly, but now she leaves clothes and toys around. I expect her to clear up after herself.

"She is very persistent now, almost stubborn. But I do not give in on even little things. She cries more often than she used to.

"Her little sister is very amenable, just as Elizabeth used to be at three."

• • •

Some people interpret dreams. Others interpret languages. Still others interpret music in words or dance.

I wonder if any of these things needs interpretation as badly as childhood does. Certainly none is as deep and delicate, none as baffling. So, those of us who are trying to interpret it must tread lightly and uncertainly. We have learned so little compared to what we still have to learn. And we have to unlearn much that we feel sure of now.

But those of us who have observed children, who have been with them, who have had them, and who have pretty well preserved their happiness and normality [not brought it about, but "preserved" it] have gotten at some things which bear the hallmark of truth.

• • •

Elizabeth is a little girl who is evidently a most individual child. She possesses many desirable qualities, independence, determination, vitality, capability. They are all positive qualities and the sort that will be of great value to her when she grows up. But they do not tend to make her docile and passive. She is a live young factor to be reckoned with, but to be reckoned with wisely. I should not call her in the least a problem child. She is merely, to my mind, showing the result of too much discipline, too much restriction, and she is fast growing out of babyhood.

Take the difficulty about hanging up her clothes, picking up papers at present compared with doing these things when she was very little. Her reaction against performing these duties is quite normal.

• • •

When children are very little they enjoy the new found use of their muscles and exercise them in many ways. When they are master of their muscles and have learned some kinds of deftness these chores lose interest for them as acts in themselves. They become often uninteresting drudgery.

When that age comes, a motive or incentive has to be created for the doing of them, "I wish I had an assistant housekeeper today," or "Let's hang up our clothes so our house will be nice when daddy comes home," or "It would really help me a great deal if you would pick up all your papers yourself," will bring a response when a command will not, as will a touch of the play idea, a little fun or nonsense.

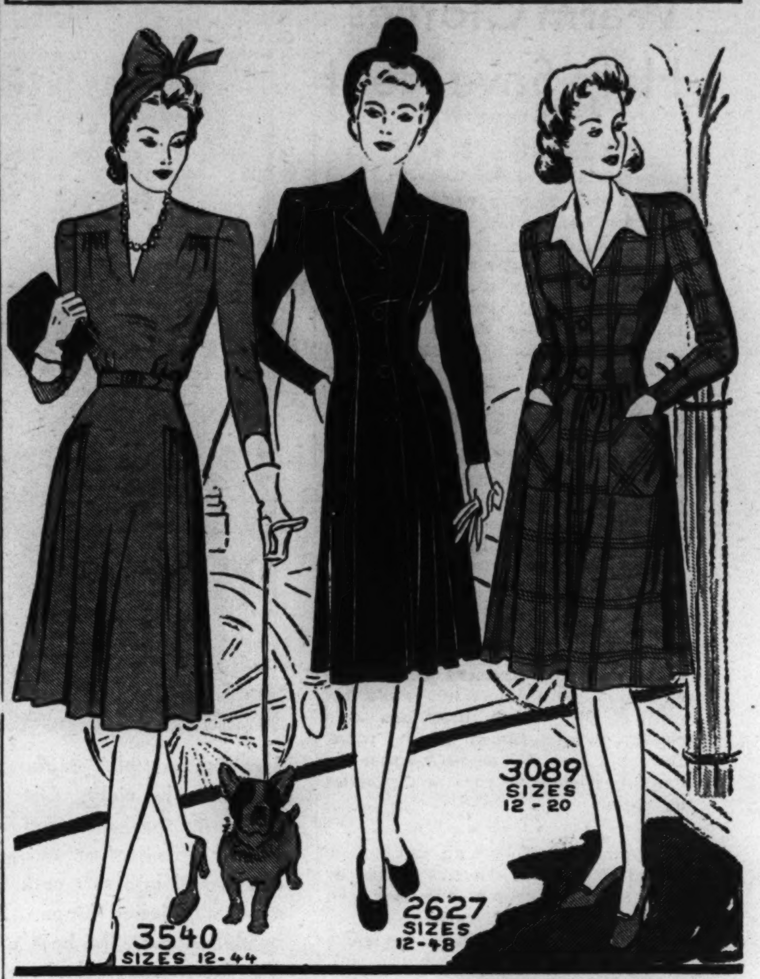
Patterns by Clotilde



In the smart new fashions, only a few deft shirrings here, a lean line there, will convert an otherwise simple model into one of distinction. The three patterns illustrated today are just such dresses.

At the left is one with shirrings placed strategically below the shoulder yoke and low on the hipline. Sleeves in this frock are bracelet length, the neckline is a V, and there is no trimming to mar the elegance of this simple fashion.

Center, a coat dress with front buttoning the entire length of the model. Notice the dashing rever collar line.

Right, a dress with soft contrasting collar, buttoned, molded bodice, and moderately full skirt, which has patch pockets.

Style No. 3540 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2627 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 36, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch fabric.

Style No. 3089 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Maple Room for Little Girl Holds Quaint Charm

Walls, Floors and Curtains in Gay Tones

By Edith Weigle.

In a newly furnished series of early American maple rooms, now on view to the public, there is a small bedroom for a little girl. It is especially crisp and pretty, and so easy to copy that any enterprising mother can duplicate it for her own child.

The walls are papered in an attractive, tiny green pattern on white, and the woodwork also is white. At the window are two pairs of short curtains, hung Dutch style, one above the other. Of plain green cotton, they are pinch pleated at the top and trimmed with three bands of red rick-rack braid.

• • •

The floor treatment of this little bedroom deserves a special word of praise, for its colors are deep and glowing, like the marbles youngsters like to play with, and it is just the type of floor found so often in old New England houses, where maple furniture was first used. It is a painted, spatter-dash treatment and is in deep tones of brown and green, with tiny dots of bright red.

First a coat of plain brown was applied and left to dry. Then the green and red were spattered on by tapping the paint brush against a wooden rod or bar, such as a broom handle. It's a method that has been used for years, but one we've not heard much about lately.

Only a scatter rug or two are needed. In this case a charming hooked rug of beige with old fashioned roses in varied tones of red is placed by the bed.

• • •

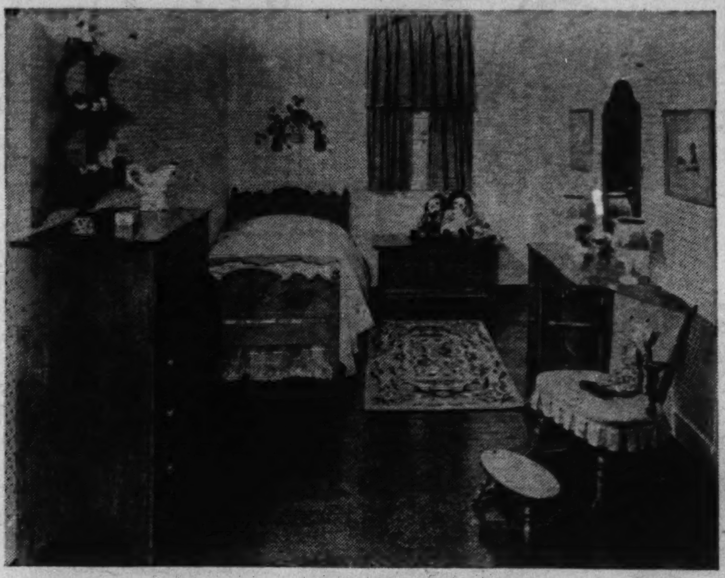
The maple tall chest of drawers, knee-hole dressing table and toy chest, which is under the window, are of maple and have quaint decorations in color in Pennsylvania Dutch style. Hanging shelves above the chest hold small pieces of china and pottery any little girl would love, and a rag doll takes her ease in a sweet beruffled, red chintz and maple rocker near by. There is a footstool to match.

But the most intriguing piece of furniture in the room is the painted bed, which is a lovely, clear light green and adorned with birds, hearts, and flowers in bright colors. This is certainly something any small child would adore. The bedspread is of crisp white embroidered organdy.

On the dressing table are matching lamps, the bases of which are of white milk glass, the shades being pleated and finished with big white bows. A pair of glass vases are filled with bright red artificial strawberries.

As a wall decoration over the head of the bed, three glass fiddle-shaped bottles, are filled with trailing ivy.

And last but far from least, two huge rag dolls, Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy loll happily on top of the toy chest.



This charming little bedroom for a small girl is done in maple and has a true colonial spatter-dash floor. The bed is painted green and has quaint decorations in color in Pennsylvania Dutch style.

Mrs. Marion M., Chicago: To keep ribbons on dresses or hats from fraying, I take a colorless fingernail polish and run the polish applicator along the edge of the ribbon. Sometimes I even use polish the color of the ribbon.

• • •

Jane F., Kankakee, Ill.: When I have food in a pan and it needs to be frequently stirred, I find it a help to snap a clothespin of the spring type on the edge of the pan. I use this as a spoon rack and it prevents dripping, and the spoon is always handy for use.

• • •

Mrs. T. G. Smith, Chicago: We have always been a family of travelers by train and bus and my husband insists baggage identification is made easy if luggage is plainly marked with easily recognized labels. For instance he paints a diamond shaped label on each end of each piece. Often there are two bags of same size and shape and this kind of marking prevents one from picking up the wrong bag.

• • •

Mrs. Frank T., Chicago: If I want to make my egg whites stretch a bit further and increase their volume I drop a tiny bit of salt into them before they are beaten. And another help I've learned: Keep flour in a place that is warm and dry. Damp flour won't make light pie crust or cake.

• • •

Miss Agnes Schneider, Highland Park, Ill.: When I have some special recipes for the use of cornmeal, tapioca, whole wheat or graham flour, etc., I tuck the recipes in the top of the bag or the container, and find this especially convenient to make up something when I'm in a hurry.

• • •

Mrs. Fred S., Evansville, Ind.: When I iron any heavy textured curtains or fabrics of any kind I put several layers of heavy towels on my ironing board. Then I iron the textured material on the wrong side and this brings out the "texture" beautifully.

Now—YOUR IDEA—please!

Lady of the House

ARMISTICE.

How we rushed into the streets when we heard the glad news that long ago Nov. 11! Shouting, laughing, crying. Fearfully asking older mothers what news of their sons. Holding tightly the hands of our own small boys, deeply thankful that they would never know war. For hadn't we just won a "war to end all war?"

But that Armistice was nearly a quarter century ago, and now . . .

Again brown leaves fly in little flurries, like crumpled butterflies; snow drifts across red battlefields; furious winds blow from north and south and east and west, and the hungry seas are never still. We look back on blood and tears and fire. We look ahead—on blood and tears and fire. But thru the black and bitter murk of war there is the glimmer of a shining star, Peace.

Winds of Flanders.

Break your silence, winds of Flanders!
Do the graves of our loved dead
Feel the vengeance of the vandal
And his sacrilegious tread?

Is it true that nurtured hatred
Desecrates the sleeping dust
And that Hun could be so ruthless
As to valor be unjust?

Winds of Flanders, spread the tidings,
In thrice double fury spread,
That the ire of freedom quickens
At impious touch of dead.

May no foeman craving vengeance
Mar their sacred resting place,
Nor unholy lips in insult
Cherished memory deface.

Daniel B. Straley.

Her Golden Treasure.

She had put it there to stay,
Between the Bible leaves.
A tiny golden curl, put away

Dear little mischief, sometimes bad;
Days then were seldom calm.
There's no vestige of that little lad
In the man who calls her "Mom."

For the past she'll never sigh,
It's nice to have a son so fine.
But, no money can ever buy
The ringlet with the golden shine!

Thoughts While I Prayed.

[With apologies to Eugene Field.]

OUR FATHER WHO ART IN HEAVEN:
Why do some men doubt you are there?
HALLOWED BE THY NAME:
It's You men would blame.
THY KINGDOM COME: THY WILL BE DONE
I wonder when there will be peace?
ON EARTH AS IT IS IN HEAVEN.
GIVE US THIS DAY OUR DAILY BREAD:
So many in the world unfed,
AND FORGIVE US OUR TRESPASSES,
AS WE FORGIVE THOSE WHO TRESPASS AGAINST US.
AND LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION:
Pray make victorious our nation.
BUT DELIVER US FROM EVIL
FOR THINE IS THE KINGDOM, AND THE POWER
Father, make the cruel tyrants cower
AND THE GLORY: FOREVER AND EVER.
Pray, from You and heaven let men part never!

Carl Winfred Snyder.

Boots.

A crocheted blue yarn bootie,
A white kid button shoe,
A tiny patent oxford,
A wee felt slipper, too.

A "high-cut" with a jackknife,
A soft soled tennis shoe,
A football pair with hobnails,
Stout army boot—so new!

From his baby pit-a-patter
To the tramp, tramp of his troops;
He's marched along, as Time sped on;
From Mom's booties—to Uncle Sam's boots.

Madeline Dahl Nagle.

Cold Wave Casualties.

The flat leaved parsley—the last slim chives—the long fronds of the walnut—the single pink hollyhock atop a tall brown stalk—a rosette of rosy phlox—a shy late bluebell—a rosebud, little red badge of courage. Also my plan to bud-graft the old white lilac. M. M.

Clean Fingers Leave No Prints on Furniture

If properly finished and properly cared for, a hard surface furniture will not show finger marks unless the fingers themselves are greasy and dirty. When this happens, wipe the marks off with a soft cloth wrung until just damp in mild soap suds, dry by wiping in the direction of the grain with a dry, clean, soft cloth.

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Decisiveness is an admirable quality in life and in bridge. Most of the calamities that descend upon us give at least a fair hint of their coming. The decisive man does not shut his eyes to these portents; instead, he makes whatever defensive preparation he can. Precisely the same tactics apply to bridge. West, in the hand shown below, heard the approach of a steamroller and did not wait to be flattened.

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	3 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

West's hand conformed exactly to the requirements for an optional double of a preëmptive three bid. His A-K and A-Q totaled three and one-half tricks and the plus values of each of his other queens brought this to the necessary minimum of four tricks, with "at least three cards in each unbid suit."

East was correct in passing the double even tho he had little hope that the contract could be defeated. Four clubs, as far as he knew, might be severely punished. As a matter of fact, it could have been made, due to the perfect fit and the distribution of the North-South hands.

Against the three spade doubled contract, West opened the diamond king and followed with the ace. The third diamond lead of the queen was ruffed by South with the ten spot, and the king of hearts was immediately laid down. When this was followed by a second heart lead toward dummy, West did not automatically play a low card. Had he done so, there would have been a far different result.

West saw immediately that the conditions as disclosed by the dummy and declarer's bid were ideal for a strip play. It required little vision to see that dummy's fourth diamond easily could be ruffed away by declarer, and, with that done and the trumps removed, the side suit cards remaining in dummy would be only two clubs and one low heart. Then, if the heart forced West on lead with his queen, obviously he would have to lead away from his club tenace, and the chance was great that South, not East, had the club king.

On the second heart lead toward dummy, therefore, West rid himself of that embarrassing heart queen. After that the declarer was helpless. It did him no good to strip the diamonds and take out trumps, because a third round of hearts gave East, instead of West, the lead and permitted a club return thru the vulnerable club king.

There are no trumps, and South leads. North and South are to win two tricks against any defense.

Solution—South leads the diamond, North discarding the club. If West leads a small heart, North ducks, and South plays eight. Now East and West make three clubs, North discarding all his spades. North must make two heart tricks.

If East leads his small club at trick three, West wins it, North shedding a heart. West leads heart ten. North plays ace and leads a spade, making the king good.

If West leads club nine instead of the small heart at trick two, North sheds a spade. East returns the club, and, if West wins it, North sheds another spade and must make two heart tricks.

If West leads a heart before the third club, North plays ace and returns the heart, South's eight forcing the nine, and North's seven is safe.

South must be careful to get out of the way of the hearts on the third club lead.

MUST THE MARRIED WOMAN LIVE IN DOUBT?

The so-called "modern wife" often distrusts the half-knowledge gathered during her adolescence. But, instead of entering wifehood fully equipped with the intimate facts she needs, she resorts to over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can actually burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind a safe—yet amazingly powerful liquid for the douche, Zonite. So powerful is Zonite, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors, leaving no telltale odor of its own. Protects personal daintiness! Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. For modern hygienic protection you may never have known before, get Zonite at your druggist today.

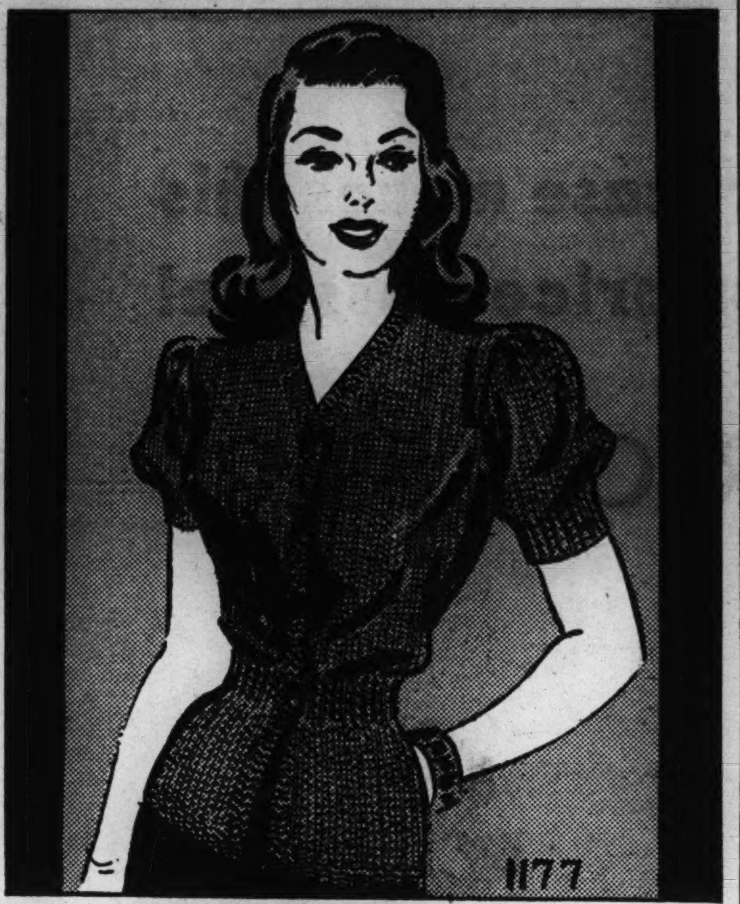
Knitted Evening Sweater



By Jean Macdonald.

Knitted evening sweaters will be a popular item for the duration. Rich black is a prime favorite, and the lovely black wools, crêpes, and angoras still are available for delicate, yet durable, models. Buttons are the only trimming, and they are as luxurious as the outfit they adorn.

For instructions in knitting the evening sweater, No. 1177, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

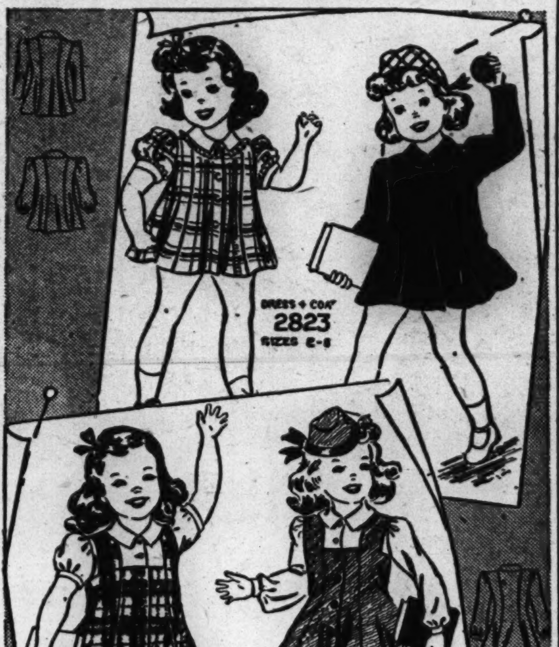
BETTINA BEDWELL SAYS:

According to Mainbocher, the man who designed the smart uniform of the WAVES, wartime fashions will develop themselves and these fashions probably will last for the duration.

"Fewer dresses will have to do more things," he says. "To me the dress you never wear comes under the heading of real waste and the little number that hangs in the closet today doesn't help any one but the moths."

For example, the designer believes most daytime dresses should be the kind to go from early morning to the end of the day and look right. Furthermore, he thinks more will be asked of the so-called "afternoon dress" than any other type, for it has to be worn right thru the evening, and he believes each woman should have several of these adaptable dresses.

Clotilde Children's Patterns



There's plenty of usefulness in these juvenile patterns. For the few cents the two patterns will cost, plus the most economical of materials, a wise mother can create a versatile wardrobe for her small daughter.

No. 2823 fashions both a princess style frock, with contrasting collar and cuffs, and a princess coat with Peter Pan collar.

No. 2600 does the jumper style proud. In one version, a bold plaid is used, and the short sleeved blouse contrasts. In the other adaptation, plain colors are the rule, and the blouse may have long sleeves, just for variety.

Style No. 2823 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting for dress; 1⅜ yards of 54 inch fabric with 1½ yards of 35 inch lining for coat.

Style No. 2600 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires ⅞ yard of 54 inch fabric for either jumper; ¾ yard of 39 inch fabric for short sleeved blouse; 1 yard of 39 inch material for for long sleeved blouse.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Prevent Them by Careful Grooming

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Making your grooming practices accident-proof is one way to prove your patriotism. To be guilty of carelessness, which can cause accidents, thus robbing the nation of energy and time needed for the war effort, is to give comfort and aid to the enemy. There were over 4½ million accidents in the bathroom, the dressing room, and other danger spots of the home last year, according to statistics furnished us by the Liberty Mutual company.

Such carelessness has been aptly dubbed the "seventh column," and here are its blacklisted saboteurs against which you are warned:

Saboteur No. 1! Lurking in your bathroom is the slippery tub, leading cause of home accidents. So, to make sure that you're on good footing with soapy porcelain, see that your tub has a nonskid mat. Partner in crime, abetting our saboteur, is the wet, down-you-slide tile, when you come dripping out of a tub. To guard against casualties, have a bathmat or towel spread out on the floor on which to make a happy landing.

Next, dry down thoroly before you succumb to any whim to switch on a light, turn on a radio, plug in a telephone, or handle any electrical warmer, curling iron, or what have you. When your skin is wet, and that goes for both hands and the soles of your feet, you are a push-over for shocks, because your body is a conductor of electricity, and you are converted, as it were, into a human lightning rod.

• • •

Bathroom surgery, that frowned upon practice of operating on corns, is another saboteur. If you're guilty of this practice, use medications or pressure pads to deal with stubborn ones. For permanent relief, ease your corns into shoes that don't fight with your feet.

Add to razor blade casualties those slashes that you get when you shave armpits and legs and your aim is on the erring side. If you persist in using this method of erasing hair, and you get nicked for your pains, stop everything, and apply a strong antiseptic solution. Let the stuff dry, and then tenderly bandage your wound with a piece of cotton lined adhesive tape. Far better than taking such risks is to use a noncasualty depilatory.

While you are keeping yourself safe from cuts, be wary of sharp instruments when you manicure or pedicure your nails. It's better to dispense with sharp instruments entirely and use orange sticks and liquid removers in coping with cuticle and fleshy spots than to take chances with cuts.

Most formidable "seventh column" saboteur in your bedroom hides in a dark clothes closet, into which you have to light up your way with a match. Feminine clothing both on your person and in your closet are a frightening fire hazard when you bring a lighted match into such close proximity with them. To protect yourself against this menace have an electric light installed in your closet. That installation should be a bulb plus a shade. The shade is a safety measure for minimizing the heat of a naked bulb. If it isn't possible to light up your closet by pulling a cord or flipping a switch, use a flashlight when you go groping into Stygian depths.

Of course, you shouldn't have to be told not to go ducking into a clothes closet with a lighted cigarette between your lips or your fingers.

Keeping heavy objects on the floor of your closet, not overhead, is a safety measure worthy of shouting precautions. A suitcase, a box of shoes, or a catch-all of weighty odds and ends toppling on your head is not to be, and probably won't be, taken lightly.

• • •

A disordered bedroom not only impugns your habits of tidiness, but is an indictment of carelessness, if it causes you to trip or stumble and fall on your face. Your sanity should be indicted, if you wear heels as tall as pogo sticks, which can cause you to wreck an ankle or leg when you come tearing down the steps.

These, then, are the hazards in the home that confront you who are responsible only for your own safety. If you work in a war plant, you are responsible for your own, for other employés' and even your country's safety. So, we march out another list of "seventh column" hazards to warn you against.

One is hair that tangles up with machinery. So, confine it, so that no locks can escape, under a mechanic's cap or head-bandaging bandana. If you have the kind of job that permits a compromise with bound-up hair, settle for a net or snood that keeps a bounding mane up out of harm's way.

Other entangling alliances to be on guard against are long fingernails, dangling jewelry, pendulous buttons, aggressive belt buckles, loopy pockets, outstanding cuffs or any other personal trappings that try to mix in with machinery. Cut your fingernails to a shorter length and trim off the trimmings.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The Tuesday concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra bring out an unfailingly chic audience, and several bright red dresses were noted at this season's first. Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson was wearing one of bright lipstick color. With it she wore a little hat that appeared to be all brim, and that brim was of gray velvet loops with little red ribbon ends fastened at each side. Mrs. Potter Palmer was wearing a most distiguished hat of gray and white breast feathers. It was fan shaped; held to her head across the back by bands of gray felt, as becoming as could be. Her suit was of black. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick heard Shostakovich's Seventh in a cheery red frock. Her hat was a pillbox of Persian lamb, with a bandeau of rose velvet. Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson had on an attractive beret, half black, half Chinese orange felt. Mrs. Walter Paepcke's dark blue wool suit was enlivened with a blouse of pink, and on her head was a large hat of blue. Miss Harriet Stuart was in gray, as usual, this time a soft wool suit and a hat that was a rosette of the same material. A silver fox scarf was about her shoulders. Mrs. Albert A. Sprague was another in red. A black velvet beret and a silver fox cape topped her dress of cerise. Mrs. Richardson Dunham wore red in her hat, which was a tiny one made of cut felt and velvet leaves. Mrs. Arthur Goes was chic in a bottle green hat trimmed in the back with coq feathers of yellow and pale green. Mrs. Merrill Meigs' beret was of a color known as "London smoke." It was rather large, and one edge was folded back and fastened to the center, secured by two tiny brown ribbon bows. Her dress was of brown, and about her shoulders was a sable coat. She was selling bonds and stamps at a table maintained by the Chicago Drama league.

• • •

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed's smart concert going hat sat on the top of her head like a saucer, and was of black, edged in gold. Mrs. William M. Spencer's oddly shaped tiny black hat was trimmed with pink feathers, and Mrs. H. Comer Winter's was of gray breast feathers with touches of red. Mrs. John W. Gary, chairman of the St. Luke's fashion show, was here, there, and everywhere at the Civic Opera house, where the show was held, her flame colored hat glowing vividly. Miss Janet Gaynor, wife of the designer, Adrian, had on a high, cone shaped hat from which fell innumerable little mink tails, covering her forehead. A murmur of satisfaction followed Adrian's green-gold two piece wool suit down the runway of St. Luke's fashion show. "There's something grand about the shoulders he does, the set of the sleeves," enthusiastically commented a woman who makes a study of fashions. "Any one can wear them," added another. Mrs. Volney Foster was wearing the suit that was admired so extravagantly. It was most becoming, with skirt slightly flared, and fine detail in the cutting of the jacket. Another of his suits was the soft green wool one Mrs. Wyndham Hasler wore under a huge, rippling coat of otter with gloves to match. Now that materials are being conserved, furs apparently are being used more lavishly than ever, and that was the fullest swagger coat this reporter ever has seen.

• • •

Almost too enormous were the three-quarter length silver fox jacket Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr. wore onto the runway and the white fox jacket modeled by Miss Lydia Elliott. Infinitely becoming and graceful was the blue fox jacket over a blue gown shown by Miss Eunice Hale, who is better known as Ruddy. Dressed in a coat of white timmie tuft just like big sister wears to college was one of the Raymond Hurleys' 5 year old twin daughters, Judy or Jill. White leggings and a hood made a warm costume. Looking so appealing in her "first" dancing party frock was Mervyn Winston, who wore the traditional jacket of white bunny fur over a sweeping pink net skirt and top of black velvet. Pink flowers were fastened at either side of her long, dark bob. "Up" hair-dos were absent again from the runway despite the makeup artist's efforts to coif the models' heads according to her wishes. The two who modeled negligees for the cosmetician had their hair piled high upon their heads, however, and a great change it was for Miss Joan Hixon and Mrs. John T. Llewellyn II., who customarily wear their hair in long, soft bobs. Hats, shoes, and jewelry are difficult to display to their fullest advantage, but one jeweler had his models, Mrs. Edgar Stanton Jr., and Princess Galitzine, wear identical dresses of black crêpe. The only trimming consisted of black velvet leaves inset around the yoke and hip line, so that the jewels flashed and sparkled, enhanced by this black setting and two exceedingly pretty women. A double strand of diamonds encircled Princess Galitzine's slender neck, and twin diamond bracelets glistened at Mrs. Stanton's wrists.

ON THE HOUSE

By Louise Bargelt

Window conditioning, that is storm windows, can save in fuel as high as 20 or 30 per cent on the winter's bill. The storm windows must fit tightly and storm doors as well as weather-stripping are added helps to fuel saving. There is an abundance of storm sash available, and also new combination screen and storm sash units. This combination can be left on the year around and in summer the story sash is stored behind upper sash and in winter the screen is stored in the same place. Frames are narrow to allow for maximum light passage. The wood, of clear white pine, has been treated so that it is water, rot, and termite resistant. A home handy man can install this combination sash.

• • •

Now that we are saving surfaces around our houses you may be interested to know that powdered felt and paint is available to coat the underside of ash trays, lamp bases, etc., and save the floors and tables from unwelcome scratches. This is cheaper than applying felt and for the application comes a kit which includes sifter can, brush, thinner, and undercoater.

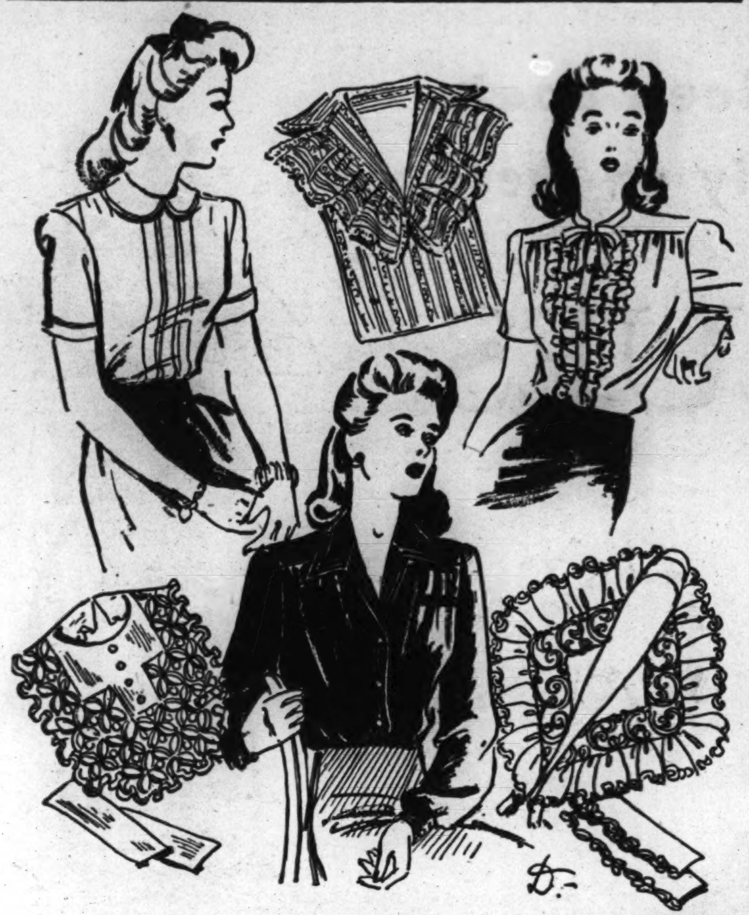
BUY AND SAVE ★ Advice for the Careful Shopper

Fashions . . . . By Angela



Just a little frilly piece of neckwear or a new blouse will brighten up your suit, give new life to an old dress, or change the personality of a frock when you've grown weary of it. There is no complexion in the world that isn't flattered by a touch of white framing the face. And it's unbelievable what clean fresh collars and cuffs will do for that well groomed air.

• • •

Across the top of the sketch there is, first, a tailored white crêpe blouse with high, round neckline and Peter Pan collar. Stitched down plaits break the front plainness; buttons the back. A pin, or a tailored ribbon bow pinned on the collar to match the bow in your hair, would be a happy touch.

A too-tailored suit can be softened and feminized by the fluffy dickey of sheer white cotton lace. The same lacy material is gathered onto the turned back revers in a wide ruffle. It will fit any suit with a V neckline.

The short sleeved blouse at the upper right also is white—a good solid white, if you know what I mean. Narrow ruffles of the same material sewed vertically on the front of the blouse form a vest. The high, round neckline ties in a tailored bow. Under $3.

• • •

The bib collar is a popular item with busy business girls because it doesn't have to be sewed in place. It's an important point to consider, when having to sew a collar in place before leaving the house in the morning might mean missing the train. The center part is white piqué combined with coarse cotton lace which permits the color of the dress to peek thru. Plain straight tailored cuffs are white piqué.

Suits of a light color—such as tan, light blue, and gold—become more distinctive when they are complemented with a black blouse. This is the popular classic shirtwaist style with rows of white stitching around the cuffs and convertible collar.

A dress with a V neckline will be enhanced by the neckpiece of coarse white lace, edged with ruffled piqué, which, in turn, is edged with a touch of lace. The cuffs are this same lace edged piqué, except they are smooth and flat and not ruffled. Under $2.

Children and Adults Enjoy Indoor Games

By Angela Petesch.

Saving tires and money will be one advantage of having indoor games available to entertain your family at home. And a second blessing will be countless evenings of informal good fun. These are the newest and the best amusements offered by the adult game department, tho with most of them it is clear that they can be enjoyed by youngsters of all ages.

Decide on the game you think you will enjoy the most, then organize a tournament between members of the family or congenial neighbors to run thru the season with championship matches, a banquet, speeches, and prizes for the winners at the end of the season's competition.

• • •

Judging by the crowded bowling alleys and the fact that you can't drop in for a casual game until after 11 p. m. unless you make an appointment. You'll like a miniature bowling game for your living room or game room. If they would just furnish a pin boy with each game it would be complete. The bowling alley is a strip of oilcloth 12 feet long, marked at one end for the correct position of the pins. There are 10 small maple pins about 8 inches high. And two small wooden bowling balls, painted black, about the actual size of a duck pin ball. Also is a score pad for keeping an accurate record of strikes and spares and railroads—and turkeys, we hope.

• • •

Another bowling game, but on the dart board principle [figure that out if you can] is fun to have in readiness to rescue a dull evening. To elucidate. . . . It really is a dart board. But the board is marked with bowling pins standing in their regular triangular formation. Each pin is numbered and the score is figured according to the numbers of the pins that have been pierced by the darts. In the dart-bowl game a new throwing technique is developed since players are expected to throw their darts with an underhand motion as a regular bowling ball would be delivered. A set of three darts comes with the board and others can be purchased if you wish.

An active game for stay-at-homes is theindoor shuffleboard — scaled down to indoor proportions, of course. The contents of the box include an oilcloth "court" 9 feet long and 2 or 2½ wide, marked in the standardized manner. Little round wooden discs and short handled "shufflers" complete the equipment.

New Corduroy Gloves

Corduroy gloves in a warm beige color reach a new high and pleasing note in the fashion world. The purse against which they pose is brown wool jersey with a light brown carved wooden frame.

Gay Ballet Dancer Figurines Contain Delightful Scents

Sachet collectors will delight in a group of little figurines that have pretty scents tucked inside them.

There are gay little ballet dancers, and soldiers and sailors in authentic looking uniforms, each one fun to own to make life sweeter.

To tuck inside a shoe bag or directly into a pair of shoes when they're off duty are cunning, feminine little mules covered in pastel and flowered silks, with a delightful sachet powder buried inside them.

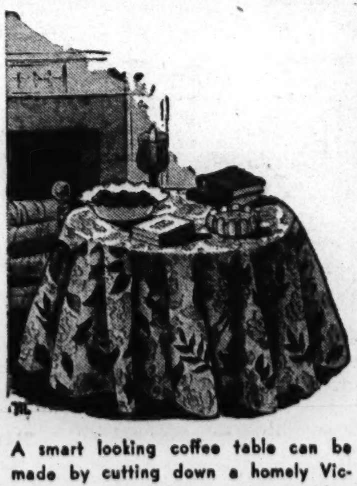
Here Are Some Tests in Buying Furniture

When you buy furniture, make sure of construction. Test the piece for rigidity. If it gives when new, it will wobble later. Drawers should pull easily and slide smoothly when the pull on only one side is used. Examine hinges to be sure doors don't sag when open. Open table leaves to make sure they fit evenly and match. One of the chief advantages of buying genuine mahogany is that you can count on a construction worthy of the wood.

Chippendale Highboys Originate in Philadelphia

At the end of the 18th century, Philadelphia, Pa., was the heart of this continent. It was not only our largest city and serving as temporary capital pending the completion of the city of Washington, but it was the home of the famous Philadelphia school of furniture designers, whose work, including particularly the handsome Chippendale mahogany highboys for which this school is famous, is cherished and reproduced today.

Coffee Table



A smart looking coffee table can be made by cutting down a homely Victorian stand and then covering it with a full, to-the-floor floral-patterned cloth.

Let an Electric Blanket Keep Your Bed Warm

Science's new aid to restful sleep is a blanket that automatically provides the proper warmth on the coldest night, thus eliminating the need for heavy piles of extra covering.

The automatic blanket has the appearance of any good quality blanket. Inside the fabric, tiny, flexible wires, connected to the home electric current and controled by a small bedside table thermostat, provide even, gentle warmth thruout the night, regardless of room temperature fluctuations.

The principle is the same as that now applied to the construction of electrically heated flying suits for the army air forces. Altho the public can purchase the blankets in department stores and other retail outlets now, none will be available beyond present supplies until after the war.

• • •

The automatic blanket is undistinguishable, at a casual glance, from an ordinary blanket. It is composed of 32 cent wool, 20 per cent rayon, and 48 per cent cotton, and is bound in matching rayon satin. In size, it is 72 by 86 inches, ample for either single or double bed. It can be laundered by hand, either at home or by a good hand laundry, in the same manner that any fine woolen blanket would be laundered.

Variously described as "the first major improvement in sleeping comfort since the invention of the innerspring mattress" and "the night time answer to a fuel shortage," the automatic blanket originated in the laboratory seven years ago. Since then it has been in daily use in thousands of homes thruout the country. It has been approved by the underwriters laboratories and accepted for advertising in the publications of the American Medical association.

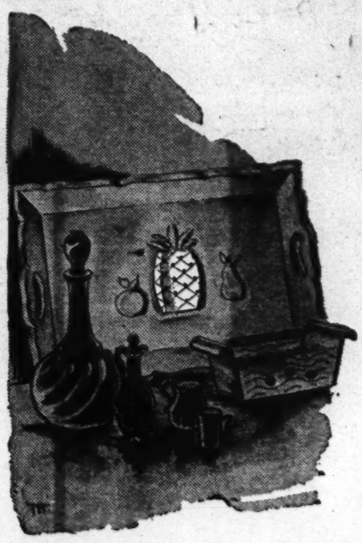
• • •

The complete unit consists of the blanket itself, a small transformer, which may be suspended under the bed, and the bedside table thermostat. It operates on standard alternating current. The thermostat reduces the regular 110-120 volts to approximately 15 volts, less than the voltage required to operate a toy train. The bed is then made up in the usual manner, and the dial on the thermostate set for the warmth desired.

So long as the room temperature remains at or above the desired point, the blanket produces no additional warmth. As the room temperature falls, however, the thermostatic control operates to maintain the desired warmth. Should room temperature rise again above the point at which the thermostat has been set, the blanket automatically ceases to operate. Once the preferred sleeping temperature has been selected, all that is necessary is to snap the thermostat switch on at night and off in the morning.

Charming Table Sets Found in Mexican Wares

By Claire Winslow



This good looking tray and toast rack are of Mexican tin, hand crafted. The glass carafe and little pitchers are of the artistic green and blue glass for which Mexico is famous. All priced for the slender budget.

Shipments of new wares from Mexico prove once more that native craftsmen are true artists. The interesting tin pieces that look much more like pewter or dull silver than lowly tin, the beautiful deep blue and sea green glass, and the pottery which is now being developed in new colors and glazes all have an artistic, handmade look that sets them apart from machine made products.

• • •

These items solve the problem of setting an attractive table on a slim budget. It is easy to achieve individual and charming effects on an amazingly small outlay. A dozen large blue water glasses, for example, are only $4, and huge green ones are only $5, while some stunning, deep blue glass mugs are $4.50 a dozen, finger bowls are $3 for 12, and green glass cups and saucers are $4.50 for 12.

Instead of place mats of cloth, try the handsome new ones of Mexican tin which have hammered designs of flowers in outline form. These are only $1.75 each, and of course are practically indestructible, and certainly save on the laundry bill!

• • •

With them use either the green or blue Mexican glass plates, or ones of American pottery which because of their extreme simplicity and colorful glazes harmonize beautifully with articles made south of the border. We saw some heavy pottery plates in a two color effect: brown on the outside and blue on the inner side, that would be excellent with the Mexican tin place mats just described. These plates are only 75 cents each, and you can get little individual ramekins or oven ware skillets and little bean pots to go with them. Also, a bronze metal cruet stand with two cruet jugs in the same ware. The little open casseroles are 50 cents each.

Very handsome Mexican tin plates that, as stated, look like pewter or dull silver, are made in several sizes. Large ones are only $1.25 each, while bread and butter size are 50 cents and an even smaller size, 30 cents.

A good looking toast rack of Mexican tin, decorated in copper, is $2.50, and a large, modern looking pitcher, also combining tin and copper is $3.95. Then there is an assortment of tin trays with wood forming a substantial base, ranging in price from $2.95 to around $5 or $6.

• • •

A colorful centerpiece for your table can be created by piling gourds or fruit on one of the huge, round lacquer trays for which Guadalajara is famous. These are made by hand and no two designs quite alike. Colors are brilliant scarlet and white, vivid blue and white, and a cool green and white. Prices start at $1.75. These trays, too, make artistic wall decorations. Hang them like pictures.

To complete the inexpensive table setting of Mexican wares there are delightful, handmade, hand decorated, ladder back chairs with rush seats. In two styles, they come in white, or blue, or black with bright flowers painted as decorations, and prices start at only $5.95.

Gibson Girls and the Opera Return to City

By Cousin Eve.

The Chicago Historical society is having a tea today and a private view. As the season advances, our old established institutions come to the fore. The great Civic opera opened last night with "Aida," and this afternoon at the historical society we can study the art of Charles Dana Gibson, whose work had vogue in the gay '90s.

More and more the beautiful rooms of the society at North avenue and Lincoln park are being used for large parties. The early American building itself we owe to Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike and their untiring interest in the society. The late Charles Pike was former president, and to him and his charming wife who was Frances Alger of Detroit, is due credit not only for the flowering of the association, but for magnificent gifts of money and rare historical objects.

Last Thursday the Colonial Dames ended their first regional conference on patriotic service there, with a program in the theater and a reception in the Senate room above. Mrs. Robert Peck is Illinois chairman of patriotic service and presided in the theater over a large audience of Colonial Dames and foreign born members of the Graduate club, who have passed into full patriotic citizenship. These graduates are of many colors, creeds, and from all civilized lands.

Excitement was intense over films of our marines landing on Pacific isles, up to the neck in jungle grasses, fording tropical rivers, shouting and singing as bombs fell around them. Wonderful films! They stirred the blood and the whole audience joined in with the picture of Kate Smith swinging the great fighting refrains that accompany these pictures.

It was grand to see the foreign born rally round our beautiful flag with streaming eyes. Let's not imagine that the Colonial Dames meet merely to discuss the exploits of their ancestors. To be a Dame, one's forebears must have held place in colonial America, and for many years now these ladies have been teaching citizenship, as well as our language, to the emigrés.

After the program guests spread over the building examining the early day relics, the Lincoln room and Christopher Columbus treasures, and finally to the Senate room, where Mrs. Roy Sturtevant, president of the Dames, received with Mrs. Peck. At two long tea tables set in early Colonial fashion with exquisite silver and candles, hostesses took turnabout. They were Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. William P. Kenly, Mrs. Robert Gregory, and Mrs. Herbert Perkins.

Others present were Mrs. George A. Carpenter, Mrs. James R. Walker, Mrs. Howell Erminger, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Miss Frances Whedon, Mrs. Thomas B. Marston, Mrs. Harry H. High.

• • •

On the night preceding Mrs. Robert Peck gave a dinner for the visiting delegates. Her guests were Mrs. Sturtevant, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Harry R. Wilson of Indianapolis, Mrs. Steadman V. Sanford of Georgia, Mrs. Albert L. Hart of New Jersey, and Miss Louisa Zabriskie of New York. The Zabriskies are an old Manhattan family once noted in the world of fashion, but now prominent in science. Dr. Edward Zabriskie, brother of Miss Louisa, is one of America's leading psychiatrists.

When I was in Peking some years ago staying in the old Tartar city in Mrs. William Calhoun's beautiful temple palace, the Snowden Fahnestocks were on top of that world. They were a very affluent family. There were a large number of lively children who came and went—going across Siberia and the Pacific. Mr. Fahnestock kept a great sea going yacht at Hongkong. He had bought the ancient Russian embassy in the legation quarter and they were rebuilding it to suit their taste. The Snowden Fahnestocks were minded to spend their lives in Peking. They loved China — they didn't like the changing world on the outside.

The day of the Pearl Harbor attack Mr. and Mrs. Fahnestock were seized by the Japanese and put in a concentration camp. Just recently Mrs. Fahnestock became ill and died two days after her release from the camp, which I understand is just outside of Peking.

Mr. Fahnestock is still a prisoner, and their son, Bruce, fighting in the Solomons, has been reported lost in action. A very sad ending to the beautiful, carefree life of an American family in China.

Here at home the opera begins with a better advance sale of tickets than in years. Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. Frank Logan gave a reception with music at her house, 1150 Lake Shore drive, in honor of Robert Hall McCormick, Fortune Gallo, opera director, and the board of governors.

Present also were Congressman and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey of Washington, old friends of the Logan family. And Mr. Dewey spoke briefly about his candidacy. He spoke of his experience in the navy and his post in the treasury and his diplomatic appointment to Poland.

Mrs. Logan sat wreathed in pink orchids which trailed over her sapphire frock, a small hat of blue feathers on her smooth black hair. She had a cordial greeting for all her guests and made a brief speech of welcome. Operatic arias were sung by Mmes. Paggi, Margery Mayer, and Mona Bradford, a lovely Californian who has a slim waist and a rich contralto voice, and Andelon, a dashing bass baritone.

• • •

After the concert these gifted singers, who all have lovely voices, assisted in the dining room. And here was a tea table absolutely groaning, as were the buffet and side tables, with flowers, fruits, bonbons, sandwiches, salads — the most elaborate and lavish refreshments. With coffee restricted, coffee was more popular than champagne that afternoon.

There are not so many great houses any more where life goes on as it always has. But Mrs. Logan's domicile, with its family portraits on brocade hung walls, its deep piled rugs, cushy divans and chairs, the gleam of gold and the blush of couleur de rose, breathe of a long lifetime of comfortable and generous living. Mrs. William Felton in green was smartly in evidence—Stuart Logan's youngest girl.

Voting on Tuesday was made superattractive in at least two precincts of the 43d ward. Mrs. W. O. Goodman's French "maison parté culière" in Astor street has a porte cochère entrance into a walled court, and election judges sat in the Goodman garage. The courtyard is a quiet, picturesque place with benches and trees, a green lawn as big as a hankerchief. Another de luxe polling place was in the court of Lawrence Whiting's house copied from the Trianon at Versailles, at 1544 Lake Shore drive. While the host did not give election judges three meals as Mrs. Jacob Baur did in the April primary, coffee and sandwiches were served.

Congressman and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey kept open house at 2800 Sheridan road and at 10 o'clock as signs of a victorious Republican sweep of the country became apparent, a hot buffet supper was served. Mrs. Frederick Alger, the Deweys' eldest daughter, came over from Detroit to hear election returns with the family. The Edward Byron Smiths came down from Lake Forest, and Peter Dewey's bride, charming young Nancy, was already here on a visit from Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey campaigned all over the 9th district, and the congressman's popular wife gave talks before several woman's clubs in her own inimitable fashion.

The Arts club hummed Tuesday morning with the reopening of the Russian Trio season. For one, I was glad that in this changing world this series of morning concerts continues. The artists, Mrs. Nina Minchin, Mike Wilkomirski, and Ennio Bolognini, for ten years or more have given their music of the classical past. It's the most honey-sweet music there is, and infinitely soothing and inspiring in these times of chaos.

Mme. Minchin, pianist of the group, sat at her piano on the little stage, playing with enormous verve and brilliancy. The trios given were Dvorak's Opus 21 in B flat and, my favorite, Arensky's No. 32 in D minor.

After the recital there was an upsurge to luncheon above where the officers entertained the performers, also the Czech consul and his wife. Mrs. John R. Nicholson, president; Mrs. Otho Ball and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, vice presidents; Mrs. Sanford Gifford, treasurer, and Mrs. Frederick Schaaf, secretary, sat at the long table. Others on the board are Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Clifford Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. William Petersen, Mrs. Lewis Pollack, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Arthur Wirtz, Mrs. Albert Wolf, Mrs. George Zendt.

One of the small luncheons of that day was in honor of Mrs. Olaf Tevander's guest, Lady Oakes of London, wife of Sir Harry Oakes, and given by Mrs. Charles Davis.

Lady Oakes, a tall, blue eyed beauty, was Mrs. Jacob Baur's guest at luncheon on Wednesday at 1511 Astor street, when a dozen women were invited to meet her. It was an interesting party, following as it did the exciting election. The Oakeses have a house at Nassau and have bought recently at Bar Harbor. Their London house was bombed in one of the latest German air raids, but outside of blowing out all the windows, the damage was slight. The bomb went thru the mansion in a direct hit and buried itself 30 feet in the ground. Londoners are not replacing their window panes with glass these days; they use mica instead.

Mrs. George Zendt the other evening took two young gobs from Navy pier to a dinner given by the Woman's Symphony members. Otherwise the service men present at the invitation of Mrs. James Shakman, the president, were officers of the army and navy. Mrs. Zendt had two tickets for this benefit dinner and finding the two young sailors window shopping on Michigan avenue she invited them to dine as her guests. They were two charming and very grateful boys from New York and were quite overcome with Chicago hospitality. Other kind friends motored them back to Navy pier at the end of a perfect day.

Music and more music! Last Sunday night the Arts club had one of its most chic entertainments, a dinner with a piano recital by Claudio Arrau. The good looking and talented Chilean was one of the most carefully arrayed of men. He has a slight mustache and is rather blond, as many Chileans are. There wasn't room for a mouse in the dining room when all were seated. The French consul general and Mme. Imbault-Huart had a long patriarchal table and the largest party. Near by sat Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift with Col. and Mrs. George Langhorne and Mrs. Alfred Shaw.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed in the blackest black frock had Sergei Rachmaninoff and Madame in tow. Fancy having to play Bach and Beethoven with the great Russian composer pianist looking on! He fingered the Beethoven opus on his knee in time with Arrau—who appeared exhausted after the Beethoven, but got by nicely with the Bach-Partita in C minor —No. 3. The true music lovers in the company rejoiced greatly at the Bach ,but the lowbrows were much bored. Mr. Arrau selects his own program and tells you what he will play.

As for the six Debussy preludes, half the audience side-stepped them and many were home sweetly sleeping at the final note.

Countess Sophie Kutusov betook her handsome self back to New York last Sunday, after a year of life in our fair city. She came here somewhat later than her distinguished father, Comte Sergei Kutusov, who has likewise returned to Manhattan, but he went in midsummer. Comte Kutusov is one of the most brilliant and agreeable of all the European exiles who have come to this country. He is a grandson of that great general and strange character, Prince Kutusov, whom you may have read about in Tolstoi's "War and Peace," and who drove Napoleon out of Russia early in the last century.

After the grandson left Russia, he came to France and quickly adapted himself to commercial life. He headed the outside business of Chanel—and having been one of the wealthiest men in all Russia and the greatest landowner, he lost all, but had the ability to survive and succeed. When war made Paris impossible, Count Kutusov sailed for New York with his daughter, Sophie. Another daughter is married to a son of Grand Duke Alexander and with her husband and child lives in London. Kutusov is a cousin of that Prince Serge Obolensky who was here over last weekend.

WED TO LIEUTENANT

Mrs. Paul Henderson Dean will be making her home at Camp Butner, N. C., where Lieut. Dean is stationed with the army. She is the former Shirley Hopp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Hopp of Estes avenue. Both Lieut. Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Dean of Fairfield avenue, and his bride are graduates of the University of Illinois.

Mary Lu Bowman, daughter of Mrs. C. D. Bowman, Lake Bluff, to Edward V. Garolis, Waukegan. Mr. Garolis is awaiting induction into the service.

Mary Lu Bowman.

Betty Alden Boor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden K. Boor, 6030 Ellis avenue, to Paul William Collin, Evanston, son of the Rev. and Mrs. William L. Collin, Downers Grove. The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays.

When Chicago Was Young

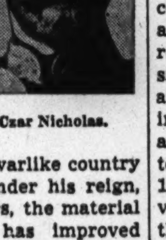
By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 2, 1894.

Dear Julia:

Weren't you shocked by the news of the death of the czar of Russia? When the crown passes to the next generation in any of the great European countries, one never knows what may happen, for the peace of Europe is easily disturbed. The czar, Alexander III., who has just died, was a prudent, if not a brilliant ruler and he gave his warlike country 10 years of peace. Under his reign, according to the papers, the material condition of Russia has improved greatly and even if his policies have not been very liberal, I suppose we should remember that he saw his own father, who had made greater concessions to liberalism than any previous ruler of Russia, slain by Nihilists.



Czar Nicholas.

"One thing must be said of him," says Will, "and that is that he lived a virtuous life. Those who have been our diplomatic representatives in that country speak in the highest terms of his personality and character."

What will be the history of the son of the dead Alexander, the new czar, Nicholas II., who now ascends the throne of that vast country? His pictures show him as looking singularly like his cousin, the duke of York. Their upbringing has been different, of course, yet as their mothers were sisters, they must have influenced their sons to some extent similarly. They [the mothers] came of fine stock . . . the Danish royal family being sturdy and independent—and one can hope much for Russia under this new ruler. At least, he seems not to be bigoted. He is quoted as saying: "I am a pious Christian, but my belief in the Savior does not entitle me to persecute others on account of their faith." If this is authentic, all Europe should rejoice, especially Germany, for German sects, living on Russian soil, have been much persecuted. There is one sect called the Stundists, I believe, which has groaned under such persecutions, and besides these, there are the Lutherans, Roman Catholics, and Jews. Germany has been so liberal in her attitude toward the Jews, especially. They have lived so happily there, while in Russia there have been so many pogroms.

Something I saw in the morning paper from another quarter of the world filled me with alarm. A Japanese poet named Prince Arisugawa is gaining fame among his countrymen by the vituperative verse he is writing about the Chinese. "Strike and chastise China," is the burden of all his poems. His is a bloodthirsty muse and he calls all Chinese "arrogant and ignorant." They are "pigtailed vagabonds" and "cowards" and the like, and he adjures warriors to plant he flag of the Rising Sun on the walls of Pekin. His songs are said to be on the lips of every Japanese soldier in Corea. I fear Japan, the little country of which we have thought with such affection, as we might feel toward a bright child, is emulating only the evil tendencies of the occident.

Well, my dear, I think I have shed enough gloom about me for the moment. I shall say good-by and go on my way to the peaceful occupations of marketing, shopping and calling, and will leave the fate of nations in other hands.

Ever with love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Nicholas II. [1868-1918] who became czar in 1894, continued the reactionary and suppressive measures of his father, Alexander III. In 1905, on account of the defeats inflicted on the army in the Russo-Japanese war, a revolutionary movement swept Russia. This was defeated, altho a duma and constitution were granted. Crushing defeats in the World war caused a revolution and the czar was forced to abdicate March 15, 1917. On June 16, 1918, he was executed by the bolsheviks at Ekaterinberg, together with the czarina and their five children.

The Father Mathew Parade of 1894.

Mrs. Elsie Payne Clifford, 5925 Race avenue, Chicago, remembers the great temperance parade mentioned recently, in this column, and tells of the influence of the saintly Father Thomas Cox of St. Jarlath's church, who ministered to the poor and needy at Cook County hospital. "Many a man was cured of the liquor habit thru the influence and prayers of Father Cox," writes Mrs. Clifford. . . . F. G. Vallely, 1142 Winona street, marched with the Father Mathew fife and drum corps. He recalls particularly an organization of Scotch lads and lasses, dressed in Highland costume, headed by bagpipes and drums.

Church Choirs of Chicago.

G. J. P., one of this column's faithful readers, writes, after reading the story of George F. Root's war song, "The Battle Cry of Freedom," in the Graphic section: "I heard Jules Lumbard sing, but never heard Frank, his brother. Jules was the bass singer in the quartet at Plymouth church, Michigan avenue and 26th street. The tenor was Charles Knorr, who in my opinion could sing the solos from the oratorio of the Messiah better than any one else I ever heard, and I have probably heard 20 men sing them. . . . Church choirs of early Chicago were notable. At that time, the churches were powerful. The men who made Chicago attended the churches, supported them, and wanted the best. The First, Second, and Fourth Presbyterian churches, as well as Plymouth church, were noted for their fine quartets." . . . F. E. Bonney, 2515 Noyes street, Evanston, in commenting on the story of "The Battle Cry of Freedom," writes of having been present at the great spectacle "America" at the Auditorium during the World's Fair in 1893, when on the stage a camp was shown, with fires and tents, while a male quartet sang "Tenting Tonight." Civil war veterans sitting near him wept with emotion at the recollections evoked by the war song, writes Mr. Bonney.

British Empire Daughters Open Bazar Thursday

By Irene Steyskal.

Mrs. Joseph G. Bolter. [Stafford Photo.]

First presagings of Christmas come with an announcement from the Daughters of the British Empire in Illinois that their annual three day preholiday bazar will open Thursday, Nov. 19, in the Hotel La Salle. Early shoppers making their purchases at the benefit sale will be putting their money to double service, for in addition to procuring their holiday gift supply, they will be contributing toward the maintenance of the British Old People's home in Hollywood, Ill.

By means of benefits and contributions thruout the year, the 33 chapters of British Daughters in the state raise $35,000 annually for the upkeep of the home, and the winter bazar is their largest single fund raising event. Last year's sale yielded $7,500, and Mrs. Joseph G. Bolter, who managed it and is serving again as general chairman, is hopeful that that amount will be exceeded this season.

The Grand ballroom of the hotel, scene of the bazar, will present a colorful spectacle in the patriotic spirit, decorative plans indicate, with red, white, and blue streamers, banners and bunting grouped and draped to form the main motif, the victory V. There will be 33 generously stocked booths, including a Swiss embroidery chalet, cravat and "scent and sentiment" shops, pantry shelf, refreshments and sweets shops, book stall, art salon, treasure chest, arts and crafts, utility, novelty, and toy booths.

Mrs. W. G. Martin, with Mrs. A. W. Bode and Mrs. P. L. Richtmeyer assisting, will operate a tearoom, in which Mrs. Harry Hughes, national organizing secretary of the society, will preside as official hostess. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Richtmeyer also are the decorations committee.

The formal opening program is scheduled for noon of the 19th, when W. H. Gallienne, British consul general in Chicago, will give an address, and the Rev. Herbert W. Prince, rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, will pronounce an invocation. Participating in the ceremonies will be Mrs. George Cooke Adams, honorary president; Mrs. Percy Mather, active state president, and Mrs. Dudley R. Welch, Mrs. Harry Hughes, and Mrs. John W. Aspley, honorary vice president.

The second day of the bazar will be designated as Chapters' day, when each of the chapters will present purses to Mrs. Adams to be deposited in the bazar fund. Highlighting the entertainment that day will be a musical program by the pianist, Phylis Haser. Saturday, the 21st, will be Children's day, with special amusements for the youngsters.

Mrs. Douglas T. McCall is serving as vice chairman of Mrs. Bolter's general committee, and among the active assistants are Mrs. J. E. Connelly, Mrs. J. M. Dowd, Mrs. K. M. Thomas, Mrs. W. Braid White, Mrs. F. V. Tydd, Mrs. Helen S. Cole, Mrs. Adelaide C. Stephen, Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Mrs. William O. Holton, Mrs. J. W. Aspley, and Mrs. L. M. Faulkner.

The British Daughters have the cooperation of three associated organizations on their benefit, the British Empire association, the Welsh Woman's club, and the Edith Cavell auxiliary of the Canadian legion.

Christmas charities motivate a benefit that will draw large numbers of former University of Illinois students Saturday to the Illinois Union building at 715 South Wood street. A bridge luncheon is scheduled for 1 o'clock. The party is given by the Illinae club of Chicago.

For several years the Illinæ have constituted themselves St. Nick's emissaries to the crippled children at the Illinois Research and Educational hospital, providing a Christmas tree, stockings, and other gifts for each youngster, bringing carolers and other entertainers to the institution. The benefit party, for which Mrs. S. S. Sommerfield and Miss Shirley Wallace are serving as co-chairmen, is planned to raise funds for this activity.

This week, bringing Armistice day, will see gatherings of several patriotic groups. Gov. Green is to be guest speaker Wednesday at the 23d annual Armistice day dinner of the Gold Star Mothers of the first World war. Mayor Kelly also will be present as a special guest. The assembly, with Mrs. Johanna Farley presiding, will be at 1 o'clock in the Morrison hotel. A special open invitation to attend is extended to today's Gold Star Mothers.

Other speakers will be William Keith, Mrs. Doris Gendrick, Mrs. Gladys Thorsell, and Mrs. Grace Perry, with Mrs. Elizabeth De Lacy serving as toastmistress. Also taking an active part in the program will be Mrs. Ruth Gahlback, arrangements chairman; Mrs. Alberta Curlee, Miss Vida Tamburino, Mrs. Angela De Vere, Mrs. Mable Swift, Mrs. Nellie Mayo, and Mrs. Marie Barry.

Miss Florence Deneen. [Montfort Photo.]

Two state units of the Illinois Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the national defense thru patriotic education committee, headed by Miss Florence Deneen, and the Americanism committee, with Mrs. George Lee Morrow as chairman, are gathering in joint session Friday morning in the Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. tearoom to make a thoro checkup on the scope and variety of war activities in which the 30 member chapters are engaged. "What is your chapter doing to help win the war?" will be asked of each regent. Special war projects chairmen will give reports, which will be discussed later at the luncheon table.

Miss Deneen will be the guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of Kaskaskia chapter of the DAR at noon Tuesday in Mrs. Samuel R. Lewis' home at 4737 Kimbark avenue. Members attending will bring jams and jellies for the Martha Washington home. Mrs. Albert Harris Tippens will have charge of the program, and Mrs. Earnway Edwards, chapter regent, will preside. Mrs. Lewis will have as an assisting hostess committee Mrs. Charles S. Brintnall, Mrs. John De Feo, Mrs. Donald B. Dodd, Mrs. Alexander Hodgart, and Miss Elaine Blackman.

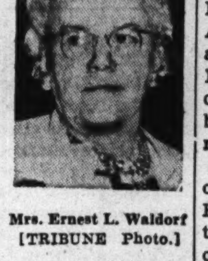
Gen. Henry Dearborn DAR chapter is holding a knitting and card party benefit to raise funds for its war work Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eugene Wendnagel, 4526 Greenwood avenue. Miss Edith Collom is in charge. The group is headed by Mrs. Herbert E. Torrance. Henry Purcell chapter has a regular meeting scheduled for Wednesday at the Plaisance hotel, to which the members have been requested to bring decks of playing cards and stamped picture postal cards for the veterans at Hines hospital. A musical and book review program is planned. Mrs. Augustus E. Olson, newly elected regent, will conduct the meeting.



Mrs. Ernest L. Waldorf [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Monday afternoon, Nov. 16, Mrs. Ernest L. Waldorf, wife of the Methodist bishop, will open her home at 941 Sheridan road, in Wilmette, to the Protestant Woman's Protectorate for a benefit tea and book review program. The protectorate, of which Mrs. Fred W. Waterman is president, is a social agency giving aid to middle aged and elderly women. Appearing on the program will be Mrs. Wilder A. Pickard, as reviewer, and Mrs. G. B. Noll and Mrs. Ward Harris, who will provide music. Mrs. Erskine M. Jeffords and Mrs. Henry Loeppert are the chairmen assisting Mrs. Waldorf in planning the party.

Another holiday note in the club news this week comes from Miss Anna Pontius, supreme grand lady of the Ladies of Isabella, calling members to a "Christmas Cheer" meeting at 8 o'clock Saturday night at 7 South Dearborn street. Thruout the Catholic archdiocese during the holiday season, Isabella councils plan to give 44 parties at institutions for orphans and the aged, in hospitals and social centers, and Saturday's meeting is called for discussion of the Christmas cheer activities.

It is the practice of the Isabellans to leave the practical gifts, such as clothing, for year 'round philanthropic projects and to make their Christmas parties, particularly those for the children, the gayest of Santa Claus celebrations with showers of toys, sweets, and frivolities. Youngsters in the orphanages are encouraged to write letters to St. Nick, and, short of pleas for live ponies and dancing bears, their requests are painstakingly answered. Miss Marion B. Collins has been appointed Christmas cheer chairman this season, and Miss Marie McHale will serve as her secretary.

Twenty-eight circles in the Chicago archdiocesan group of the Daughters of Isabella will induct more than 500 officers at joint installation ceremonies next Sunday afternoon in the Palmer House. Mrs. Carolyn B. Manning, national regent, is coming from New Bedford, Mass., for the occasion. Arrangements for the large meeting are in Mrs. Mayme McGloon's charge. Mrs. McGloon is Chicago diocesan chairman. The installing officer will be Miss Mary Mansfield of Mattoon, newly elected state regent.

Armsitice day Wednesday will be celebrated by Chicago chapter of Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, at luncheon in the Drake hotel, culminating a half million dollar war bond sales drive which has been directed by Mrs. Bertha Reed Rissman and sponsored by Miss Pearl Franklin as chairman of the American affairs committee. Arranging the gala luncheon party are Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, Mrs. Harry Berkman, Mrs. Simon H. Soboroff, and Mrs. Mamie C. Yuckman. Mrs. James H. Olshan is president of Chicago Hadassah.

"Helping People in Wartime" will be the theme of four district meetings to be held this week and next under the auspices of the Women's division of the Jewish Charities. The north side meeting is scheduled for 1 o'clock Thursday in Temple Mizpah's community house and will be presided over by Mrs. A. Chester Green.

Mrs. David G. Schnierow will have charge of the west side assembly Tuesday, the 17th, in Washington Boulevard temple. The south side meeting will be held on the following Thursday in South Shore temple, with Mrs. Ernest Mayer in charge. The community house of North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe will be the north shore meeting place Friday, the 20th, where Mrs. Milton J. Klee will preside.

Lieut. Comm. Carlos Fallon, retired, of the Colombian navy, will speak at noon Friday at a current events breakfast in the Chicago Woman's Aid rooms, 185 North Wabash avenue.

AT HOME IN MARYLAND

Mrs. Edward L. Leslie Jr. is at home in Maryland, where Lieut. Leslie is stationed. The former Betty Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Folsom of Wilmette, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie of Wayne avenue were married on Oct. 21 in St. Francis Xavier's church, Wilmette.

[Du Bois the Drake Photo.]

MARRIED

Mrs. Phillip Cohen was Miss Mignon Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Miller of Chicago, before her marriage on Nov. 1. Mr. Cohen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Cohen of Chicago.

Panhellenic Officers Will Convene Here

Two officers from each of the 21 member groups of the Panhellenic congress will assemble in Chicago Saturday for a special two day meeting in the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue. Presiding at the conference will be Mrs. M. C. Burnaugh, 423 Blackhawk street. Mrs. Burnaugh has announced that the meeting will be given to business exclusively, and that no social events are planned.

Serving on the executive committee with Mrs. Burnaugh are Mrs. George Cunningham of Berkeley, Cal., and Miss Amy B. Onken of Chapin, Ill.

Miss Catherine McGinnis.

With Miss Catherine McGinnis directing arrangements, the Immaculata Alumnae association has completed plans for its fifth annual card party and fashion review, to be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the Crystal ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Entire proceeds from previous parties have been given to the association's scholarship at the Immaculata High school at 640 Irving Park road, but this year a part of the money raised will be donated to the USO. Miss Margarette Nolan, president, is an active worker on Miss McGinnis' committee. Miss Esther O'Malia is co-chairman.

Alumnae of the Southern Seminary and Junior college at Buena Vista, Va., will gather for tea and a discussion of their special war service project at 3:30 o'clock today at the home of Miss Lorraine Winkler in Oak Park. The group is furnishing a room in the Officers' club at Camp Skokie. Miss Theresa Christians, an alumna of the seminary, who is to make her debut in opera next season, will sing.

Psi chapter members of Delta Omicron Music sorority and their guests are meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Woman's City club rooms in the Fine Arts building for a musical and tea, with Miss Thalia Heim presiding. Miss Jay Murio, appearing in costume, will give a program of Mexican songs.

Roberta Racine to Wed Anthony Finkl This Month

The marriage of Miss Roberta Racine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field Racine, 2217 North Keeler avenue, to Anthony William Finkl will take place this month. Miss Racine is an alumna of Northwestern university. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick Finkl of Evanston, attended the University of Illinois and the Armour Institute of Technology.

Lovers of Art Offered Rich New Exhibits

By Eleanor Jewett.

November is apparently going to be as rich and interesting in the field of art exhibits as was October. The single sad note, and it is one which will strike deeply into many an Illinois artist's heart, is the announcement from Mrs. Edwin N. Johnson, president of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, that there will be no All-Illinois show this winter, nor, as a matter of fact, for the duration. The army has taken over the Stevens hotel, where for many years the All-Illinois held its exhibits, and no other space large enough for the shows is available.

Mrs. Johnson is leaving shortly for Texas. The exhibits at the Drake hotel, sponsored by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, will be continued. The current exhibit releases the pleasant news that one of the charming water colors by Anthony Buchta, "The Smokies," has been purchased.

One of the most intriguing little exhibits that opened last week is the sixth annual exhibit of miniature etchings by members of the Chicago Society of Etchers. It is hanging in the club woman's bureau at Mandel Brothers. There are etchings in black and white and etchings in color. The subject material is infinite in its variety, and there is work included from members abroad as well as members in this country. Gordon Grant has two superb marines, "Along Shore" and "Convoy." Margaret Ann Gaug will win many friends with her quartet of fascinating glimpses of fat little cherubs in busy action. "Pegasus" may attract horse lovers, but "Christmas Rush" will surely induce many a hurried visitor to relax.

James Swann is another etcher who is becoming more popular each show. You will enjoy his "Indiana Dunes," "Barlow's Barn," and "Winter Night." Alfred Hutty has a particularly fine and sensitive piece of drawing in "On the Way Home," one of the most beautiful prints in the show. "Thunderhead Crest," by Reynold Weidener, is another gorgeous etching. Helen Forman shows several attractive prints; perhaps the finest is "Suspense," a spider hanging on a thread of web. John Taylor Arms has a clearly chiseled, very effective etching, "Stokesay Castle." "Peaceful Valley," by R. H. Palenske, is exceptional, and "Strawberry Bowl," by George Joe Mess, is stunning. Antonin Sterba shows two etchings, "The Song" and "The Dance," that are memorable, and Eugene Glaman presents us a satisfying calf, "Rosie."

The exhibit will be on view to December 1 and is well worth a visit. The prices range from $1 to $5 and for that "unusual Christmas present" for the friend-who-has-everything one suggests that a dip into this exhibit might bear fruit.

Theodore Alescha is showing paintings in the tearoom gallery at Mandel Brothers thru Nov. 14. Mr. Alescha is a native of Vienna. He lived and worked there and in Paris until the Nazis captured Paris. The American emergency rescue committee brought him to the United States. This background may give one a more sympathetic approach to his work, which we found on the hard and formal side.

The Chicago Galleries' association opened yesterday a superb exhibit of the work of three artists. Shirley Friend is showing portrait studies of children, Derk Smit is showing decorative paintings of flowers, and Frank H. Myers contributes marine paintings done off the New England and California coasts. This gallery, 215 North Michigan avenue, always gives us the best that is being done in contemporary art. It plays no favorites and yields its standards not a whit to any passing decadent type of work with which the years since 1920 have frequently seethed. It is the Chicago equivalent of New York's Grand Central galleries, and that is perhaps the highest compliment that could be paid either place. The present exhibition will continue to Nov. 28, and no one who enjoys fine pictures should miss it.

The first exhibition of this season at the Arts club opened Friday to continue thru the month. The work of 13 Mexican artists is being shown. The names are all new to Chicago. They include Alarcon, Beloff, Costa, Morado, Ledesma, O'Higgins [who sounds more Irish than Mexican], Soriano, Zalce, and Anguiano. The exhibition was arranged by Lieut. Paul Schweikher, co-chairman of the Arts club's exhibition committee. The young artists are members of the modern school of art in Mexico.

The Palette and Chisel Academy of Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street, has hung its annual small picture exhibit. There are many attractive paintings in the show and back of them stand the names of some of Chicago's finest artists. Arnold E. Turtle, James Topping, Oskar Gross, Maurice Greenber, Othmar Hoffler, Holger W. Jensen, Leo A. Marzolo, C. Curry Bohm, J. Jeffrey Grant, N. P. Steinberg, and Joseph Tomanek are among the well known painters who contribute to the excellence of this exhibition. It is well worth seeing.

The Chicago Historical society, Lincoln park, opens today with a formal tea a most delightful, nostalgic exhibit of drawings and paintings by Charles Dana Gibson. The exhibit will be open to the public from Nov. 9 to Dec. 6. The "Gibson Girl" made history in her day, and this reviving of that romantic young lady is an effort which will appeal to those who remember the days that saw her debut or who have heard their parents tell stories of that era. "How times have changed!"

SOON TO BE MARRIED

Miss Nancy Dall will be married on Nov. 28 in the First Presbyterian church of Libertyville to Capt. Goff Smith of the army ordnance department. Miss Dall is the daughter of Mrs. M. Caldwell Dall of Libertyville and of Benjamin L. Dall of Wilmette. Both she and her fiance, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas Smith of Jackson, Tenn., were graduated from the University of Michigan.

Canadian Women Now in Railroad Training

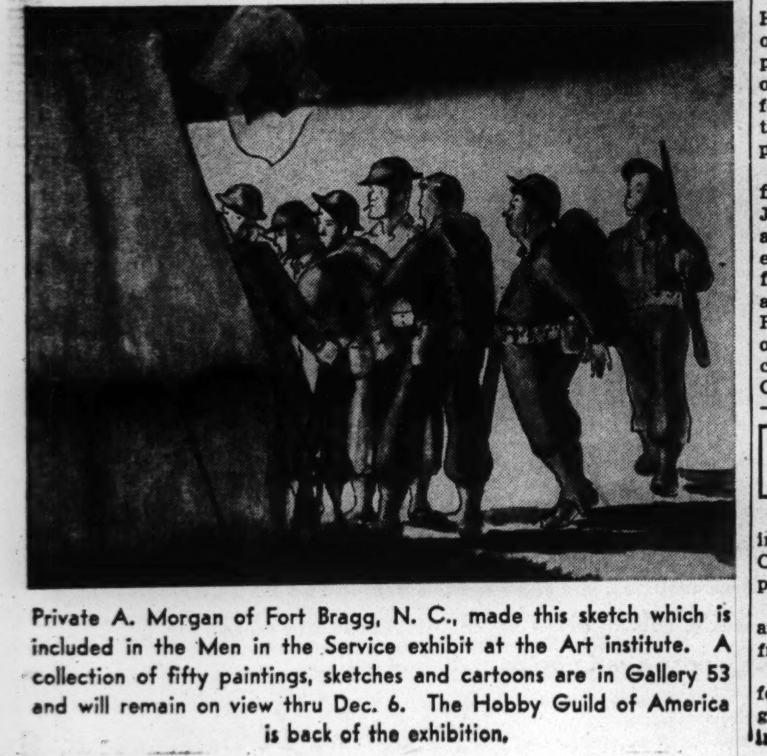
Another feminine "first," due directly to the war, is women's invasion of railroading. The Canadian National railway is giving "roundhouse training" to 11 women. Upon termination of the course they will be assigned to duties with motive power and car equipment "gangs" in terminal yards, replacing men who have entered the armed services. After the feminine yard crews are organized it is planned to place a "forewoman" in charge of each group. The only requirement for employment is plenty of muscle, willingness to work, and ability to do a good job, officials say.

Lambda Tau Delta Plans Dinner, Theater Party

Chicago branch of Lambda Tau Delta has taken a block of 150 tickets for the "Black Eyes" production at the Goodman theater, Wednesday, Nov. 18. Kappa chapter is in charge. There will be an informal dinner gathering before the play at the Italian Village, 71 West Monroe street.

The Auxiliary of Letter Carriers Plans Meeting

Mrs. Margaret McDonald will conduct a meeting of auxiliary 34 to branch 11 of the National Association of Letter Carriers at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Republic building, 209 South State street.



Private A. Morgan of Fort Bragg, N. C., made this sketch which is included in the Men in the Service exhibit at the Art institute. A collection of fifty paintings, sketches and cartoons are in Gallery 53 and will remain on view thru Dec. 6. The Hobby Guild of America is back of the exhibition.

Service Clubs Plan Benefits and Meetings

Like all her other American sisters, Dame Fashion is being recruited these days to do her part in the war effort.

She will serve a double wartime purpose Wednesday, Nov. 18, at a "Fashions for Public Morale" show to be given by the Adolf Kraus Women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith for the benefit of its Allied War Relief drive in the Covenant club. The latest fashions, attuned to present day needs, will be shown, according to Mrs. A. E. Neuberg, chairman of the event.

Mrs. Morris Perlman, president of the lodge, will be hostess at a dessert luncheon prior to the show and Mrs. Robert L. Goldblatt, 5487 Hyde Park boulevard, will be in charge of reservations.

In the spirit of service, also, a gay hard times and Halloween dinner party has been planned by the Jewish Big Sisters for the 100 Little Sisters this afternoon in the Washington Boulevard temple. Mrs. Joseph Merel will be chairman.

• • •

A gin rummy tournament will be sponsored by the Kaye E. Geman Memorial club of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Morrison hotel. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winners, Leo Cholodenko, president, has announced.

The Juniors of the Jewish Consumptive Relief society will hear Philip R. Davis talk on "War and Its Effect on Marriage" at their next meeting, 1:30 p. m., Wednesday in the Standard club. Mrs. Sydney Goldberg, program chairman, will present Mr. Davis.

Miss Bernice Flynn of the department of child study for the Chicago board of education will be guest speaker at a dessert luncheon of the Chicago Philanthropic club Tuesday in the Hamilton hotel. Mrs. Samson Goldenburg, president, will be hostess.

A luncheon and keeno party will be given by the Service Club of the Fox River sanitarium tomorrow in the Standard club, Mrs. Phillip Livingston, president, has announced. The regular meeting of the Metropolitan Group of the Fox River santiarium will be held at 8 p. m., Tuesday, in the Standard club. Miss Natalie Salomovitz, president, will be hostess during the social hour following the meeting.

• • •

Dorothy Kahn, president of the Rest Haven guild, will preside at the regular meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in room 612 at 23 East Jackson boulevard.

"The Rôle of Sex Hormones in Health and Disease" will be the topic of a lecture by Dr. M. Edward Davis, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Chicago, before the Chicago Women's division of the National Jewish hospital at 2 p. m., Tuesday, in the Standard club.

The ninth annual dinner dance and floor show of the Benjamin and Julius Cohen Heart fund will be held at 6:30 p. m. this evening in the Covenant club, 10 North Dearborn street, for the benefit of the club's work among cardiac children, the American Red Cross, and the United Service organizations. Philip J. Rose, general chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Clement Miller, co-chairman.

Zonta International, founded a year after the last great world conflict, will celebrate its 23d anniversary this week.

At the anniversary meeting of the Zonta Club of Chicago Tuesday in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue, members will again look to their place in a postwar world. Mrs. S. Katherine Maddux, former international president and past president of the Chicago club, will discuss the subject, "Zonta in the Postwar World." Members of the South Side, Oak Park, and Evanston clubs are invited to attend.

As part of the anniversary program, Zonta's 150 clubs thruout the nation will coördinate the war services of their members into club projects. At present the clubs are participating in the war bonds and stamps campaign and every member has been made a committee of one to bring in scrap during the present salvage drive.

A war program will also be held by the Social Economics club at its November luncheon and card party Tuesday in the Republic building assembly room, 209 South State street. Col. Louis A. Boening will give an Armistice day address. He will be presented by Mrs. S. G. Olsen, president.

The Women's Round Table of Economics will hold its next dinner meeting Tuesday in the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. Miss Grace May of Ames, Emerich & Co. will speak on "Common Stocks as an Investment in an Inflationary Period," and Miss Hortense Friedman, assistant treasurer of the University of Chicago, will discuss "The Importance of Selectivity in Common Stocks." A round table discussion will follow with Miss Kathryn Coger of the Northern Trust company, president, as chairman.

Three prominent authorities on housing will address an all-day meeting of the Illinois League of Women Voters at 10:30 a. m. Friday in the league headquarters, 225 North Michigan avenue. Guest speakers of the morning will be Philip Klutznick, regional director of the National Housing agency, whose topic will be "The War Hits Housing," and Mrs. Hilda Gitlin, executive director of the Metropolitan Housing council, who will talk on "What Can We Do About It?"

Dr. Louis Wirth, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago and a member of the regional committee of the National Resources Planning board, will discuss "Housing and Postwar Planning" at the afternoon session. The meeting will be presented by the league's department of government and economic welfare, of which Mrs. Edward D. Nix is chairman.

Board members of the league will meet with Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, president, at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday. Mrs. Bohrer and several education chairmen of the local leagues will discuss "Federal and State Aid to Education" at an all-day meeting of the government and education department Wednesday. The meeting, which will begin at 10:30 a. m., will be in charge of Mrs. Homer Johnson, chairman.

A busy weekly calendar has been scheduled for the Woman's City Club of Chicago. A distinguished guest tea, with Willard W. Beatty, director of education for the office of Indian affairs, as the special guest, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the clubrooms, 410 South Michigan avenue. The foods and merchandise committee and the Chicago Housewives' league will meet at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday to discuss the "Share the Meat" program, the correct use of coffee, and other current issues in rationing and price control. Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, chairman and president, will preside.

Allan C. Williams of the National Housing agency will outline "What the Chicago Housing Situation Requires to Meet the War Effort" at a meeting of the housing committee at 10:30 a. m. Friday. Miss Helen M. Rathburn, chairman of the committee, has arranged the program. The semiannual business meeting of the club will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday.

"Laws of the Spirit" will be the topic of a lecture by Dr. Arturo Fallico at an education and philosophy department program of the Chicago Woman's club at 11 a. m. Friday in the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street. Other meetings of the club thruout the week will include a national and international affairs committee program at 11 a. m. tomorrow, a business meeting at 2 p. m. Wednesday, and an all-day session of the Red Cross unit Thursday.

Five interesting meetings will be held by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs in the state headquarters, 30 West Washington street, this week.

Presidents of the northern district will meet with Mrs. Alva R. Dry, vice president of the northern region, at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. Members of the garden department, under the leadership of Mrs. M. L. Schmitz, chairman, will attend the first class in a monthly course on "Flower Arrangements" at 10 a. m. Tuesday. The legislation department, of which Mrs. Frank S. Devin is chairman, will also meet Tuesday to hear Mrs. George Greenfield and Dr. Adelaide Doolittle Hoeffel, state chairmen. The meeting will convene at 1:30 p. m.

A quiz program will be conducted by Mrs. Perley E. Gunton and Mrs. Harry Lepinske, 9th and 4th district press chairmen, respectively, at a meeting of the press and publicity department at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. Mrs. H. M. Daughtrey, chairman, will preside. The radio department will meet with the chairman, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, at 10:30 a. m. Friday.

Mrs. George Hanly Nippert.

Women's war activities will be the theme of the monthly meeting of the Southern Woman's Club of Chicago Thursday in the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. George Krebs of the Red Cross speakers' bureau will speak on "Red Cross Services to the Armed Forces" and Mrs. C. Leslie Swander, president of the women's division of the Goodwill Industries, will discuss the training to handicapped persons to aid in the war effort. Luncheon will precede the program. Mrs. George Hanly Nippert will preside.

Mrs. Henry W. Hartough, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, has called a meeting of her board members for 10:30 a. m. Friday in headquarters, 209 South State street.

"Raising an Altar of Thanksgiving" will be the topic of a talk by Miss Mary Katharine Russell, who recently returned from the Cheeloo university in Tsinanfu, China, at a meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church at 1:30 p. m. Friday in the Chicago Temple. She will be presented by Mrs. A. O. Aldrich, president.

Parent-Teacher leaders from thruout the state will attend the meeting of the board of managers of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers Wednesday and Thursday in the Hotel Sherman. Reports of the convention committees and election of chairmen for the radio and summer roundup committees will be the business of the meeting. The executive committee of the board of managers will meet with Mrs. Theodore Gleichman of Moline, state president, at a conference Wednesday evening following the opening session.

To prepare their reports for the board of managers, members of the program and general arrangements committees for the 44th annual convention of the congress will meet Tuesday with their chairmen, Mrs. George R. Ives, general arrangements, and Mrs. Melvin Lockard Cobden, program. The convention will be held April 14 to 16 in Peoria.

Directors of the Garden Club of Illinois will hold their first monthly meeting of the fall and winter season at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in headquarters at the Palmer House. Mrs. Raymond Knotts, president, will be in charge.

Julian Gromer, photographer, traveler, and lecturer, will show motion pictures of the western states and Alaska in an illustrated lecture on "Adventures in Dreamland" at a program and tea of the Wild Flower Preservation society, Illinois chapter, Thursday afternoon in the Cordon club, 410 South Michigan avenue. He will be presented by Mrs. E. E. Walful, president.

Helen Kirkpatrick, foreign war correspondent and author, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Friends of American Writers Wednesday noon in the Chicago Athletic association. Her topic will be "War, Literature, and Social Evolution?" Mrs. Phyllis R. Wermuth, first vice president, will preside at the meetings this year in the absence of Mrs. George B. Van Buren, president, who is working with the legal division of the ordnance department for the government.

Tomorrow will be Sculpture day for members and guests of the Renaissance in the clubrooms of the Art institute. Mrs. Charles E. Plumb, chairman, will present Paul G. Dallwig in "The Parade of the Races in Bronze." Mrs. Norman Johnson will be hostess at tea.

The Central Eleanor club will hold a combined membership dinner and business meeting at 7 p. m. Friday in headquarters, 16 North Wabash avenue. An illustrated lecture on "Wyoming Trails" will be given by Florence Dibell Bartlett following the meeting.

WEDDINGS

Wedding and engagement announcements must be signed by a member of the family and must bear the address and telephone number of the signer. All names must be printed in full. Announcements must reach the society editor by Tuesday noon preceding the Sunday of publication.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

A Gulf Coast Vacation Aids Taut Nerves

By Dorothy Johnson.

A nation geared to war production, and fired with patriotism, inevitably builds a colossal case of "nerves." One prescription to soothe tattered tempers is a vacation on the gulf coast, away from the noise and high speed, urban congestion and enervating cold weather. We've tried it, and it can't fail.

Twenty-four hours from Chicagoland is the semi-tropical gulf of Mexico coastline, of which Mississippi is the approximate geographical center, with Florida and Alabama to the east, and Louisiana and Texas to the west. Florida has its enthusiastic devotees, and so has Texas, but we want particularly, on this occasion, to point out the advantages of Mississippi, where we have spent several leisure allotments.

• • •

As this is written, only a few hotels have been taken over for use by the armed services and that leaves a good many justly famous and comfortable hostelries for civilian accommodations. The latchstrings are out for relatives of service men, as well as for ordinary sun seekers. A few changes in gulf coast routine were to be expected, as is the case elsewhere, but nothing can alter the scenic attractions of palms and azaleas, pearl white stretches of sand, blue green salt water always the right temperature for swimming, and ancient liveoaks, draped in Spanish moss, shading historic streets.

In the midst of all this unanimity of natural beauty there are contrasts. Pass Christian, Miss., a small, tidy village, lives a languorous life. It offers the visitor the usual vacation pleasures, including golf, sailing, tennis, cycling, and other sports, all without bustling activity, and against a background of unobtrusive "southern hospitality." Its shaded residential streets are quiet and inviting. They lead past wide lawns and well tended gardens, past homes with typical southern architecture. There are few business establishments in "the pass," at the village is colloquially called, just enough shops and a little movie theater to meet the needs of the residents who, with the exception of visitors, are permanent.

• • •

Gulfport, on the other hand, is a much more enterprising city. Along its shoreline are several excellent hotels offering the customary sand-and-salt-water pleasures and facilities for sports. In its downtown section, which is a great deal larger than that of Pass Christian, there is enterprise reminiscent of northern cities of comparable size. Whereas "the pass" is not a business center, Gulfport is. Its chief industries are shipping and fishing, and it calls itself the city "where your ship comes in." However, the city's chief claim to fame is a vacation area.

Biloxi, prominent in the gulf coast's early history, is a blend of old and modern attractions. Its chief charms for the traveler are found along the shoreline, where the hotels front the beach and the breakers. The city also is nationally famous for excellent food, and is almost as well known as New Orleans in this respect. Biloxi is as celebrated for fishery, canning, and seafood cuisine as it is for purely vacation pleasures.

You will find that gulf coast cities, altho modern, have an antebellum charm to rival that of anywhere else in the south. The homes are old, attractive, and well preserved, and are surrounded by gardens of cape jessamine, roses, jasmine, azaleas, and other scented and photogenic blossoms.

Please give me a description of Isle Royale National park. L. J. O'D.

The park, of 133663 acres, is one of the few remaining wilderness areas in this part of the country. The island embracing the park has a rugged coastline of picturesque crags and ridges, and has vegetation unknown to the mainland. It lies in Lake Superior. The main island is 45 miles long and 9 miles across. The highest elevation is at Ishpenny point, 705 feet above the level of the lake. From there camera fans photograph the big moose, lynx, beavers, and other animals. The park is a fisherman's paradise, combining the catch of Lake Superior with river trout and fish of the island, rivers, and lake. Among the sights are the ancient copper mines, antedating the prehistoric workings in Great Britain, where thousands of open pits excite curiosity. At McCargo's cove is the "water hole where many moose gather under government protection. Hidden lake, the feeding ground for moose, has become widely known as a wild life preserve.

Please list some of the places of interest in Biloxi, Miss.—A. M. S.

Prominent on lists of "places to see" in Biloxi are the following: Site of old Fort Louis, where, in 1720, was situated the third establishment of Biloxi as the capital of the French colonial province of Louisiana; "Beauvoir," historic last home of President Jefferson Davis of the Confederacy; cross and boulder, at north end of D'Iberville bridge, marking landing place of French colonists; Benachi avenue, with moss draped avergreen oaks forming arch over the street; shrimp and oyster canning plants, situated in eastern and back bay sections; Deer Island, half a mile south of East Biloxi, haunt of Indians and buccaneers in centuries past.

ANCIENT WINDMILL.

ELMHURST, Ill.—To the Travel Editor: When I went east this summer I saw many interesting relics of early American history, but one which impressed me a great deal was a windmill built by hand in 1684 and still in working order, grinding fresh cornmeal.

The mill, which is the oldest of Cape Cod's colonial windmills, is built like a giant grandfather clock and is a picturesque reminder of early American craftsmanship. The vanes are 44 feet long and turn easily with a 30 mile an hour breeze off the cape, which turns the drive wheel 20 times a minute. The old wooden wheel, of 64 wooden gear pins, meshes with the ancient cast iron wheel of 13 cogs. Of special interest is the speed of the millstone, weighing 4,100 pounds, which turns at the rate of 100 times a minute. M. L. R.

Washington: the Crossroads of the World

By India Moffett.

Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Atherton Richards.

Washington is the crossroads of the world today. It's no longer just the capital of these United States; it's the globe's "State and Madison street. At least so it seems to this Chicagoan.

Perhaps to a Britisher, or a Russian, or a Chinese, or a South American, or an East Indian it wouldn't appear so, altho any one of these would have to admit that there is no other city in the United nations that is of more importance, in at least the economic aspect of the war. Strategically, Washington may not rank with London, Moscow, the Australian city in which Gen. MacArthur now is, or any one of a dozen other places, but you could start an argument on this subject here if you hinted that Washington wasn't THE most important place in the world today. For Washingtonians are loyal sometimes to the point of being ridiculous.

And by Washingtonians I don't mean just those who were born and bred here, if there be such, but those who have come recently to take part in the great business in which every one here is engaged. I've met practically no one here who does not work for the government.

• • •

The loyalty and pride of Washingtonians is understandable, however, for it still is a beautiful and interesting place in spite of the physical difficulties that the influx of so many persons in such a short time has brought about. Just bare living is a problem more intricate to solve than any puzzle I've ever encountered before. The carefree housekeeping that was taken for granted at home is out of the question here. No doubt you in Chicago are finding housekeeping different today than it was six months ago but believe me, it's a cinch there compared with here. Nothing is easy here and that is true for established households as well as new ones such as mine.

I cannot sympathize properly with those who have a struggle to get apartments or houses, for altho I know of many who have been looking for months for places in which to live, we were fortunate enough to find an apartment the first day. Not being a patient person, I was ready to sit in the middle of a spacious foyer and burst out crying by the end of the day, for everywhere in 52 buildings the answer had been the same. "We will [or will not] take your name and put it on the waiting list which has . . . [from two to six] hundred names on it now. Perhaps in a few months we will have a vacancy."

Not very encouraging. The threat of doing exactly what I felt like doing must have frightened the clerk in the next to the last building in which I looked, for she volunteered the suggestion that I should try the coöperative building up the street, just across the street from the publisher of the Washington Post's mansion. "There almost never is anything to rent there," she said in the soft drawl that all natives here have, "but sometimes at this time of year an owner goes away for the winter."

The telephone operator in the exclusive "coöp" looked startled when this weary seeker for an apartment inquired if there were anything to rent, but before she had finished answering, I was on the wire, asking if I could see apartment 203. The operator had said that one of the tenants had remarked that morning [a cold, drizzly day, thank goodness] that she thought she would go to Arizona for the winter. By the time I left, I had sold Arizona completely to the old lady, who is 85 years old, and I had enough earnest money to make the apartment ours.

• • •

The wonder woman of Washington, some one called me, but I don't deserve that nomenclature. The luckiest woman in Washington would be better. And a part time maid who is thoroly satisfactory went along with the apartment! This makes me the envy of every one I know, for the servant problem here is as bad as the housing one. It's not as vital a one, of course, for women who never did anything more strenuous in a home than to lift telephone receivers are finding that they can manage to do their cooking and cleaning. Not easily at first, and the young Chicagoan who had to break a luncheon engagement the other day because she was so exhausted after scrubbing her kitchen floor is no different from most of us.

The floor in question is not much bigger than a postage stamp, to be sure, but it got a scrubbing with an old handkerchief such as it never had before, I'm sure. The suggestion that a good sized floor rag or mop could reach all the corners in a couple of swishings was considered a brilliant one by the young housewife who has more energy and willingness than experience.

• • •

Rarely does a day pass that we do not run into some one from Illinois who is here either for the duration or just for a brief stay.

Just as they are at home, Chicagoans are into everything here. They're helping to raise the Community War Fund; they're assisting Washington in keeping its National Symphony orchestra; they're doing Red Cross and civilian defense work; they're working at and for the new Stage Door Canteen that the American Theater Wing has opened, and they're studying Spanish and Portuguese, getting ready for the peace that must come some day.

Mrs. Alberton Richards, the former Helen Hughes Dulany of Chicago, is active on Mrs. Paul McNutt's women's committee for the Community War Fund. Mrs. Richards is busy furnishing an apartment in the Shoreham, which is a major activity in wartime in this city. Deliveries are slow, of course, and when they are made, they usually are wrong. If they had been able to obtain all their lovely furnishings from their home in Honolulu, Mr. and Mrs. Richards wouldn't be needing anything else, but——. Dorothy Liebes of San Francisco, well known in Chicago, arrived Friday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Richards and to be here during an exhibit of her hand woven textiles that will be held here this coming week, starting tomorrow.

• • •

Mrs. Gordon Loud.

Another Community War Fund worker is Mrs. Gordon Loud, who resigned from the presidency of the Chicago Junior league when her husband came here with the Office of Strategic Services. The former Honor Merrell and Mr. Loud have a veritable doll's house in Georgetown, high on a bluff overlooking the Potomac. It's a charming home, tho; the first of their very own, for they lived in furnished apartments in Chicago, and it's hard to make a furnished place express one's own individuality as we're discovering in our old lady's home!

Mrs. Loud is taking the nurses' aid training at the nearby Georgetown hospital, where another ex-Chicagoan, Mrs. Howard Richardson, is serving as an aid several days each week. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson recently moved from Maryland, where they spent the summer, to an apartment in Connecticut avenue. Her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Post Nellis, has come from Chicago to spend the winter with the Richardsons.

It was at a luncheon party at Mrs. Richardson's recently that we ran into an ex-Chicagoan who didn't come to Washington because of the war. She is Mrs. Herbert Bingham [Betty Nichols] and she and her husband have lived here for 15 years.

It was an all-Chicago party that the Eugene Swigarts gave last Sunday in their charming little house in Foxhall village. Among the guests were Capt. Pierre Morel, the Roland K. Smiths [Martha Lee], Lieut. David Quinn, Capt. and Mrs. William Little, Lieut. and Mrs. James Meloy, Lieut. and Mrs. "Pat" Hamill, the James Congers, and the Louds. Mrs. Loud was late in arriving, for it was her Sunday to serve as an airplane plotter, a volunteer job that keeps her busy every other day. Mrs. Smith is up to her neck in volunteer war work, too, and chief among her activities are publicity for the OCD and radio work for the same outfit.

YOUNG COUPLE AT HOME IN EVANSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Goff Beach Jr. are at home in Evanston following a wedding trip to Colorado. The former Mary Ellen Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Thompson of Evanston, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Beach of Evanston were married in the First Presbyterian church in that suburb, with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents.

[Toloff Photo.]

SOON TO WED

Miss Janet Cecile Oppenheimer will be married on Nov. 17 at the Standard club to Sam F. Seessel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Seessel of Memphis, Tenn. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Oppenheimer of Highland Park was graduated last June from Goucher college. Her fiance, who now is the officers' candidate school in Camp Lee, Va., attended the University of Wisconsin and New York university.

[Koehne Photo.]

State History Is Theme of Club Meeting

Parks and memorials having significance in the history of the state will be the theme of a lecture by Brockett R. Bates before the Native Daughters of Illinois Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 17, in the Fine Arts building. Mr. Bates will show color motion pictures.

At a 1 o'clock history study class, preceding the lecture, Mrs. Franklin M. Miller will review the French, British, and Virginian "periods" in Illinois, the story of statehood in relation to the federal government. Mrs. Miller has been president of the club. Mrs. Frank Hall Andrew, vice president and program chairman, will present Mr. Bates.

Mrs. James W. Dansey, the president, will announce at the forthcoming meeting that a "silver offering" will be taken up at the group's Christmas party next month for war work for service men. At the opening meeting last month the organization purchased a $100 bond.

Wisconsin Women of Chicagoland will meet for luncheon at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow in the 19th floor restaurant of the Republic building, 209 South State street. The club has opened its membership to Wisconsin women in temporary residence here thru their husbands' war service. Mrs. E. H. Hall is the president.

A luncheon meeting will bring Chicago colony of the National Society of New England Women to the Blackstone hotel at 12:30 o'clock Thursday. Mrs. George M. Kendall of Glen Ellyn is arranging a program. Mrs. Joseph Henry Brown, 4353 Drexel boulevard, is chairman of reservations.

Mrs. Walter Loegler, president, has called a meeting of the Chicago Society of Ohio Women for 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman.

Rain Is Cause for Rejoicing in Arizona

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Thursday it rained in Phoenix, and that is an occasion for celebration, for in this sun drenched land rain is the most blessed of events and a cause for rejoicing. More precious than the proverbial "gold in them thar hills" is water, be it from the ground or rain from the sky. Because of it a country has grown great and prospered but the lack of it has written terror and destruction out here in Arizona.

Centuries ago the Indians, in their need for it, offered prayers to their gods in supplication. Today the same prayers are offered by the Hopis in their famous "Snake Dance," when they dance with live rattlesnakes in mouths. Rattlesnakes are sacred to the Hopis. Their prayers are usually most efficacious, too. Of course, we are scornful of their method and sit around and do a lot of howling and wishful thinking and when it does rain we gang up at the nearest bar and join our fellow Arizonian in "hoisting a couple" to the rain. After all, the average rainfall is only 11 inches a year. So, while the resorter may complain at the rain, after he is here awhile he, too, will catch the true Arizona spirit and join in the celebration. Thursday was the first good rain since last May. The pungent, spicy smell of greasewood on the desert after a rain is worth missing many a day of golf and all the discomforts of the surging arroyas and sleek adobe trails.

Edmund J. Doering Jr. is proving to be adept at farming as well as at interior decorating, landscaping, housekeeping and what not. His home, next to Jokake Inn, which he has just completed furnishing, is really charming—a low rambling Spanish hacienda with crimson bougainvillia growing in profusion over the ramada. Friday was "open house" day for Mr. Doering when he entertained his numerous friends in Arcadia at cocktails and a tour of his farmyard to see the new chickens, ducks, bees, vegetable garden, and small citrus grove. Gas rationing will have no terrors for him as he plans to be entirely self-sustaining on his small acreage. Among the guests to whom Mr. Doering was host were the Benjamin Coopers, Miss Nora Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Evans, and the Wirt Mortons.

Mr. Doering left Tuesday for Chicago, and the Albert Johnsons of Oak Park will be out shortly to occupy his house for the winter months but Mr. Doering promises to be back in the spring to take care of his "live stock" and garden.

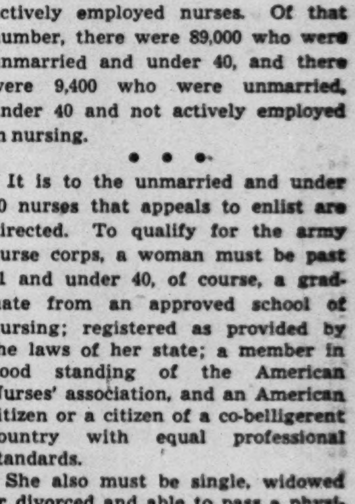
The Will Grants of Winnetka and John Brethed arrived Sunday at Jokake Inn and have spent every day at the Phoenix Country club improving their golf game. Mr. and Mrs. George Tait II. [Mrs. Harold McCormick] who were married Saturday in Phoenix had planned to leave town but were so charmed with the Jokake Inn that they are still "honeymooning" there.

• • •

Mrs. Walter Baldwin of Highland Park will return to Phoenix this week. Mrs. Baldwin has done an excellent job of her citrus and date ranch in Arcadia. It is a real business venture with her and a profitable one. She supplies most of the fruit used at the various resorts in the valley.

Out at Camelback Inn Mrs. Elizabeth Herring and her daughter Mrs. Richard Mills of Ottawa are enjoying the sunny autumn days. Mrs. Herring will stay at the inn all season but Mrs. Mills will leave next week to visit friends in Pasadena before returning to Ottawa. A Chicagoan who relaxed at the inn for a few days this week after a strenuous business trip to the coast was R. H. Gage of La Grange. With Mr. Gage was his daughter, Jane, whose paintings have won recognition both in Chicago and New York. It was her first trip to the Arizona desert and she was fascinated with all the opportunities it affords for painting. She has returned to Chicago with a book full of sketches which she will put on canvas this winter. The Clarence Lillyblades are in Los Angeles for the week but will return to the inn on Saturday.

Women in War Work - - - By Kate Massee



Mrs. Marian Fisk Applequist is the only woman among 300 men teaching job instructor training in this district of the training within industry division of the War Man Power commission.

One more woman who's invaded what used to be "no woman's land" before the war is Mrs. Marian Fisk Applequist, who is the only woman among 300 men teaching job instructor training in district 15 of the training within industry division of the War Man Power commission. The district covers lower Wisconsin, northwestern Indiana, and Illinois, with the exception of three counties.

At the Illinois Institute of Technology, where she teaches women's sections of the foreman's training course which precedes the job instructor training, Mrs. Applequist is the lone woman working with 23 men instructors. As a teacher in both these programs, she instructs women who are supervisors in war industries. After they complete the foreman training course, they may take the additional job training one, to aid further the workers they direct.

The course for women supervisors, specially planned, emphasizes problems peculiar to women in industry, and research work is being incorporated into the study. The method of teaching the course is in itself unique, since the students sit around a table and discuss conference topics informally, instead of listening to lectures.

Mrs. Applequist's students learn, among other things, sources and handling of grievances, principles of job evaluation, organization of modern industry and federal labor laws. In this manner the morale of workers is improved, production increased and waste lessened.

When the foreman training courses opened early in 1941, Mrs. Applequist was one of the two women among several hundred men enrolled. Since then 1,500 men and 100 women have completed the course, which is tuition free.

• • •

This type of work is not new to Mrs. Applequist, as she is a vocational and personnel relations executive, with her own organization. Besides conducting this business and teaching at Illinois Tech, she also teaches women's classes of the foreman training course on the premises of industrial plants.

High school graduation and present employment in war industry as a supervisor are the only requirements for the foreman training course. Classes meet in the evenings and run for 16 weeks, and new classes will be formed as frequently as possible.

Information can be secured by calling Mrs. Applequist's office, Franklin 5069, or by writing her at 173 West Madison street, or by writing the war training committee at Illinois Tech's south campus, 43 West 33d street.

Need for nurses for the armed forces is indicated by the increased enrollment of Red Cross nurses' aids to release trained personnel in hospitals; by the extension of the maximum age of army nurses from 35 to 40 for enlistment, and by the effort to interest nurses' training school seniors in entering service.

It takes a girl three years to become a graduate nurse. If so many are needed, how can they be supplied and civilians be served, too? Dr. Warren P. Morrill, research director of the American Hospital association, quotes some interesting figures in an article, "Increased Hospital Occupancy vs. Decreased Hospital Personnel."

He writes: "The Census of Hospitals for 1941 showed that there were 112,842 graduate nurses and 42,169 practical nurses and orderlies employed in hospitals. This figure did not include 93,977 pupil nurses, nor the more than 95,000 'attendants' who are for the most part employed in nervous and mental hospitals.

"The army's present procurement objective for nurses is based on a ratio of 120 nurses per thousand beds and of fifty beds per thousand soldiers—i. e., six nurses per thousand men. For the announced 3,600,000 men to be under arms by the end of 1942 the requirement would then be 21,600 nurses. For an army of 7,000,000 men it would be 42,000 nurses."

A survey in 1940 showed 173,000 actively employed nurses. Of that number, there were 89,000 who were unmarried and under 40, and there were 9,400 who were unmarried, under 40 and not actively employed in nursing.

• • •

It is to the unmarried and under 40 nurses that appeals to enlist are directed. To qualify for the army nurse corps, a woman must be past 21 and under 40, of course, a graduate from an approved school of nursing; registered as provided by the laws of her state; a member in good standing of the American Nurses' association, and an American citizen or a citizen of a co-belligerent country with equal professional standards.

She also must be single, widowed or divorced and able to pass a physical examination. Nurses accepted receive $90 a month plus full maintenance. This is a $20 a month increase over their former pay of $840 a year. When quarters are not provided the nurses receive an extra $45 a month rental allowance; it used to be $40 per month. There is a 20 per cent increase in salary for overseas duty.

A nurse is fortunate in that she receives a commission upon entering the corps. She becomes a second lieutenant. She can work for promotion to a higher rank. If she becomes a first lieutenant, she receives a raise of $50 per month. She can attain the rank of captain, and in some cases, even higher rank.

Army nurse corps headquarters for the 6th service command are in room 914, New Postoffice building, Canal and Van Buren streets. Nurses interested in joining should call at that office or get in touch with their nearest Red Cross headquarters; the Chicago chapter is at 529 South Wabash avenue. The army needs nurses at the rate of 3,000 a month.

• • •

The Red Cross needs thousands of volunteers to make more than 8,000,000 surgical dressings for the armed forces. Mrs. E. L. Ryerson, chairman of the Red Cross Volunteer Production corps in Chicago, has emphasized that dressings should be completed on time so that our fighting men will be adequately protected.

Women who are interested in giving their services should telephone Red Cross headquarters, Wabash 7850, and find out the location of their nearest production unit. There will be another large quota of dressings after the first of the year, Mrs. Ryerson said, so that it is essential to complete the present quota on schedule.

St. Louis Girl's Troth to Seymour Bern Told

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis of St. Louis, Mo., announce the engagement of their daughter, Blossom, to Seymour Bern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bern of 5135 Drexel avenue. Miss Lewis attended Washington university. Her fiancé, who is a member of the army reserve, studied at De Paul university and is completing his studies at the University of Chicago.

Children's Shoes.

Conservation of clothing does not mean skimping on children's shoes, as shoes that are outgrown before they are worn out may cause lasting foot difficulties.

International House Plans Anniversary Party

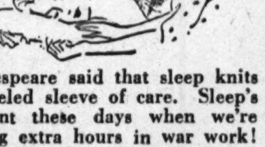
Tenth anniversary ceremonies will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in International house at the University of Chicago. There will be a program in the assembly hall and a reception in the home room.

BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser

A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting

New York, Nov. 8th. Any fashion that contributes BOTH prettiness and practicality wins my money! . . . Yours, too, I believe, when it means the exciting charm of those new short skirted dresses for after-dark! They're informal enough for most usual evening occasions . . . yet give you enough formality to feel comfortable anywhere! Sequins, encrusted pearl embroidery, the cunning use of tulle and graceful draperies of contrasting chiffon give these short frocks all the richness and glamour of toe-tipping evening gowns. Yet how practical they are,—perfect under fur or dress coat,—suitable for any hour from four on,—"wearable" wartime evening "gadabouts" when you're with men in uniform! You'll find these short "formals" in your stores NOW, . . . and here are other timely BUY-LINES to serve you in a variety of ways . . .

The Toast of the town is the girl who's dainty ALWAYS! So make no mistake about your deodorizing protection! I advise AMOLIN Personal Deodorant Powder because of its famous deodorizing qualities for sure feminine poise and assurance to smart grooming,—Use this fresh-scented deodorizing powder when it's necessary to be discreet about intimate secrets, sprinkle it in your shoes to do away with traces of foot perspiration, dust it underarms EVERY day . . . or use AMOLIN Cream if you prefer a vanishing cream for underarm use. Your Druggist has AMOLIN Powder and Cream . . . ask him for them!



Shakespeare said that sleep knits the raveled sleeve of care. Sleep's important these days when we're spending extra hours in war work! So I think you'll welcome a discovery I've made about how SWAN can help you sleep better! Just relax before you retire in a warm tubful of the richly luxurious suds this pure white floating soap gives. Remember—it's kind to tenderest skin because it's pure as finest of castiles. SWAN snaps in two, giving you a bath cake that's "privately yours" and one for another member of the family or for kitchen duty. Try a SWAN bath every night before you go to bed and just see if it doesn't improve your sleeping!

Important Baby Rules FREE!!

What a thrill for me! Today I can offer you — FREE — the most instructive leaflet ever printed on the care of baby's skin! It's the famous MENNEN Baby Chart! Millions of copies have been distributed by hospitals. A new edition, perfectly illustrated, shows exactly how to bathe baby . . . how to cleanse scalp, eyes, folds of skin . . . how to diaper baby, and wash diapers most easily . . . how to guard against diaper rash, prickly heat, excoriated buttocks, impetigo and other troubles. All instructions are based on recommendations of baby specialists. This isn't "advertising literature"! It's put out by the makers of MENNEN Antiseptic Oil and Baby Powder — the products that have revolutionized the care of baby's skin by providing antiseptic protection that helps guard against harmful germs. To get your Baby Chart, send a penny postcard today to Dept. S, The Mennen Company, Newark, N. J. It's free!
